FALSE CLAIMS: Are on the up.

Brit holiday scammers on the rise

By Francesca Souter and Matt Ford

Local hoteliers on the Costa del Sol have been warned of an increase in British tourists looking to score a free holiday.

Some holidaymakers, mainly from the UK, are claimed to be buying over-the-counter diarrhoea medication before faking food poisoning. Once home, they claim compensation from hotels, accusing them of poor food hygiene.

The legislation surrounding holiday sickness tends to support the accuser, putting the onus on the hotels to prove their innocence, according to many in legal circles.

There has been a clear upward trend in false claims made to recover money spent on hotels, with many recuperating the full amount paid. In some cases, compensation even exceeds the original outlay.

The business has not gone unnoticed by commission-hungry British law firms offering 'no win, no fee' assistance to tourists who claim holiday sickness, and there is even a specialised website with details of how to claim.

Food poisoning leads the rankings of complaints, with the range of illnesses that would qualify for compensation including ear infections, acute nausea, or even 'unexplained diseases.'

False allegations are beginning to take their toll on businesses along the Costa del Sol, with all-inclusive hotels bearing the brunt of complaints according to the Costa del Sol Hotel Owners' Association (Aehcos).

Many operators choose to settle immediately, anticipating the legal cost of contention to be prohibitively high since the claims are almost always submitted in the UK.

Aehcos president, Luis Callejon, said: "We at least demand that the complaints be made in Spain so that we can defend ourselves."

The group have already met with British ambassador to Spain, Simon Manley, and according to UK newspapers some ministers have already expressed a commitment to closing the loophole.

Airport pick-me-up

MALAGA airport has opened a new short-stay car park adjacent to the T3 terminal.

This follows criticism over its pick-up and drop-off facilities for passengers.

With 91 places, including several spots for disabled drivers, the new facility is designed to speed up collection of travellers as they exit arrivals.

To further increase efficiency, it is also equipped with three easy-access ticket machines, and users will benefit from a 15 per cent discount in some airport bars and restaurants.

The new car park is located near the taxi rank, bus stops, hire car offices and train station.

Holy cruising

MALAGA received a record 8,300 cruise line passengers yesterday (Wednesday) as three ships docked, with many visitors spending time ashore seeing the splendour of Semana Santa.

Flying high

MALAGA airport has reported a gain of 14 per cent more passengers in the first quarter of the year. This is an increase of over three million travellers to the Costa del Sol.

Just beware

BOTH Casares and Manilva councils are taking part in an awareness campaign to advise visitors to use sun screen especially if light skinned to protect against cancer.

Time for change

By Jay Emeny and Matt Ford

THE Jesus Cautivo brotherhood have requested changes to the Semana Santa timetable after a mass stampede during their Malaga procession.

The march descended into chaos in the early hours of Tuesday after rumours of gunfire and explosions caused hundreds of panicked spectators to charge through the city streets.

The initial cause was a fist fight after residents had placed chairs in a prime spot on Calle Carretaria, a practice which is banned during Holy Week.

When a passer-by complained to a seated woman, her husband jumped up and punched him in the nose.

Witnesses looking on from nearby balconies described how panic quickly broke out, and events took a further turn for the worse after claims of shots being fired and even a runaway car spread throughout the city centre.

CHAOTIC STREETS: At the El Cautivo procession.

Mobile phones littered the ground and children became separated from their parents in the bedlam, with the presence of a police helicopter above the celebrations unintentionally adding to the sense of fear.

A number of people were treated after fainting or suffering panic attacks during the chaos, while two were hospitalised with cuts and bruises.

The El Cautivo procession is one of the biggest events during Holy Week in Malaga, where an effigy of Jesus is carried through the streets, followed by a statue of the Virgin Mary. Ignacio Castillo, head of the brotherhood, said in future "we either change the schedule for El Cautivo or simply disband the procession."

Worried Brits' help us plea

SPANISH lawyers have received a barrage of enquiries from British residents after the triggering of Article 50.

Lawyer Carmen Torres revealed in the last week, she has also seen six cases of worried British citizens pass through her office.

Adolfo Martos Gross, head of Immigration Law at the Malaga Bar Association, explained everything will all depend on whether Brexit negotiations reach a positive agreement between the EU and Spain and the UK.

He predicts over the year, most consultations between Brits and lawyers will be regarding work permits. "Anyone working at the moment hasn't got a problem, but once Brexit is implemented, they may need permission."

26 year sentence for Brit shooter

A COURT in Malaga has sentenced a 44-year-old British man to 26 years in prison for murder.

The jury convicted Darren O'Flaherty of murder, attempted murder, and the illegal possession of a firearm after he shot another man outside a Benalmadena bar in 2010.

The judge ruled that the defendant committed the crimes after getting into a heated argument with his victim and was thrown out of the bar. He then returned carrying a revolver and shot him five times.

O'Flaherty's victim died as a result of severe blood loss just a few minutes later. The accused then went inside and fired shots into the crowd of people at the bar.

The killer evaded capture for several years until he was caught by police in Wales and extradited to Spain.

Budget bonanza

LOW cost airline Ryanair has planned 50 routes in and out of Malaga during the winter.

This represents the highest volume of flights the company has ever scheduled during the low season.

According to Ryanair Sales and Marketing Manager for Spain and Portugal, Jose Espartero, this year's plans concentrate on the German market, with new routes to Prague, Amsterdam, Bremen, Dortmund, Frankfurt, Santander and the Polish city of Wroclaw.

The airline will have 150 flights per week and Espartero said that "this growth in the low season will see almost 4.4 million passengers travel to and from Malaga airport."

Record sales have been reported for flights this summer and the new winter destinations will allow Ryanair to increase the number of passengers they serve, as well as contributing to tourism and employment in Malaga and the Costa del Sol.

EASTER weekend is set to be a cracker weather-wise, with temperatures predicted to soar according to national weather agency AEMET.

SPANISH FACTS OF LIFE...9

TAKE OFF AND LANDING... With more than 230 million passengers in 2016, Spanish airports are booming, and record-breaking numbers of tourists are expected to fly to or from the mainland and islands this year.

SPANISH AIRPORTS: Registered 2m flights last year.

Spain's jet set

A RECORD number of international visitors flew into Spain during 2016, and more than 80 per cent touched down at one of operator AENA's 46 airports.

Last year 75.6 million tourists visited the country, with 60.6 million travelling by plane.

Spain remains among the world's top holiday destinations for UK travellers, as more than 17.8 million holidaymakers arrived last year, with 11.4 million from France and 11.2 million from Germany comprising the three key markets.

Spanish airports registered two million flights last year, a 7.5 per cent rise on 2015, and the total volume of passengers increased by 11 per cent compared to the previous 12 months.

Madrid and Barcelona, historically Spain's rival cities, remain the busiest airports and intercontinental hubs. Adolfo Suarez Madrid-Barajas and Barcelona-El Prat airports are ranked fifth and sixth in the EU in terms of passenger numbers, behind London's Heathrow, Charles de Gaulle in Paris, Schiphol in Amsterdam, and Germany's Frankfurt Airport.

In Spain, airports serving popular holiday destinations make up the remainder of the 'Top 10' of the country's busiest commercial airfields, including Palma de Mallorca, Malaga, Alicante, Gran Canaria, Tenerife South, Ibiza, Lanzarote and Valencia.

Ghost in the airport machine

BUDGET carrier Ryanair came to the rescue of much-maligned Castellon Airport when it began flying from Stansted and Bristol to the Valencian destination in September 2015.

