DARREN O'FLAHERTY: Has been ordered to stand trial.

Justice for gentle giant

By Matthew Elliott

A Briton accused of shooting dead an Irishman at a Benalmadena bar faces a 44-year jail sentence.

Darren O'Flaherty, from Liverpool, has been ordered to stand trial over the murder of Dublin father-of-two, John O'Neil, at Coco's bar in the summer of 2010.

A criminal with a violent record, he was arrested in North Wales in 2013 after three years on the run from Spanish police. After serving 30 months in a British prison for an armed hijacking he was extradited to Malaga in 2015.

John 'Jock' O'Neil was on holiday with his partner and two young children, attending a friend's wedding when he was killed. The popular 41-year-old was targeted after trying to defuse a row that began in a toilet cubicle between two strangers.

One of them, alleged to be Mr O'Flaherty, stormed out of the packed bar on July 28. He returned a short time later with a .38 revolver, firing five shots at Mr O'Neil and more into the crowd.

The plasterer, who was staying at a nearby Torremolinos hotel, was hit in the back and stomach.

Spanish investigators quickly identified O'Flaherty as the prime suspect. Now 43, he was thought to be living in Spain under a fake Irish passport.

Despite a widespread search O'Flaherty managed to elude capture until Welsh police surprised him at a Caernarfon Chinese restaurant as he celebrated his birthday in August 2013.

O'Flaherty, who once served five years for stabbing a man nine times in the back, has been in Alhaurin de la Torre prison awaiting trial.

He is charged with murder, three counts of attempted murder and illegal possession of a firearm. The trial is expected to begin in March.

In addition to the 44-year sentence, prosecutors want him to compensate his victim's two children with €100,000 each.

Jock O'Neil, described by his partner as a "gentle giant," is survived by his son Jake, who was only three when his father was shot dead, and his daughter Jasmine, who was just nine months old when her father was killed.

A 47-YEAR-OLD man from Malaga faces prison for allegedly misappropriating his dead grandmother's pension for 17 years. He and his partner, who was also detained before the two were released on bail, are thought to have drawn at least €200,000 from the savings account of the deceased using her debit card.

Smoked out

A MAJOR smuggling sting has resulted in the intervention of more than three tonnes of black market tobacco worth more than €500,000 in Malaga. Raids took place on units in the Guadalhorce and El Viso industrial estates, where one was used for storage and the other to prepare the merchandise for shipping.

Manhunt mounted

SPANISH police are on the lookout for the driver of a Nissan Note hire car which failed to stop after crashing into a 41-year-old Swedish cyclist in Benalmadena. The victim suffered a series of injuries and although the vehicle was located in Torremolinos a day later, the hit-and-run driver is still at large.

BREAKING NEWS:

POPULAR Costa Blanca expat newspaper the Round Town News (RTN) will not be on the streets this Friday as it takes a week's breather in preparation for an exciting development with the Euro Weekly News (EWN).

Managing director Geoff Gartland's tenure at the helm of RTN has seen it become a respected voice for his readers' opinions which reaches the very heart of their communities. Not unlike the EWN.

But now the RTN is expanding and will be breaking into new areas throughout Spain mirroring the ever expanding footprint of the EWN.

The EWN has now racked up many years of loyal readership and the RTN is not far behind, with both newspapers regarded as highly trusted names in Spain.

There are many parallels between the EWN and RTN, which can only help the continued growth of these two well-established publications.

Stay tuned, as all will be revealed in next week's editions of your favourite local newspapers.

GEOFF GARTLAND: The founder of the Round Town News.

Armed robbers arrested

TWO men who stole €880 during an armed robbery at a supermarket in Marbella centre have been tracked down and arrested by officers of the National Police in Benalmadena.

The pair, who are Spanish nationals aged 30 and 33, drove up to the store and one entered and initially purchased a drink before leaving the property and returning with a gun tucked into his waistband and demanded cash from the till.

They then drove off with the money but following detailed investigations by officers, they were found to be staying in a hostel in Benalmadena and were arrested two days later. They are now facing trial.

'Moonlanding' danger

BUSINESS owners in Torremolinos want more police patrols to crack down on violence and armed robberies. They are fearful that attacks on tourists and properties by organised criminal gangs will destroy local enterprise.

The Association of Employers and Traders (ACET) has sent a formal petition, signed by dozens of local entrepreneurs, to Spain's National Police Commissioner.

ACET want specific action taken against 'moonlanding.' The phenomenon sees thieves crash a car into shop windows to facilitate an easy entrance. Jewellers face a particular threat and are insisting that police install street barricades at key points during the night.

Faulty brake death

A TAXI driver was killed in Torremolinos when he was run over by a car with apparently malfunctioning brakes. Two other people were seriously injured and police are now investigating the precise cause of the incident.

The 55-year-old was standing at his bay with a group of people when the car rolled towards them, quickly gaining speed. He was taken to Malaga hospital but soon died of his injuries.

The two other victims were taken to the Las Lagunas clinic and are expected to fully recover.

Traffickers trounced

HUNDREDS of police officers swarmed dozens of addresses in Marbella and Cadiz as they smashed a huge hash smuggling ring. Bulgarians, Croats and Spaniards were among the more than 20 arrested traffickers in the scheme, believed to have operated for more than 15 years.

Officers have now confiscated luxury boats, cars and properties from the Marbella and Mijas-based ringleaders, who also face money laundering and weapons possession charges.

Mother's call saves son

A BRITISH man was rescued by Marbella police officers who found him locked in his bathroom trying to cut his wrists. The mother of the 50-year-old, believed to suffer from severe mental health problems, called the police to their shared Elviria home.

She panicked when he locked himself in the bathroom and wouldn't respond to her calls. Officers arriving at the scene saw drops of blood seeping through the doorway. They smashed down the door and had to wrestle a kitchen knife away from him when he ignored their calls to stop.

The quick-thinking officers managed to stop the serious blood flow with kitchen roll until an ambulance arrived and took the man to the Costa del Sol hospital where he is now receiving treatment.

Armed forces

MORE than 2,000 Spanish military personnel are deployed on missions in 15 foreign countries.

Most are soldiers in the Army with the biggest contingent serving in the Lebanon with the UN's blue helmet force. Spain contributes nearly 500 troops to the fight against Daesh where they are deployed with the Iraqi Army.

Fourteen soldiers are attached to the UN mission in Colombia as peace observers while in Afghanistan, Spain has 20 personnel based in the capital, Kabul. More than 140 officers and men are serving in the Indian Ocean with the EU's anti-piracy initiative.

Weapons held

FIFTY-EIGHT people have been arrested in a major Spanish policed crackdown on illegal weapons coming out of the Balkans. Seventeen police forces across Europe were involved, including agents from the US. The joint operation to combat arms trafficking was coordinated from Europol's control centre in The Hague.

SALAMANCA

HOME to the oldest university in Spain, Salamanca is an ancient Celtic city in the community of Castile and Leon. It was once besieged by Hannibal, he of the Alps and elephants fame.

During the Spanish Civil War it was a nationalist stronghold, Franco being named Generalissimo while in the city. It is also the site of an unusual festival day on February 5 when women, symbolically at least in years gone by, would take over the reins of power in civic venues including the town hall.

While this was going on they were supposed to leave their men at home doing the housework. Nowadays they're more likely to take to the streets for a party with dancing and music.

The festival is based on St Agatha, regarded as the protector of women, who was persecuted for her Christian faith. The women are consequently known as Aguedas. Her refusal to accept the romantic entreaties of a Roman official led to her death in a Roman prison.

Sea rescue

TWELVE fishermen were rescued when their vessel sank off the northern coast of Spain. All the men were suffering from hypothermia but were otherwise uninjured when they were plucked from the sea. Seven of the crew were taken to a hospital in Asturias and the other five to a hospital in Galicia. Three helicopters and three lifeboats were launched after distress signals were received.

Defiant trio

THREE former members of the Catalan government, including its ex-president Artur Mas, say they have nothing to apologise for over their symbolic independence vote three years ago.

They are accused of criminal disobedience and breach of trust. The court trying them could impose bans from public office of 10 years if convicted. Less than half of those eligible to vote actually took part.

Smash-and-grab over

POLICE have smashed another gang using explosives to blow up cash machines. At least 23 people, most of them from Chile, were arrested over several months but details are only now being released.

The gang were involved in numerous crimes including burglary, identity theft, vehicle theft and the use of gas and explosives to blast open cash machines in Catalonia, Valencia and Madrid. In one robbery at a cash machine nails were thrown across roads to hinder the chances of police following them.

First 3D printed bridge

A PARK in Madrid has made history with the installation of the world's first bridge constructed using a 3D printer.

The 40ft concrete structure represents the first time such technology has been utilised on such a scale. Because 3D printers do not need any casts or moulds, the costs of making the bridge were kept to a minimum.

The design team behind the project said the structure "reflected the complexities of nature's forms" and its design meant waste had been kept to a minimum "by recycling the raw material during manufacture."

The bridge is also being hailed as a first by those who believe a whole range of structures could now be manufactured much more cheaply using the same technique.

Copper Heeler brings relief from arthritis

MANY people have suffered with arthritis over the years, finding no long-term solutions, turning to strong medication to try and ease the pain, and thus putting up with a lesser quality of life.

Malcolm Landsman, who had studied magnetic and copper therapy for years, realised he may have hit on the solution to easing the joint pain that so many people experience. Copper Heelers are a simple accessory placed inside the heel of the shoe that gives arthritis sufferers incredible results within weeks. This works by means of replacing the copper in the body that arthritis sufferers lack. We all need certain metal elements in order to thrive and one of those key elements is copper, it is an essential part of the minerals within the body. There are 25,000 sweat glands in the foot alone, and so this is a prime area to absorb copper and utilise its healing properties.

Copper also prevents inflammation around the joints, so there is a feeling of well-being all round. Malcolm has been marketing the Copper Heelers in Spain for more than five years now, and he has satisfied customers spreading the word about their change of life since using them. One lady from Las Siesta wrote to Malcolm only last week to say: "I have suffered for 10 years with the agony of arthritis, but since I have bought the Copper Heelers and worn them, my arthritis has improved in only five days!" This miracle insole has brought joy to many who have been restricted with movement in the past.

For more information on the Copper Heelers, please visit the website at www.copperheeler.es or call Malcolm on 966 763 770.

A Royal visit

KING FELIPE VI opened the sixth Transfiere Forum in Malaga on Wednesday (February 15).

The science fair pools together innovative research from all over Spain and presents it to a variety of different sectors for the whole of Europe.

During his speech the King described it as a "magnificent" event and a shining example of "the best collaboration between public and private sectors for innovation."

Later he added: "Malaga has made dynamism its aim, and has for some time now placed itself among the forerunners of innovation in many sectors."

He said innovation was important to propel Spain into the future and he thanked the country's universities for their role in research.

The monarch later toured the exhibition hall to have a look at the numerous projects on display.

Once the event had ended, the King was given a closed tour of the Malaga Museum which has more than 15,000 pieces.

TRANSIFIERE FORUM: King Felipe VI opened the science fair in Malaga.

OUR VIEW

Thank You

WITH all of the negative news coming from around the world, it is always heart-warming to know that there are so many kind, caring and generous people who will immediately react when their help is needed.

As soon as EWN became aware of the plight of four-year-old Leo Bermejo, we used every channel available to us to publicise his plight and to ask our readers and advertisers to help raise the funds to allow him to travel to Oklahoma for ground-breaking proton treatment.

After an appearance on Spectrum radio coupled with coverage on our website, the whole appeal was kick started and within a matter of days, much more than 50 per cent of the amount needed had been raised which meant that there was sufficient to allow for the first payment for treatment and accommodation to be made.

Soon after Leo travelled to the UK for a preparatory operation, the wonderful news arrived that an anonymous donation for the balance of the appeal had been received.

This reaction from our community in Spain is absolutely fantastic and this response is summed up in the words of the Dalai Lama, "Love and compassion are necessities, not luxuries. Without them, humanity cannot survive."

Now we want to hear your views.
YOUR PAPER - YOUR VOICE - YOUR OPINION

THE daughters of the woman jailed for torturing and killing animals on an industrial scale face criminal and civil investigation over their role in the heinous crimes. Police are investigating new evidence that reveals the shocking scale of the corruption at the heart of the Animal Park in Torremolinos.

Former head of the park Carmen Marin was recently sentenced to four years imprisonment over the deaths of thousands of animals in her care.

Family's animal blood money

Abandoned and rescued cats and dogs, and even people's pets, were slowly killed with weak doses of poison so Marin could claim subsidies from the Torremolinos Council and make space for new victims.

The blood money was used to fund lavish holidays abroad across three continents and expensive shopping sprees totaling more than €100,000. The Animal Park was officially registered as a non-profit charity, meaning Marin and her assistant could pocket the money tax free.

Now one daughter stands accused of money laundering while another is alleged to have benefited financially from the corruption, knowing full well where the money came from.

Lawyers have found that the Animal Park received a substantial volume of donations and even inheritances from local people who believed deeply in the charity's work. In one case the park pocketed roughly €110,000 tax free in a will from an estate worth €400,000.

Meanwhile Marin herself has appealed against her sentence, claiming to be the victim of a plot against the Animal Park by disgruntled employees.

Arsonist's terror campaign

By Matthew Elliott & Matt Ford

MIJAS residents expressed their disbelief when a man accused of setting fire to cars and buildings was arrested and released - for the fourth time.

Mayor Juan Carlos Maldonado has had to reassure concerned citizens in La Cala and Calahonda that the authorities will protect them from the arsonist. The council has also submitted an official letter to the prosecutor's office in Fuengirola, demanding a more forceful response.

The 42-year-old Lithuanian suspect is now in custody having been arrested five times in a matter of weeks. He was caught trying to set a shop on fire in the El Zoco area just hours after being released.

Locals are demanding to know why the clearly unstable individual was freed in the midst of his terror campaign against the community.

People reported being afraid to park their cars on public roads and being fearful that their own homes may be targeted. As well as setting shops on fire, the man is accused of burning several cars. Police believe he cracked open wheel spokes with a tool and buried newspapers doused in petrol inside the tyres before setting them alight.

One of the victims was long-time Costa del Sol resident Anne Bowles, whose Ford Fiesta was torched.

It had been parked in the residents' spaces near Olivia's Restaurant in La Cala de Mijas, and Anne was unaware of the incident until her community gardener decided to check on the commotion outside and she followed.

"When I arrived at the police station I couldn't think of a single word in Spanish because I was so shocked," Anne, who is co-founder of the La Cala de Mijas Lions' Diabetics Support Group, told the Euro Weekly

News. "I can't believe they let the man go, he is reputed to have spat in the face of the Irish bookshop owner's wife."

Pirate TV scheme exposed

By Matthew Elliott

BRITISH nationals are believed to have masterminded an elaborate pirate television scheme across the Costa del Sol from the UK. Spain's National Police raided a premises in Calahonda after being handed evidence by investigators hired by the Premier League.

The shop was allegedly selling devices which could allow bar owners or individuals to access hundreds of international subscription-based television channels. Costing roughly €450 the routers enabled users to watch live Premier League football, film channels and almost anything else under the sun.

Five of the 10 employees at the premises have been charged with conspiring to provide illegal access to the channels. Police believe that two individuals based in England were directing all operations. The Brits are thought to have made an extremely handsome profit given the large expatriate population in the area.

The shop sold the expensive devices to local bars, restaurants, hotels and to private individuals looking for cheaper access to international TV.

Police raiding the premises encountered elaborate security measures and discovered that all movements were being watched by a camera filming from the UK. Staff in the shop immediately began trying to destroy files, receipts and other incriminating evidence but were quickly pounced on by the police.

