Kivers at risk

Planned diversion of water condemned

By Matt Ford

Ecologists and conservationists have issued a stark warning over what is increasingly viewed as an unsustainably rapid expansion of the subtropical fruit sector in Axarquia.

The Andalucian Network of New Water Culture (GENA) issued a joint statement alongside the Cabinet for the State of Nature in Axarquia (managed by Ecologists in Action; EeA), in which the two groups point out the threat to rivers throughout the region and further afield.

According to the coordinator of GENA-EeA, Rafael Yus, the breakneck speed at which the cultivation of mango and avocado has developed in Axarquia "has exceeded sensible limits, and threatens to mortgage the water supply for human use across Malaga Province, as occurred recently in the Antequera region.'

Of primary concern are demands by local growers to construct a water transfer to Axarquia from the Rio Guadiaro, the region's most wellpreserved drainage basin which flows from the Sierra Bermeja in Malaga and through the Sierra de Grazalema before discharging into the Mediterranean at Sotogrande in Cadiz Province.

The river is notable since there are no major dams con-some of the only remaining coastal marshland on the Costa del Sol can be found at its mouth.

It is also home to one of the last remaining populations of European eel in Mediterranean Spain, and contains a number of important native fish species such as the Malaga chub which is locally endemic.

Already under pressure due to water extraction for golf and introduction of invasive species, GENA-EeA believe that the plan for the Guadiaro reflects the "unsustainable subtropical model, which displays all the characteristics of an economic bubble."

The increase in production of the fruits has happened in a very short space of time, and the groups say that unless proper planning is undertaken "the damage may be irreversible, as has happened with illegal house construction... it could destroy the last remaining pristine rivers and cause species to become extinct."

Yus confirmed that the groups are to stage a canoe protest on the Guadiaro on

LOCAL NEWS Fatal fall

A 29-YEAR-OLD motorcyclist was killed after suffering a fall at kilometre 263 of the N-340 highway, on the stretch which passes through the Vallemar urbanisation in Velez-Malaga.

The accident occurred at around 3am, with emergency services advised by a concerned driver, but paramedics were unable to revive him after arriving at the scene.

Fireman sham

AXARQUIA firemen are up in arms over repeated delays to the new station in Nerja, which has been 95 per cent complete for over a year due to a financial dispute between the town hall and Malaga's provincial council. Around 30 of the beleaguered officers gathered at the site near the motorway this week in order to voice their frustration.

MORE than 60 young people from Torre del Mar have found work via the Junta de Andalucia regional government's new employment scheme, which was rolled out in February. The regional authority has invested some €2.3 million in the project which aims to provide jobs for 290 people, of which 176 must be aged less than 30.

Big budget beaches

TORRE DEL MAR'S beaches are among those set to benefit from an investment of €130,000 for improvements. The measure comes after several beaches were damaged by this winter's storms, with Chilches, Valle Niza, Lagos and Mezquitilla top of the list, with the intention that they will be ready in time for Easter and the summer season.

Footpath fixed

NERJA Council is carrying out works to clean and restore a public pathway between Burriana Beach and the Bendito viewpoint.

The section of footpath forms part of the Paseo Carabineros, which has been closed for 15 years due to the risk of falling rocks.

The town's councillor for Infrastructure and Beaches, Jose Maria Rivas, has explained the works were "necessary since this area was closed to the public by order of the Ministry of Environment."

Optical illusion

AROUND 75 per cent of Velez-Malaga now has a fibre optic internet connection. New Technologies councillor Ana Campos reported this fast connection is now in place "in Velez-Malaga, but also reaches Torre del Mar and other centres." She added that libraries in Velez-Malaga and Torre del Mar "already have a quality Wi-Fi connection, which will reach other municipal buildings such as the City Museum," describing the internet network as "an important improvement for the neighbours who make use of said spaces."

Building boom

CONSTRUCTION firm Priamo Real Estate has negotiated with Nerja's City Council to reclassify 36,000 square metres of land at Carabeo as usable for housing, allowing 290 new homes to be built.

The land is privately owned but operated by the council as a space for October's fair and for parking. In addition to

SPANISH FACTS OF LIFE...5

Father's Day in Spain is celebrated on St Joseph's Day, which this year falls on Sunday March 19. This Catholic feast day celebrates the life of Mary's husband Joseph, whose role within the Holy Family is seen as the epitome of what a good husband and father should be.

FATHER'S DAY (Dia del Padre) started in the United States in 1910, when Sonora Smart Dodd, a 27-year-old woman from Spokane Washington, proposed a male equivalent to Mother's Dav.

After pushing for local support, she convinced the state governor to establish an official celebration on July 19.1910.

Fifteen years later, President Calvin Coolidge turned the fledgling Father's Day into a national event, before Anabel Iranzo, the city's Urban Planning councillor, said the council would be proposing modifications to the project, in order to benefit residents.

Commenting, she said, "we are aware it is a very attractive plot, but we have to be very respectful with urban planning. and take into account that a modification of this type has to be approved by the Andalucian Government.'

Scandal provokes split council

RINCON DE LA VICTORIA'S City Council has been plunged into chaos following a scandal in which two politicians have been accused of handing out government cleaning contracts to relatives

Rincon de la Victoria's government had until now, been made up of a coalition of three parties, Izquierdsa Unida, Partido Socialista Obrero Español and Ahora Rincon-Podemos, however, the parties disagreed on how to deal with the scandal, leading IU to guit the coalition.

Following the PP's assertion of bunging, the IU demanded resignations from the two councillors accused, but their coalition partners did not back them. forcing the split. The two-party alliance which now remains means Rincon de la Victoria's government is in a slight minority in the city council.

Out of sight, out of mind

AN optician in Velez-Malaga has denounced a thief for not accepting his offer to simply return a stolen pair of glasses rather than involve police.

Last week, a couple had entered Optic Velez with a pram and asked to try on a pair of glasses while owner Daniel Carrascosa waited on another customer. When the couple left the shop, Mr Carrascosa realised the glasses, valued at €125, were missing.

Rather than instantly report the perpetrator to the police, Mr Carrascosa instead gave him a second chance, issuing a statement on Facebook urging the man simply to return the glasses. Unfortunately, the deadline which he gave the man has now passed and Mr Carrascosa has now handed CCTV images of the perpetrator to the police.

Dramatic rescue for hikers

TWELVE hikers, including four minors, lost on the Peñalara peak in the Sierra de Guadarrama National Park (Madrid) had to be rescued by a Guardia Civil air rescue team.

A helicopter had to make several flights through a narrow pass due to poor weather to rescue the hikers who were then driven from Valsain to Cotos where they had left their vehicles.

Something fishy!

TWO tonnes of live eels, €540,000 cash and several gold ingots were seized by Guardia Civil officers when they arrested eight people from Sevilla, Tarragona and Valencia, including two Chinese allegedly for obtaining illicit funds from Hong Kong to pay for the fish. The operation also saw nine additional arrests in Greece.

A FAMED stop on the Camino de Santiago pilgrimage trail, Leon like many settlements in the north was founded during the reign of Julius Caesar by Octavian, who later became the Emperor Augustus.

The original simple encampment grew as retired Roman legionaries settled and by 910 it was the capital of the Kingdom of Leon. After being conquered it later became a kingdom again until the 19th century.

The present-day city with a 120,000 population contains spectacular classical buildings including the nation's only true Gothic cathedral plus a private building - the Casa de los Botines - designed by architect Antoni Gaudi and said to be the inspiration for the famous Disney Castle.

Like many Spanish cities, Leon has an unusual procession. Named the 'Burial of Genarin,' it is in memory of an alcoholic beggar believed to have been run over in 1929 by the first local motorised rubbish cart. Many nowadays treat the event as an excuse to get drunk.

With good air, rail and road links, Leon is popular for visits.

Cocaine alert

A CARTEL thought to have shipped almost 400 kilos of cocaine into Europe using Las Palmas as a staging post for drug trafficking and money laundering led to 12 arrests when 10 properties were raided by Guardia Civil officers in the Canaries. Items seized included two speed boats, €500,000 in cash and documentary evidence.

OUR VIEW The weaker sex

ONE thing that has been reinforced by International Women's Day is the depth of feeling in Spain about domestic violence and its dreadful consequences.

Women across the country (in most cases supported by men) stood up and called for a sea change in the attitude towards them which has steadily been getting better over the past 30 plus years.

Unfortunately, there are still too many cases of violence and murder throughout Spain, caused in part perhaps by the inherited machismo of some Spanish men but as the older generations pass away, so it is to be hoped that the young of today will take note of those who want to see equality.

There is absolutely no reason why women who undertake the same job as a man should be paid a single cent less than the male and there are very few jobs nowadays that can't be undertaken by a woman and done just as well as their male counterpart.