Officially opened four years earlier, the facility cost more than €150 million to build. Until scheduled Ryanair flights arrived, Castellon's runways were used only by flights chartered by football team Villarreal to travel to away matches.

Ciudad Real airport, located 235km south of Madrid, cost more than €1 billion to build and was designed to process 2.5 million passengers a year.

CASTELLON AIRPORT: It is hoped a sale comes to fruition.

Seen as a white elephant, it opened in 2008 but its independent operator went bust and it shut down in 2012. Spanish budget carrier Vueling was the last airline to use the runway and it is hoped a potential €56 million sale, approved almost a year ago, eventually comes to fruition.

even hotter, with highs of over 30°C throughout much of the province exceeding the June average of 28°C.

Need for speed

NATIONAL POLICE officers have seized 1.3kg of speed at an apartment in Fuengirola.

A 34-year-old Spanish man has been arrested for the alleged crime of drugs trafficking.

The investigation was launched after police received information from neighbours who suspected that drugs had entered the building.

The strong smell of chemicals emanating from the interior of the apartment tipped off investigators, who located several bags of the drug inside a large container in the detainee's bedroom.

Hand of God

AS crowds watched the procession organised by Brotherhood of the Holy Christ of the True Cross in Marbella an unfortunate accident occurred.

The statue of Christ is flanked by two characters, one a Roman soldier and it was this statue that suddenly lost an arm which fell off and injured one of the 'costaleros' carrying the statue.

The young man who was slightly injured was taken to the Holy Christ Chapel where he was attended by paramedics whilst the procession continued.

Bonnie and Clyde behind bars

NATIONAL POLICE officers have arrested two people for their alleged participation in an armed robbery.

A man and women in their 30's broke into a Marbella home armed with a gun. They gagged and tied up the owners, intimidating and manipulating them into opening their safe. They then stole €2,300 in cash, several watches, rings and earrings, as well as multiple high-end mobile phones.

The search for the criminals began when the victims called police to report the violent robbery. They were arrested a few hours later on charges of robbery with violence and intimidation, threats, trespassing and illicit possession of weapons.

At the time of the arrest, officers found money and several pieces of jewellery from the robbery. When the woman's home was searched, they also found 112 grams of cannabis, adding drug trafficking to her list of charges.

The pistol was later found on the roof of the building where the robbery took place, and according to a police statement, the man

€ 690 million property fraud

by Francesca Souter

FOLLOWING last week's raid of his Puerto Banus home, it has been revealed that Rifaat al-Assad did use members of his family to conceal his assets in Spain.

The judge, who based his investigation on evidence gleaned from French authorities, wiretaps, and data collected in Spain, has accused the Syrian businessman of criminal organisation, money laundering, and embezzlement.

Seven of al-Assad's sons, two of his wives, and two daughters-in-law were used to hide financial aspects of his businesses and 503 properties in Spain, valued at €690 million.

After his brother, former Syrian president Hafez al-Assad, gave him €300 million from the public treasury to leave Syria in 1988, Rifaat took up residence in France and Spain.

He used the illicitly-appropriated resources to make investments in France, the UK, and on the Costa del Sol. That year alone he used his family to acquire 82 properties valued at €43 million, the first of which occupies around a third of Benahavis.

According to the judge, he acquired a further 335 properties between 1997 and 1998, most of them in the luxury complexes of Benabola and Gray d'Albion in Puerto Banus.

His relatives, along with Firas al-Assad, a Tunisian woman, and Spaniard Manuel Flores, are linked to a network of 34 businesses Rifaat used in Spain.

The plot runs even deeper, the judge identifying 32 companies belonging to al-Assad in Panama, five of which are still active, as well as accounts in Gibraltar which he used to support his children, who depend almost exclusively on him.

The investigation continues.

is the number of properties that Rifaat al-Assad acquired between 1997 and 1998.

ETA finally disarms for all

WHILE Britain suffered the attacks of the IRA, around 800 deaths in Spain have been caused by Basque terrorist group ETA.

Over a period of 40 years the organisation was also believed to have injured thousands of people and whilst it initially attacked politicians and police officers, it soon transferred its attacks to areas where tourists flocked.

In the same way that Tunisia and Turkey have lost thousands of visitors due to recent Daesh activity, Spain saw similar losses when the ETA attacks were at their height.

The past few years have seen a major softening of the position of ETA, brought about in part by the success that French and Spanish police have had in arresting militant members. In 2011, it declared a permanent truce with Spain, but the group still maintained its arms.

However, the group has now publicly confirmed that it has 'disarmed,' so at least there is one piece of positive news in what continues to be a world still suffering from conflict between groups with differing ideals and aims.

MARBELLA City Council is putting an end to bullfights in the Plaza de Toros.

The bullring ceased to be profitable a few years ago, when the protests against bullfighting came to a head and it was banned from terrestrial television.

The council is proposing that the arena becomes a 'plaza for all,' hoping that it will be host to 'all types of events' (except for bullfighting), where show promoters will assume the costs.

The site will be modernised

End of an era with a budget of €125,000, transforming the ring into a new cultural space. In fact, according to councillor for Tourism Miguel Luna, the Plaza de Marbella has already booked a summer series of concerts.

However, before this can happen, the city council must reach an agreement with El Toro SL, the group who currently run the bullring. Councillor for Finance,

Manuel Osorio, has said that, "The Finance delegation is preparing a document which will present the proposed figure we are willing to pay for the takeover."

With the reacquisition of the Plaza de Toros, Marbella bids farewell to an era where bullfights were one of the biggest tourist attractions during the summer.

The bullring in Puerto Banus closed its doors to bullfighting in 2000, but has been disused since it held the final of the Davis Cup in 2009. After a last concert in 2010, its owners, Construcciones Salamanca, put it up for sale.

Marbella City Council tried to reopen the Plaza de Puerto Banus with concerts last summer, but firefighters and technicians found the facilities to be in no fit state for use and ruled out its reopening.

Hillside homicide

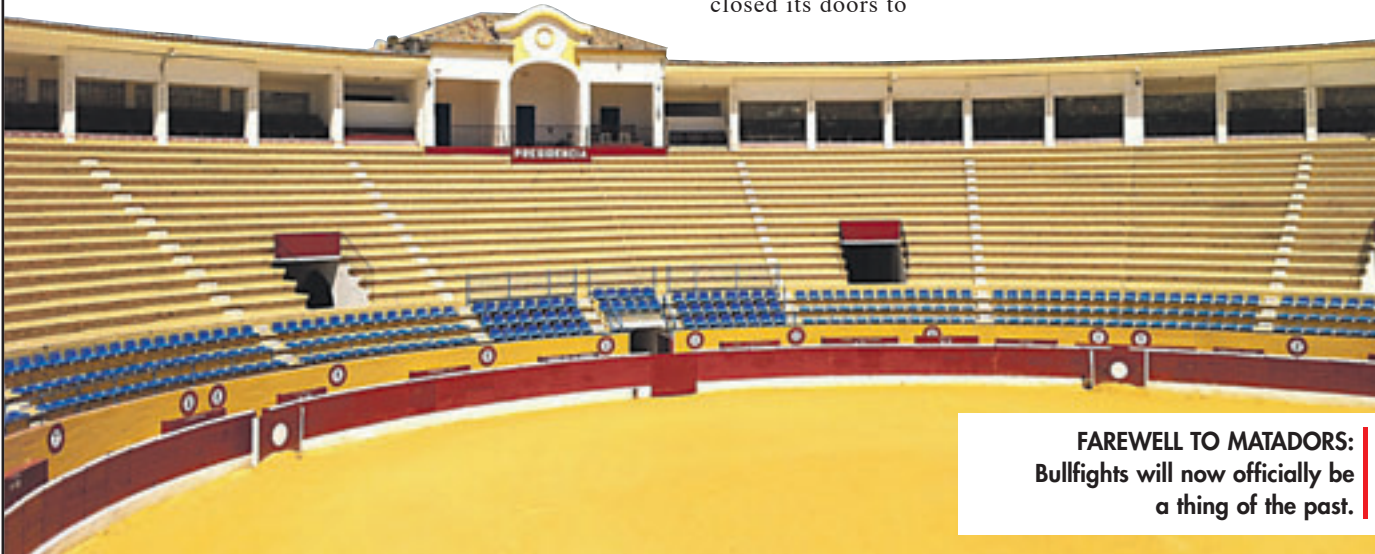

A 40-YEAR-OLD man has been arrested by the Guardia Civil for the murder of his mother.