They were tipped off when investigators hired by the Premier League bought one of the devices for themselves and provided a receipt of purchase to the authorities. The identity of the British masterminds remains unknown.

Mystery puzzle of the chopper

THE Guardia Civil has recovered a helicopter that was found on a farm in Farajan in the Serrania de Ronda in Malaga Province.

The helicopter is painted black and, apparently, does not have documentation or a registration number.

When questioned by police the land owner said he did not know the reason why it was there.

The farm is located about three kilometres from Farajan and its owner usually lives on the Costa del Sol.

Police believe that the aircraft could have been used for the transport of illegal goods and they have not ruled out that a mechanical fault might have forced the aircraft to land.

The Guardia Civil has now transferred the helicopter on the back of a lorry to a secure location and are waiting for someone to claim it.

In 2015 a helicopter, also painted black, crashed into an electricity pylon killing its two occupants. On board were three bales of hashish.

Justice for Ana

THOUSANDS of people have signed a petition demanding judges reverse the reduction of a killer's prison sentence.

The family of a popular

Torremolinos English teacher stabbed to death by her husband launched the petition on Change.org.

Ana Isabel was stabbed 30 times by her husband Carlos

Rio in 2014. He was psychotic and threatening to kill himself when he suddenly launched the frenzied attack.

A jury rejected a plea of temporary insanity and found him guilty of premeditated murder. Rio was handed a life sentence of 25 years.

A recent ruling, however, from the Andalusian High Court has considered his confession and a perceived lack of cruelty as extenuating factors and reduced the term to 17 years.

Understandably Ana's sister Marian is furious at the decision. She helped organise protests outside the courtroom demanding the maximum sentence for Ana's killer.

Now she has accrued more than 13,000 signatures protesting the judgement. If 15,000 people sign the petition there will be an automatic review granted before the Supreme Court.

SOAP STAR: Danniella Westbrook.

A fresh start

By Matthew Elliott

ENGLISH actress Danniella Westbrook has arrived in Marbella to embark on a fresh new life and possibly even open a shop.

The former EastEnders star plans to stay in the Costa del Sol for at least three months to get back in shape and put her drug demons behind her.

The 43-year-old has suffered a tumultuous few months having broken up with her beau, gone into a deep depression and relapsed into her much-publicised cocaine addiction.

But the actress, who played Samantha Mitchell on the BBC soap, and has appeared on Celebrity Big Brother and Hollyoaks, looked at peace as she was snapped strolling along a Marbella beach.

"Three months of relaxation and working on myself. Training & yoga" she wrote on her Twitter page, adding that it was "after a long day looking for the perfect shop to launch my new store in Marbs."

Helmet from a hero

By Matthew Elliott

AN antiques specialist thinks he found a genuine piece of British history at a Benalmadena flea market. Professional collector Jose Fernandez bought a helmet that may have belonged to one of Britain's most decorated Second World War heroes.

Inside the helmet was an original document listing the medals and other accolades named by the owner, initialed JRDB. Jose suspects that the leather helmet, which came with an oxygen mask for just €15, belonged to famous fighter pilot ace John Randall Daniel 'Bob' Braham.

The RAF night fighter pilot made his name during the Battle of Britain, fended off enemy aircraft during the Blitz and claimed to have shot down 29 German jets before being shot down himself beyond enemy lines.

He famously offered the German officer who shot him down a whisky once the war ended, to celebrate a British victory, before being liberated in 1945. Braham was the most decorated airman in the RAF fighter command. He settled in Nova Scotia after the war, dying in 1974 aged just 53.

More than 70 years after his heroic deeds, Malaga-based Jose Fernandez is now in touch with the RAF and British antiques experts to confirm the authenticity of his find. He claims the stall owner had no idea how he came to find it and believes it could be worth €1,000. He has no intention of selling it, though, preferring instead to loan it to museums as a genuine piece of history.

Golfing vs football

By Matthew Elliott

THE owners of new sporting facilities enjoyed by Marbella Futbol Club have been dragged into a court battle over claims they destroyed protected golfing greenery. MFC Sport Arena, which owns the facilities, is accused of illegally setting up training pitches on the golf course next to the La Dama de Noche community.

The new complex has four football pitches. The finishing touches were still being added when the Marbella Council ordered all works to stop in January. Neighbours have alleged that the grounds have ravaged the pristine plant life around the protected golf course and the Rio Verde.

MFC Sports Arena is partly controlled by a key shareholder in Marbella FC, German Pastushenko, who has extensive property interest across the Costa del Sol. If found guilty the firm faces a hefty fine.

Auction raises another €1m MARBELLA City Council has been formally awarded another €1 million of the roughly €70 million the corrupt former councillor Juan Antonio Roca owes the taxpayer. Millions of euros have been raised so far from a website auctioning off the lavish goods accrued by the jailed mastermind behind the notorious Malaya case.

Properties in Madrid and Marbella have been sold along with luxury watches, antique weapons, hunting trophies and even a vintage bus for €25,000.

Roca was found guilty of corruption in 2006 as part of a huge money laundering, extortion and bribery case involving dozens of individuals. Police are still investigating him over other charges. He was recently granted a temporary release from Alhaurin de la Torre prison where he is serving a lengthy sentence having been unable to pay bail of €3 million in 2008.

Fast and furious mopeds

By Eleanor Hawkins

ONE man, aged 20 faces charges of dangerous driving and another 15 were done for various offences against road safety when Guardia Civil officers stormed an illegal moped race in Alora.

“Fifteen people were booked for having made irregular changes to their mopeds to increase their speed or power.”

Officers from the Antequera Guardia Civil traffic department were tipped off that a day of races was to be held in the Alora countryside and set up an operation to put a stop to it.

The 20-year-old moped driver tried to flee the scene when he became aware of the police presence but was quickly caught by officers.

Meanwhile the other 15 were identified and booked, mostly for having made important irregular changes to their mopeds to increase their speed or power.

MOPED RACE: Was to be held in the Alora countryside.

Save money on your fuel

DIESEL prices in Marbella are among the highest in Spain. At €1.163 per litre it is more expensive to refuel in Marbella than in all of Spain's biggest cities. In wealthy Barcelona diesel averages €1.155 per litre, while in the capital Madrid it is even lower at €1.119.

Marbella is far more expensive than nearby Mijas at €1.141, or Estepona just next door where it costs €1.138. In Malaga City drivers can expect to pay €1.147, when just over a year ago it was only €1.

The predominance of big name petrol stations around Marbella, and the relative distance of the Costa del Sol from refineries, contributes to the higher costs. Unmanned rural stations are more likely to offer cheaper fuel.

Luckily there are some apps you can download on your phone which will tell you where the cheapest fuel is in the vicinity. Try Gasolina y Diesel Espana, Gasolineras Espana, or GasAll to save a little money.

Risk free - 12 per cent pa return

Welcome to the weekly news from Hola Credito, Spain's leading short term lender. In our weekly column, we want to introduce our latest option which will earn investors 12 per cent interest per annum

WE are still in the business of advancing loans against luxury items but are also looking to offer a brand new service to investors in Spain by introducing peer to peer lending where we match lenders with borrowers.

The advantage of this service is that it allows investors to be involved in a secure operation which will generate much larger returns than can be obtained from banks or from traditional investments.

Very simply, we are offering those with spare resources the chance to purchase current pre-funded loans, with the security of the asset associated to the loan.

These loans are generally set at 50 to 70 per cent of the current value of the asset, so the element of risk is greatly reduced and in the event of a default, the item will be sold at auction.

Each loan is set for six months and will generate 12 per cent interest per annum and investors can choose from a range of different loans which will already be in place.

What's more, every time a new loan is created, we will send details to our investing customers who will then have the opportunity to become involved by taking part in the loan. You can invest in as many or as few of the loans as you wish and each will be in place for no longer than six months.

Some borrowers will repay the loan earlier and in that scenario, you will receive the amount of interest due up to the date of repayment and as soon as any loan is repaid, interest and the capital will be transferred to your bank account.

Naturally discretion is paramount and we will not pass any personal information about the other to either investors or borrowers.

People always need to borrow and here is an interesting chance for those with some spare cash to benefit from this financially appealing opportunity.

LUXURY ITEMS: Can be used against a loan.

For more information about how you can be an investor or a borrower contact Hola Credito via WhatsApp on 672 381 908 by email info@holacredito.com or by calling 951 319 538.

Rampant cat colonies

CAPTURE CAMPAIGN: Will see cats dewormed, sterilised and relocated.

By Matthew Elliott

URGENT measures will be taken to reduce stray cat colonies in Torremolinos which have been denounced as a public health hazard. Local animal associations will be involved in the decisions to ensure that the cats are protected and kept healthy in the future.

Multiple cat colonies have existed in Torremolinos for years but recent growth has been uncontrolled and poses a severe threat to both animal and human health. Animal rights groups have demanded the local government take preventative measures, fearing that a cull would be implemented if no action is taken.

Many animal lovers in Torremolinos remain shaken by the sadistic events seen at the municipal animal park. Thousands of cats and dogs were killed slowly by the ex-director who was handed a prison sentence earlier this year.

Residents can expect an intensive capture, deworming and sterilisation campaign in the coming weeks. Once cleared, the cats will then be released into particular areas, away from residential buildings and other populated places.

People who feed the cats may also face a steep €250 fine if caught. Water and food will be officially provided in the designated areas.

More acts for Starlite but...

By John Smith

ALTHOUGH the organisers continue to reveal new acts booked to appear at the Starlite Festival which is due to run from July 13 to August 26 it appears that there is still no approval for it to operate.

It is clear that the situation is very delicate as far as the organisers are concerned as they have run six previous events which have attracted a number of world class names and large numbers of visitors to Marbella, so may well have had every reason to assume that the seventh festival would be approved.

IN THE LINE-UP: The Bootleg Beatles in Gibraltar 2016.

To this end therefore they have announced a line-up that includes Sir Elton John, Malu, Bootleg Beatles, Andrea Bocelli, Dani Martín and the Cranberries, plus many others and they have had to enter into agreements with them to ensure availability.

The fact remains however that no announcement has yet been made by the council to confirm that the necessary licences have been approved and it may be that complaints entered by Podemos Marbella member the lawyer Marco Arafat Garrido against Starlite last year are still under investigation.

It appears that he contacted the Local Police who in turn involved the Seprona arm of the Guardia Civil concerning the fact that music was being played later than the officially agreed time, allegedly to the annoyance of neighbours and the possible financial disadvantage of existing bar owners.

To a great extent the organisers of Starlite have had to take a calculated risk in order to attract the right calibre of artists to the festival, but if the required licences are not issued by the council in time then they would no doubt suffer a financial loss as well as having to refund the cost of tickets already sold.

When asked for their observation on this matter, Carlos Aguilar said on behalf of Starlite that licences have been renewed which will allow 45 days of performances, direct employment of 500 people and an influx of visitors to the City.

WETLANDS IN PERIL: The record number of overwintering birds masks a grim reality.

A record wintering of birds, despite the wetlands suffering

By Matt Ford

RECORD numbers of wetland birds are overwintering in Andalusia, with close to a million recorded during the 2016 annual census.

This represents an increase of 115,000 over the previous record, set in 2014.

Around 645,000 of the birds counted during the census, which included 230 wetland sites, were in Doñana National Park, which straddles parts of Huelva and Sevilla provinces and is the largest wetland in southern Spain.

Regional Environmental councillor, Jose Fiscal, said: "This increase is due in particular to the abundant rainfall that hit the Atlantic coast during autumn, which had led to excellent flooding in Doñana's natural marshland."

The councillor was speaking at a release of endangered species at the artificial Cañada de los Pajeros reserve in Puebla del Rio, Sevilla, in order to commemorate World Wetlands Day (WWD).

However, the positive news regarding the number of birds present in the region came as a scathing WWD report by SEO/Birdlife International concluded that Doñana, the Ebro Delta and the Albufera de Valencia, Spain's three most important wetlands, are on the verge of environmental collapse.

The Executive Director of the organisation, Asuncion Ruiz, explained how wetlands in Spain, a country that "has the potential to become the desert of Europe," are reaching "a point of no return that will not only endanger nature, but also society."

WWD commemorates the signing of the Ramsar International Convention on Wetlands in 1971.

However, Ruiz said that Spain "should drop its bragging over its status as the country with the third largest number of Ramsar sites," because "its poor conservation standards may lead to its expulsion."

She added that the chronic situation in Doñana, the Ebro and Valencia has forced her organisation to open an official investigation "to assess whether Spain meets the requirements to remain in the catalogue."

Wetlands are among the most fragile ecosystems on the planet, with around 60 per cent having disappeared during the 20th century, 87 per cent since the year 1700.

In Spain, the conservation status of an estimated 80 per cent of freshwater habitats fails to meet standards, with decades of pollution, over-exploitation and mismanagement having taken their toll.

MULTILINGUAL TEAM: Staff at yourVIVA speak more than 10 languages.

For the Costa del Sol property market, success breeds success

FROM tourism, employment and real estate, to the wider economy, 2016 was a milestone year for Spain, whatever the metrics used to judge its performance.

Nowhere more so than on the Costa del Sol. And despite the uncertainty caused by the extraordinary result of the Brexit referendum back in June, experts confidently predict that Spain's current period of sustained growth and expansion is a trend that is likely to continue...

BBVA Research – the analytical arm of the Spain-based global bank – is, for example, forecasting a 6.5 per cent increase in property transactions across Spain in 2017, allied to average price increases of more than 3.5 per cent; while the Spanish arm of British agents Knight Frank foresee an increase in average property values across Spain of between 5-6 per cent over the next three years.

So, with a network of strategically-located regional offices all along the Coast and inland too, we asked Costa del Sol estate agents yourVIVA for their own take on the current status of the property market in southern Spain and, as ever, Managing Partner Martina Heynemann was only too happy to share her knowledge and thoughts with us.

“Overall, 2016 was a record-breaking year for yourVIVA in terms of property transactions and although it's early days, we've had a strong and very positive start to 2017, too. Obviously, the immediate fallout from the Brexit vote last summer affected our business to a certain extent with enquiries from British clients dropping off quite dramatically, although we continue to sell to British buyers pretty much every week. The only thing that has changed is that because of the weaker pound, naturally some of our British clients have tailored their budgets accordingly.

“Britons' long-standing love affair with Spain in general – and the Costa del Sol in particular – is of course legendary. And although it's British visitors that traditionally lead the field both in tourist numbers as well as holiday spend, thanks to its unparalleled climate, cuisine, culture and laid-back atmosphere, it comes as absolutely no surprise that people of all nationalities and from every corner of the globe similarly find southern Spain utterly irresistible.

“Again, when it comes to buying a property here, it's the British who dominate the market, and in yourVIVA's case they account for around 30 per cent of our clients, followed not too far behind by Scandinavians, the French, Germans, Dutch and increasingly North Americans, too.

MARTINA HEYNEMANN:
yourVIVA's
Managing Partner.

“It's no coincidence that one of yourVIVA's guiding principles has been to concentrate on building a thoroughly cosmopolitan and multilingual team of professionals, with our Customer Services, Vendor Services and Sales teams between them speaking more than 10 different languages – not just fluently, but as their mother tongue.

“With some 70 per cent of all residential properties sold in the province of Malaga between January and July 2016 purchased by foreigners, the international market is clearly booming, but as a result of the creation nationwide of more than 540,000 jobs last year, the domestic property market is enjoying a very significant upturn, too.

“This is all excellent news for those thinking of selling their property, and in fact 13.6 per cent more Spanish homes changed hands last year than in 2015. This upturn has been seen both throughout the Coast as well as inland, making it the perfect time for vendors to visit their local yourVIVA office in order to put their property on the market and get the ball rolling.

“Mortgage activity is up. Building permits are up. And foreign investment from multinational conglomerates is also once more pouring into the Costa del Sol. We have exciting times ahead of us!”