The ridiculous comments by a ludicrous Polish MEP that as women are less intelligent and smaller than men that they shouldn't be paid the same amount was soon shot down by a feisty female Spanish MEP who was doing a great job for those who had elected her.

Breakthrough for British hunger striker

JANET HAYDEN, a British 70-year-old, threatened with eviction from her home in La Viñuela, has received news from her bank that they are now willing to discuss her situation.

Ms Hayden, who built a house on a plot of land in the area in 2003, had been on hunger strike since 1 March, after facing eviction on April 4.

As previously reported in the Euro Weekly News, Janet had relied on advice that she could build on the land, which was not designated for housing, and simply pay a small fine to secure the appropriate licences.

Her dream quickly became a nightmare, however, when her house started to show signs of serious damage. In debt to her bank, Sabadell, Janet was appalled to learn her representatives had not secured the normal 10-year insurance for new-build homes.

Janet plans to hand over the appropriate paperwork to Sabadell and thanks EWN for highlighting her struggle.

COMMUNITY SPIRIT: Was at its best as people came out in droves to get tested.

Overwhelming support from local community

By Sally Underwood

AROUND 1,000 people came out to be tested as bone marrow donors at the Granada Blood Transfusion Centre, to support the family of Daniel, an 8-year-old boy from Almuñecar with adrenoleukodystrophy, a genetic disorder which damages the brain's nerve cells

Daniel's family were delighted by the support shown by their community, saying that although this will not save him, it could help someone else.

The turnout for donating reached an historic amount; the centre received 8,000 donations in the whole of 2016, but an eighth of that in just one day for Daniel.

Staff were only able to close the centre at around 10pm, due to the queues of people hoping to support the cause which was made famous by the plight of this young local.

Commenting on the success of the donation drive, an attendant said "in my experience, as far as I remember, we have never accounted for 1,000 donations in one day. At the most we have perhaps seen a little over 300'

Sewage blights beaches

NERJA'S beaches have received an unwelcome influx of raw sewage, following a break in an underwater pipe.

The town is the only major urban zone in Malaga to still pour untreated sewage into the sea, with underwater pipes discharging off both Burriana and Torrecilla beaches.

The waste is normally expelled 1,500 metres out to sea and mainly broken down by the action of waves, however one of the underwater pipes has developed a hole of 20 square centimetres and is injecting the sewage much nearer to the coastline.

Boats have reported seeing a 'geyser' of waste ap-blame, adding they are going to fix the issue "as soon as possible."

Tourist village to reopen

PERIANA Council is petitioning the Junta de Andalucia regional government to return membership of its tourist complex.

Periana tourist village comprises 20 two-bedroom townhouses as well as a building with a reception, cafe and lounge, meeting rooms and a restaurant.

The village, named Villa Turistica Periana, was built between 1993 and 1996 with an investment of over €3.3 million, following a tourism drive in Andalucia in the late 1980s. It has been closed since 2003 and Periana would now like ownership of the site back, hoping to sub-contract the village to a hotel chain and reopen the area to tourists.

Periana's mayor, Rafael Torrubia, hopes a large company could make a success of the tourist complex once again, boosting trade throughout Axarquia. He has said he will only compel the Andalucian government to hand over ownership once an appropriate company has been found. RINCON DE LA VICTORIA City Council has extended the deadline by which dog owners must register their pets' DNA by six months.

Registering your pet

Until now, only 71 out of the area's 9,500 dogs had been registered. Owners now have until September to take their dogs to a vet, who will take a DNA sample, inject the animal with a transponder to show this has been done, and complete the necessary paperwork.

Once the deadline for registration has passed, Local Police will be carrying out random checks on dogs and imposing fines on owners who do not comply with the law.

Registration costs €35, and payment must be made through the Veterinary College of Malaga's website at www.colegioveterinariosmalaga.es, in the ADN section. A receipt will then be obtained which can be given to a local vet, who will carry out the process.

Second Scottish Referendum could now be on the cards

PRIOR to the UK Parliament meeting to consider the Lords amendments to the proposed Article 50 White Paper, the general consensus of opinion (which proved correct) was that the Commons would reject the two amendments and then the Lords would capitulate.

Anticipation of this, and therefore the imminent triggering of Article 50, prompted Scottish First Minister Nicola Sturgeon to confirm that she intends to request a second Independence Referendum for Scotland within a week.

It would follow that the Scottish Parliament would approve such a request as the Greens have already indicated that they would support the SNP over such a request which then means that Scotland would send what is known as a Section 30 order to Westminster.

LEADING LADIES: Theresa May and Nicola Sturgeon.

In such a scenario, it may be politically difficult for the Conservative government to reject the request but a huge amount will rest on the timing of such a referendum with the SNP wanting it to take place prior to Brexit and the British government more likely to argue it could only reasonably take place after the UK leaves the EU. Leader Sturgeon believes that she and her advisors have found a way for an Independent Scotland to remain within the single market whilst Prime Minister May could well argue that she has enough to do to negotiate a workable agreement without the additional problem of Scotland getting in the way.

It doesn't appear that the Scots expect to achieve immediate membership of the EU, but would effectively continue to enjoy a number of the economic benefits if it could remain in the single market.

In the event that Scotland does get its right to a second referendum based on the fact that such a large percentage of voters wanted to remain part of the Union, there could well be further protests from those who didn't wish to leave or have changed their mind, plus politicians in Northern Ireland could well call for union with the Republic.

The next week may be very interesting for all concerned.

Approval of Article 50

TO steal from TS Eliot, the peers Brexit revolt ended "not with a bang but with a whimper" and those expecting some drama before the inevitable agreement to the passing of the Article 50 White Paper were left disappointed.

Earlier on Monday March 13, the House of Commons had rejected the amendments sent back from the Lords with very few objections from tory backbenchers and 'ping ponged' it back to the Lords who, after a little deliberation (perhaps including some on their own future), decided to pass it without the amendments.

This means that the bill will receive Royal Ascent very shortly and the government has indicated that it will stick to the original timetable of triggering Article 50 at the end of this month.

Those UK passport holders living in Spain and other European Union countries will now hope to obtain positive information concerning their future once negotiations commence rather than current unsubstantiated promises of protection.

Car manufacturers agree takeover

By John Smith

IT has been confirmed that the discussions between GM, owners of Opel and Vauxhall, and PSA, owners of Citroen and Peugeot, have been finalised and as expected PSA will take over the entire European operation.

Currently there are 24 factories in the group which are situated in Austria, Germany, Hungary, Poland and the UK employing 34,800 workers of whom 4,500 are in Britain and 5,000 in Spain, is the amount that the PSA Group has agreed to pay American company GM in order to take over its European Opel/Vauxhall business.

€2.19 billion

with the majority being employed in Germany.

Portuguese CEO of PSA, Carlos Tavares has indicated that there are no immediate plans to close plants, but there will be an expectation that workers will assist in making the factories more efficient and therefore more profitable

With this takeover, which appears likely to be approved by state governments as well as the European Union, PSA will become the second largest vehicle manufacturer in Europe after the Volkswagen group but in order to maintain its position and expand, it is looking to make savings of €1.73 billion per year.

One telling fact is that under GM ownership, the group had never made a profit, although it was on target to break even in 2016 had it not been for the drop in the value of sterling following the referendum vote.

Reprieve for disgraced Rato

DESPITE the fact that disgraced former minister, head of the IMF and head of Bankia, Rodrigo Rato was found guilty of misusing funds and sentenced to four years and six months imprisonment, he is currently walking free.

As he is expected to file an appeal against the conviction and the sentence, it has been decided that his impeccable behaviour during the trial meant that he could be trusted and should remain free until such time as the appeal is held.

Many consider this to be inappropriate considering the suffering caused to many who believed the prospectus and invested in Bankia shares.

Little girl versus Wall Street's bull statue

LITTLE GIRL: Stares down the charging bull.

By John Smith

AS a reminder of the concepts behind International Women's Day advertising agency McCann, on behalf of Boston based State Street Global Advisors, has placed a statue of a young girl directly in front of the charging bull, a symbol of Wall Street

According to the investment company, this is supposed to represent a plea to Wall Street to increase the number of female financial advisors from its current almost derisory 15 per cent and to recognise the importance that women can play in commerce.

This new piece of the schoolage girl received temporary permission to be placed opposite the bull in Manhattan from the city council and it is hoped that it will be allowed to stay as a reminder of the importance that women play in society.

» BUSINESS EXTRA Bank success

AN international survey by financial publication Euromoney declared CaixaBank the best private bank in Spain for the third year. CaixaBank not only fought off all opposition but has a recent record of significant growth in the retail area, particularly after it acquired Barclays Bank in Spain.

On trial

THE trial of the vice-chairman of the Samsung Group Lee Jae-Yong, accused of corruption, bribery and embezzlement, has begun in South Korea. He will deny all charges through his lawyer, but the scandal has rocked the country and led to the impeachment of President Park Geun-hye, said to have favoured the company.