The detainee allegedly confessed his guilt in front of the judge at a court in Archidona, Malaga, and has been sentenced to time in prison.

Police were called to a domestic disturbance on Saturday April 8, where they discovered a woman's body.

Investigators concluded that she had died from a blow to the head and the son became the main suspect.

It is alleged that the man may suffer from mental problems which led him to take the life of his own mother.

Railway strikes

RAIL workers in Malaga have called for nine days of strikes spread out over April and May, after failed negotiations with management over reductions in working hours and wages.

Trail blazer

THE Provincial Council of Malaga has decided to promote the Mozarabic Way, a trail which runs 100km to the border with Cordoba. Coloured signposts will be erected to create long and short distance routes.

Sales boom

PROPERTY sales in Malaga are at their highest for eight years. It has been revealed that January and February saw a 10.5 per cent increase on last year.

Aid money

THE Regional Council has authorised payments totalling €14.1 million to aid sheep and goat farmers. The money will benefit a total of 5,500 ranchers with farms all over Andalucia.

Cameras set to catch beltless drivers

By Francesca Souter

THE Department of Transportation (DGT) has placed 18 cameras on Malaga's roads in order to police the use of seatbelts.

For the first two months, dubbed the 'awareness phase,' offenders will not be punished. Instead, they will receive a letter signed by the Director of Traffic, Gregorio Serrano, which informs them of the day, time, and place where the driver was caught.

The letter will also remind them that every year 180 people die on the roads because they didn't wear a seatbelt.

The aim is to ensure that all drivers are protected by a belt, and when the awareness phase ends, those caught without one will face a €200 fine and three points on their licence.

The new cameras complement the roadside surveillance already conducted by the Guardia Civil and together they aim to ensure that "no person dies or is injured by not wearing a seat belt."

Serrano has explained that the department will "start by raising awareness, as it is not the intention of the DGT to make money, but to save lives."

In 2015, a total of 159 drivers that died on the roads were not wearing a seatbelt, and of those hospitalised 10 per cent were unprotected.

According to Serrano, this data reflects "the responsibility all drivers have to ensure that their passengers are aware that a seatbelt is the cheapest life insurance we have when on the road."

The 18 cameras are joining a network of 225 located all over Spain.

French and Portuguese police to patrol Holy Week on Costa del Sol

FRENCH and Portuguese Police will work with the Spanish National Police during Holy Week on the Costa del Sol from Sunday April 9 – Saturday April 15 in order to provide extra protection and guidance to tourists.

As part of the 'European police stations' project under the European Union's Prüm convention, this will be reciprocated, with 31 Spanish Police officers being transferred to various French and Portuguese police stations to assist Spanish tourists between April and September.

The objective of this scheme is to offer the tourist a better service, with police who speak their language and are aware of the laws of both countries, while strengthening cross-border security.

The initiative also involves other European countries including Italy, Belgium, Germany, Luxembourg and the Netherlands.

The Prüm Convention is a treaty which was signed in May 2005 by Austria, Belgium, France, Germany, Luxembourg, the Netherlands and Spain in the town of Prüm in Germany.

It is open to all members of the European Union; 14 of which are currently members. The treaty is based on a 2003 initiative by then German Minister Otto Schily.

Big buying

HOME FAIR Costa del Sol director, Ives Sirejacob, has revealed that the real estate market is improving, with the average amount spent by foreigners buying a second home on the coast exceeding €460,000.

Safe week

TORREMOLINOS has employed rescue services along its seven kilometres of coastline for the first time during Semana Santa. A team including 16 lifeguards are working between 11am and 7pm until April 16.

Burn out

A CAR caused a big scare when it burnt out at a petrol station in Malaga. Despite its proximity to the fuel tanks, no other damages occurred and fire-fighters tackled the blaze quickly.

IPTV bandits arrested

THE National Police have busted one of the largest illegal distributors of internet based television (IPTV) in Europe.

The joint operation, which involved Europol, Eurojust and the Office of the Special Prosecutor against Computer Crime, has resulted in the arrest of eight people in Spain and Bulgaria and follows similar cases in 2016 and February this year.

The defendants were responsible for the illegal distribution of over 1,000 channels through two Internet Service Providers (ISP).

The investigation began after a representative of the English Premier League accused a Danish citizen based in Spain of illegally providing customers with football matches from services including Sky and BT Sport.

It is alleged that the man owns one of the biggest ISPs in Malaga, through which he encrypted a television signal which he distributed to thousands of customers throughout the EU.

Investigators discovered the second ISP, owned by the Dane and his criminal organisation, in the Bulgarian city of Silistra. This signal provided even more coverage for the illegal IPTV and was continuously connected to the ISP in Malaga.

Both of these Internet service providers followed the same approach. They were legally established companies that took advantage of their coverage to carry out the crime, and enjoyed great prestige in the world of illegal television.

During 12 simultaneous raids on buildings in Spain and Bulgaria, investigators disconnected and seized the ISPs involved in the operation, cutting off all access to illegal platforms.

Al-Thani unlikely to win back port

THE Minister of Development from the Andalusian Regional Council, Felipe Lopez, is confident that Sheikh Al-Thani will lose the chance to bid again for the Port of La Bajadilla.

The Qatari has appealed to the Andalusian Supreme Court of Justice for the chance to continue his expansion project in the Marbella port.

Lopez cites Al-Thani's proven neglect of the area as evidence to support his opinion that it is not in the general interest of the city to allow the Sheikh to resume.

He is convinced that the next concession will go to a company "with enough interest to develop a project which will prosper and attract investors to the city."

The city council is eager to restart development at La Bajadilla, believing that the opportunities for employment, prosperity, and a boost to the local economy cannot be missed.