BARACK OBAMA: Enjoyed kite surfing in the Caribbean.

By Matthew Elliott

A YOUNG Spanish man has been revealed as Barack Obama's kite surfing instructor. The former president was snapped enjoying his retirement on one of Richard Branson's private islands in the Caribbean.

Elias Llacer, a 26-year-old from Valencia, recently landed the dream job on Necker Island, bought by the British billionaire in 1983.

Llacer had lived in London for a few years, learning English and working. But, like many Spaniards, he soon grew sick and tired of the woeful weather and flew home. He took up kite surfing in Cadiz and, hearing that Branson was an avid fan, wrote the Virgin boss a cheeky letter.

Branson was taken with the young man's passion and invited him out to the Caribbean for a trial. Just months later here he was, tutoring one of the most famous men on the planet, and former leader of the free world.

New uniforms given to Benalmadena volunteers

By John Smith

THE Benalmadena councillor for Security, Javier Marin congratulated and thanked volunteer members of the local Civil Protection Unit as they celebrated the feast day of Our Lady of Lourdes.

"I thank you on behalf of the corporation for your help and always coming forward following any appeal," said Marin as he gave examples of the dedication and professionalism of the group, especially when called on to search for missing hikers or when there is a natural disaster.

As he presented the group with new uniforms provided by the local council, he stressed the importance of ongoing training in such fields as first aid, fire-fighting, coping with disasters and marine problems.

Cultural catastrophe

ONE of Marbella's most important institutions is on the verge of collapse according to its own director. Jose Maria Morales admitted that the Museum of Contemporary Spanish Engraving is suffering its 'greatest crisis' since it opened 25 years ago.

Much of the problem is financial. Gone is the €1 million fund allocated by Marbella Council to help the museum expand. Its accounts have since been effectively embargoed according to the director. Morales is hopeful that new funding will be forthcoming but no more money is earmarked for 2017.

There also appear to be divisions among the museum's hierarchy over what direction to take in the future. Morales is adamant that the museum fulfill the aims of his father and stay a non-profit entity, open to the public and at the service of society. Whether such a laudable goal is possible in the current era is the big question.

The museum is one of Marbella's leading cultural institutes.

AMBITIOUS PROJECT: Bringing new walking trails and cycle lanes to the community.

Green oasis master plan

By Matthew Elliott

ONE of the most ambitious eco projects in the history of the Costa del Sol is officially underway. The creation of the Las Chapas green corridor in Marbella will bring new walking trails, cycle lanes, orchards and a dog park to the local community.

Mayor Jose Bernal visited the site to celebrate the beginning of the projects. Work is expected to take around six months and has a €370,000 budget. It will span 12 hectares of land and create 2.3km of new walking and biking trails.

There will be easily accessible pathways for people with reduced mobility and vibrant green areas with lush plant life. A special dog park will span 960 square metres. There will also be playgrounds and a connection with the Las Chapas beach.

Described as the 'first step' by environment councillor Miguel Diaz, the green corridor is part of an even more ambitious master plan. Over the years there are plans to transform the wider area, including the Elviria pine forests, into a grand natural area bringing sports and eco-tourism and investment to the area.

Brexit negotiations could destabilise EU

BREXIT PAGE

By John Smith

NOT known to be a great fan of Britain, the President of the European Commission Jean-Claude Juncker has warned in a radio interview that the British are clever enough to make different promises to different countries over Brexit.

Rather than admit that individual member states within the European Union will do all that they can to secure a deal that suits them best, he has decided to accuse Britain of trying to manipulate those members by saying different things to different states.

He seems to have overlooked the number of cities who are vying to take over as headquarters of the European Medical Agency which is currently based in London and which will have to remove itself once Brexit is completed.

NOT A FAN: John-Claude Juncker with Theresa May.

Denmark, Germany, Ireland, Spain and Sweden have all declared that they wish to be considered as the new home of that agency and the European Banking Agency will also be looking for a new home in two years time.

Mr Juncker appears to think that Britain's future negotiations are likely to destabilise the European Union as members agree different deals, even though he insists that no deals should be done until after Britain has left.

He has also indicated however that he does intend to stand for re-election as president in 2019.

Brexit voting is still on course in the Commons

HAVING successfully sailed through the House of Commons with majority approval of the White Paper on triggering Article 50 to allow Britain to leave the European Union, Prime Minister Theresa May must be pleased with the ease of the vote.

With only Kenneth Clarke deviating from the Tory benches by voting against as he indicated at a very early stage, it was the Labour front bench which saw yet more unrest with five members of the Shadow Cabinet resigning as they would not bow down to a three line whip instructing them to vote in favour.

The resignations gave rise to yet another round of 'Corbyn stepping down' rumours which have been hurriedly denied and even the absence of staunch supporter Diane Abbott with a sudden migraine on the first round of voting caused a flurry of speculation, although she did turn up and follow the party line at the second vote.

Reports suggest however that when Brexit Secretary David Davies went to kiss her after congratulating her on the vote, she was horrified and expressed this with an expletive. He has since apologised to her for his initial lighthearted action.

Despite the government's statement it wanted to see the situation of expats in the UK and abroad resolved early, one amendment which covered this position was voted down which has caused some upset with British nationals living within the EU. All attempts at adding clauses were easily beaten but things may not be so tranquil when the Bill reaches the House of Lords where the government does not have a majority.

Whilst it is likely to pass in due course, any amendments agreed by the House would have to be referred back to the Commons on March 7 and these amendments could 'ping pong' backwards and forwards for some time.

Despite all this, it is still expected that the government will be able to trigger Article 50 by the planned date.

#Help a Dane!

By Matthew Elliott

DANISH people have launched a campaign asking the Spanish for their help in combating skin cancer. The Danish Cancer Society is hoping to raise awareness among tourists who travel to the sun-soaked Mediterranean.

The campaign has the Twitter hashtag #helpadane. It reveals that every single day a Danish person dies from skin cancer. #helpadane encourages Spanish volunteers to remind Danish tourists to slap on the sun cream, embrace the shade, and wear hats and sunglasses.

A quirky note reads 'Tens of thousands of Danes travel from the cold, dark north to your beautiful beaches. When we see a ray of sunshine we abandon all caution and roast in the sun hour after hour. Teach us to be more like you!'

Margaret's mishap

COMRADESHIP is the watchword of the Royal British Legion and never was this more apparent than when the Alhaurin El Grande Branch rallied to show their support after one of its members, Margaret, suffered an accident that involved a rapid visit to the hospital and needed non-financial aftercare.

The tactical situation was evaluated, troops were rallied, briefed and action was taken. Now thankfully two weeks on the casualty is comfortable in her own home with abundant support. This could be you!

Camaraderie, friendship, chit chat, all go on in our meetings, the underlying bond of ex-services members and non-military members developing a togetherness supporting the Legion with the Poppy Appeal foremost in mind. We hope this unity may give support on the battlefield of life. You don't have to be alone!

Ed Malcolm, chairman, said "As expats, living away from our families can make some of us feel vulnerable. In such circumstances we become each other's families."

A further branch activity well-attended was a 'bring and buy sale' on January 17 which raised €75 towards the Poppy Appeal. It was a good meeting and the branch spirit flowed swiftly with thoughts of our communal work nearer home.

If you are interested in joining the Royal British Legion please get in touch by calling 617 807 031.

How your community is structured

ALTHOUGH the law, known as the Law of Horizontal Property, clearly explains the different roles and responsibilities of a community, new owners in particular, are often unaware how the community they find themselves living in is structured, in practice the definitions do not always cover real life.

Fundamentally, all residential communities throughout Spain must have a president, sometimes a vice president, usually a committee and a treasurer, very often an administrator and of course the general assembly, who are the actual owners.

The president, who must be elected from one of the owners, is the legal representative of the community. They can sign contracts and cheques, open and close community bank accounts and are responsible for the orderly behaviour of the other owners.

Although presidents are in charge they are not all powerful, they should follow the wishes of the community as a whole. Presidents cannot for example instigate a court action without the prior consent of their community and unless specifically empowered to do so, presidents cannot appoint or dismiss the community administrator. Should a president sign or agree to something outside of their legal capacity, especially without the prior consent of the community, then individual owners and/or the community are within their rights to seek compensation for any resulting damages.

It is compulsory to have at least one general meeting per year to approve the accounts and appoint the officers of the community. The president usually calls the meeting, decides on the agenda and approves the signing of the minutes by the secretary, the president may also call extraordinary meetings as needed. However, if for any reason a president refuses a request to call an extraordinary meeting, then 25 per cent of the owners or a group of owners representing 25 per cent of the property, are entitled to call the meeting themselves.

The secretary or administrator, unless this post is taken by the president, looks after the community documentation, this involves taking the minutes and general communication with owners. The secretary or administrator is not an employee of the president, they too should follow the wishes of the community, especially where there is conflict between the president and other owners.

Generally it is recommended to employ a registered professional administrator who enjoys the support and expertise provided by their college or organisation.

The treasurer or auditor oversees the community finance and the budget as approved at the annual general meeting. The committee, if there is one, is not specifically regulated under the Law of Horizontal Property and should act in accordance with the guidance and decisions of the owners and the president. It is common that committees are permitted by the assembly of owners to make their own decisions on how the day to day affairs are decided. More often than not a large and diverse committee, as it acts by a consensus of opinion, is the most democratic way of getting things done and avoiding conflict between different owners.

Once the time, date and place for a meeting has been announced, and provided 50 per cent of the owners - representing 50 per cent of the total ownership are present, the community meeting can go ahead.

If not, then those present are required to wait at least half an hour for what is called, the second calling. At this second calling, regardless of the number of owners present or represented even if there is just one, the meeting can go ahead.

This is the community structure in its most basic form, some situations will vary, we the solicitors of Intercala administration advise readers to seek competent advice in all matters concerning the law.

Women's Day in Manilva

By John Smith

IN what has become an annual event, there will be a special dinner to celebrate International Women's Day in Manilva on March 4 at the Pabellon de Usos Múltiples organised by the Department of Women of the local council.

The price will be €15 per person and a coach will transport those living near the Sabinillas Castle and the centre of the town to the dinner at 7.15pm with a return at midnight.

In addition to the meal, there will be live music and a raffle with gifts donated by local companies, with the main prize being an all-inclusive weekend for two at the Hotel Riu in Chiclana.

Bookings have to be made by February 24 at the council office in either Manilva or Sabinillas.

ADANA goes green

ADANA, the Estepona-based dog rescue and rehoming charity, was thrilled to be able to announce that it had now become totally dependent on solar energy to power all its electricity and water provision needs after the completion of a large scale solar installation by local company INOVIA.

The installation took a month to complete and means that the charity will be able to save around €6,000 a year on diesel fuel for the generators on which it had previously been reliant.

ADANA president Mary Page said that the success of the scheme was entirely down to the expertise of ADANA treasurer Reg Winkworth, a qualified electrician who had for many years run a home maintenance business on the Costa del Sol.

"Because of his experience and knowledge, Reg was able to plan and supervise the whole process," she said.

"We are probably the only kennels in the Malaga Province, maybe the whole Costa del Sol, to be 100 per cent green."

ADANA takes in and rehomes abandoned dogs in the Estepona and Manilva area and has always been conscious of wider environmental implications.

"Our kennels are situated in an area of outstanding beauty, in the Parque de los Pedregales, and we want to help maintain the integrity of that environment," added the President.

Welcoming an international flower arranging expert

WOW what a fantastic demonstration and class with Emily last month! Have a look at the club's Facebook page if you missed it.

This month Estepona Floral Art Club are pleased to welcome Jilly Griffin from the London area. Jilly is very involved in the flower world. She is vice chairman of her local area of NAFAS, Sussex.

She's an area demonstrator, judge and speaker and involved with a contemporary flower arranging group. Jilly is also the chief steward in the Floral Design Studio at the RHS Chelsea Flower Show and she has also been to Tokyo to the Ohara School as she is interested in Ikebana.

So, as you can see she has a tremendous wealth of knowledge to share with us.

Jilly's demonstration, 'Take me as I am' will be on Tuesday February 21, starting at 3pm sharp at Agro Jardin, Cancelada. Demonstrations make for an enjoyable afternoon of live entertainment where you can appreciate the beauty of flowers, pick up lots of hints and tips on all aspects of floral art, gardening and plant information. Why not come along for an afternoon of fun and colour? No knowledge of flower arranging is necessary. Everyone is welcome and the visitor's fee is €10.

Jilly has also kindly agreed to lead 'Look and Learn' and hands on sessions on Thursday February 23, starting at 11am also at Agro Jardin. The title of the class is 'Hangers On.' These sessions are a great opportunity to learn new skills and then gain more detailed instruction in a small group format.

Last month the ladies learnt a design based on a punk rocker's Mohican hairstyle! Please contact Janet as soon as possible, to reserve your place on this session using the contact details below.

For more information and photographs see the club's Facebook page, www.facebook.com/esteponafloralartclub. Alternatively contact Janet on 694 425 219 or send an email to esteponafloralartclub@hotmail.com to receive information about the club or join their mailing list for the monthly newsletter.

Treading in the footsteps of the King: Part I

By John Smith

SINGER and Marbella resident Antony Wolfson has just returned from a fantastic journey of a lifetime in the USA as he literally followed in the footsteps of the King travelling to Memphis, Nashville, New Orleans and the Presley birth place Tupelo.

"This was a pilgrimage that has taken 39 years as I have wanted to do this since I was 11," Antony who loves the music of Elvis Presley, although he is not a tribute artist, told media partner Euro Weekly News in an exclusive interview which will be published over the next two weeks.

What was particularly exciting for him was the fact that as soon as he announced his journey, he was invited to stay with fans in various cities, who in turn introduced him to a number of people and places he would never have found by himself.

“ He then jetted off to Memphis, Tennessee where, amongst other excitement, he had been asked to perform at the Hard Rock Cafe on what would have been Elvis’

"I had the inside track which allowed me to get to places and meet people that others couldn't," he proudly confided as he described the events that saw him visit and even perform in cities closely connected with his idol.

After missing his flight from Paris to Atlanta due to delays in Malaga, Antony finally arrived in New Orleans where he managed to steep himself in the music that oozes from the French Quarter and to spend a bit of time relaxing following a very busy and exciting 2016. He then jetted off to Memphis, Tennessee where, amongst other excitement, he had been asked to perform at the Hard Rock Cafe on what would have been Elvis' 82nd birthday.

Prior to the performance, he visited Graceland, the shrine of all shrines and whilst in the Jungle Room there, he met a lady who was on a tour of Memphis and when she heard that he was playing the Hard Rock that evening, diverted the entire tour to take in his performance which included his new release 'A touch of Heaven!'

Afterwards he stayed with a couple who had grown up in the town and had gone to school with Priscilla Presley and were able to take him to various places that Elvis used to visit in the early years before he became too famous to go out alone.

Thanks to them, Antony enthuses "I sat in places that Elvis used to sit and which few people even know about."

Antony also visited the legendary Sun Studio set up by Sam Philips where early tracks by Elvis, Johnny Cash, Roy Orbison, BB King and Jerry Lee Lewis were recorded. One of Antony's favourite photos shows him holding the microphone used by Elvis in the very same spot that Elvis recorded with the often serious looking British singer shown cracking a smile!

The second part of this story will see Antony continuing his journey to the birthplace of the King, Tupelo.

SPAIN has become flavour of the month as far as UK television is concerned with four reality programmes this week alone looking at different areas of Southern Spain in particular.

Channel 4 broadcasts a daily programme during the week 'A New Life in the Sun' which shows different couples and families as they leave the UK and take on a range of new roles in France and Spain.