Co-op losses

FOR the fifth year in succession, the Co-op Bank, which promotes its ethical standing, has lost money. The loss of £477 million $({\ensuremath{ \in } 548 \mbox{ million}})$ is down on the previous year but it does not bode well for the planned sale of the bank announced last month.

Spanish protectionism

THE European Commission has given the Spanish government until April 9 to explain why it limits the percentage of equity that individuals and corporate investors can purchase in two companies involved in the transfer of energy, otherwise it may be taken to court.

Enagás and Red Eléctrica, involved in gas and electricity respectively, are protected under Spanish law so that no shareholder (other than the government) can take control and possibly affect the movement of energy.

Carrefour to expand business

By John Smith

WHEN the Carrefour Group decides to open a new hypermarket, it invariably obtains a site with sufficient space to allow it to create a mini-mall or retail park where other independent companies can offer a range of different products to visitors.

This is a symbiotic relationship whereby the tenants have access to the Carrefour shoppers and the fact that there is a range of generally noncompeting products under the same roof often aids in the decision making process as to which supermarket consumers will visit.

Up until now, the management of the shopping centres and in some cases retail parks adjacent to the Carrefour stores has been undertaken by two separate real estate companies, Carmila and Cardety, but it has been announced (subject to shareholder approval) that Cardety will take over Carmila in a three for one share exchange.

It is planned that the combined operation will take the Carmila name and will be floated on the French Stock Exchange with an expected worth of some $\in 3$ billion but interestingly, Carrefour has significant shareholdings in both companies and will participate heavily in the newly merged one.

Although initially a French company, Carrefour has expanded significantly into Spain and Italy as well as other countries around the world fuelling its expansion through takeover of companies, development and recently, the absorption of several Eroski super-stores throughout Spain. The new group plans a number of new retail parks centred around Carrefour stores as part of a new five year plan which will also see significant development in the area of online shopping.

Sterling loses 3.5 per cent against euro

AFTER significant losses following the Brexit result, the pound started to recover against the euro in particular returning to a level of around \notin 1.19 which was maintained for several months.

Suddenly however it has taken a slow but sure backwards step dropping down to $\notin 1.145$ at the time of writing this article and the reasons are not totally clear.

Different analysts expound different reasons, one being that the Lords amendments to the Article 50 White Paper are to blame, whilst others suggest that the pound is undervalued against the dollar but is simply finding its correct level against the euro, especially as the Eurozone appears to be relatively sound at the moment.

Those of us who receive pensions and investment payment in sterling are less interested in the reason and more interested in seeing it stronger.

AirBnB at the crossroads

REGULARLY in the news in Spain because councils in many areas, especially Barcelona, Madrid and Mallorca believe that San Francisco based home rental company AirBnB continually encourages those renting properties to flout the laws, the company has just raised another $1 billion (€940 million).

Only launched in 2008 by Brian Chesky and Joe Gebbia, the company charges letters 3 per cent of the value of the let and between 6 and 12 per cent to those renting and is now valued at $31 billion (€29 billion) with operations hitting 65,000 cities worldwide.

Whilst the concept is very clever, there is no doubt that the company is managing to make enemies in very large cities which enjoy huge numbers of tourist visitors. Hotels are up in arms over the way in which the company takes business away from them and it is being blamed for the difficulty that many renters are having in finding long-term accommodation in London.

So worried was the British government about this situation, that the matter has been raised in parliament and the company has agreed to stop renters from letting their properties out for more than 90 days in a year unless they are registered with local councils.

Spain recently introduced some relatively draconian restrictions on short term letters requiring registration, air conditioning, free wifi and a number of other regulations in order to both support their tourist industry and to ensure that those letters actually pay tax on what they earn.

AIR BNB: Brian Chesky the founder with letters in San Francisco.

The Barcelona City Council believes that rentals via AirBnB do not recognise the laws in place and has levelled significant fines on the company which have been appealed, but fines have also been levied on property managers in New York City for using the company to advertise entire apartments for rent.

This highly successful company has gone from strength to strength and has received investment from the founder of Amazon as well as celebrities and movie stars, but doesn't appear ready as yet to float on the stock market especially as its high development and expansion costs have finally taken it into significant profit.

The company is at the crossroads, facing continued growth in the market and profit or being shut down due to alleged multiple breaches of laws around the world.

JD Sports new Iberian deal

JUST one day before it is due to open its new store in Cordoba, JD Sports has announced that it intends to enter into a partnership through its Sprinter brand with Portuguese retailer Sport Zone owned by the Sonae group.

This new joint venture to be known as the Iberian Sports Retail Group will manage and operate more than 250 stores in Portugal and Spain with an annual expected turnover of €450 million, although the British group has been expanding steadily within Spain and currently sells goods to the value of €40 million.

The agreement appears to give JD Sports a 50 per cent ownership of the new company whilst its Spanish division Sprinter will have 20 per cent and Sonae are to take 30 per cent. If this deal is finalised, then the new group will become one of the largest sporting goods retailers in Spain and Portugal, competing directly with French-owned Decathlon.

Not content with expansion in Europe, JD Sports is also expanding its business in Australia and despite regular negative media coverage, appears to continue to enlarge and discover new outlets for its goods.

The UK's spring budget and Spain

PHILIP HAMMOND: Leaving 11 Downing Street.

By John Smith

CHANCELLOR Philip Hammond presented his first budget on March 8 and whilst a great deal of it won't have any effect on British passport holders living in Spain, there are a few developments which will be of interest.

It was unfortunate that Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn tweeted just prior to the budget, exhorting supporters to "Sign the petition against Osborne's cuts" and although technically correct, it gave ammunition to certain parts of the media to suggest that he didn't know that Osborne had been replaced.

In general terms, Hammond took a fairly upbeat position with regards to the economy and the fact that Britain needs to borrow less money than originally forecast although growth is expected to slow down over the next few years until expanding in 2021.

He allocated more money to adult social care over the next three years with £2 billion (€2.3 billion) put to one side and did not introduce a retroactive claw back of monies spent on social care from inheritances which came as a relief to many.

The NHS didn't fare so well and despite the 'promises' (or were they just suggestions?) that many pro-Brexit campaigners - many of whom are now Cabinet Ministers - gave concerning massive monthly payments to the NHS, he was only able to find £425 million (€489 million) over three years for the countries health.

Britain needs to borrow less money than originally forecast.

The chancellor did however find around £1 billion (€1.15 billion) for education and the creation of even more selective schools as well as granting poor 11 to 15 year olds free transport to their schools as long as they are eligible for free school dinners.

Investors can earn 2.2 per cent on a new Investment Bond but tax-free dividend allowance will be reduced from £5,000 (€5,750) to £2,000 (€2,300) from April 2018.

The area that has caused the largest furore concerns National Insurance contributions for the self-employed which, according to detractors, marks a direct U-turn from pre-election promises that there would be no new taxes with the government explaining that that wasn't quite what they meant really and was down to a matter of interpretation.

There should be a few more pubs left open for visitors to the UK as they will receive some rate relief for one year. Those living in Spain however can congratulate themselves on the fact that they are in a country where drinking alcohol and smoking cigarettes is still considerably cheaper than in the UK.

Finally, only a cynic would complain about the £5 million (€5.75 million) found on International Women's Day to celebrate the Centenary of the Representation of the People Act which in 1918 led to the eventual granting of votes to women.

LEAPY LEE SAYS IT OTHERS THINK IT

ONE of the bonuses I glean from writing this column is the mail I receive. The reason many go unpublished is because a large number have attachments, or are a tad too long. I do of course read them all.

The feedback I gain is invaluable and I thank all who take the trouble to put their ideas and suggestion in the perusal pipeline. Some of the suggestions are of course unprintable. Others are actually a physical impossibility! However, as long as they contain even a smidgen of constructive criticism, all are welcome.

I do still of course get the occasional missive that wishes me harm. Don't worry I've been 'poisoned' by the very best. I find those particular communications a bit sad really. Some years ago the office did receive a letter addressed to me with the word 'bomb' inscribed in the top corner.

After a bit of 'pass the parcel' one brave EWN staff member deemed to open it. Inside was a card with a Second World War bomb depicted on its front. Not too funny really.

I do still get the occasional missive that wishes me harm, which is a bit sad really.

I've also received my fair share of mooners. If anyone feels this way inclined in the future, could you make sure you're female? I'm afraid I've never been into male posteriors (no pun intended!).

I did receive a funny one this week. A lady wrote to tell me she had stopped reading the EWN because of me. This was of course not true because she went on to say she was reading this particular issue in the lavatory!

Whether she had carried it in with her, considering those particular surroundings gave it more atmosphere, or whether she intended to put it to more practical use I have no idea. Hope not. All the print comes off love. Still it would give hubby the opportunity to read it in bed! And on that low note (geddit!?) I'll wish you all au revoir for another week.