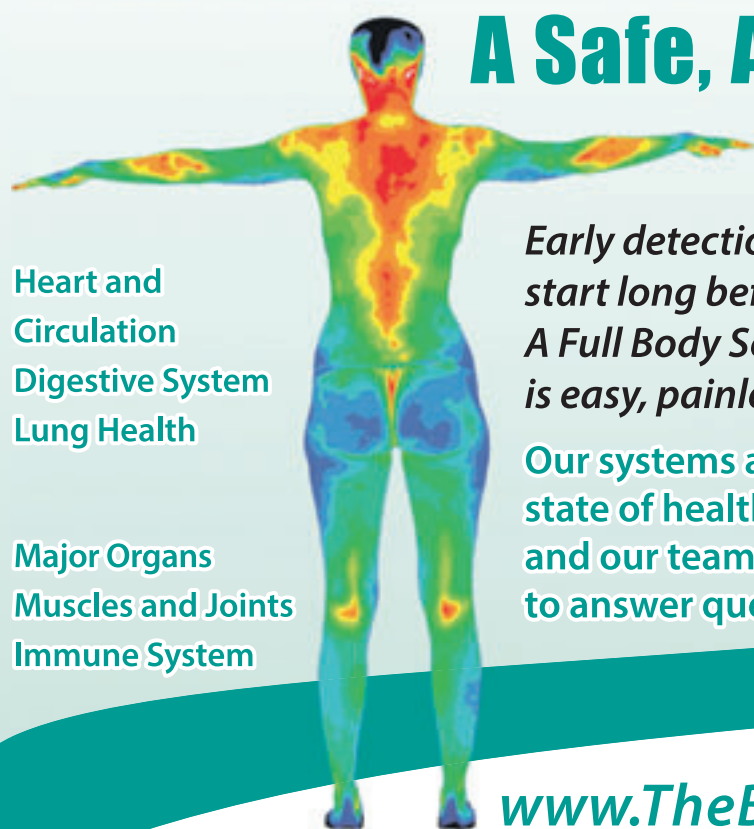

Marbella mayor Jose Bernal has said that the expansion of the port should be executed as soon as possible, but that they are waiting for the current legal situation to be resolved.

Bernal stated that Al-Thani breached "the terms surrounding the project," which gave the board no choice but to rescind the concession after giving him many opportunities to make things right.

AFTER years of complaints by residents surrounding the Guadalhorce River, action is being taken to rid the area of mosquitoes.

Malaga City Council has come up with a definitive solution to problems caused by the 'aedes caspius' mosquitoes, a variety which is larger and much more aggressive than its common brother.

Bug off mossies

After the Ministry of Environment refused to co-finance an ambitious €96,600 plan, the local government is undertaking a more modest method costing €21,600.

Pest control officers are inspecting 29 control points every week along the Guadalhorce, searching for larvae. The areas in which mosquitoes have been most prevalent in previous years have already been fumigated, and insecticides will now be applied three times a week.

Once every 15 days, the insecticide will be sprayed over the surrounding vegetation and cane fields which serve as shelter for the mosquitoes.

Pest control has not found any larvae over the last week at any of the control points inspected; therefore, within a fortnight it is possible that there will be no adult mosquitoes in the area.

The plan should be fully implemented at the beginning of May once a deal with specialised company Athisa has been formalised.

Malaga City Council has stressed that it will not leave residents to suffer during the summer, insisting a close eye will be kept on the river. The insecticides they propose to use are not harmful to any other species and will not entirely eradicate the mosquitoes.

MOSQUIT-NO: Council are making their best efforts to reduce mosquito population.

Sharp rise in immigrant rescues

A TOTAL of 436 immigrants have been rescued from waters along the coast in the first three months of 2017.

The figure accounts for more than half of the total number of people located in boats during 2016. Miguel Briones, a subdelegate of the government in Malaga, noted that the sharp increase in illegal immigration and number of vessels intercepted is “bringing us closer to figures from years ago.”

Of the total rescued over the last three months, 390 are men, 35 are women and 11 are minors. Briones has indicated that these figures should make us reflect on the reasons why these people risk their lives to come to Spain.

Maritime Rescue has been transferring the travellers to the shore, where healthcare is provided before they are transported to the Centre for Internment of Foreigners (CIE) or a non-governmental organisation, depending on the circumstances.

Briones explained that the government is in talks with the Port Authority, as well as representatives from the National Police and the Guardia Civil, to create a safe space in the port at Malaga where immigrants can be cared for with greater dignity.

A hangar has been suggested, along with a few other facilities which “seem appropriate” and now Briones is in talks to see how the port can finance the adaptation of these buildings.

Ideally, it will be done with funds from Frontex, the European border and coast guard agency, “without neglecting to ask the Port Authority to create another space for non-governmental organisations..”

Portuguese students wreck hotel

A GROUP of 800 students has caused serious damage to the Pueblo Camino Real Hotel during a week-long stay.

The youths arrived at the Torre molinos hotel on Sunday April 2 and proceeded to make life hell for the staff. At one point, Local Police were called in to stop a party, after the group hired a DJ to play by the pool without permission.

However, the real shock came on Saturday April 8, when the students were due to return home. It is alleged that they had shattered tiles, thrown mattresses out of the windows, emptied fire extinguishers, urinated in the hallways, and even threw a television into a bath.

Management were quick to contact the National Police who have opened an investigation into the incidents. At the moment, no one has been detained and the group are already back in Portugal.

It is estimated that the damage will cost the hotel thousands of Euros.

Fruit machine thieves caught

NATIONAL POLICE officers have detained eight people accused of 13 robberies across Spain.

According to the Spanish Home Office, those arrested were part of a roaming criminal group specialising in robbing vending and fruit machines.

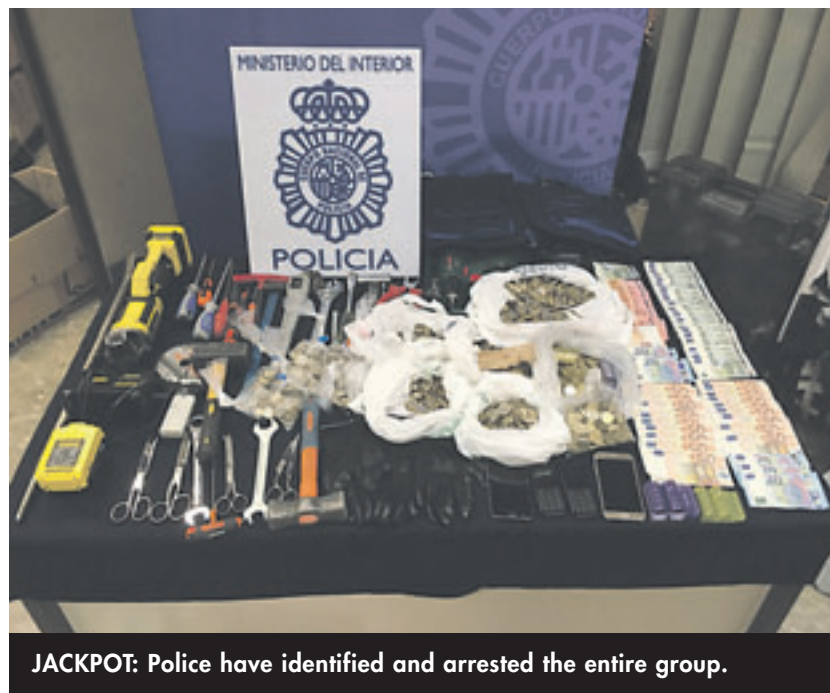

The group were most prolific in Malaga, Barcelona, Leon, Murcia, Valencia, A Coruña and Lugo.

Organised and structured, the members distributed functions amongst themselves. Some were in charge of logistics for travel and lodging, others had the mission to collect stolen effects and transfer them to Madrid, others sold stolen items and some committed the thefts.

The network also used third parties separate to their organisation to rent vehicles and homes on their behalf, thus avoiding potential identification.

The investigation has been ongoing since July 2016, when police detected a group of criminals in Malaga who specialised in the robbery and selling of vending and entertainment machines, breaking into commercial vehicles and taking money, cigarettes, and anything else being transported.