There is more emphasis on Spain with stories concerning the opening of restaurants and bars, including the entrepreneurial Tapavino Gastro bar in Calahonda, fishing trips, art classes, bed and breakfasts, kite surfing, boat charters and hairdressing.

Clearly this programme has proven to be very popular with viewers as it is in its second series with a total of 50 different episodes.

British TV loves Spain

Not to be outdone, Channel 5 has a weekly programme 'Bargain-Loving Brits in the Sun' which is shown on Thursday evenings and repeated during the week. This programme follows the lives and activities of a number of people who have left the UK in order to enjoy life, often on a shoe-string, in Benidorm and the general feeling is that almost all of them are having a great time.

Bouncing back to Channel 4 and every evening sees 'Coach Trip: Road to Marbs,' a follow up to Road to Ibiza. In this series, a number of mainly young couples, some straight, some gay and some just looking for a good time without entanglement get on board a coach travelling from the Costa Blanca to Marbella under the watchful eye of tour guide Brendan.

Each day however the couples have to vote for the pair they dislike the most and once a team has two yellow cards, they are eliminated and a new couple join the coach. When the programme first appeared several years ago, couples were not allowed to discuss voting tactics, but now to increase tension, they can form alliances to get people removed.

Finally, this week saw the celebrity chef and owner of the Little Geranium in La Cala de Mijas, Steven Saunders' journey, with his then partner and now wife Michele, to England for the marriage of his daughter Serena to her partner Adam.

'The Wedding Day,' also on Channel 4 showed the couple in the restaurant that they now run which was previously owned by Steven and his first wife Sally and compared the background of the bride and groom and their families to see whether attitudes to marriage were conditioned by their parents.

With the 'Benidorm' sitcom currently about to film a new series and with speculation as to whether there will be another series of the 'Playa in Marbella' about Elliott Wright owner of Olivia's La Cala and his family, Spain really does continue to be kept in front of British viewers.

Hard road home

A PROPERTY developer has been given a two-year prison sentence and ordered to pay a couple back the €56,000 given to him to secure a Mijas house that was never built. Jesus Ruiz Carlos accepted the money knowing full well there was no licence.

The couple had moved from Canada to the Costa del Sol hoping that the weather would help them with health problems. They invested their life savings in the misguided purchase and have waited almost 13 years for justice.

Understanding Spain's different police forces

SPAIN'S federalisation process has added layers and layers of bureaucracy to everyday living.

Currently, there are around 100,000 different laws, norms, decrees, statutes or ordinances and within them, 67,000 belong to the 17 regional communities.

Something similar, albeit on a manageable scale, happens with the diverse police forces; these organisations do not operate in the same areas and it is not altogether clear which one does what in the different regions of Spain.

There is Guardia Civil (of military nature), in charge of road traffic, arms and explosives, policing the coasts/territorial waters and drug smuggling therein, and environmental crimes.

The National Police (civil) deal with drug trafficking, organised financial crime, border controls and issuance of identity cards and passports.

In some areas of Spain, there are also regional police ('Mossos' in Catalonia or 'Ertzaintza' in the Basque Country) and locally, Local Police patrol the towns and cities.

But this distribution is far from being clear cut and overlapping of functions is rife.

Here are a few examples: A few months ago, in Ceuta, a verbal public dispute erupted between the Lieutenant Colonel of the Guardia and the Chief of the National Police with both accusing each other of 'trespassing' their duties.

It has also transpired that the case of the American pilgrim murdered in the 'Camino de Santiago,' in 2015, could have been resolved months before had it not been for a local rivalry between the two main forces.

In the Basque country (2014), two dangerous criminals were freed after being detained for robbery despite having outstanding warrants for their imprisonment.

In Tenerife, following an argument on who was in charge members of the Local and National Polices almost came to blows at a fire scene.

And in Malaga, the investigation of domestic violence cases has been transferred from the local to the National Police and Guardia Civil, much to the anger of the former.

In some areas, the different police 'join forces' in a most bizarre way: in a municipality in Asturias, Local Police will deal with surveillance and road traffic during the day, and the Guardia Civil at night.

Finally, to add more confusion emergency numbers also vary: There is 062 (Guardia Civil), 091 (National police) and 092 (Local Police) although the generic 112 is now the most widely used.

Funds from those who cared

THE fundraisers who joined in the fight to reach Leo's financial target came from all walks of life.

Some gave only a few pounds or euros, hurriedly pulled out of a pocket at the last moment, while others managed events at which hundreds and hundreds were raised.

In Stockport, Greater Manchester, young girls at St Thomas Primary School held a cake sale in aid of Leo. They managed to raise a fantastic £792!

Susan Gutierrez said their Table Top Sale in Vera "was a complete and utter success. I'd like to give a big thanks especially to those who donated their money and time, to those who came and spent their euros and those who got generally involved with the event in one way or another. It just shows what a small community can do when there's a little boy's life at stake."

Among the biggest donors was a squash competition on the Isle of Man, from where Karen hails, which brought in £7,000.

In Karen's own words the family were humbled by the generosity of another little boy who had heard about Leo's plight.

"We just stopped somewhere for lunch now that Leo has been discharged. A mum and her little boy came up to us asking if this was Leo. Nathan, the little boy, wanted to give Leo all of his pocket money and gave him his £5. So, so lovely and generous. Such good people around xxx."

SUSAN GUTIERREZ: Table top sale was a success.

CAKE SALE: Raised a fantastic £792.

Leo the gets rea Oklah

By Simon Firth

LEO THE LION has had his surgery on Merseyside and the doctors are pleased. They have done their part, taking out the two tumours which were growing inside the four-year-old's brain and would have killed him. And after just two days in recovery he was being discharged. For his family especially, and his hundreds of well-wishers and supporters, it was the news everyone had been waiting for. It means the first hurdle has been crossed. Leo must now recover his strength and continue to get better ready for his date with a plane that will take him stateside.

That date is set for February 23 when Leo and mum Karen will fly to Oklahoma.

Before that, Leo was being reunited with his older sister, Sofia, who had to stay in Spain while he was undergoing his treatment at Alder Hey.

When the family arrived in the UK, they left their home with fundraising still going at break neck speed.

Hundreds of events, large and small, contributed to a rising total that was climbing faster and faster towards the magic €175,000. Eventually an anonymous donor stepped in to help, instantly taking the financial strain off the family and leaving them to concentrate on Leo.

Everyone has their theories about who it could be and certainly a lot of famously charitable names were bandied about. But the truth is we don't know. Maybe it's better that way, but Leo's fight against such massive odds, and his smiling face no matter what the cost, had moved thousands of people to donate towards his cause.

In a touching post on social media, Leo's mum Karen said: "Dad, I promise I will continue to do everything in my power to make sure Leo wins this battle. Cancer already took your life so quickly on Christmas Eve. We all miss you so much and our family has lost our rock... I haven't even had time to mourn you yet."

The first hurdle has been crossed for Leo.

Leo ready for Oklahoma

She went on to say, "But I know you will be protecting and looking after him as he takes the next step on this horrendous journey to beat this deadly disease. Leo is going to do this for you. xxx"

When they arrived on Merseyside and a stay at the renowned Alder Hey Children's Hospital, it was clear Leo would need a new round of tests.

An MRI scan gave the surgeons their best view of their twin foes and crucially whether Leo's medical condition had deteriorated.

The extraordinary MRI technology revealed Leo's operation could go ahead but it also showed something new and deeper down that cannot be removed. The most likely option is that it's a new developing tumour, but this time it cannot be cut out.

Instead, Leo must recover his strength so the US-based experts can join in the battle to help him.

In Oklahoma Leo will undergo proton therapy treatment. It offers the chance to bombard the post-operative tumour sites with a fine proton beam.

This will limit as much as possible, any damage to the surrounding tissue in Leo's young brain.

With proton beam therapy he could recover a lot of the faculties he has lost. That would not be possible with conventional radiation.

When the treatment gets underway, under the guidance of Dr Andrew Chang at ProCure in Oklahoma City, the decision will then be made about how to treat the newest mass in Leo's brain.

His family and the rest of us have no alternative but to hope and pray that it responds to the treatment. Leo would then be free, at last, of the tumours that grow as a result of his very rare childhood cancer.

A children's hospital in a park

THERE are probably two children's hospitals which attract most attention in the UK. One, of course, is Great Ormond Street, probably because of its location in London, but the other is Alder Hey on Merseyside. Founded during the First World War, it is a centre of excellence for the treatment of children with cancer.

It is also Europe's first children's hospital built in a park. Construction of the new hospital, which has been going on since 2013, is still underway in some areas. Its managers insist that parts of the building were 'designed through the eyes of a child.'

“Designed through the eyes of a child.”

One of the hallmarks of the design has been the construction of rooms with single beds with sufficient space for parents to sleep there if required. The aim, say its designers, is to give every child who comes for treatment, a space where they can play and relax. Besides its emphasis on new technology, the hospital is designed to be one of the most environmentally friendly units of its type in the world.

Cohabitants' pension benefits

By John Smith

OFTEN criticised for causing unnecessary bureaucracy and impinging on the British parliament's right to govern the country, the European convention on human rights could help a large number of people who are in long-term partnerships.

Denise Brewer from Northern Ireland had lived with her partner Lenny McMullan for 10 years and they were engaged to be married, but he died suddenly just a few days after they had announced their plans.

6 million is the estimated number of unmarried but cohabiting people in the United Kingdom.

Prior to his death he had worked for Translink, a company responsible for public transport in Northern Ireland for 15 years and as he had not specifically named Ms Brewster as a cohabiting partner in the pension scheme of which he was a member, she was denied the right to receive any pension following his death.

Relying on a clause within the convention on human rights, her lawyers argued that it was discrimination and that she should have been paid the pension as if she had been named and the five Supreme Court judges agreed with this argument.

As much of UK law is based on precedence shaped by court opinion, this effectively means that those who cohabit should receive the same treatment as those who are married as far as pension rights are concerned.

Professional advice

IN order to try to persuade more people to obtain professional advice on their pension savings, the British government has decided that any saver can take up to £1,500 (€1,750) from their pension pots tax free to pay for professional advice.

The Pension Advice Allowance will be available from April of this year and those who take advantage of it, regardless of their age may use £500 (€585) on three separate occasions to pay for independent professional advice and those in the highest tax bracket will save £600 (€700) if they use the whole allowance.

VOLUME CONTROLS: Turn it up to 11.

By John Smith

SPINAL TAP and director Rob Reiner got together to sue media firm Vivendi for $400 million (€375 million) in respect of unpaid royalties and damages.

For several years, the creators of the 'mockumentary' received decent royalty payments, but when Vivendi took over the rights to the movie in 1989, the revenue stream just dried up and between 1989 and 2006, total reported income from soundtrack music sales was just $98 (€92).

Harry Shearer first decided to sue Vivendi on his own but now his co-creators have decided to join in the action which will make their case much stronger.

"Such anti-competitive practices need to be exposed. I am hoping this lawsuit goes to 11," director Reiner is quoted as saying, alluding to the famous scene in the movie where the band have amplifiers with volume controls that go up to 11 so that they are louder than any other band.

Greek economy still a worry

ALTHOUGH there has been little negative news concerning the state of the Greek economy over the past few months, a review from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) suggests it is far more vulnerable than initially assumed and that debt will be much greater than forecast.

Shares on the Athens Stock Exchange fell accordingly and Ted Malloch who may become American Ambassador to the European Union again predicted the possible fall of the eurozone.

Passengers up, but profits down

By John Smith

BUDGET airline Ryanair has announced that the last three months trading saw an increase in passengers, thanks in part to a fall in airfares and a reduction in profits to €95 million.

Despite the fact that it is often accused of predatory pricing, charging for everything (including a fictitious claim that it would make people pay to use the toilet) it revealed that the average single fare paid by passengers was just €33 which is why its planes flew at 95 per cent capacity.

It did admit however that prices had fallen quicker than planned but it had to take action to protect its passenger loads following Brexit, the fall in sterling and the fact that charter competitors were moving out of North Africa and targeting Portugal and Spain.

Whilst it is cautious about future income, it still expects to record a profit of between €1.3 and €1.35 billion when its financial year comes to an end in March 2017.

RYANAIR: Still expects to record a profit of between €1.3 and €1.35 billion.

In a press statement, Ryanair CEO, the sometimes outspoken Michael O'Leary said "As previously guided, our fares this winter have fallen sharply as Ryanair continues to grow traffic and load factors strongly in many European markets. These falling yields were exacerbated by the sharp decline in Sterling following the Brexit vote."

"Ryanair responded to this weaker environment by continuing to improve our 'Always Getting Better' (AGB) customer experience, cutting costs, and stimulating demand through lower fares which has seen load factors jump to record levels."

It is however reviewing its free second carry-on bag allowance because 'abuse' is contributing to flight delays as a number of passengers take on board grossly oversized bags.

"The airline is a victim of its own niceness," director Neil Sorahan commented.

Containers the new commercial fashion

By John Smith

AS it becomes more expensive to obtain quality retail or office space for start-up businesses in particular, it is becoming more and more attractive for London 'hipsters' to move into container cities.

Entrepreneurs are obtaining plots of land, purchasing numbers of containers which range in price from £1,000 (€1,150) to £2,500 (€2,900) depending on condition, renovating them, obtaining planning permission and adding mains utilities.

“ Although more expensive than a permanent market, the containers are secure and protect from adverse weather.

Thus in a very short period of time and at relatively low cost a brand new specialist food quarter, light industrial estate or office complex can be opened and will quickly attract tenants willing to pay up to £20,000 (€23,000) per annum which is cheaper than almost any high street shop in a major city.

Admittedly the containers are more expensive than a permanent market stall, but they are secure and protected from adverse weather and in most cases have shared dining areas so size is not a problem.

NEW CONCEPT: A container shopping mall.

In the UK, London has the largest number of these parks but the concept is expanding with similar sites in University cities such as Bristol opening up and although storage is probably the most difficult problem to deal with, these companies which tend to attract young and relatively affluent clients create a new and trendy area to visit.

For those selling products or food, the most important thing is footfall and owners and tenants work together to present music and artistic events in order to attract more people to their premises.

The concept has taken off in the USA and parts of Europe but is particularly strong in Christchurch New Zealand following the devastating 2011 earthquake and harks back to the pre-fabs following the Second World War.

HBOS fraud will lead to compensation

WHEN complaints were made to the board of HBOS (Halifax Bank of Scotland) and Lloyds Banking Group after it took over HBOS about fraudulent activities by certain employees which ruined customers' lives, the complaints were rejected.

Now however, as six people including two senior former HBOS employees have been jailed for the scam which the banks denied, Lloyds Bank has finally admitted some liability and is to offer compensation.

It is estimated at least £28 million (€33 million) was made in loans which were never repaid and the HBOS officials involved received a percentage of not only these loans, but the overall value of all money fraudulently extracted from the bank and the companies involved.

Now the Lloyds Banking Group has confirmed it will appoint an independent consultant to review compensation for those who it believes were affected.

A family affair

MELANIA TRUMP, the new First Lady has decided to reopen a legal case against the Daily Mail, saying it cost her a 'once-in-a-lifetime opportunity' to profit from her brand because of the position she finds herself in.

She is now demanding compensation of $150 million (€140 million) from the paper which accused her of being an 'escort' and then retracted the statement.

Her husband Donald has not yet joined in on this complaint but has tweeted expressing his dissatisfaction at clothing outlet Nordstrom for dropping his daughter Ivanka's fashion line commenting "Ivanka has been treated so unfairly."

This is the fifth company to drop her line saying that there was insufficient demand, but opponents of the President have suggested that he is abusing his position by commenting.

La Sala Group has major growth plans

Wayne and Federico at La Sala Banus.