Keep that mail coming and always. Keep the faith Love Leapy leapylee2002@gmail.com

Top selling agent wants your property!

MÄKLARRINGEN is by far the most active agent in Nerja and it is lacking good quality properties in most market segments. Mäklarringen has 70 offices in Sweden and has a strong client base from the Nordic countries. With the Swedish economy booming and currency virtually unaffected by the Brexit the client base still has stable purchasing power, in contrast to buyers from a British pound environment.

"What we see in the market in all our offices on Costa del Sol today, after the huge drop in the British pound, is some English expats taking the decision to sell their property in Spain and move home to the UK. The typical scenario is property owners in their 60's or 70's realise that the pound denominated pension is worth 15 per cent less in euros and when selling their property in Spain they gain 15 per cent more in pounds when moving back home, compared to exchange rates before the Brexit. It's a window to move back home that many can't resist and typically the buyer for the property is Scandinavian, a resource Mäklarringen has an abundancy of," said Thomas Malm, partner at Mäklarringen Costa del Sol.

BOOMING MARKET: There is an abundance of buyers.

For Mäklarringen, the market is totally different today than just 18 to 24 months ago. The Swedish property market has been booming for some time and most property owners can easily finance a holiday home with a second mortgage on their property in Sweden. This has turned the situation around so that today, the company is experiencing a severe lack of properties and an abundancy of buyers. This has changed a lot more rapidly than ever expected. The company has had to hire listers that are actively looking for the right property every day of the week, but it is still struggling to satisfy the demand.

To to have a free consultation regarding a possible sale of your property, please call 952 523 236 or e-mail costadelsol@mak larringen.se or visit the Nerja office on Avenida de Pescia 13 (the Supermercado Iranzo roundabout) between 10am and 6pm, Monday to Friday.

Mäklarringen is the fastest growing Scandinavian Real Estate agent on the Costa del Sol. It has 70 offices in Sweden and has been in Spain for more than 10 years. It offers your property the most exposure to the Northern European Markets.

Leo the Lion embarks on 'last chance' proton beam cancer therapy

BRAVE cancer fighter four-year-old Leo Bermejo from Almeria has begun his 31 sessions of proton beam therapy in Oklahoma.

It follows his recent brain tumour operation in the Alder Hey Children's Hospital in the UK.

Doctors at the ProCure clinic have decided that Leo needs full brain and spine proton therapy with a boost to the tumour bed.

The proton sessions, which will be given Monday to Friday, will involve approximately six weeks of treatment and, if all goes to plan, Leo could be back in Spain by the end of April.

Speaking exclusively to the Euro Weekly News from the States, mum Karen said: "His first treatment took just over an hour. He was quite groggy afterwards and was saying 'ouch' and pointing to his head. It is difficult to know if he was really in pain or not, but he shouldn't be with the treatment."

She added: "There is a chance that Leo's tumour does not respond to radiation, nobody knows until they try.

"If this is the case then there are no more treatment options, except another possible trial in Florida for children that have got to that stage.

BRAVE LEO: In Oklahoma.

if another tumour comes back if we continue fighting or what... there is only so much you can do."

ARIES (March 21 - April 20)

Your efforts to get your message across might be best delayed for seven days. Fickle Venus and flighty Mercury will cross swords with other planets, so keep your ideas and emotions grounded. Take nothing for granted on Tuesday, and don't agree to anything without the facts.

TAURUS Ö (April 21 - May 21)

Don't jump from one financial frying pan into another. Take it easy on all fronts, especially where your money, emotions and other people's moods are at odds with your ideas. There will be more than one good reason to compromise a little.

It's both a vertical and horizontal week. What goes right somewhere could easily go wrong elsewhere. Sensitive Venus conspires with touchy Mars to trigger tensions and scene. Either way, wait for a further green light, especially where money's concerned. Monday and Thursday are delicate days, so play it cool.

CANCER 😳 (June 22 - July 23)

Refuse to be miffed by whatever disagreements or difficulties clutter your world. The sooner you get on with things, the better for your peace of mind. Even this week's affrays and dismays are simply passing clouds. Put yourself first, and things will start to change. There's no telling what might occur, especially if

LEO δ_{l} (July 24 - August 23)

Move forward on this week's positive waves of optimism. Treat yourself, but don't over-indulge your temptations. The planets aren't dancing to all your wants and desires. If certain situations or individuals seem complicated, wait until the dust settles, then follow your

There's a saying that if it doesn't rain, it pours, so keep an umbrella of humour to hand. April is around the corner, and with it, a much happier trend for your workaday, social and financial prospects. Strive through this showery emotional week, and the sunshine will surely follow. Meanwhile, focus on the now.

(September 24 - October 23) Scanning the rest of the star-signs, you'll see that you have many things in common this week: challenging influences at work and play, and during other clogging capers. Unexpected events, finances, or the usual everyday frustrations could pile on the pressure.

SCORPIO M

(October 24 - November 22) You're not the only member of the zodiac who'll have to toughen up. It'll pay you to chill on Tuesday, be patient on Wednesday, and put your potent insights into orbit throughout the weekend. Although certain set arrangements are liable to veer off track, some discussions and shared commitments are slowly but firmly improving.

SAGITTARIUS X

(November 23 - December 21) The full moon in your own sign is a powerful ally against this week's planetary fracas. Speak from the heart and reject any ambiguous emotional games. It's the only way to clear the air and truly know where you're heading.

CAPRICORN ¹

(December 22 - January 20) There's a financial theme to many of your plans and ideas. Above all, spend with care and examine all offers carefully. Rely on your sixth sense, especially where close-to-you matters are concerned. Give more thought to what you hope to have achieved in 12 months from now. Be patient, especially over personal stresses and strains.

AQUARIUS

(January 21 - February 19) Your emotions, extra expenses and other domestic pressures are on the boil. Put off major decisions until next week. Meanwhile, loosen up, walk into some creative space, and if necessary, talk to someone who understands your ups and downs. There are good things waiting to happen, so refuse to lose your nerve.

LAST WEEK'S SOLUTION

LAST week's Champions League match between Barcelona and Paris Saint-Germain is one that will go down in history. Despite Paris Saint-Germain going into the second leg with a four goal advantage, Barcelona managed to claw back an amazing victory after they scored three goals in the last eight minutes to win 6-1. Here we have a look at some other amazing sporting comebacks.

1. Dennis Taylor winning the World Snook er Championship

Dennis Taylor defied the odds to win the 1985 World Snooker Championship beating snooker heavyweight Steve Davis. The result came as a major shock, with Davis being the favourite, playing near-faultless snooker with an 8-0 lead. However, Taylor produced a determined comeback, winning the match on the final ball of the final frame and sealing his only world title.

Oracle Team USA's America's Cup win In sailing, Britain's Sir Ben Ainslie became the hero of the hour at the 2013 America's Cup. The Americans were trailing 8-1 with Team New Zealand on match point when they recruited Ben to the team. In a dramatic turnaround the team managed to draw level after winning the next seven races and stole victory in the final race beating Team New Zealand by 44 seconds.

3. Henri Cochet's Wimbledon win One of the most remarkable comebacks was by French tennis player Henri Cochet at the 1927 Wimbledon Championships. Amazingly in all of his finals matches he was two sets down against his opponents. Somehow he managed to dig deep and recover the deficit to win each match defeating Frank Hunter in the quarter-final, Bill

Tilden in the semi-final, and Frenchman Jean Borotra in the final to take the Wimbledon title. 4. Lasse Virén wins the 10,000m in Munich At the 1972 Summer Olympics, Virén broke Ron Clarke's world record in the 10,000m, de spite a fall during the 12th lap. In less than 150 metres, Viren caught up with the leading pack despite losing about 20 metres after the fall. With only 600 metres to go, Virén ran an unprecedented lap and a half which pushed him ahead of the pack

5. Red Rum winning the Grand National A champion, thoroughbred steeplechaser, Red Rum is probably the most famous racehorse ever. It was his win in the 1973 Grand National which produced one of the best performances in horse racing history. Crisp, a two mile champion chaser, led the race for every stride except the last 10 where Red Rum overhauled Crisp right on the winning post.

6. England's 1981 Ashes Test

In the third Ashes Test of 1981, England were at Headingly and seemed to have lost all hope of winning, with odds slipping to 500-1. A galvanised Ian Botham defied those odds and led England to a stunning 18 run win as they went on to claim the fourth and fifth tests, drawing the final and taking the series 3-1.

Liverpool FC's Champions League win Within the first minute of Liverpool's 2005 Champions League final against AC Milan, Paolo Maldini gave the Italian side a 1-0 lead. Outclassed in the first half, the Reds looked to be out of contention as they went into half time

3-0 down. However, in what would become one of the most stirring football comebacks in European football, Liverpool fought back in the second half, levelling the score and taking the match to extra time. A penalty shootout decided the championship. Liverpool won 3-2.