From that moment on, agents collected evidence against members of the group, until December 2016 when the leader was identified and arrested in Malaga.

The organisation had made €45,000 in cash from their illicit activities. Subsequently, the remaining members were identified and detained between February and April.

The investigation was carried out by police across the country, involving officers in Benalmadena, Murcia and Getafe.

Burglars busted

THE National Police have arrested 10 people aged between 23 and 55 in Santa Pola, Alicante.

The group is allegedly involved in the theft of homes and vehicles, employing the use of high tech electronic devices which captured security codes and left no trace of the thieves.

Officers have so far linked 22 robberies across Andalucia, including Malaga, to the detainees. The investigation began in September 2016 and arrests were carried out in two phases, starting with seven people of Russian and Ukrainian origin, and finishing at the end of March with three men who committed crimes in Alicante and Murcia.

Blow to Andalucian marihuana traffic

AN operation against large-scale drug trafficking in Spain has culminated in the arrests of 39 people in Malaga, Sevilla, Granada and Cadiz.

The group is accused of cultivating, processing and preparing marihuana for sale and consumption throughout Europe.

National Police uncovered a total of 66 kilos of marihuana, 2,267 cannabis plants, and €36,215 in cash.

The investigation began in April last year when a gang engaged in drugs trafficking was identified in Torremolinos. The group, led by a Dutch man, was the intermediary between producers and suppliers.

The traffickers were distributing marihuana to several European countries, with contacts in Germany, Holland and the UK.

The police took down the network in three phases, starting with a small group of sellers in January when they arrested nine people.

They then went on to dismantle three indoor greenhouses in Herrera and Sevilla in February, seizing €25,265 in cash, 667 cannabis plants, and 25 kilos of marihuana packaged ready to be sold.

The investigation centred on those engaged in the cultivation of marihuana and officers were able to identify members of the entire network.

The final phase was put into action when officers learned that criminals, settled in Malaga and Granada, had contacts with those already arrested in Sevilla. Police established that this network had all the necessary infrastructure to carry out the illegal activity.

After a year of investigating, police believe that these final arrests will put an end to this criminal organisation in Andalusia.

IN DEMAND: Balconies fetch extortionate prices throughout Semana Santa.

The price of devotion

DEMAND for balconies in Malaga during Semana Santa has triggered prices of €700 per day.

A study conducted by Spotahome, an online platform for non-holiday rental bookings, showed that Malaga is one of the most expensive cities in Spain to watch the processions.

Balcony prices range from €200 to €700 per day, with those on the Plaza de la Constitucion and Calle Granada the priciest and most popular in the city.

The business of renting balconies, particularly those along the official routes, has become increasingly popular over the years.

Ash Wednesday and Maundy Thursday see a spike in demand for these coveted viewing spots, with people vying for the chance to see the processions.

Website Mybalcony has advertised balconies in the Plaza de la Constitucion which fetch €3,300 for nine days, offering the optional extra of private catering.

Despite the steep prices in Malaga, it is Sevilla which holds the record. During the height of Semana Santa, the price of renting balconies can easily reach €7,000 per week in the area of Campana.

Audit uncovers a lack of control

A RECENT audit of the Torremolinos Conference Centre has uncovered deficiencies, and breaches of the law.

The report analysed the period between January and October of last year, although auditors emphasise the lack of information provided by the now defunct municipal society.

The centre has not fulfilled its obligation to register a book of records, demonstrating a 'lack of control of expenses,' and investigators found two suspected illegal contracts signed in 2016.

A former manager, dismissed in June of 2016 after 17 years in the job, was compensated with €37,900 and received a daily allowance of €426 last year, without any supporting documentation. Although the report only analyses the first 10 months of 2016, many of the weaknesses and shortcomings detected are trailing from years ago.

Auditors have advised that the venue is crying out for an internal administrative system which can monitor its budget, in order to keep payments and expenses up to date. They have also recommended 'greater discipline of access to archives' to facilitate their search for information.

A study must now be carried out to optimise the administrative process as the centre currently 'has no control' of expenses.

The three main events at the venue in 2016 yielded around €45,000 of losses. Torremolinos Council gives them a budget of almost €1.5 million each year, and the new management faces the challenge of transforming the centre into a profitable venue for conferences and exhibitions on the Costa del Sol.

CORRUPT: Auditors found evidence of gross mismanagement.

KAMAGRA: The cheap Viagra alternative may not be all it seems.

Cheap Viagra imitator banned

BY far the best-known drug for treating erectile dysfunction is Viagra. The commercialisation of its active ingredient sildenafil citrate is authorised by the Spanish Agency of Medicines and Sanitary Products, but its price doesn't make it suitable for all budgets.

At €85 for four pills, a cheaper alternative has come onto the market. 'Kamagra' originates in India and its sale is prohibited in Spain.

Despite this, sports nutrition centres, gyms, sex shops, and private websites have become the main distributors of this unauthorised medicine in Spain.

Guardia Civil officers in Malaga have been investigating illegal sellers who are now facing fines of between €30,000 and €60,000.

Over the past year, investigations have led to the seizure of around 500 doses of the product during operations in Torremolinos, Fuengirola, Marbella and San Pedro de Alcantara.

Like Viagra, Kamagra promises to treat erectile dysfunction, but in comparison, it sells for just €7 per pill. Dealers purchase each pill for €1, so this relatively simple business has a high profit margin.

Sellers are often aged between 22 and 32, using the business to earn extra money, and purchasers are predominantly young men involved in bodybuilding, where the excessive consumption of anabolic steroids has led to erectile dysfunction.

The dangerous and uncontrolled practice of selling so-called 'natural remedies,' usually of Indian or Asian origin, is now the focus of multiple investigations.

Some ingredients do not appear on any packaging, and authorities are warning consumers that they may not be fully aware of what they are ingesting.

Boxer attacked by woman

HAVING made the move to Marbella earlier this year boxer Adam Machaj was simply looking to train in the sun for future fights.

What he didn't expect was to be attacked by a 30-year-old English woman, originally from his home county of Lancashire and now resident in Estepona.

“ Boxer stayed cool while woman loses hers in a fit of rage. ”

ADAM MACHAJ: Strong in mind as well as body.

A close friend of Adam has told Euro Weekly News that this woman, who he had met socially on a couple of occasions allegedly attacked him after tracing him to his current home where, she confronted him on the street, first of all trying to push a key into his eye.

Following up from this,

she is said to have slapped him and then tried to stab him with a knife and when the 6 foot 8 inch, 120 kilo boxer known as the 'Heat Seeker' backed away, vowing not to touch a woman, she attacked his car doing an estimated €3,000 of damage whilst egging him on to hit her, which he filmed. The woman involved is now reportedly being sought by officers from the Guardia Civil but Adam confirmed that he is continuing to train even though he was shaken by what happened, but has to get ready for his May 19 televised fight.

We take the 'vice' out of 'advice'.

THERE ARE DIFFERENT LEVELS of quality of advice. If this were judged in divisions, we at The Spectrum IFA Group believe that we are in the Premier League.

In relation to financial products offered by brokers and institutions to clients, far too often, we hear sad stories where a client has been misled.

The problem areas are when they are given no written disclosure of charges; the pros and cons involved; when they are sold funds only to earn additional commissions for the adviser; or sold funds that are clearly unsuitable for that individual.

So how are we different to other financial planning advisers?

- We explain everything to our clients, including ALL the charges.
- We do not recommend high risk products and only deal with funds that can be traded daily.
- We do not take commissions which are offered by fund managers. If these are payable, they go back into the client's plan.