By John Smith

IN our last edition (1649) we reported the arrival of Federico González, new Chief Executive Officer at La Sala Group which operates some of the most iconic venues on the Costa del Sol and England.

Having been in the post for just two weeks, he agreed to give an exclusive interview to Euro Weekly News to explain his background and the ethos of this business which has grown from a 'start up' to a medium size, established business that is going to continue to grow.

He and Wayne Elliot, group commercial director epitomise the business which was founded by a group of friends in 2008 when they opened Buddha Beach and although in the background, Federico has been associated with the group since that time.

Having spent 10 years working in corporate business in the UK and much of the rest of his life setting up businesses in Spain, he brings a very important new perspective to La Sala in this new role as he combines knowledge of both the Spanish and the British ways of life and working.

The various properties in the La Sala Group mainly attract British customers and operate in Spain and despite the success of the organisation which has expanded to include six different properties in Gibraltar, Spain and the UK it became clear to the shareholders that they needed a Spanish voice on the board.

Federico is excited with this new role and explained that with 300 staff and new projects about to be launched including a new beach club in Marbella by Easter, he wants to ensure that the customers enjoy a great experience at every one of their properties and that staff feel part of a family and do their all to please the customers.

Both of them believe that the only way is up and they are proud of the way that they have introduced La Sala Gibraltar into the Sunborn Yacht Hotel experience and are always open to discussions with companies that would like to see a La Sala presence at their properties.

They have received approaches from other countries, inviting them to become involved in co-operative ventures but at the moment they want to concentrate on expanding their base businesses, although London is definitely calling.

Considering that La Sala Banus didn't open until 2010, it is amazing how quickly the name has become synonymous with quality of food, service and entertainment and with 120,000 names on their data base they have really become one the best-known spots on the Costa del Sol.

All of this has come at a price and the group invests huge amounts of money in marketing, but that is only the tip of the iceberg as their recent refurbishment of La Sala Banus cost €300,000.

Whilst 2016 was a great year for La Sala, they expect 2017 to be even better, but they don't take anything for granted and recognise that growth will come from investment coupled with their ability to offer a first class product at all price ranges.

Are the do-gooders out there listening?

LEAPY LEE SAYS IT
OTHERS THINK IT

BEFORE the Trump immigrant ban was lifted, the media regaled us with harrowing airport pictures of families and individuals, devastated and often reduced to tears by the effect the new law was having on both them and their families. What they couldn't show of course, was the scowling confusion on the faces of any potential terrorists whose plans had been thwarted by the bill! Well, it's all now academic, and once again just about anybody is pouring through porous borders.

The sad truth is, that I fear it will take another attack of the magnitude of 9/11 to make the tree-hugging, luvvie brigade come to their senses and stop risking all our lives with their naïve, utterly misplaced sentiments toward the fanatical followers of a religious cult, that has no other purpose than to instill its primitive doctrine across the whole planet.

Are any of the do-gooders listening out there? Fanatical Islamists don't want to integrate. They are not like the Jews, who have embraced and enhanced the societies that gave them succour. They want to destroy the cultures and customs of the democratic West and replace it with their own barbarous teachings. They believe in stoning women to death. Beheading non-believers, marrying children to old men, destroying priceless artefacts, severing limbs and adorning the whole of the feminine gender in shrouds.

They have grabbed the welcoming hand of the West and bitten it off. The extremists of this belief have completely ruined any good faith that could have been enjoyed by the genuine souls among them who sought a better life. It is this majority who must stand up and be counted. It is the genuine pacifists of Islam who must weed out and destroy the cancer that is eating away at any chance of a peaceful existence. But don't hold yer breath.

Keep the faith.

Something to be happy about!!

Mike Senker

In my opinion

Views of a Grumpy Old Man

I HAVE to go round supermarkets and department stores in a wheelchair so obviously I notice certain things like why do people turn their trolleys sideways across the whole aisle every time they want to look at something?

It's a pain for me and actually a pain for everyone really so don't do it! Also, the big department stores put things promoting special offers or the stuff they bought too much of in the middle of all their aisles and don't leave enough room for me to get past. It's really annoying. The thing is, if I ever say anything I get a blank look and the customary shrug of the shoulders which always winds me up even more.

It also amazes me the amount of shops and stores that I can't go into at all because they just don't have any wheelchair access. I was in Chelmsford in the UK and stopped to look in the window of a branch of Next and saw a shirt I fancied but there were steps up to door. I asked if they had a ramp and they said no.

They also informed me that the menswear department was on the first floor and they did not have a lift. I didn't even think that was allowed these days but obviously I was mistaken. It's just as bad here in Spain with a lot of the smaller stores being inaccessible. In this day and age it should be mandatory that every store, big or small, must have disabled access.

I had to phone my insurance company the other day. Now, I have unlimited calls and unlimited messages included in my tariff but I wanted to check that the free phone numbers offered are not free if dialled on your mobile phone. This is strange as all my calls are free except the free phone ones which I have to pay for. So now I know. How weird is that?

Anyway, remember I wrote about using up all my data allowance on my phone? They charged me two euros for extra data and another three euros for a deal they offered me. They said they would refund the two euros but I didn't get it. So, whilst I was on the phone the operator asked if there was anything else she could help me with. Bad move!

'Well as you are asking there are these two euros you owe me.' It's not about the money, it's the principle. Work it out. They have millions of punters and they nick a couple of euros all the time. They are copping millions for doing absolutely nothing. Well, an hour later and lots of to-ing and fro-ing with different departments and me telling them that I wasn't happy; I finished up getting 10 per cent discount on my bill for the next three months. So I finished up very happy. And that means I have nothing more to be grumpy about today!

LEGALLY SPEAKING

Aging can seriously affect driving skills

AS part of the series, we answer some common driving questions and keep you updated on the latest driving and road news kindly provided by members of the Guardia Civil based in Torrevieja, Costa Blanca, who set up the N332 website and Facebook page to help break down barriers.

DRIVE SAFELY: Medical check-ups and eye tests can ensure you keep your licence.

AS we all get older, our body gets older and all too often without us realising that gradual changes have been made including reduced vision, limited mobility, tremors and muscle spasms. All of these are natural age-related signs the body is slowing down, but they can affect the way you drive and have fatal consequences when mixed with road accidents.

In the event of being involved in an accident, the Guardia Civil traffic department has the authority to withdraw your licence at the roadside if they feel your health and status is a contributing factor in the accident. As a result, you may need to have medical proof to resolve the issue and regain your licence.

In 2015, in the Ourense area of Spain, some 45 drivers had their licences withdrawn that year on suspicion of being unfit to drive on medical grounds. Most of those drivers have given up driving altogether, whilst others have taken to obtaining a certificate to prove they are able to drive by carrying out a fitness course and test. Three of those drivers failed.

During your medical check ups with the doctor or optician, it is vital that you mention that you are a driver so they can monitor your ability and the consequences of any treatments and conditions to ensure you remain fit to drive.

For more news and articles visit www.n332.es or search N332 on Facebook.

What does 'second call' mean?

Q. At the last AGM of our Community, it was announced that this AGM was held on the "second call". This term appeared in the notice for the meeting as well. So, we waited a few minutes and the President announced the meeting would now start on the second call. I think it has something to do with how many people attend the meeting.

G M (Costa del Sol)

A. Assuming only a few staunch members of your Community attended the AGM in person, and a few others gave their proxy vote to some of the people who attended, this is the usual pattern for Community meetings. If there are 40 members, maybe only 10 of them present. This means you can never get a majority vote of the total members and their participatory shares.

David Searl

The law says that, in a meeting held on the 'second call,' a majority vote of those members and shares present at the meeting, either in person or by proxy, will suffice to make Community decisions that are legally valid. Absent members have 30 days to protest.

Brexit: how much of a generation gap will there be in the future?

THE Institute for Fiscal Studies, a leading think tank, warns of future tax rises and spending cuts to eliminate Britain's huge budget deficit. And the bottom line? Older people will still be better off than they were pre-crash (2008/9), young people won't. In other words, the younger generation will be left footing the bill - that will inevitably lead to intergenerational conflict.

It's been said before, but hell, I'll say it again. Reduce foreign aid (hare-brained schemes like St Helena airport that's too windy for commercial planes to land; millions frittered away on the Ethiopian Spice Girls (since axed), let alone other controversial projects like in Pakistan, where £1 billion's been doled out in cash in deprived regions despite repeated fraud warnings). Reform the NHS, and reduce health tourism. (Remember Priscilla, the Nigerian mum, whose quadruplets cost the NHS £500,000?) Cancel HS2. Reduce the size of the Civil Service by a third (too many tea breaks, inefficient workers, sickies).

Instead invest the whole lot in Britain's infrastructure which would at least reduce the number of unemployed.

Of course, many will lay the blame at the door of Blair and his successors: if they weren't so generous with taxpayers' money - generous welfare benefits for the unemployed, the unwed, immigrants - plus ridiculously high contributions to the EU over the years, the UK might be in better shape etc etc...

And, inevitably, Brexit will come in for a lot of stick, too. You can almost hear the whinging. On the one hand: "If the older generation, having enjoyed 40+ years of prosperity and freedom within the EEC/EC/EU, hadn't mainly voted to deny those same rights to succeeding generations and screwed them..."

And on the other: "The younger generation can't blame pensioners for leaving the EU. The youngsters should have got their *s out of bed and gone to the polling stations if they'd wanted their voice heard..."

Is it me, or does the world seem infinitely more on edge now? Maybe it's Donald Trump winning the White House, or the Spanish veggie famine, or the rise of the robots... What's your view?

Hello, what's up with Wassap?

Marbella Moments

by Nicole King

I WAS watching the stand-up comic Kevin Hart the other day and he was joking about how important it is for him to reply to his wife's 'wassaps' immediately as otherwise she'd have an entire conversation on her own, inventing the reasons, whys and wherefores for his lack of response.

I had to laugh because I think we are all guilty of this to some degree.

We send a wassap and expect almost immediate replies from whomever we send the text to and if they don't reply within what we consider to be an acceptable time frame, we conjure up why not and literally start putting words into their mouths.

For the past couple of weeks I have had my phone repaired twice, meaning that it didn't work properly for a couple of days, a couple more days in the 'shop' and then taking it back again when it still didn't work.

During that time I received many wassaps; none of which I replied to as obviously I hadn't seen them.

I imagine that there are those who realised I hadn't seen the messages, perhaps because they are in the 'know' that one pale grey tick appearing at the foot of the message means that the message was sent, two pale grey ticks mean that the message has been delivered, but you need those two ticks to turn blue to indicate that the message has been read.

Obviously not everyone knows this, as I found out once I got the phone back.

One friend in particular had asked to meet me to discuss some exciting plans. The first message contained the original text, but the next umpteen wassaps went from are you too busy to talk, to wondering whether I was avoiding them and finally concluding that I was feeling 'stalked' and offering sincerest apologies.

The person in question was obviously most relieved to find out the real reason and more than a bit embarrassed that I'd seen this one-sided 'interaction.'

I have to say it was hilarious reading the progression of messages and the ever-increasing neurotic frenzy. The funniest bit though is that I am just as guilty; once I see those ticks turn blue I'm waiting, expecting that reply and if it doesn't come, although I try not to send loads of follow-up messages, I am right there with Kevin Hart's wife and this friend and I too am prone to start my own conversation with myself and more often than not, worry.

So, one of my New Year's resolutions regarding wassap is three-fold; firstly to remember that even two blue ticks doesn't guarantee that the person I sent the message to was the person who saw / read the message and when in doubt, resort to the old fashioned way: pick up the phone and call! But above all: if they don't answer, hold back from coming to any conclusions on the conversation I just had with myself!

Getting messier

Cassandra Nash

A weekly look

- and not entirely impartial reaction - to the Spanish political scene

INDEPENDENCE-OBSESSED Artur Mas was a noisy and ineffective president of Cataluña.

His party's majority shrank during a series of snap elections called to buttress the independence cause and the last in 2015, planned as a plebiscite, was a fiasco.

The CDC had to embrace the anti-system CUP party in order to govern and that came at a price, as Mas had to resign before the anti-everythings would cooperate.

Now the ex-president is on trial for breaking the law with a pseudo-referendum in 2014 which, ironically, did not produce the pro-independence majority Mas expected.

Current president Carles Puigdemont hinted that prosecuting Mas and others implicated in the 9-N fiasco will accelerate a unilateral declaration of independence.

Only an anti-Constitutional referendum can resolve a messy situation that can only get messier. It might be illegal but what else can prevent at least 50 per cent of Catalans from being railroaded into independence?

Bittersweet

FINANCE minister Cristobal Montoro once declared that he wasn't in politics to make people happy. He'll make them even unhappier if he goes ahead with his rumoured plan to bump up tax on sugary drinks.

Not so much a Nanny State strategy as one that Montoro knows will rake in the euros as dotting parents continue buying Coca Cola and Fanta for wheedling kids who are now the fattest in the EU.

Rocky road

JOAQUIN GIMENEZ has been a Supreme Court judge since 1998. Before that he presided the provincial High Courts of San Sebastian and Bilbao during the worst of the ETA years.

Gimenez is in favour of moving ETA prisoners to Basque region prisons, believing this would contribute to their reinsertion into society. Asked how the judiciary could assist the winding-up of ETA, Gimenez answered that justice means pacification, substituting individual vengeance with appropriate retribution. "It's not here to put rocks on the road," he said.

ETA has not killed in five years, but Mariano Rajoy and his government have been unbending in their response to the former terrorist group. And rocks still scatter the road to total pacification with an occasional trace of vengeance, too.

Right turnoff

ALBERT RIVERA'S Ciudadanos party is the preferred associate of the governing Partido Popular, Mariano Rajoy said. With Cs losing voters and paid-up members, is endorsement from a right wing president what a determinedly centre party needs?

Try to find the lighter side to life

I DON'T usually write to papers but I'd just like to say how much I enjoyed the amusing articles by Nora Johnson (especially on Blair and weight problems) in recent copies of the paper.

The first thing I turn to - followed by the local news pages that regularly provide useful information. Great to read topical, controversial subjects handled with humour.

These days, there's nothing wrong in trying to find the lighter side to life. Much needed I might add in these trying times. Keep up the good work!

M D, Fuengirola

Little Leo

READING about the battles of little Leo Bermejo with such a devastating cancer makes you put a lot into perspective. This youngster is fighting for his life and the fact is, we can all help. I was so pleased for the family when I read they had hit their target. He deserves the chance of a life after such a rocky start.

I only hope he can regain his speech. It sounds like Oklahoma know what they're doing. I, for one, will be praying the day that brave little boy gets his treatment. To think I might have done just the tiniest bit to help him is frankly a lovely feeling!!

Ann, Benidorm

Lost jacket

A FEW weeks ago I went walking in the mountains around Nerja. I got back to the car after a wonderful 15 mile hike only to find that my jacket had fallen out of my rucksack. This was a disaster for me as I suffer from a medical condition where my body is not able to regulate temperature properly.

The following weekend I went back and covered the whole 15 miles again. I found it caught in a prickly bush! I was overjoyed. Unfortunately, two RELIABLE ENERGY: Coal, oil and gas produce electricity regardless of weather conditions.

Hydrocarbon fuels

“ WE are told that man's use of hydrocarbon fuels will cause climate catastrophes, with more droughts, heatwaves, bush fires, floods, blizzards, snow storms, typhoons, etc.

Why then would governments compound these claimed risks by pushing weather-dependent energy like wind, solar, hydro or tidal power?

During heatwaves on sultry summer afternoons, wind power fails when our cold rooms, fridges and air-conditioners need it most. Overheating turbines start bushfires. On cold still winter nights, wind and solar will produce zero power when all the trains, heaters, TV sets and coffee machines are sucking energy.