Europe's Ryder Cup 2012 win

The 2012 Ryder Cup is widely regarded as featuring one of the greatest sporting comebacks of all time. At the start of the final day's play, the US led 10-6 and required only 41/2 points to win, whereas Europe required 8 points to retain the cup, and 81/2 to win it outright. In possibly the greatest comeback in Ryder Cup history, Europe won 8 and tied 1 of the 12 singles matches, giving them the outright victory, $14\frac{1}{2}-13\frac{1}{2}$.

France's Rugby World Cup semi-final win The 1999 Rugby World Cup semi-final seemed as if it would be a walk in the park for pre-tournament favourites New Zealand. They led France 24-10 early in the second half and the All Blacks looked primed to make it to the final. This was all undone by Christophe Lamaison, who ended the match with 28 points, closing the gap to 24-22. France then capitalised on this momentum, going on to win 43-31. 10. Charlton Atheltic's win against Huddersfield Town in 1957

Playing the majority of the match with only 10 men when captain Derek Ufton was injured, Charlton Athletic pulled off an extraordinary six goal comeback in just 27 minutes. Huddersfield were leading 5-1 when Johnny Summers embarked on an extraordinary run of play during which he scored four goals and assisted in two others, resulting in a final score of 7-6.

EWN hits the track with SPV Racing

By Matt Ford

EURO WEEKLY NEWS publisher Steven Euesden was able to fulfil a lifetime ambition on Sunday, March 12, as he took a Ligier JS P3 European Le Mans Series car for a spin around the Mike G Racing Circuit in Guadix, Granada.

Having been invited to try out the Ligier due to his close relationship with track owner Clive Greenhalgh, Steven certainly did not disappoint as he clocked some extremely fast times.

Also putting his pedal to the metal was champion freestyle skier and notorious petrolhead Jon Olsson, who will be one of the team's drivers in this year's Creventic Prototype Endurance Series after competing in several Gumball Rallies.

The Swede is currently sponsored by Red Bull, has picked up numerous medals in the Winter X Games and clearly relishes an adrenalin rush since he has owned a series of modified supercars, including a Lamborghini Murcielago LP 640 with a ski box strapped to the roof!

Having completed his warm-up laps in the 260 BHP Radical SR3 rs, a British-manufactured two-seater which competes in the International Automobile Federation's C3 class, a visibly tense Steven took his seat in the Ligier SPV featured in both the European and Asian Le Mans Series in 2016 and this year will enter the Creventic Championship.

following detailed pep talks by SPV's Lars GV Linberg and Raul Garcia Isern.

The pre-heated tyres were fitted and the impressive 430 BHP Nissan-powered car, complete with EWN livery, was wheeled onto the track where Steven was finally able to fire up the incredible-sounding 5-litre V8 engine.

As an excited Team EWN watched on, he gradually reduced his lap times as his confidence increased, with the SPV pit crew clearly impressed by his skills behind the wheel after he and Jon posted very similar best laps.

As he stepped out of the car, a grinning and emotional Steven could only manage a single word: "Awesome!"

The Ligier is one of several owned by SPV Racing, a relatively new Spanish and Swedish team formed in 2015 through an alliance between Spirit Racing and SPV Motorsport.

SPV featured in both the European and Asian Le Mans Series' in 2016, and will this year enter the Creventic Championship, a series of four 12-hour races in France, Belgium and Italy.

The team have also been running a Ford-sponsored Mustang in the NASCAR Whelen Euroseries, which last year was driven by former Toyota F1 test and reserve driver Borja Garcia.

Their ambition is to take the step up to LMP 2-series racing in 2018, before taking on the infamous 24 Hours of Le Mans in 2019.

Massive thanks from Steven, Michel and Team EWN to everyone at the Mike G Racing Circuit and SPV Racing for a brilliant day, and watch this space for more news about their progress in upcoming editions of the Euro Weekly News.

Jear Leapy, we can disagree

WHILST normally enjoying your articles I must comment on your heading this week in the fine newspaper 'Euro Weekly.

I believe we all have 'the right' to free speech. Obviously there should be an appropriate time and place for opinions being expressed that are likely to offend or inflame.

Yes, the Oscar presentations this year could have been better managed but your strong personal description of the 'stars' are surely over exaggerated.

However, it is your 'right' as a columnist to print your views, as it is mine to disagree with you on this occasion.

Even if those stars concerned did think themselves a bottomless pit of valuable information. we don't have to admire their views, just their performance on celluloid.

I JUST want to remind them that when we entered the European Market we were named the 'Poor Man of Europe' and rightly so. Now we are told our economy is doing well, so being in Europe must have helped Britain somewhat.

Are we grateful? Of course not. Fancy suggesting anything to that effect.

OH how we love to move abroad and then try to change our new life to suit our narrow minds.

I am ashamed of how all Brit mags are filled with moaners trying to change Span and its long held traditions.

hard to ignore but go home or join Spanish parliament!!!

Time lapse

IS Spain behind the time? In a week or so we will change our clocks to daylight-saving time, the wrong time. The sun rises earlier in Germany than in the UK. Now most of Spain is west of the Prime Meridian, 0° that runs through Greenwich. So why is Spain on Central European Time, the same as Berlin? It was not always the case.

In 1942, the Fascist dictator General Franco moved Spain onto Central European Time to follow Nazi Germany.

It said that following the 'wrong clock' explains why Spaniards tend to eat, leave work and go to bed late.

Now seeing as both Franco and Hitler are less popular than they once were, isn't it time to put Spain back into the correct time zone?

I HAVE just returned from singing the Mozart Requiem in Granada with Coral Coraxalia and I am now relaxing reading the Euro Weekly with my feet up.

I have just seen the article about my art exhibition on page 13. Absolutely fantastic and I'm so delighted you have given over such a large space for it.

Also, the story for the Coral Coraxalia choir. So kind of you and the promotion must have worked because the concert was a sell out!

It was magnificent - four choirs performed three songs each before the joint choirs performed the Mozart. A music critic in the audience described it as a Susan Boyle moment when we performed our slot.

The mostly Spanish audience were

We have worked so hard and our choir director. Eusebio Pita is still 'en las nubes' at our performance.

The hugs and kisses, and tears of emotion by both women, and men - even Eusebio - our 'Gareth Malone' of the Axarquia. What a wonderful choir we have, thanks to him. We are still inviting people to join us and they can find our more on: www.coralcoraxalia.com.

WELL, I'm sorry but whereas I accept the Spanish system can be seen as a shambles, I think in any country, I would be wary of having a house built when I was told it would be illegal.

I'm afraid I cannot be sympathetic as this person seemed to have had more money than sense, and blaming others when she obviously didn't carry out proper research is just plain stupid. You wouldn't do so in the UK so why do it in Spain.

Stop press! Is Theresa May after a hard Brexit or soft crexit?

NEWS that Theresa May is giving up crisps for Lent - salt and vinegar variety, since you ask made me wonder what else people are giving up.

Is Jeremy Corbyn giving up trying to lead the Labour Party, or is that just the impression he seems to give? And, as for Sir Philip Green, is he giving up £363 million to hang on to his knighthood? Reports that the retail billionaire had a scrabble down the back of the sofa on one of his many vachts to bail out the BHS pension scheme in a deal to salvage his reputation - and keep his gong - positively makes his the most expensive knighthood in history. (Will David Beckham be reaching for his chequebook now too?)

A knight of the realm who's already opened his chequebook is Sir James Dyson, a self-made billionaire who's putting billions back into the economy, innovating and creating thousands of new jobs. Unlike Sir Philip, also a selfmade billionaire, but most of whose money has ended up in Monaco and not in the UK where thousands of people have lost their jobs. We could do with many more like Sir James and fewer like Sir Philip.

Someone else who seems to have given up something for Lent – in his case, common sense - is the Royle Family actor, Ricky Tomlinson, who's accused the 'most indiscreet' late TV Countdown presenter, Richard Whiteley, of being an undercover agent for MI5, having helped jail him and other strik> ing workers in the 70s (the jury having been 'swayed' by an ITV documentary featuring him, Red Under the Bed, fronted by Whiteley). A true Kremlin conundrum...

Finally, and back to Mrs May's crisps, if you take a packet and scrunch the contents to tiny bits (soft crexit?), you'll have no problem giving them up - not just for Lent but for life. Ugh!

I find a far better way is to give yourself a 100 per cent chance of success and guaranteed bragging rights. Which is why I've decided to give up broccoli for Lent. I hate broccoli. Always have.

childish.

Instead of being encouraged to keep playing and having fun, phrases like 'grow up' and 'act your age' begin to creep in. By our teenage years, embarrassment rears its ugly head and we are afraid to do anything that will cost us 'cool points' with our friends and peers. Bikes stop being horses or motorbikes (or whatever else we were playing that day) and become either retired to the shed or used to get us to work or study. Fun is replaced by adult things like worrying about money or trying to find a partner.