■ We are qualified to give certain types of advice but we do not pretend to be what we are not.

■ We are truly independent. We have spent many years assessing and reassessing who we deal with. We do not hunt for companies and their products. They come to us.

■ We do not charge fees where commission is payable.

■ We have developed a family environment within The Spectrum IFA Group and we do not allow anyone to join the firm who could jeopardise that situation.

Of course, there are other good firms out there but we believe we are the best.

HUGE HAUL: Police seized drugs worth €1.3 million.

Police bust drugs traffickers

POLICE have arrested seven alleged members of a drug trafficking organisation in Malaga.

The detainees were found at an apartment in Teatinos, in possession of 13kg of ecstasy and 12kg of cocaine with a street value of €1.3 million.

Officers had long suspected that the group were using the building as a drug store. They found the stash hidden between a discreet sofa bed and a false ceiling.

The investigation identified the leader of the gang as being a young man of 28, resident in Puerto de la Torre. Police have added the illegal possession of weapons to his charges, after they found a shot gun and a 9mm caliber pistol, both equipped with ammunition, in a vehicle and a storage room he owned.

The young man was one of seven detainees, six men and a woman between the ages of 28 and 47, in a police operation which searched several Malaga houses over the last month.

In addition to the weapons and 25kg of drugs, officers seized €36,890 in cash, a hydraulic press, seven precision scales, eight vehicles, 28 mobile phones, and a variety of dosing tools for the narcotics.

Police have said that each of those arrested had a different role within the group, and all seven have been jailed on accusations of crimes against public health and belonging to a criminal organisation.

Yawning yachtsman drifts 100 miles from Marbella to Cadiz

A BRITISH sailor who fell asleep in Marbella woke up stranded 100 miles away on Thursday morning, April 6.

The 65-year-old was rescued after his yacht ran aground on rocks next to San Sebastian Castle just off Cadiz city.

Having fallen asleep on the boat when it was still docked in Marbella, the man awoke to discover that the tide and strong winds had dragged through the strait of Gibraltar as he continued to sleep inside.

Upon waking, the man panicked and began to sound the boat's siren. According to the police, council workers cleaning on the beach noticed the boat in distress and contacted the emergency services who sent out a rescue party.

The sailor was brought ashore by local firefighters and Maritime Rescue, and when asked if he wanted to go to hospital, answered that he only wanted to find a hotel where he could rest.

As for his vessel, the coastguard had to wait for the tide to rise before they could determine the extent of the damage

FROM MARBELLA WITH LOVE: The man travelled 100 miles down the coast.

Hoteliers plead with council

HOTELIERS in Malaga are demanding extra rubbish collections over Easter.

The businessmen have asked the city council to double the collections during Semana Santa to avoid waste stacked against containers in the city centre.

Managers from Malaga's Association of Hoteliers, Mahos, fear that the increased activity at bars and restaurants has been overlooked by the council.

From Wednesday at 12 on wards there is a steady increase in visitors to the city, and the group is concerned about the negative image created by rubbish in the streets as the processions take place.

Mahos president, Jesus Sanchez, believes that waste collection lorries should pass by two or three times a day on the busiest streets.

Sanchez has stressed that the group has been informing the council of the issues surrounding excess waste, but are yet to see any changes in services for Semana Santa.

'Starliter' recruitment in Marbella

AS plans progress for the sixth Starlite festival, the organisation will shortly be interviewing potential staff.

Interviews will be held over four days in the Marbella Congreso Palace between April 25 and 28 but those interested will need to register for an interview in one of three categories in advance at <https://empleo.landings.jobandtalent.com/starlitemarbella/>

So if you want to become a 'Starliter,' are available in July and August and meet employment criteria, now is the chance to make your interest known.

Risk to the environment on Marbella Beach

THE campaigning group ProDunas is complaining about the Marbella council's apparent lack of interest in many sand dunes and beaches in the municipality.

This Association in Defence of the Environment has noted that little has been done in certain areas to remedy problems which arose during the winter storms and have highlighted the Real de Zaragoza beach in particular.

According to the group, a stretch of some 300 metres has seen a loss of two metres in height which has resulted in the exposure of a sanitation pipe which could easily be broken and cause pollution especially if any heavy vehicle should drive over it.

One solution they suggest is to send in diggers to recover sand that was blown into the sea but they stress that this is an important matter that needs the urgent attention of the council.

Possible return of the blue passport by 2019

BREXIT PAGE

By John Smith

THE current contract to print British passports expires in 2019 and many hope that the new tender will require a return to a blue cover.

Reports suggest that it could cost up to £500 million (€575 million) to redesign the passport, but it is more likely that this will be the anticipated total cost of the production of up to six million passports a year during the life of the 10-year contract.

On the side of the Brexiteers, MP Andrew Rosindell MP is quoted as saying "The humiliation of having a pink European Union passport will now soon be over," whilst Jeremy Corbyn suggested that "The real source of humiliation is a government worrying about the colour of our passports while a social care and NHS crisis rages."

Knowing of the need to produce new passports, design magazine Dezeen sponsored an unofficial competition to design a new version and from hundreds of entries, a short list of nine has been produced from which one will be chosen as winner.

None of the chosen designs are likely to appeal to those who are looking for a return to the old style, but in fairness they may well be somewhat tongue in cheek, especially the FUK-D version.

One side effect of membership however is that under EU rules, any tender of this type has to be advertised within the European Union and a situation could arise that the return to the traditional blue passport could see the contract going to a security printer possibly based in France, Holland or Spain.

Whatever the decision, it seems unlikely however that holders of the red passport which carries the wording European Union on the cover will have to trade them in until they expire.

Proposed restriction on migration

A PRO-BREXIT group supported by many Tory back-benchers wants to heavily restrict entry to Britain for five years.

A report from Leave Means Leave and written by independent MEP Steven Woolfe who left UKIP because of a physical clash with a colleague calls for the restriction to be aimed at unskilled migrants.

His concept is that by reducing immigration from 273,000 to 50,000 per year and accepting mainly those who had been offered a job with a minimum £35,000 (€40,000) salary, had passed an English language test, signed a five-year private health insurance contract and had savings in the bank would strengthen the economy.

He would however allow a certain number of unskilled workers into Britain on a temporary basis to fill the numerous roles that still have to be undertaken in different areas of the economy.

Poets preserved in the garden

ESTEPONA Council has created a 'Garden of Andalusian Poets' as part of a project to improve the town centre.

Mayor Jose Maria Garcia Urbano inaugurated the new exhibition on Friday April 7, alongside poet and essayist Carlos Muricano, one of the 12 artists to be found in the garden.

Twelve bronze busts have been installed in the garden by sculptor Elena Lucas. The busts depict famous Andalus poets like Leopoldo de Luis, Alfonso Canales, and Antonio Hernandez. Visitors will also be able to read verses from Nobel Prize in Literature winner Juan Ramon Jimenez.

The initiative, celebrating regional artists, is unique in Spain. Visitors are invited to rest and reflect in the garden, surrounded by Andalusian charm.

To make it as aesthetically pleasing as possible, the council has incorporated different coloured stones into the pavement, and lined the walls with colourful flower pots filled with bougainvillea, geraniums and jasmine.

A poetry route is also being developed through the old town, with 25 poems already scattered around the corners, squares and streets.

In addition to this poetry route, the council will continue to promote the route of artistic murals, which aims to convert the facades of buildings into large, beautiful canvases, celebrating local talent.