In a gale, turbines switch off to avoid damage; in still air they sit idle; in a snow storm they consume power to prevent icing up; and in a tsunami, offshore wind turbines and tidal generators are destroyed.

Solar panels shut down every night; their output varies even when the sun shines; they are blotted out by snow, clouds or dust; and are smashed by hail stones.

So if the alarmists are right, and if we are faced with wild weather for any reason, we can't trust weather-dependent energy. Stick to reliable hydrocarbons coal, oil and gas, and for dire emergencies diesel. They will produce electricity, weather-or-not.

V Forbes, Australia

weeks later I had the same jacket under my arm as I attempted to leave Ikea in Malaga. Nearing the exit, I realised the jacket was no longer under my arm.

Has anyone found it? It is black and 100 per cent cotton, no internal lining, with four pockets on the front and another four inside. The chest pockets close with poppers and one is sideways, the other opens at the top. I can't remember the brand but it did have a small brown stain on the left cuff. It is small, for a 36in/38in chest.

So if you see a skinny chap in the Malaga area suddenly sporting a slightly scruffy black jacket with four external pockets that they were not wearing before, it could be mine! If anyone has it or can get it back, I would be eternally grateful if it could be returned to Ikea. It will restore my faith in human nature. Thank you so much.

A Silvie, Torre del Mar

Delicious fruits

REGARDING Graeme Tyrrell's article in the EWN Feb 9 edition, in 2008 my girlfriend soaked a nispero stone and grew it on blotting paper. It sprouted and we put it in a pot.

In 2011, I planted it in the garden. I now have a three metre high tree and last year I had 150 delicious fruits.

» EU citizens

"WE send the EU £350m. Let's fund our NHS instead." Remember that slogan on the Vote Leave bus? Well Boris Johnson, Liam Fox, Iain Duncan Smith, Michael Gove and all the others who campaigned vociferously on that slogan have just voted AGAINST an amendment to do that too - to give the money to the NHS.

They ALL went on the telly to talk about £350 million going to the NHS if we just fell in behind them and voted Leave. How do their voters feel, now they have dropped that key Brexit pledge at the first opportunity?

Brian Eagleson

Reply from Mike in ESP:

I REALLY do despair with many of the people who wanted the UK to remain in the EU. Do we really have to go over what was said before the referendum for some people? Because if we do it will take a lot of words to go over the rubbish and what the remain side put forward... and on the £350m for NHS, if this is what the remainers have to continually bring up as something the NHS was going to get from people who were not the government... is it any wonder those who supported remain appear so confused!

» Pensions anger

THE concern re pensions expressed by the Anglican clergymen should include the fact that it is possible that UK State pensions in Europe will not only suffer as they are now from the decline in the value of the GB pound, but also these pensions may become frozen never to increase annually with inflation.

In particular the UK pensions are frozen in Australia and Canada where hundreds of thousands of UK expats are denied annual increases.

Many expats who have retired to these countries are forced to return to the UK leaving their younger families alone back in Canada, etc.

It is so un-British and so unfair but it's government policy which they stick to in order to save a few 'quid'!!

James Tilley

Make way Segway

■ IN response to a question asked in Parliament the government confirmed that hover boards and Segways are still classified as illegal imports to Gibraltar and the enforcement of the ban on their use was one for the local police to take action on. It went on however to suggest it may now be appropriate to review the situation to see whether any could be classified as toys.

Opening the skies

■ ACCORDING to a report published in the Financial Times and despite the fact that Foreign Minister Dastis indicated Gibraltar would not be used as a Brexit bargaining chip, at least one Spanish diplomat has indicated it would block the UK's access to the EU's single aviation market unless Gibraltar is excluded.

Call the Midwife

■ AS part of a policy to make labour easier and more efficient for pregnant mothers, the government of Gibraltar decided in 2014 to give registered midwives the right to prescribe 23 medicines, mainly for pain relief and labour without the need to obtain permission from a doctor. Now a further six drugs have been added to the list so access to antibiotics can be quick.

Police stand off on airport runway

By John Smith

AFTER racing to the runway in Gibraltar to serve a warrant issued by the Chief Justice of Gibraltar on a serving member of the British military, officers of the Royal Gibraltar Police were denied access to the man.

Having been obstructed by senior personnel from the Ministry of Defence and having seen the RAF aircraft on which the man was boarded getting ready to take off, the officers drove their police car onto the runway and thus block the take-off.

This serious disagreement escalated as the road across the runway was closed which meant that foot passengers and traffic were unable to cross the runway causing inconvenience for tourists, residents and workers who wished to leave.

The difference between the parties concerned jurisdiction over the individual in question and if the police in Gibraltar were investigating an offence which took place in Gibraltar, then they have primacy over the Ministry of Defence.

This somewhat unsavoury argument continued for at least two hours with various talks taking place between the authorities in Gibraltar and the UK before the man was eventually removed from the aircraft with his computer equipment and the flight departed.

“ Tourists, residents and workers were unable to leave when the runway was closed.

Although not arrested, the individual was kept in Gibraltar for questioning, but to date no party has made any formal comment on the reason for the actions of the police or the response from the MOD, although it is confirmed the Gibraltar government and the Governor are being kept informed of development.

Wildlife Park recognition

THE Alameda Wildlife Conservation Park (AWCP), which is effectively Gibraltar's only zoo, has been accepted for provisional membership of the British and Irish Association of Zoos and Aquariums (BIAZA).

With more than 100 members, the association is funded by payments from members based on the number of fee paying visitors and the AWCP will be one of its smallest members, taking advice from a similarly small zoo based in Devon.

In order to proceed to full membership, the AWCP will need to demonstrate its work in the fields of animal welfare, conservation, education and research as well as meeting the requirements of zoo legislation in Britain and Ireland.

Liberal Democrat MP makes a visit to Gibraltar on fact-finding tour

THE Foreign Affairs spokesman for the UK Liberal Democrat Party, Tom Brake MP, has travelled to Gibraltar on a fact-finding visit in order to achieve an understanding of the potential impact as far as Gibraltar is concerned following the decision taken by the United Kingdom to leave the European Union.

“ Mr Brake was given a great deal of information.

Mr Brake met with the Chief Minister Fabian Picardo and the Deputy Chief Minister Dr Joseph Garcia, who is responsible for matters concerning the European Union and Brexit.

He was given a great deal of information and was taken to see the border area as well as the air terminal.

Dr Garcia explained that this visit is a result of the contact that the Gibraltar government continues to maintain with Members of the UK Parliament of different political persuasions. He added that the government has engaged widely in the United Kingdom and continues to do so, particularly with the UK government itself both informally and within the formal structure of the Joint Ministerial Committee.

Mr Brake confirmed in response his party's support for Gibraltar as such a high percentage of the population had voted to remain within the EU and in addition for the right of the people of Gibraltar to self-determination.

YOUR STARS FOR 7 DAYS

PISCES ♋ (February 20 - March 20)

Time is precious this week because you are in demand. A chance lost in the past presents itself again but won't be too easy. Holding back just a little makes you more desirable. A want to travel could be cramped by financial considerations. If making extra money is too difficult, consider sharing something of value with someone else.

ARIES ♈ (March 21 - April 20)

After a relaxed weekend, it might prove difficult to take up the reins of work again. However, midweek sees you trotting along happily and minding your own business when someone stops you in your tracks. When a challenge is issued, your natural stubbornness comes to the fore.

TAURUS ♉ (April 21 - May 21)

With a mind as sharp as a needle, you spin

AQUARIUS ♒ (January 21 - February 19)

You realise this week how liberating it is to share your thoughts and feelings with someone close. It is not always easy to do this, until you realise everyone has them. Some through the week, weaving your own charming spell. A bit of extra confidence works wonders for your mood. Something that you read sets you thinking about doing some writing or creating something artistic, perhaps even a musical.

GEMINI ♊ (May 22 - June 21)

Although energy is not high, there is the need to have some kind of challenge. With the brain active, it is an ideal time to plot and plan your next moves. Maybe something that has been delayed might now be advanced. You find it hard to choose between opportunities. The road hopes and dreams are more attainable than others, of course, and someone has to find out which are which. Avoid being too critical of someone young and inexperienced.

ahead is open. Keeping things simple is best.

CANCER ♋ (June 22 - July 23)

The imagination stirs and the heart races at a suggestion this week. Your strong intuition tells you it is the right thing to do. You are a constant friend, but such an adventure may mean an absence from someone close.

LEO ♌ (July 24 - August 23)

Reading the small print or being sure what is offered in a personal encounter is most important this week. Leave nothing to chance or you could be out of pocket. When discussing the future with someone close, you are expected to take the lead.

VIRGO ♍ (August 24 - September 23)

Being over-generous with cash midweek could see you making a poor move. Perhaps someone needs to be more hardworking or perhaps less of a spendthrift. Propping up a bad habit would be doing them no favours. There are doubts in your mind about a family holiday.

LIBRA ♎ (September 24 - October 23)

A suggestion made by you recently did not seem to be taken seriously. This week, however, negotiations could be opened. Circumstances change and it may seem someone gave up too early. Bide your time and even hold your tongue when someone in a strong position spouts rubbish.

SCORPIO ♏ (October 24 - November 22)

Confidence in a close relationship should be maintained. Possibly someone who envies your position would like to see discord. A matter of spiritual or religious faith is questioned, but the answer comes more clearly and sharply than you would have thought. In discussions with yourself (sometimes the best kind) answers come easily.

SAGITTARIUS ♐ (November 23 - December 21)

An emotional cut-off from the past is not as bad as anticipated. Indeed, it confirms in your mind who you are and what your place in the world is. Inherited traits knit easily with your present life and bring contentment. All that you want to change at the moment are certain things round you that have been outgrown.

CAPRICORN ♑ (December 22 - January 20)

An investment made recently is built upon and brings peace of mind. Finances do need consideration but more in the long than the short-term. Much is happening in the background that does not require your attention but, all the same, be aware. Life may be like a game of chess, but this week if you turn your back an opponent may cheat.

Want to be young again?

Guest
Columnist

Today: Bernie Waspe

I CAN remember quite clearly my dad often saying, "I wish I knew then what I know now." I dare say all of us can relate to that sentiment. However, I would hate to be 18 again.

Oh, of course I'd like the bodily suppleness of youth, with any knocks or bumps I get from day to day living clearing up and leaving me pain-free within a few hours, but the pressures of being young nowadays must be horrendous.

As a young man in the 1970s I mistakenly thought I looked good in my 'Royal Navy Great Coat' going to college. I was also prepared, as a six foot-two inch chap, to bang my head on low ceilings because it was fashionable to wear those uncomfortable five-inch platform shoes!

My one piece of retrospective 'street cred' I maintain is I always thought that Clive Dunn's 'Grandad' was naff! Mind you, I thought T Rex, The Osmonds and The Glitter Band were good so I suppose my musical taste was a tad suspect. My old man insisted that the vibes I tuned into were not a patch on the likes of Porter, Berlin and Novello.

VICTOR: Would laugh at the life of a modern teenager.

I now realise he wasn't as daft as I first thought! If he were alive now goodness knows what he would make of the chanting to drums that purports to be music today. Now I know I had fewer things with which to conform compared to today's young generation.

I have lots of sympathy for today's teenagers who not only have to contend with what to wear, but due to the advancement (if it can be called that) of social media, every individual is under scrutiny in nearly everything they do.

Today's obsession with 'celebrities' is something else I cannot fathom. Anyone who cares as to whether someone from an entertainment or sports background can cook, dance, ski or have a bug crawl over them ought to get out more and see their idols in their original professions.

The cynic in me thinks the TV companies are far happier producing all this instead of dramas as they are cheaper, can run for weeks rather than 'one-offs' and offer the prospect of additional income from phone calls.

Ah well. Rant over. I reckon I may be a clone of either Basil or Victor. Two much maligned individuals who only wanted people to be nice and do their best.

Now where did I put the Valium!

Canada looks for sugar alternative

WITH popular cooking shows on the rise and food posts on social media feeding the desire for showing off delicious baked creations, new research from Mintel reveals that 43 per cent of Canadians who use sugar/sugar substitutes say that whether or not a sugar/sugar substitute is good for baking is an important factor to consider when purchasing.

Women use a larger range of products as over four in five (84 per cent) use two or more types of sugar/alternative sweeteners compared to just 79 per cent of men.

While the research revealed that taste is by far the most important point of consideration when buying sugar or sugar substitutes over half of Canadian consumers (58 per cent) also based their purchase on whether the product was natural or not. Nearly two in five said that they consider perceived health benefits when purchasing sugar and sugar substitutes, while one third typically check food and drink labels for the type of sugar/sweetener used.

The preference for more natural or less processed alternatives is driving some consumers toward the use of honey, as Mintel research reveals that usage levels of white sugar (54 per cent) and honey (53 per cent) are on par among Canadians. Younger women seem to be especially drawn to natural sugars as female consumers age 18-44 are just as likely to report using honey as they are white sugar.

Negative perceptions are affecting sugar sales, falling 15 per cent from 2011-16, as the alternative sweeteners sector grew 10 per cent during this period.

Mintel is the world's leading market intelligence agency, with offices throughout the world including London.

HONEY: Younger women drawn to natural sugars.

The lowdown on high blood pressure

SPECIALIST: Doctor Luis Perez Belmonte.

THIS week the doctor has given us the lowdown on what having high blood pressure really means and what can be done about it.

- What are normal blood pressure levels and when can it be considered to be high?

This varies depending on many important factors. In general terms, blood pressure readings of under 130-140 / 70-80 mmHg can be considered normal, but a patient's age and other illnesses or medical conditions must be taken into account to evaluate each individual case.

- What does having high blood pressure mean exactly?

It refers to the pressure of the blood running through our arteries being higher than normal due to a series of factors.

- What tends to cause it?

Blood pressure levels are influenced by lots of different factors. As we age the walls of our arteries tend to become more rigid and this favours atheroma (damage and cholesterol build-up).

The main cardiovascular risk factors such as obesity, eating too much salt, lack of physical exercise, diabetes, etc are also elements which generally encourage high blood pressure.

- How is it treated, with medication?

Medication is one of the pillars of treatment of high blood pressure. There are many different groups of drugs which help get blood pressure readings under control in different ways.

- Can I get it down with exercise?

Lifestyle and dietary measures are vital. A balanced diet which is low in salt, daily physical exercise, not smoking, losing weight and controlling other cardiovascular risk factors is very important for treating high blood pressure.

- What risks could I be facing if I ignore it?

Failing to get high blood pressure under control can have very serious effects and the heart, kidneys, brain, etc can all be affected, sometimes even leading to death. Therefore, all patients should be evaluated and treated by specialists in Internal Medicine.

A grape a day keeps dementia away...

A HANDFUL of grapes twice a day could help boost memory and ward off the onset of Alzheimer's.

A study was carried out with people who were suffering from early cognitive decline over six months. One group was given whole grape powder, the equivalent of two portions, every day, with the other group given a placebo.

Their cognitive ability was measured at the beginning of the experiment and at the end and it was found that grapes did help to boost memory. PET scans were also used to assess changes in metabolism.

“ It was found that grapes did help to boost memory.

It is believed that the compounds found in grapes help to maintain levels of a chemical in the brain that is vital to maintaining its health. It is also thought they promote blood flow and when the flow is lacking it can lead to dementia.

However, before you rush off to the supermarket to stock up on grapes, it is worth noting that the research was funded by grape-growers and the California Table Grape Commission in the USA.

GRAPES: Were found to boost memory.

24HR SERVICE

Ask the Optician: Why is an eye test an important health screening?

By Amrik Sappal, Store Director from Specsavers Opticas Fuengirola

■ What can an eye test spot?