However, for some of us, that childish need to play never goes away. From videogames to paintballing, we still feel that need to lose ourselves for a period of time and escape the adult worries of everyday life.

I definitely fall into this category and am unafraid to risk making a fool of myself in the pursuit of fun. I sometimes even find myself acting my shoe size and not my age! And why not? Life is short and we spend plenty of time being serious and stressed. We can all learn a lesson from watching the sheer, unadulterated joy of children at play.

Of course there are times when being a grown up is required but that doesn't mean there can't also be times for play and fun. It's not always such a bad thing to be childish - sometimes it's exactly what is needed!

This summer, you might spot me running in and out of the water fountains in the Plaza screaming and laughing along with the children. While I'm certain some will shake their heads at the sight of it, I also think there will be some who would like to join in the fun so come right in, the water's lovely!

a front row seat for the festivities from my balcony which overlooks the main Plaza in town. What caught my eye more than any of the elaborate costumes, was a group of children running around collecting long streamers fired from a cannon on one of the floats. They collected enough to make a large pile then played in it for the next few hours. The bright pile provided a soft landing as they jumped into it, pushed each other on to it and rode their bikes towards it toppling into the cushioned surface.

The overwhelming sound, above the cacophony of presenters and singers on the stage, was of the children's laughter.

For hours, they ignored the lure of candy floss and helium balloons of favourite characters, preferring instead to make their own amusement

It's serious grumpy territory

WHAT is it with French air traffic control? Do they achieve anything by striking? Except for making sure that not one member of the travelling public has any sympathy for them. They have affected 35,000 flights since 2010, 34,999 of which didn't really catch my attention because ... well, to be honest, I wasn't on them. But I was on Wednesday because I was flying to the UK.

The problem started two days before my flight because I knew I was meant to be landing at about 9pm which was fine because Hertz don't close till 11.30pm. Now this is where it starts to get into serious grumpy territory as I decided to give Hertz a call to check what provisions are in place if a punter is delayed because of the strike and land after 11.30pm. I decided to call them and ask.

Simple really you would think because they provide you with a number to call - albeit a premium one. So I call it. It all starts off fine. Welcome to Hertz blah, blah, blah. Press 1 for this, 2 for that, 3 for something else, 4 to speak to the local office where you are picking up the car. So 4 is pressed and off we go again. Press 1 for this, 2 for that, 3 for

I don't know, 4 to personally strangle the idiots that invented this frustrating no human response piece of annoying technology!!!!

Or hold to speak to an operator. So I hold and hold and hold and then I'm told after a good 15 minutes of paying for a premium charge call that nobody is available to take my call right now and could I please call back later and the line goes dead.

I am now verbally abusing someone who is not there and I mean abusing. Not someone to give up lightly I go online and find a number in the USA as I reckon they must be able to help me contact someone at Luton airport who won't answer their phone. 'Hello welcome to Hertz. Press 1 for this, 2 for that and 3 to speak to a very unnaturally happy operator who is going tell me her name and ask me how can she help me today and when we finish wish me a wonderful rest of my day! At last it's a human and I explain my problem and she tells me not to worry as if my flight details are on the booking the Hertz staff have to wait for me.

This is great except my flight details aren't on my booking. Anyway she kindly adds them and sends me an email confirming what we've discussed. So over two hours later I finally get it sorted. My flight was delayed but the Hertz office was still open. So French air traffic control you can KMA!! Email me at mikesenker@gmail.com.

The show will take place from 8pm at the House of Culture. It will be thes shows second ever showing and the first for the province of Granada.

phy and scenic direction aided by Valeriano Paños. The main dancer will be Valeriano Paños while Sara Jimenez and Macarena Lopez will perform solos. Playing the guitar will be Manuel Urbina and Pau Vallet, who will accompany singers Sebastian Cruz, Matias Lopez El Mati and Jose Luis Garcia Bravo Cheito. The Andalucian Flamenco Ballet company, formerly known as the Compañía Andaluza de Danza, was created in 1994 and since then has had great choreographers such as Manolo Marin, Cristina Hoyos, Fernando Romero and famous dance figures such as Israel Galvan, Isabel Bayon and Rafael Campallo have come out of the company.

GOOD FOOD, GOOD WINE AND GOOD FRIENDS WITH GARRY WAITE

HAVE BEEN watching a three-part series called The Replacement. It's very good and tells the story of a woman architect who is pregnant and needs to find someone to take her place in the practice while she goes on maternity leave. In her absence it would appear that the replacement has eyes on her job, position and reputation within the practice.

Although not as dark and well scripted as this programme, I experienced something similar many years ago.

I was looking for an assistant food and beverage manager for the hotel where I was the Food and Beverage Manager. A colleague of mine was aware of my search and put me in touch with an experienced and ambitious young man.

This guy was a very personable chap and had the qualities I was looking for. I took him on. The General Manager liked him as did the area director and soon he proved himself to be a good addition to the team.

He was always volunteering to take on some of my load and in return for his enthusiasm I imparted as much knowledge of the business and the operation in particular as I could.

Did I learn anything from this? Yes, never go on holiday because if you do, when you get back, the chances are you'll find someone sitting at your desk!!

Months went by and I was due a holiday, I hadn't had one for over a year and I was looking forward to it. I knew the place would be in good hands so I went with the confidence that all would be well in my absence.

Unfortunately while away I contracted some sort of virus and on my return was not able to go back to work for a further 10 days. When I eventually said that I was free to come back, I was informed that in my absence they had reorganised the hotel's management structure and - you guessed it! - my position was no longer!! I had been replaced!!

I had turned him into a mini me, he had met my clients, was playing tennis with the boss and generally making himself indispensable. The pole to success can be slippery, in order to climb it, it pays to have the right gloves!! Perhaps boxing gloves?

The irony of this story is, I met up with my nemesis a couple of years later. I asked how things were going and he told me a familiar story. He had done with another exactly what I had done with him. Trusted him, encouraged and taught. Obviously too well. Had he learnt anything? "Yes," he said, "don't be generous with your knowledge and play everything close to your chest" - 'et tu Brute?' comes to mind!! THOSE READERS FROM the west of England may well remember Thornbury Castle just outside of Bristol. The castle was built as a residence in 1511 for Edward Stafford the then 3rd Duke of Buckingham. However the Duke ran into a spot of bother with Henry VIII being accused of treason and so met his demise at the end of the executioner's axe. Henry confiscated the house and used it himself, staying there in 1535 for 10 days on his honeymoon with new bride Anne Boleyn.

Following the English Civil War, the castle fell into disrepair, but was renovated in 1824 by the Howard family. Between 1966 and 1986 the castle was operated as one of the UK's top restaurants by Kenneth Bell MBE with staff that included a soon to be food writer Nigel Slater and now a MasterChef New Zealand judge Simon Gault, honing their culinary craft.

I first met Kenneth in 1974. No one deserved to be lord of the manor more than him. He had an air of aristocracy about him and was a fine mine host. He also has a major claim to fame in as much as that during his reign the hotel restaurant gained one of the very few Michelin stars in Great Britain at the time.

THORNBURY: Famous Grade 1 listed castle and hotel

Kenneth retired after he sold the property for an undisclosed sum and it was eventually owned and operated by Van Essen Hotels. In 2011, following the administration of Van Essen Hotels, the property was on the market for 7.5 million pounds and was bought by Luxury Family Hotels as part of a 30 million pound purchase of a seven strong portfolio The castle is now for sale again for offers in excess of 8.5 million pounds. Set in 14 acres of landscaped grounds this 28 bedroom Grade 1 listed building has a two rosette restaurant and conference and banqueting facilities. So if your back pocket is bulging and you fancy being 'King of the Castle' then it's being marketed by Savills. I'll just go and check my bank balance!!

IN THIS WEEK'S WINE CORNER I am introducing you to a wine from one of my favourite white wine growing areas of Spain. Galicia! Most enthusiastic consumers will immediately know Rias Baixas famous for Albariño, but not all of our readers will know the other areas of denomination, Monterei, Ribeira Sacra, Ribeiro and Valdeorras.

Galicia is a typically complex wine region, it has a variety of climates (Atlantic to Continental) and soil (granite to slate).

One of the most interesting of these areas is Valdeorras, the easternmost wine region of Galicia, where the best vineyards are planted on terraces on the steep sides of the Sil river.

Like many other wine regions in Spain, the area is being rediscovered by a new, young generation of talented winemakers, willing to make elegant wine with a sense of place. The two best in Valdeorras are Telmo Rodriguez and Rafael Palacios.

Rafael grew up in a wine family and, having left the family estate in 2004, settled in the Val do Bibei part of Valdeorras, where he works with terraced plots of Godello grape which are locally known as 'sorte,' some of which are 720 metres high. All vineyard work and harvest is done by hand crippling, but rewarding, work.