OAK LAND FURNITURE

Since opening our first Spanish store in 2016, we have fully trialled and tested all media avenues to reach out to Expats locally, extensively gauging not only sales but brand awareness to our operation.

Whilst there was a lot of hype from many in media over performance, our statistics clearly demonstrated that the EWN media group totally outperformed all others in producing sales and making the public aware that our brand and products had arrived in Spain.

Not only does the EWN family produce a title that delivers each and every week great foot flow to our San Pedro store, it also penetrates deeply across many Spanish regions ensuring our clients are aware of our full delivery service and the access of our Spanish website.

Furthermore as the company's advertising director, I have found the EWN fully accessible at all times and very helpful in planning with us our marketing adventures throughout Spain. They work not just as another newspaper title but as part of our team.

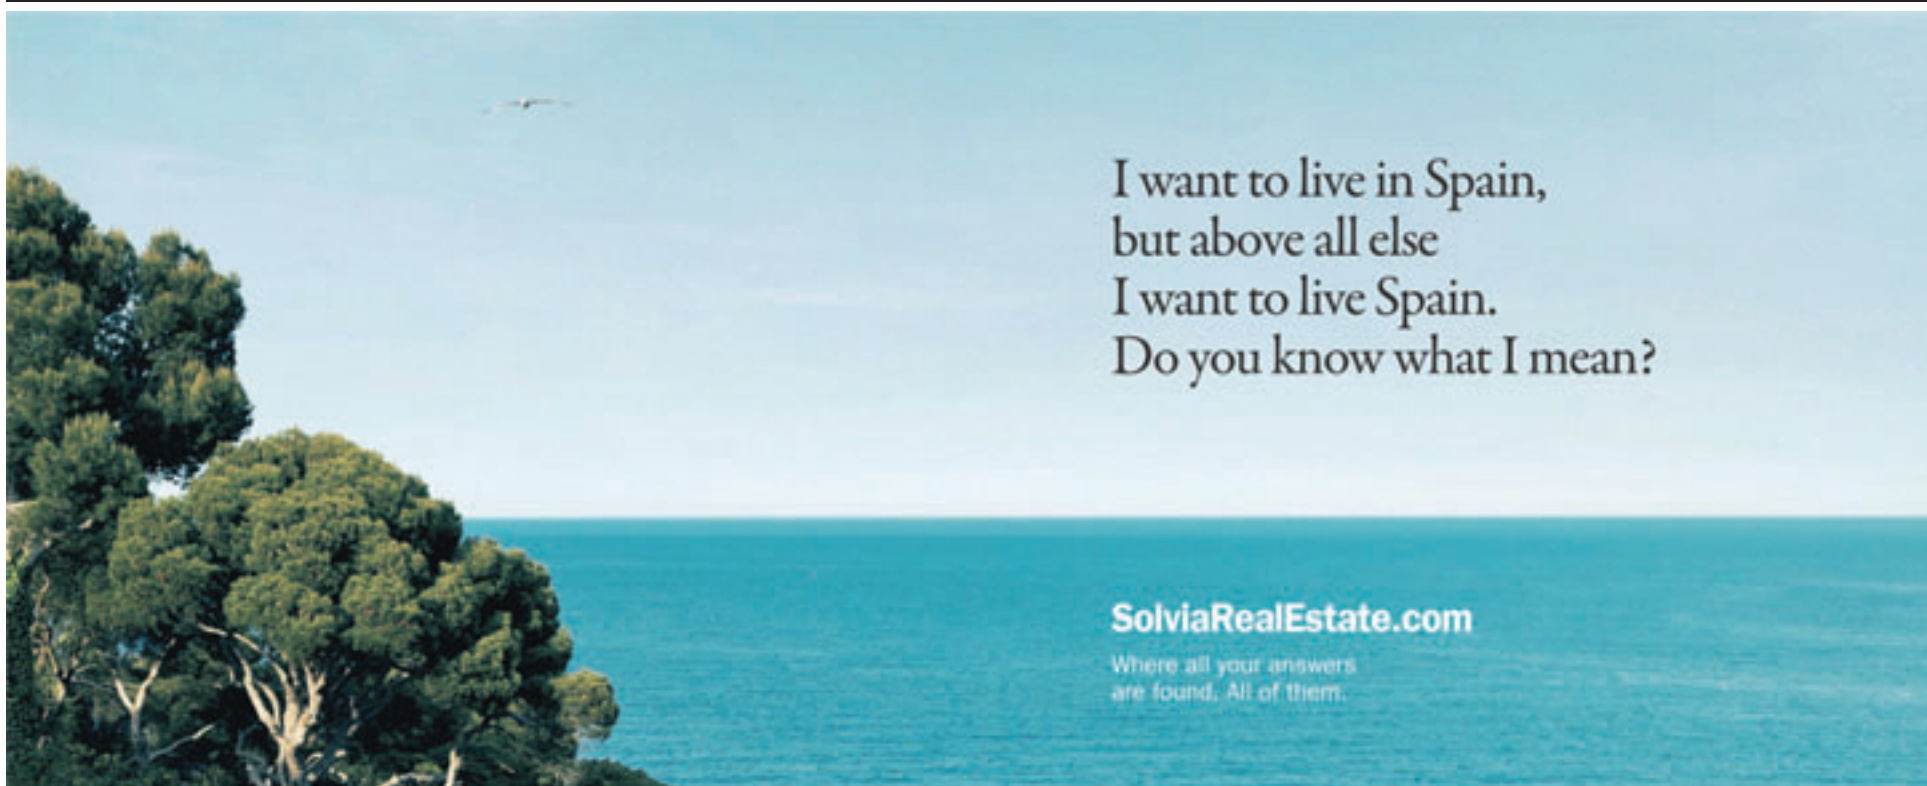

Operating global marketing as we continue to expand our portfolio, I can hand-on-heart state that the service, professionalism and most importantly return on investment has been the finest in Spain.

The EWN family make my life easy and for that Oak Land Furniture is most grateful to Michel, Steven and all members of the large EWN family.

My advice to any business not advertising in their titles is simple: Just do it. It will grow your business to the levels you desire.

Cycling success for Malagabici

RECENT success with cycling network Malagabici has led the city council to prepare an ambitious expansion plan.

The project will extend the service to all districts and neighbourhoods of Malaga, considerably increasing both the number of bicycles available and the amount of rental stations.

Councillor for Mobility, Elvira Mae-so, has announced that the project should begin at the start of next year, and by then they should have a company contracted to carry out the work.

The expansion will cost an estimated €19.5 million and will be carried out over 15 years. The two main aims of the plan, bicycles and rental station availability, will be executed over the next five years.

Therefore, between 2018 and 2022, the company chosen must provide a service with 1,000 bicycles available, and 123 rental points. Currently, there are only 400 bikes and 23 rental points.

The biggest challenge will be increasing the number of rental stations by 100, taking them to every corner of the city.

Transport for Malaga, along with the city council, has already planned the places where the new stations should be located, although they are subject to possible changes depending on technical requirements.

The bicycle development project is complemented by the opening of bicycle lanes on Malaga's roads, in a plan which is jointly managed by the city council and the regional council of Andalucia.

In a 2015 agreement, the Ministry of Development and Housing committed to developing an urban network of bicycle routes almost 69km long. Currently, 9.5km has been completed, with 13.6km expected by the end of 2017.

Offering a book exchange

AS part of the celebrations of World Book Day which takes place on April 23, Coin Council will operate a book exchange.