A surprising amount can be revealed from an eye test, from the early stages of conditions which can permanently damage the vision such as glaucoma, diabetic retinopathy and macular degeneration, to spotting warning signs of high blood pressure, high cholesterol, risk of a stroke and symptoms associated with brain tumours.

New research has been released from University College London's Institute of Ophthalmology which has shown that changes in the retina may reveal the presence of Parkinson's Disease and allow early diagnosis before patients start to suffer from the tremors. Early diagnosis gives more treatment options, so an eye test will become an important tool in fighting this debilitating disease as well as many others.

■ How can ophthalmologists see these health conditions?

To be in with the best chance of spotting the signs of health conditions you need to have a thorough eye test which includes a range of tests and the latest technology. A great tool for health checks is Digital Retinal Photography which uses a camera to take a picture of the back of the eye - the only part of the human body where the micro-circulation of blood can be observed directly.

The state-of-the-art technology helps to identify changes that might be associated with certain eye conditions and health complaints. The ability to save images creates a lasting record for ongoing monitoring.

If necessary, the optician can refer patients directly for further medical examination to their hospital or general practitioner.

■ Where can I get digital retinal photography included in my eye test?

This technology is expensive so its use is not widespread, however Specsavers Opticas believe it is important, so have Digital Retinal cameras across all stores including Marbella and Fuengirola on the Costa del Sol.

We include the technology as standard as part of an eye test, with no additional charge. To find your nearest store and book your free eye test visit www.specsavers.es.

Specsavers Opticas is currently offering free eye tests. There are Specsavers stores in Fuengirola and Marbella, to make an appointment or find your nearest store visit www.specsavers.es.

■ NEW INJECTION: Is expected to be trialled next year.

Claims that male contraceptive jab works for two years

IS it time for men to step up in the fight against unwanted pregnancies? Previously, condoms or a vasectomy were the only option open for men, but now a new jab claims it has a 100 per cent success rate in preventing getting a woman pregnant.

The male contraceptive jab is claimed to be more effective than the Pill as it blocks sperm from leaving the body and works for two years.

Scientists have previously invented a jab using hormones that disrupted the sperm production, but it was found to cause side effects such as depression and muscle pain. This new injection is hormone free and during trials, was 100 per cent successful in monkeys. It is expected to be trialled in men as early as next year.

“ During trials, was 100 per cent successful.”

The jab works by injecting a gel into the tube which transports sperm from the testicles to the urethra, to block it. Scientists say the gel is reversible, making it an easier and less painful option to the vasectomy, saving men who change their minds, having to go through more surgery to reverse it.

Calls for FGM to be included in new domestic violence law

WITH more than 17,000 girls in Spain at risk of Female Genital Mutilation (FGM) the Spanish government is proposing including FGM in its gender violence legislation.

On World Day of Zero Tolerance Against Female Genital Mutilation, Secretary of State for Equality, Mario Garcés, addressed more than 5,000 professionals from all areas working to prevent it. Garcés said it was “a crucial moment” because it coincides with the State negotiation against gender violence, in which there are calls to have a section in the new Domestic Violence Law on FGM, in a bid to protect young girls who are at risk of being mutilated.

“It’s a problem of justice, human rights and health,” stressed Garcés, who recalled that, in Europe, more than half a million women and girls are at risk of being mutilated.

To mark the World Day of Zero Tolerance, several UN organisations are calling for greater actions against FGM saying that around 200 million women have undergone total or partial excision of their external genitalia.

Whilst more common in countries such as Burkina Faso, Kenya, Liberia and Egypt, it remains a widespread practice across Africa and the Middle East. Many carry it out as part of cultural traditions preparing girls to pass on to adulthood allowing to them to be eligible for marriage or to achieve a higher social status.

There are no known health benefits and the procedure can lead to acute pain, severe bleeding, urinary and menstrual problems and infections. It has also been linked to an increased risk of stillbirths.

Estepona mural competition

By John Smith

MANY councils around the world object to street art, classing it as graffiti, although the work of 'anonymous guerrilla artist' Banksy now fetches hundreds of thousands of pounds and holes are cut in walls to remove whatever he paints.

Estepona however takes a completely different view and encourages the painting of street murals under controlled conditions and promotes its Mural Route as a tourist attraction and has just announced, with the support of Obra Social la Caixa, a 2017 competition to choose a further 10 artworks.

Artists from anywhere in the world may submit a concept design together with details of materials required and number of assistants needed in order to produce a single mural measuring 162 square metres.

All proposals must be delivered in person or by post to the council offices between March 1 and March 31 and 10 will be chosen by a jury and announced on May 15, the day that celebrates St Isidro, the patron saint of the town.

Those chosen will be invited to paint their murals over the period July 10 to 20 and will receive €1,000 to cover expenses as well as accommodation, material cost and technical staff.

From those 10, a winner who will receive €10,000 will be announced on July 21, together with a runner up who will receive a prize of €5,000.

All image and aesthetic rights for the murals produced by the 10 contestants will be made over to the Estepona Council as part of the rules of the contest and full details available from the Estepona Council.

Miss Motown to return to JoysLive

By John Smith

FOLLOWING her highly acclaimed visit to JoysLive in October last year, UK-based soul singer extraordinaire Janet Jaye aka Miss Motown will be appearing at the primo nightclub in Puerto Banus from March 3 to 13.

“Miss Motown will be adding her own brand of soul and funk before an appreciative audience.

Like many quality soul singers, Janet started at a young age in her local church singing gospel songs, but then she became a backing vocalist for Ruby Turner who performed with Culture Club before becoming a hit singer in her own right, scoring a number one hit in the USA with It's Gonna Be Alright.

Having toured throughout Europe and the UK with Ruby Turner and the Motown Songbook review which included an appearance with the legendary Chuck Berry, Janet was spotted by a modelling agency and spent several years gracing cat walks and photo shoots as well as passing the LAMDA examination before she was asked if she would perform a Whitney Houston tribute show which actually lasted for two years taking her around Europe.

Following this experience, Janet won a song contest and formed her own Jazz Funk band which gigged in many prestigious spots including Ronnie Scott's in Birmingham before she decided once again to follow the solo road which sees her back in Spain at JoysLive.

This famous nightspot in Banus doesn't start rocking until about 11pm, but then keeps going with a host of incredibly talented musicians until the early hours and Janet Jaye will be adding her own brand of soul and funk before an appreciative audience.

Regular visitors to the nightclub will know that Paul Maxwell aka the Piano Man appears most nights, but many may not know that he has just released his third CD which features 12 numbers, four of which he has written himself, so for more information on the cd and upcoming events visit <http://www.joyslive.com>.

Flamenco in Manilva

By John Smith

GREATLY respected flamenco singer from Malaga, award-winning Antonia Contreras will be performing her show 'Bajo la luz de tu cante' (in the light of your singing) in Manilva on February 25.

Organised by the Manilva Peña (flamenco club) in association with the local council, the evening which starts at 9.30pm in the Museum of Wine (Civima) is free of charge, but attendees must be members of the Peña (which should be an encouragement to join).

“The evening will include a documentary of La Niña’s life.

The evening is a tribute to the late Dolores Jiménez Alcántara who was known as La Niña de la Puebla and accompanying the singer will be the guitarists Juan Ramón Caro and Andrés Cansino.

The evening will include a documentary giving details of La Niña’s life which includes rare photographs and comments by a number of members of her family.

Many towns across southern Spain are populated by Peñas and quite often it is members of these clubs who recommend or choose acts to appear at local fairs and fiestas.

1st Marbella Design fair

AS a natural partner to the Art Marbella fair which is held at the Adolfo Suarez Congress Centre, the Marbella Town Hall has announced that September will see the first Marbella Design fair at the same venue.

Councillor for Tourism Javier Porcuna issued the statement at a press conference in the company of Miguel Luna representing the Congress Centre and the head of Art Marbella and also promoter of this event, Alejandro Zaia.

This new fair will be positioned as a “meeting point for gallery owners, designers, architects, interior designers, collectors and lovers of design,” said the councillor.

Targeted exhibitors will be all of those mentioned above and it is believed that Marbella Design to be held from September 6 to 10 will, like Art Marbella - which is presented for the third time in late July - help to establish Marbella as a place for the arts.

Good Food, Good Wine and Good Friends

WITH
WAITE

REGULAR readers of this column will know that last week I introduced you to one of my clients who had opened a restaurant down here over a year ago and was going through a few problems. We established that one of his problems was the pairing of his chef with a menu that he had designed, leaving the chef with no option but to serve what he was asked to.

I explained to the client that this was probably stunting the growth of the business.

So last week we sat down with the chef and started to go through the menu to see where we could make savings on costs as well as getting the chef's input as to the type of food that he felt he excelled at.

The four-hour session was very illuminating not least for the client. For the first time he was beginning to see where the chef was coming from. While there is no problem in serving classic dishes - known nowadays as 'retro' - they are becoming exceptionally popular, but there is still room for lighter modern dishes in this health and body consciousness world.

We decided to mix the two styles. Starters such as 'Wild Mushrooms on Ciabatta with a Poached Egg and Crispy Pancetta, Tuna Tartare with Wasabi Crème Fraîche' now sit on the same menu as a 'Classic King Prawn and Lobster Cocktail and Moules Marinière.' The client loved his classic Tourenedos Rossini, but the chef complained that if he was going to do it, it should be done with fresh foie gras and truffle, not pate and a button mushroom!! So the five star classic fillet steak dish holds pride of place as a Chef's Speciality along side the chef's own creation of 'Roast Tranche of Turbot with Fennel Croquettes, Spinach and Spring Onions with a Pernod Veloute.'

The menu was now starting to fall into place. The ability of the chef to embrace the owner's desire to keep some of his favourite dishes and the owner's ability to allow the chef to create dishes more in keeping with his personal style meant that dialogue and creativity were having a positive result.

With a new design of the menu itself, making it more readable and appealing, we were on our way to creating the changes that we all felt would point the restaurant in the direction that all parties were happy with.

Next we have to look at the presentation of the dishes and the costings to ensure profitability. After that, the restaurant itself will need freshening up, something we will have to do without spending too much money. But the menu and the décor must suit each other. Then we will be looking at the wine menu, staff and uniforms as well as training. It's never a quick fix, but a carefully planned redevelopment. After all we are not reinventing the wheel, just making sure that they are on tight and have sufficient air in the tyres to ensure a smooth ride!!

The right menu and the right décor go hand in hand.

• THE Michelin Guide has just been released in France and has once again come under fire from those that believe that the stars awarded are not always commensurate with the food served and the prices charged. With a meal for two in three star establishments often costing between 450€ and 1,100€ food critics - as opposed to Michelin inspectors - often agree that there is little difference between three and two star restaurants apart from the price.

In 2014 one such critic Meg Zimbeck the highly acclaimed food blogger (Paris by Mouth) spent more than 7,000€ of her own money eating anonymously in all nine of the three star and all six of the two star restaurants in Paris!!

In one of her articles on the subject she writes "There is an obvious barrier in understanding these restaurants: the staggering, outrageous almost immoral price of a meal!" She continued, "No one, I mean really no one, who writes about food would pay for themselves in a three star restaurant and neither would their editors." So the writer put her money where her well-educated palate is and compiled her own reports at her expense.

Her conclusion, much like many of us, I suppose, is that you can eat as well if not better in some lesser establishments. She quotes eating at Alain Ducasse's famous three star La Plaza Athenée, which cost an eye watering 1,100€ for two as 'absolutely horrible.' When she returned for an invitation meal offered to all Meg Zimbeck, pretty, powerful and knowledgeable.

“The Michelin guide directs people to some of the least exciting and overblown dining in the city.”

“Cooking well doesn't mean cooking fancy!”

food writers in Paris she stated that while it was a more extravagant affair with flowing Champagne - 'it was still horrible!!'

The Michelin guide "directs people to some of the least exciting and overblown dining in the city. A three star designation indicates extravagant prices, plush surroundings, and a surfeit of staff. It does not, unfortunately, always lead you to the best food in Paris." Overall, Zimbeck concluded that while there are some "truly enjoyable" meals to experience at the three star level, very few of the dishes were markedly better than what she had experienced at Paris restaurants that cost a fifth or a 10th of the price.

I had a friend who was a Michelin inspector and we often discussed the fact that it was harder to get a Michelin star in the UK than in France and similarly Spain. I have had the 'pleasure' of eating at several one star restaurants, including some of those that we have on our door step. I have eaten at one two star restaurant, but never a three star. I may have to wait for our esteemed editor to send me off to investigate!!! I tend to agree that I have eaten better in lesser eateries that cooked with more heart and less hydrogen!

I ate many years ago in a Michelin restaurant just outside of Cherbourg and got food poisoning. We should have known we were on to a bad 'un when we went in. The restaurant was decorated in dark blue, but the sign outside said restaurant 'Maison Rouge'!!

• AMONG SERVICES being offered to cats (yes cats!) at Malaysia's Catzonia - the 'world's first' five-star hotel for cats are spas, grooming services and temperature controlled rooms!

Manned by feline-loving staff, the 35-bedroom cattery in the Malaysian capital of Kuala Lumpur promises to pamper pets while their owners are away. They even offer a 'dating service' for the female species!

These pampered pussies can stay in one of four room categories, including a VVIC (Very Very Important Cat) room - the hotel's most luxurious offering. The VVIC room can fit up to 10 adult cats (or one mother cat and her kittens) and comes with three 'king'-sized beds, a mini-playground, and a separate toilet. These special suites also come with CCTV, allowing anxious cat owners to monitor their pets 24 hours a day by using a phone app.

There are 'lesser' rooms, which can accommodate between three and seven cats, which come with either a 'queen,' 'double' or 'single' bed and up to three feeding and cleaning sessions per day. Some have shower facilities.

Taking a catnap while being pampered.

THE VVIC and VIC can also indulge in a range of grooming options including a 'medicated grooming' service, which uses a special shampoo that helps cure cats' skin and clear out the fleas.

The cost of a stay between three hours and a year at Catzonia is priced from £4.50 per night.

A catalogue of services is of course available and every whim will be catered for. Prices vary according to category of room. This could be the catalyst for many more feline hotels to come. I wonder if they will open one in Catalunya? (This column is not just thrown together dear reader)

• ON THAT NOTE I will bid you farewell until next week and should aspiring restaurateurs need some help or advice, please do not hesitate to contact me. A toast to Good Food, Good Wine and Good friends.

Gardening tasks for February

THIS month gardeners' tasks are focused mainly on preparing everything for the spring which, although it may still seem a way off, is really just round the corner.

Houseplants:

How are your houseplants coping with heating? Some of them could be suffering a little and in need of an extra dose of water or humidity. This is a good time to prune them a bit, removing dry leaves and affected areas. Watch for yellowing, this is usually a sign either of a lack of water or of a lack of iron.

Outdoor plants, bushes and trees:

It's time to plan the shape of your garden for the spring and summer. Seedbeds for annual summer plants can be prepared now. Also, remember that your current plants may still need protecting from the cold.

Lawns:

Weather permitting (minimum temperatures must be over 10°C for this) you can start planting new lawns this month. First prepare the earth, turning over and removing all weeds before starting to plant. Distribute seeds evenly then rake into the

Pruning:

Time is running out to get rose bushes and ornamental trees pruned. As soon as there is no longer any risk of frost, it's also time to shape and prepare fruit trees.

Vegetable garden:

This month is good for planting tomatoes, peppers, courgettes, aubergines, peas, watermelons, melons, leeks, parsley, spinach, onions, carrots, radishes, lettuces, celery and beetroots.

COOKING AREA: Should be clean, bright and clutter-free.

Feng shui kitchen

APPLYING Feng Shui to kitchen organisation and decoration can achieve a calm, tranquil area in which to cook and eat.

Small, cold and cluttered rooms can be cleared and made more inviting for cooks and diners alike with a few adjustments.