The wine I am writing about this week is As Sortes. Made from a selection of the older vines of each plot, some of which are almost 100 years old, this wine is a benchmark for Godello. Structure, complexity, intensity, character, freshness... it has it all. It bears a great resemblance to Burgundy and I am sure on a blind tasting even the most competent taster will be surprised to find out it that it's Spanish!

Tasting notes show it has a striking nose showing freshly podded peas, green apple, fresh pastry and toasty citrus - deep and complex but still fresh and inviting.

The palate has that pleasing oiliness which coats the mouth with what can only be described as an 'English garden' crunch, combining gooseberry, Granny Smith apple, and a mineral character that invokes the deep savoury flavour of black kale. It's a savoury, rich beauty that will triumph with food but is complex and satisfying enough to drink on its own.

It has some vintages, most notably 2014 which of course is still drinking well. Again it isn't cheap for a white wine, costing around 25/30€ a bot-tle.

I have said for a long time now that Spain is now producing astonishingly good wines to compete with some of the best in the world. It's hard to think that 30 odd years ago we seemed to be limited to Monopole, Marques de Caceres and Esmeralda. Having said that I do still try and avoid white Rioja!

GALICIAN WINE: With Burgundy overtones.

ON THAT NOTE I will bid you farewell until next week and should aspiring restaurateurs need some help or advice, please do not hesitate to contact me. A toast to Good Food, Good Wine and Good friends.

Real estate ramps up

IN a surefire sign that Spanish residential real estate is set for some profitable times ahead, Bilbao-based construction company Neinor Homes plans to float 60 per cent of its share capital on the Spanish stock exchange.

Vast amounts of foreign investment flowing into the country has inspired the move. It represents the first time a residential property developer has gone onto the stock exchange in 10 years.

A statement from Neinor, which specialises in acquiring prime land for development, said that international investors had a powerful vision for the recovery of the Spanish real estate sector, which continues its strong recovery.

The firm counts hundreds of developments and more than 9,000 homes among its assets, valued at more than €1 billion. Residential home construction in Spain has been humming along nicely in recent years. encouraged by spectacular growth in the commercial real estate sector.

Mystery owners raise eyebrows

By Matthew Elliott

THE cheapest property sold in the UK for a long time was a Birmingham house bought in January. The semi-detached with three bedrooms in Northfield sold for just £14,760 (€17,000). That's a far cry from the most expensive sale of 2017 so far, a Kensington detached mega-mansion that went for a startling $\pounds 24.2$ million ($\pounds 28$ million).

There are hundreds of superrich foreigners with homes valued at more than €20 million in the UK capital. But, thanks to clever accounting, it's almost impossible to find out who they are.

In 2013 the government decided to put an end to the mystery and impose a huge tax on owners who masked themselves behind offshore companies and other smoke and mirror schemes. But most of the owners have elected to pay an extra €250,000 a year in tax rather than reveal their true identities.

Data from 2016 revealed that there are 210 such properties in London alone, most sitting idle and empty while the mysterious owners stump up huge taxes. At anywhere from €20-120 million it is the property investment that counts, not pesky government charges.

Offshore companies now own almost all of London's most expensive properties. Police have investigated homes worth a combined €210 million for suspected involvement in money-laundering schemes.

HOUSE prices in Spain saw their biggest annual rise since the bursting of the housing bubble in 2007. Complete data for 2016 is now in and makes for extremely optimistic reading.

Prices rose by a robust 4.7 per cent last year, well above the European average. It was the third consecutive year of growth and the best since 2007 when prices rose by 9.8 per cent. As recently as 2013 they had decreased by 13.7 per cent, which demonstrates the incredible improvements seen in the last three years.

Stronger than ever before

New homes fared especially well last year, with prices rising by 6.5 per cent. The figures may still be some way off those seen in the boom years, but are more sustainable by virtue of their moderation.

At the end of the year the average value per square metre stood at €1,512. In 2008 it reached a peak of €2,101. It may take some time to hit those numbers again but the broader health and global appeal of the Spanish property market is stronger than ever.

The new year has already begun well. House prices clocked a 1.8 per cent vear-on-vear increase in February. Foreclosures also saw a dramatic drop, 30 per cent lower in 2016 than in 2015, which points to the broader favourability of financial conditions for property investors.

Succession planting can reap harvest dividends

By Graeme Tyrrell

IT is time to start preparing the vegetable garden for the summer harvest. Planting earlier in spring than northern Europe gardens gives a great bonus when living in Spain.

The longer growing season allows for an extended period of harvest of tomatoes, capsicum, and a host of other popular and exotic vegetables. If you want to maximise production, the secret to a prolonged harvests is succession planting.

Succession planting is based on planting enough to produce what you need on a regular basis rather than mass planting at the optimum time to fill the garden which creates a feast and famine harvest.

It does have some risks to plant early and late in the season with frosts or adverse weather affecting the production but as only a small number are planted with each succession, it is a small risk to total production. Harvest is more useful when it is spread over a longer period and you can enjoy the fresh produce more regularly.

This can mean less work to preserve produce and less loss of prime produce as there is less excess production that can often go to seed or pass its best picking time and become bitter or woody depending on the crop. Succession planting can also be used to ensure your garden is always in production as spent crops are replaced by the next seasonal crop.

I usually plant lettuce every month throughout autumn, winter and spring. I start planting tomatoes in March, usually just a few and then plant more each month until August changing the varieties from early to late in order to match the planting times. Some years it works wonderfully to have very early tomatoes, other years the first planting fails but the second is soon ready to start picking in a few weeks more. So I don't miss out on a harvest and always have as long a season as possible .

It doesn't work with all vegetables to have monthly planting. I find Cauliflower and Broccoli tend to produce at the same time as those around them even if only young. For these I don't plant too many and give a two to three month interval of planting. I find this gives a greater appreciation of them when they are available.

Other good examples of succession planting are artichokes and potatoes. They can be planted in two periods, autumn and early spring, to give an early and late harvest thus extending the availability of these fresh veggies over much of the year.

The most successful monthly planting succession vegetables (when in season) are lettuce, beans, peas, corn, carrots, radish, onions, tomatoes, spinach, beets and other salad green.

It is best to add good compost and fertilise the soil between plantings of crops to maintain soil nutrition and health of the ecology to maintain continuous production. It is also important to vary the succeeding crops so as not to just have the same type of vegetable in the same garden beds by following the principles of crop rotation.

BE ALARMED: Installing an alarm is advisable.

Make your home safe and secure

IT doesn't matter where you live in the world, security at home to avoid unwelcome burglars is something that shouldn't be ignored.

However for some reason, many expats who would take sensible precautions back home, don't always do the same here in Spain.

Probably the two most important things are home insurance and security in the property and both are relatively easy to arrange and unlikely to cost as much as they might do in the UK.

There are a number of excellent insurance companies within Spain, (many of whom advertise in this newspaper) and it literally costs nothing to obtain a quote. Like in the UK they will give discounts from the initial quote based on the protection that the property receives. It is important to remember there are two types of home insurance, one covers the building and the other the contents and if you have a lot of valuable jewellery not only will you need a safe and alarm system, you will also need it to be properly valued in writing by an expert.

The more difficult you can make it for crooks to enter the better so make sure windows and doors have bars (nowadays they can be so attractive that they add to the character of the property).

Strong doors with good locks, a safe and an alarm system are all advised, especially if you own a holiday home. Your home is going to be less appealing to an opportunistic burglar than one with less obvious protection.

Water soothes all

WHEN one visits a number of the properties built by the Moors in Spain, it becomes obvious from the interior to the exterior that water played an incredibly important role in life at the time, with its catchment not only being a method of survival but its very existence being a pleasure.

Whilst modern properties do not allow for a modern riad and pool within the home, it is still perfectly possible to place a small water feature within an apartment or house and the sound of water can be both comforting and surprisingly pleasant.

If you have a garden, then the options are much greater and a pond or fountain isn't just something to look at but can add moisture to the air on a very hot day and attract brightly coloured birds and dragonflies. WATER FEATURE: In the garden can attract birds.

When a dog places his paws and chest on the hindquarters of another dog like mounting this is normal and common behaviour. In most cases, it's NOT sexual behaviour unless the dog is thrusting. In young puppies, it's a play behaviour. In older dogs, it's a method of communication, the dog who is mounting is displaying dominance.

Often owners who bring another dog into the family get upset when they see the younger dog mounting or biting the rear legs of the resident dog. It's best not to correct the behaviour, it is very normal. The status of the young dog is changing in the pack and it be-

Dog judge is slammed over no frills request

THE dog grooming world is up in arms over a ban on bows for shih tzus at Crufts dog show.

An experienced judge of the breed. Pat Maule, took to a Facebook group to ask those intending to show their dogs to use: "plain elastic band holding the topknot only please," inadvertently offending breeders all over the world.

The request was in accordance with UK Kennel Club regulations, which were changed in November 2016 to state: "it is strongly recommended that the hair on head is tied up without adornment."

Yet breeders in other countries, where bows and adornments are not frowned upon, harshly criticised the judge and questioned her abilities, leading her to make further statements to the press: "I'm supposedly unable to judge under a bow. I've been awarding certificates for 26 years and have more experience in the breed than most. In America the bow is used to hide faults from judges and we don't want that in the UK," she told Dog World magazine.

> TOPKNOT: But plain elastic band only please.

more tail docking

PARLIAMENT has passed approval of an amendment to a proposed loophole in Spain's adherence to the European Convention for the Protection of Pet Animals which would have allowed tail docking to continue.

Approved in Strasbourg in 1987, the convention guarantees a basic animal welfare legislation for its member states and, while most countries joined it in the 1990s, the Spanish government was not only doing so 30 years late but also wanted to dodge the docking ban, Equo MP Juan Lopez de Uralde reported.

However, all political parties except the Partido

Popular have agreed the PP's intention to pass on article 10 of the convention is unacceptable.

Speaking to parliament, the Equo MP argued that docking "is not an innocuous practice" for animals as it "causes them pain, chronic health problems, locomotion difficulties and even limits their capacity for communication."

"Amputating dogs' tails for aesthetic reasons is a practice which should be eliminated as it has serious consequences for the animal, therefore we have presented the amendment approved today to stop Spain from eluding this article of the Convention," he added.

Concept and classics

every day, I'd rather have bird flu."

By Matthew Elliott

SOME of the most outlandish concept cars seen in the 21st century made their debut as the 2017 Geneva Motor Show got into full swing.

Quote of the Week

Though most of the concepts will always be mere ideas rather than reality, they offer a fascinating glimpse into the future landscape of the motoring industry.

Among them were the Jaguar I-firm's first fully electric vehicle. From Mercedes was a new GT con-

Pace, the conceptual forerunner to the cept, an AMG powered by a 4.0 litre v8 twin-turbocharged engine with an electric motor. Theoretically it can hit 100kph in less than three seconds. There was the Peugeot Instinct, which brings the 'Internet of Things' into the driver's seat with a speechenabled personal assistant and both autonomous and drive modes. Renault raised eyebrows with a lightweight electric four-wheel drive made of carbon fibre and kevlar boasting Formula E standard controls.

But it wasn't just the future being represented at the show. The retroverse was on full display too with a rollicking repertoire of Fords, Monteverdis, Mercedes and Porsches reaching out to classic fans.

Some might say.

A 1968 Mercedes-Benz 280 SL Pagoda stood out with its fresh red paintwork. There was a 1963 Porsche 901, a Monteverdi High Speed 375 C, first unveiled in 1971 and now lingering in a Swiss museum, and a Ford Focus RS WRC originally built for the late Colin McRae in 1999

Motoring shorts Aston's new car models

ASTON MARTIN is designing a new mid-engined supercar to take on the McLaren 720S and Ferrari 488 GTB.

The car is earmarked to launch in 2021, two years after its first mid-engined model, the Valkyrie, hits the market in 2019.

It will be built in Gaydon, Warwickshire, alongside the DB11, the Vantage, due to be replaced by a sportier version later this year, and the Vanquish, which is scheduled to move into front-engined supercar territory in 2018.

Also in the pipeline is the DBX SUV, which will be constructed at the company's new factory at St Athan in Wales.

In addition there will be two Lagonda models with a saloon due in2020 and an SUV in 2022.

Bullitt gathered dust in scrapyard

WHEN a 1968 Ford Mustang rolled off the set of Bullitt, iconic screen star Steve Mc-Queen tried in vain to track it down. Even back then it made history as one of the most daring car chases in film.

But instead of being snapped up by a billionaire playboy or given prime place in a Hollywood museum, the Mustang spent over 30 years gathering dust in a Mexican scrapyard.

That was until film director Hugo Sanchez bought the car to use in Gone In Sixty Seconds in the year 2000. Taking it into the body shop for use in a new film, Sanchez has now discovered the battered old Mustang was actually one of two used in the legendary Bullitt car chase.

Electronic matching of its vehicle identification number confirmed its past life rampaging over the hilly streets of San Francisco.

It's a timely discovery ahead of the Mustang's 50th year anniversary in 2018. Sanchez and bodywork specialist Ralph Garcia Jr plan to restore it fully to its 1968 prime and then auction the car off next year.

FOOTBALL:

AFTER FAC semi-final and European last 16 action, which saw Arsenal hammer gutsy Lincoln City 5-0 in the former, having crashed 5-1 at home to Bayern Munch for a 10-2 aggregate Champions League defeat, Premiership fixtures return this weekend with Bournemouth v Swansea, Crystal Palace v Watford, Everton v Hull, Stoke v Chelsea, Sunderland v Burnley, WBA v Arsenal and West Ham v Leicester on Saturday, followed by Manchester City v Liverpool, Middlesbrough v Manchester United and Tottenham (fresh from a 6-0 FA Cup romp over Millwall) v Southampton on Sunday.

Tomorrow night, Bristol City play Huddersfield and Sheffield Wednesday meet Reading in the Championship while on Saturday, promotion-chasing Newcastle visit Birmingham, Leeds play Brighton and Fulham en-

THIRTY-NINE managers have left their posts in the PL/FL this season, 13 in the Championship, the latest Steve McClaren from Derby last weekend.

Wimbledon and Sheffield United (top) take on Charlton and FL2 leaders Doncaster visit Leyton Orient and Plymouth meet Morecambe.

SPL champions-elect Celtic travel to Dundee, Aberdeen play Hearts and Rangers (under new manager Pedro Caixinha) meet Hamilton.

We also have the second legs of the FA Vase semi-finals with Midlands clubs Bromsgrove Sporting and Coleshill Town sighting Wembley!

Earlier this week, Leicester (1-2 down) and Manchester City (5-3 up) played Sevilla and Monaco respectively in the return legs of their last 16 Champions League ties. Tonight Manchester United (level at 1-1) meet Rostov in their home Europa League second leg encounter. The Scottish Cup semi-fi-

Rangers (who drew 1-1 in the SPL last Sunday) and Aberdeen v Hibs while the FA Cup semi-finals (both at Wembley) will feature Arsenal against Manchester City and Chelsea against Tottenham Hotspur.

RUGBY:

On Saturday, we have the last three Six Nations matches of 2017: Scotland-Italy (1.30pm), France-Wales (3.45pm) and Ireland-England (6pm).

Last weekend, England, with seven tries, a Jonathan Joseph hat-trick and 26 points from Owen Farrell, crushed Scotland 61-21 in the Calcutta Cup to become the first country to claim backto-back Six Nations titles. They also equalled New Zealand's record of 18 straight Test match wins and it was their biggest-ever over Scotland.

Twenty-four hours earlier, Wales beat Ireland 22-9 and France defeated Italy 40-18.

Wasps, Exeter and Saracens stand 1-2-3 in the Aviva PL, while in the Super League, the top three are Wigan Warriors, Castleford Tigers a n d Hull. HORSE RACING:

The Cheltenham Festival is underway. This annual event epitomises and encompasses everything that is great about NH racing, whilst delivering an unbelievable occasion as the best horses, jockeys and trainers battle it out for the highest racing honours. On Tuesday, the big race was the Champion Hurdle (I fancied Petit Mouchoir); yesterday (Ladies Day) we had the Queen Mother Champion Chase and Coral Cup; today (St Patrick's Day) it's the stayers and novices hurdle races, followed tomorrow by the Gold Cup. Champagne West, trained by Henry De Bromhead and ridden (hopefully) by David Mullins, is my selection.

CYCLING: Jess Varnish (26) has stated she was the victim of a "cov-

Speaking for the first time since last April when she accused the governing body of sexism after being dropped from the elite programme, Varnish said she's now "relieved the truth is finally coming out." TENNIS:

Johanna Konta beat Heather Watson in the 'Battle of the Brits' in round two of the Indian Wells tennis tournament. However, GB's trio of Andy Murray, Kyle Edmund, Dan Evans all crashed out of the men's singles early on, Murray against qualifier Vasek Pospisil.

Five-time Grand Slam winner Maria Sharapova will be unranked when she returns to action on April 26 in the Porsche Grand Prix in France after serving her suspension for testing positive for meldonium.

MOTORSPORT:

Sebastian Vettel (Ferrari) was fastest in the final practice session before the F1 season starts later this month in Melbourne.

And sadly, John Surtees, one of the greatest participants in motor-sport and the only man to win both the F1 and MotoGP World titles, has died, aged 83. RIP.

> ICE SKATING: Scot Elise Christie won gold in the world 1,000m and 1,500m speed skating races in Rotterdam.

MARIA SHARAPOVA: Returns unranked after suspension.