Cooking area:

The kitchen should be as clean, bright and clutter-free as possible.

Avoid placing work areas opposite doors as working with your back to the door does not inspire tranquillity. If it can't be helped, place a mirror above the worktop so you can see the door as you work.

Opt for white, shiny tiles and cupboard doors to make the most of natural light and open the window to air the room and avoid fumes and smoke accumulating.

Choose even-surfaced cupboard doors and large tiles to keep cracks which can accumulate dirt and bacteria to a minimum, and always go for stone worktops rather than formica for a clean feel.

Eating area:

The area where you eat should be warm and inviting. Make the table the centre of attention by placing a fruit bowl with appetising looking produce inside in the middle. Use warm tones such as orange, which also stimulates the appetite, rather than cold greys or blacks. Choose chairs with high backs for comfort and relaxation and add colourful cushions.

THE idea of Agility was born in 1977 when Crufts Dog Show needed something to fill up spare time in the main arena. The main factors to be kept in mind were that it should be fun, without being dangerous and should amuse spectators so they built the equipment.

So the base was laid for the agility history story of Agility – King of Dog Sports. Today, Agility enjoys enormous popularity in Britain, with well-attended competitions every weekend during the show season.

PUPPY FUN: Loving the healthy, playful exercises.

The larger events draw thousands of competitors and attract huge, appreciative audiences – many competitions are televised. This enthusiasm for Agility has spread to virtually all of Europe, as well as Australia and New Zealand, followed by the USA in 1986, making Agility a truly international dog sport.

Training Methods

Praise, toys and food are used to motivate the dogs from puppy stages through the advanced levels of training. Dogs are always encouraged to perform obstacles and never forced.

Puppies and Agility

puppy training can start with dogs as young as three to five months! Granted, it doesn't really and there's a lot of playing and silliness - but really, at any level of training, isn't that what agility should be for our dogs?

FUN! Puppy agility NEVER physically stresses little puppy bones; so our young dogs don't do any real jumping. They step over small obstacles that are only a couple of inches off the ground. We do a lot of target work to teach them to work away at a young age. Target work also helps our puppies to have excellent contact control! Puppies LOVE running through the tunnel and we do basic commands that help them to go DOWN on the table QUICKLY!

Puppies are so eager to learn and so happy to please. They really pick things up quickly but the key to a successful training session is to keep the lessons SHORT and POSITIVE (kind of like their instructor!).

We also employ lots of rewards, from special food treats to toys and games (and lots of hugs). Once a puppy figures out an obstacle, they've GOT IT! And agility training works WONDERS for improving confidence in a shy puppy. The other huge benefit is the socialisation these puppies are getting with each other; in fact, I think they look forward to the play sessions the most!

Scrut is a character who is loved by all

OUR friend Scrut, the little terrier, lives between the UK and Spain. His owners sometimes take him back to Blighty, though usually when they are visiting friends in the UK they use housesitters to keep him at their new home in Malaga. As you can probably tell from this photo, Scrut is a little character.

What he lacks in height and weight, he more than makes up for in personality and sheer tenacity. He was the smallest puppy in the rescue shelter when his owners Jan and Michael picked him out from the pack. They said they could just tell he'd be fun to play with, and his eyes simply beckoned, so they rescued him.

When they first came to HouseSitMatch to find a pet-sitter they were a little nervous and keen to find an experienced dog handler who wouldn't worry if Scrut was excessively playful or perhaps a little disobedient from time to time. He does try it on a bit apparently. We matched Scrut with retired builder Gavin, who likes a bit of personality in his dogs. They got on well over Christmas and New Year and might meet again later in the year.

Footballer saves dogs

REAL MADRID player Cristiano Ronaldo has helped save the lives of 80 dogs at a shelter in Portugal, where he comes from.

The footballer heard that Cantinho da Lili in Gouveia had run out of funds and was facing closure when a volunteer contacted his family and stepped in to help.

Ronaldo sent shelter owner Liliana Santos an autographed shirt to auction off and raise funds.

Thirty-four-year-old Santos told Portuguese Correio de Mahna newspaper: "We still don't believe it. I want to thank Ronaldo from the bottom of my heart for his simple but very important gesture."

CHARITIES

ACE CHARITY "El Refugio" in La Cala de Mijas is a registered charity. We have on average 275 dogs in our care and we receive no help from the Town Hall or the Andalusian government. We desperately need foster homes and adoptants for our many dogs, especially the small ones and puppies who do not do well in a big shelter. We are grateful for any help offered, including donations of food and blankets. Visiting times are from 13.00 to 15.00 and you can always turn up or make an appointment by calling Denise on 669 018 736. Our website is www.ace-charity.org where you can view all the dogs in our care. (93320)

ADANA THE ANIMAL SHELTER IN ESTEPONA.

We always need volunteers to walk and socialise with our dogs and help with cleaning. We also need good homes for our animals that you can see on www.adana.es. Kennels open every day 10-1.30, Camino de Casares, near Parque de los Pedregales, Estepona. (5 minutes from the Poligono) For more information call 952 113 467, available from 10.00am until 14.00pm. (93319)

SEPE the horse and donkey charity is open to the public week-ends from 10.00 to 5.00. Volunteers are much needed in all departments and are welcome at any time. For our riding for the disabled classes, we are also in need of extra helpers. We are nationally registered by the Spanish Ministry of the Interior (164640) but only with your support can we give the equine a voice. If you can just commit to 2 or 3 euros a month it will really help make a difference. You can find us at Lauro Golf Equestrian Centre, Alqueria, Alhaurin de la Torre. Tel. 608 258 950 info@sepeonline.net www.sepeonline.net (93321)

AT SOS ANIMAL REFUGE we have dogs, young and old looking for homes. Some of our dogs have been with us for some time and would love to find a cosy spot to curl up in and a knee on which to rest their heads. If you have room in your heart and home we would love to hear from you. We do not put our dogs to sleep - no matter how old, they are safe with us. For day to day needs and to pay for veterinary care, we much appreciate the support we receive. We desperately need items to sell on our market stall to help raise funds and are happy to come and collect. So if you are having a clear-out, please contact us on 605 227 155. If you would like to know more about rehoming, please call 653 257 875. Visit our website www.sos-animals.org or please phone Sandy on 952 385 923 or 666 814 056 if you would like to make a donation or help in any way. (93317)

Parking vigilantes

PEOPLE who get irate when they see illegally-parked cars can now make a tidy profit from their rage. A new app for smart phones will offer nosy neighbours £10 every time they send a photo of an illegally-parked car to the UK Car Park Management (CPM).

Anyone who sends in photos will remain anonymous. The CPM will use the licence number to identify the culprit, fine them £60 and then give the users a tenner for the tip-off.

Motorists caught by the trap will be none the wiser, assuming they had the bad luck of being seen by an official. The CPM believes the scheme is an effective way to protect land owners and other drivers against selfish road users.

However, the RAC thinks offering the public financial incentives to shop offenders could lead to even more distrust in the authorities.

May's allergy to leather

By Matthew Elliott

TOP GEAR and Grand Tour star James May is selling his classic Rolls-Royce after discovering that he's allergic to its leather seats. May admitted that his 1972 Corniche had made him itchy after a spin for years, forcing him to conclude his drive with a 'very thorough' shower.

The 54-year-old even claimed that he had to boil his clothes afterwards and has evidently decided that enough is enough. The Corniche will be auctioned off on March 19 by Bonhams at the Goodwood Member's Meeting.

Bidding for the model, which has a 6.75 litre V8 engine and can reach 120mph, is expected to begin at around £20,000 (€23,471). But in good nick, with fewer than 10,000 miles on the clock, and a famous owner, it could fetch closer to £50,000 (€58,677).

May has previously described the Corniche as 'supremely comfortable and quintessentially British.' He bought his in 2007 after decades of infatuation with the classic model. He drove it in a few Top Gear episodes and claims it sailed through 10 MOTs.

ROAD TEST by Nick Fletcher

Sporty DS3 Prestige

DS3 PRESTIGE:
Quite distinctive in the hatch sector.

vides sporty performance - 0-100 kph in 9.3 seconds - yet outstanding fuel economy, 27.7 kpl (78.5 mpg).

The DS3 is based on the Citroen C3 supermini, but with retuned suspension to give a more sporty driving feel. It has excellent handling characteristics, and is grippy and composed, though the overall ride quality is on the firm side.

There is good steering feedback with assured cornering and in town, the car feels very nimble.

DS3 is quite distinctive in the hatch sector, displaying lots of clues to its sporty nature - sleek shape, twin exhausts, big 17-inch alloy wheels, rear spoiler and quirky DS badges. Inside, the car is roomy in the front though rear accommodation is a little cramped. The boot is a decent size at 285 litres.

Equipment on the Prestige test model, priced at €23,253 (£19,795), includes gearshift indicator, tyre pressure monitor, cruise control and speed limiter, DAB Radio/CD/USB, front and rear parking sensors, sports seats and sat-nav with seven-inch touch screen.

The cabin is smartly designed and well laid out.

Keenly priced in its sector and with more exclusive styling than most rivals, the DS3 may be a relative newcomer but it has certainly made its mark.

DS is part of the giant Citroen group but is a stand-alone brand, the Citroen name not appearing on the cars at all. The smallest car in the chic and sporty DS range is the DS3, available as a three-door hatchback and in cabriolet form.

As a hatchback it is up against Mini, Audi A1 and other small cars in a sector where eye-catching styling is important.

DS3 also comes with a vast range of personalisation options which can give the cars a very individual look and ensure they stand out. Prices start at €16,910 euros (£14,395) with petrol and diesel versions available. My test model was a Prestige Blue, with a 118 hp 1.6 litre diesel engine which pro-they've contested.

Sunday's two TV ties are Fulham against eight-time winners Tottenham who last won the Cup in 1991 and Blackburn Rovers v holders Manchester United. Between them Rovers have six final victories, United 12 (equal with Arsenal).

FA CUP FACTS:

- Each club in round five receives £247,500.

- Between them the 16 teams have won the trophy 56 times.

- The last 'derby' final was in 2002 when Arsenal beat Chelsea 2-0.

- The last 'Midland' final saw Wolves defeat Leicester 3-1 in 1949.

- The last non-top flight team to win the Cup was West Ham v Arsenal in 1980.

MORE FOOTBALL:

Coming up in the Championship we have Barnsley v Brighton (2nd), Huddersfield against Reading and leaders Newcastle v Aston Villa (Monday); FL1 pace-setters Sheffield United play Scunthorpe (2nd) and in FL2, it's Doncaster (top) v Luton while Plymouth (2nd) will make a 776-mile round trip to Hartlepool.

CRICKET:

Last week Indian Mohit Ahlawat scored exactly 300 off 72 balls in a T20 game for Maavi against Friends CC. His first 50 came off 12 balls and he went on to smash 39 sixes.

Also, India's captain Virat Kohli has become the first player to score double centuries in four successive Test series – his latest 204 v Bangladesh.

Two Pakistanis, Sharjeel Khan and Khalid Latif, have been suspended as part of an anti-corruption investigation.

And after a record 59 Tests in charge, Alastair Cook has resigned as England captain. Joe Root is set to replace him.

ROUND-UP:

In Rugby Union Six Nations last weekend, Ireland, emphatically beat Italy by 63 points to 10 in Rome; France edged out Scotland 22-16 in Paris and England, with a late Elliot Daly try, and encouraged by 'Man of the Match' Joe Launchbury defeated Wales by 21-16 in Cardiff. England, under coach Eddie Jones, have now won 16 internationals in succession. The next three Six Nations matches take place on February 25/26.

After last weekend's round of PL matches, Chelsea's lead at the top has been cut slightly while the bottom three – with games running out – are Hull, Crystal Palace and Sunderland Celtic reached the SC quarter-finals with a 6-0 win over Inverness CT. Also through are Aberdeen, Partick, Rangers and St Mirren, while holders Hibs drew with Hearts.

In La Liga, Real Madrid, with two games in hand, have a point advantage over Barcelona who beat Copa del Rey final opponents Alaves 6-0 last Saturday. Real play Espanyol on Saturday followed by Barcelona v Leganes on Sunday.

Russian drug-cheat Mariya Savinova must hand back the 800m Olympic gold medal she won in London in 2012.

Bristol's Tom Vardell is the new record try scorer in Premiership Rugby Union with 91. And recent results in the Aviva PL include Bath 32 Northampton 30, Bristol 8 Harlequins 42, Leicester 34 Gloucester 9 and Worcester 24 Saracens 18.

In golf, GB's Melissa Reid won Australia's Oates/Vic Open; Fabrizio Zanotti shot past Danny Willett to win Malaysia's Maybank Classic and Jordan Speith triumphed at Pebble Beach.

Barry Hawkins beat Ryan Day in Snooker's Grand Prix final and banked £100,000.

Fourteen GB boxers including Tony Bellew, Ricky Burns, Kell Brook, Anthony Crolla, Carl Frampton, Chris Eubank junior, James DeGale, Anthony Joshua, Amir Khan and Lee Selby can all be world champions this year.

DID YOU KNOW?

ONLY five teams have been relegated immediately after winning their domestic League championship... Juventus, Italy, 2006 (following a scandal); HFG Boldklub, Denmark, 2001; FC Nurnberg, Germany, 1969; Manchester City, Football League, 1938 and AC Milan, Italy, 1980. Might Leicester join them this year?

Santa Maria Bowls Club social events

THE club held another of its highly successful social evenings on Tuesday February 7. The event was organised by Club Captain Susan Walker and Chair Rosemary Hussey and began following regular Tuesday bowling with a chicken and chips dinner prepared by bar manager Antonio and his team.

Around 50 members and guests enjoyed their meal and the event that followed. The evening gave everyone an opportunity to take part in the fun and it was easy to see why the evenings are proving so popular. The event was part of the bowling club's social calendar which also includes outings to restaurants, the theatre, etc and the next theatre visit will see members attend Joseph and his Technicolour Dreamcoat. Guests will also be welcome.

WARM WELCOME: By members awaits visitors.

Members understand that visiting a new club, meeting new people and playing a new game may prove daunting for some. So club members have decided to make the experience fun for everyone.

Regular members are on hand to welcome visitors with the offer of free tuition, a free first session, with bowls and shoes available. Following the session everyone likes to relax with a drink in the clubhouse.

These taster sessions are on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 2pm and Sunday mornings at 10.30am and the club premises can be found within the Santa Maria Golf Complex, Elviria. Call Susan on 664 068 020 / 951 272 580.

WINNERS: Of the singles.

Nail biting finals at Miraflores!

THIS week saw the climax of the club's bowling season with the Mens' and Ladies' Singles finals having taken place. Warm and sunny days blessed the players throughout the competition.

Both competitions had excellent player entry numbers and many closely contested matches. In the mens' competition, Derek Carr was up against Dudley Calder and in the ladies' final we saw Dine Warn playing Carol Cooke.

In the mens' final Dudley got off to a flying start to lead 17-4 after 10 ends. Derek kept his cool and fought back to get to 18-18 after 19 ends and despite Dudley winning the next end Derek kept his concentration to win the championship 21-19. Definitely a game of two halves!

The ladies' final saw Carol get off to a good start before Dine pulled back. Carol kept plugging away, reaching 18-12 after 21 ends. Dine then scored eight shots over the next three ends to take the lead 20-18. Carol dug deep and fought back to win the next three ends and win her first singles championship 21-20. This was her third title of the season following the Triples and Drawn, marking a fantastic achievement only seen twice in the history of Miraflores Bowls.

In his speech when making the presentation after the final, Club President James Tyrer praised the quality of play in both the finals and the earlier matches and thanked all the scorer. He also thanked Nancy for umpiring the finals.

Derek & Carol will now represent Miraflores at the Champion of Champions event March 20-23.