The idea is that people should take books to the Convent of Santa Maria de la Encarnación where they will be given a ticket and then on April 21 at the book fair to be held in the convent, they will be able to exchange the ticket for a coffee or tea or in the case of a child for a small gift.

Alternatively, books can simply be swapped on the day although there will be two rules, no money should change hands and no school books or magazines should be offered.

La Cala de Mijas donates 3,000 €

PAT COLEMAN of the Foundation for Abandoned and Mistreated Animals (FAMA), recently received a cheque for €3,000 from the President, Paul Butler at La Cala de Mijas Lions Club.

The animal shelter, formed in 2003 by Pat, has now been able to tile their dog runs. It is something they desperately needed to do, as all the old concrete bases were breaking up, and cleaning was becoming extremely difficult.

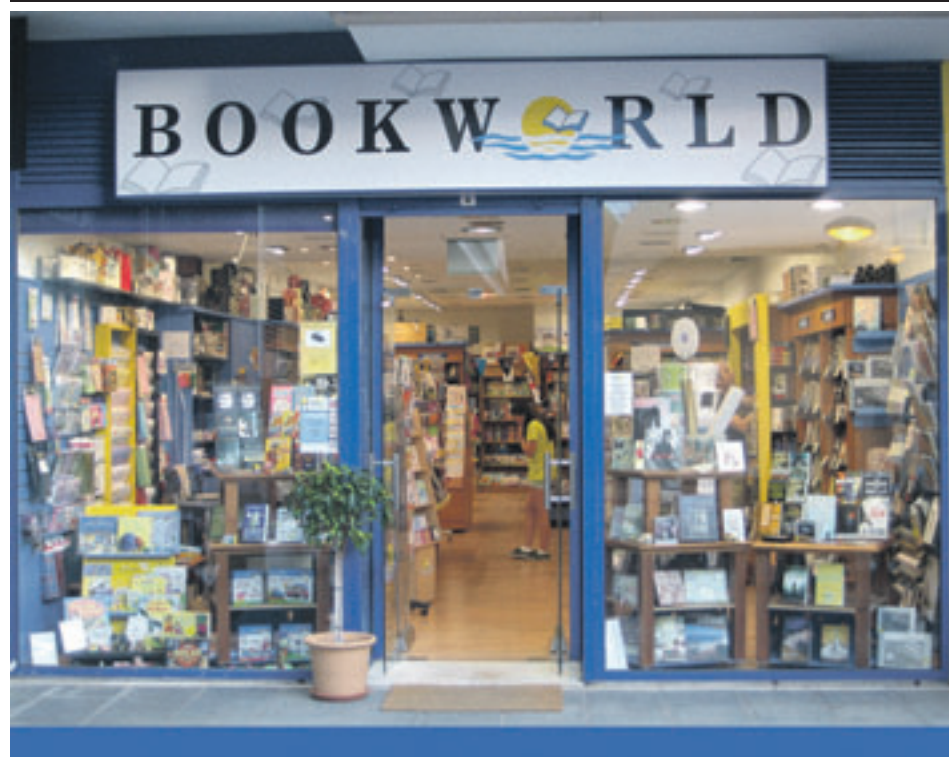

Pat and her husband Roy run this lovely shelter, with the help of a marvellous group of volunteers.

At the moment, they have one dog in particular, who is nearly the size of a St Bernard. When he arrived, he was extremely thin, with deep cuts around

ARCH open day

THE weather was beautiful for the Andalucian Rescue Centre for Horses (ARCH) open day and fun dog show.

Humans and dogs turned out in force to admire the new premises and enjoyed the giant paella and sangria on offer.

Lee and Pat Jay did a brilliant job with music throughout the day. Lee compered the dog show and kept the competitors and dogs in order. The centre's two-week-old foal was the star of the day.

Sabrina of Coin Dog Training and her pupils kicked off the show with a great exhibition of agility and obedience followed by classes for the handsomest male, prettiest female, cutest puppy and best veteran.

With a raffle, tombola, and stalls the sum of €1,000 was raised for the charity.

The charity would like to thank all those who supported the day and specially Pat and Lee Jay and Sabrina for giving up their time to make the day so enjoyable and such a success.

Mapfre employees care about Butterfly Skin

THIS year, more than 4,600 employees of Mapfre are joining a charity campaign 'Donate a Euro' to support those living with Butterfly Skin and their families throughout Spain.

The insurance company Mapfre has dedicated a charity campaign 'Donate a Euro' for the duration of this year whereby employees of the company can donate €1 from their monthly salary towards charity. In addition, for every euro donated Mapfre will equal it therefore doubling the donation. Already 4,600 employees across Spain have joined the initiative.

The two chosen charity projects are Charity Soup Kitchen and the 'Newborns with Butterfly Skin' project from DEBRA, the Butterfly Children Charity. These funds will be able to support families of a newborn baby with Butterfly Skin anywhere in Spain for the next two years. They will do this through nursing, social and psychological support for the babies and families directly and by training the health professionals of the public health system.

The president and founder of the charity expressed her appreciation of the campaign "Thanks to Mapfre and its employees, the parents of a newborn with Butterfly Skin will feel less alone.

I can say from experience, that it was the most difficult time of my life and 25 years ago, when the charity did not exist, things were even more challenging."

ADANA dogs and walkers raise record amount

A LARGE crowd of ADANA volunteers, members, supporters and the public took over the streets of Estepona on Sunday for the fourth annual Great ADANA Dog Outing.

Eleven dogs from the ADANA kennels were walked from the Palacio de Congresos, Estepona, along the Paseo Maritimo, as well as many families with their canine companions, many of whom had previously been adopted from ADANA.

Just under €2,000 in donations was raised for the dog rescue and rehoming charity, including a large sum raised by veteran fundraiser Helen Oldfield and a donation of more than €200 of birthday gift money from 'Petra' who decided to ask for money for ADANA instead of presents.

"Thanks to events like this and public generosity, as well as our volunteers, we are able to get funds to carry on with our work of caring for and finding homes for abandoned and unwanted dogs," said Reg Winkworth, ADANA treasurer.

Reg also thanked ADANA Secretary Lyn Bessant, who organised registration, Andy Sprake and Vesa and Tina who helped get the ADANA dogs kitted out ready for the walk and gave special thanks to volunteer Sandra Walker Kincaid who selected and prepared the ADANA dogs.

If you are interested in adopting an ADANA dog or helping ADANA in any way, visit adana.es for further details.

Cameras and creepy crawlies

PRIZE PHOTOS: Monique and Charles receiving trophies.

THE Coin Branch of the Royal British Legion held its annual Photographic Competition at Yates's on Wednesday March 15.

The subject was 'creepy crawlies' and submissions were judged in two categories. Category one was open to all branch members not in the photographic group and category two was open to members of the Coin RBL photographic group.

Category one was won by Monique Mansfield and category two was won by Charles Edwards but unfortunately both winners were missing on presentation day. However, chairman Jo Taylor managed to catch them at the branch meeting on April 5 to present them with their trophies.

Jo thanked everyone for submitting photographs of such a high standard and awarded the Chairman's Choice trophy to Alan Ellis for his superb picture of a European Swallowtail Butterfly taken in the woods near Coin. The winners keep their trophies until March 2018.

You are not alone!

A NEW campaign has been initiated by Soroptimist International Club Costa del Sol (SI Club Costa del Sol) in collaboration with the Foreigners Department and Social Services Department at Mijas Town Hall, and the IAM (the Women's Institute in Malaga) to promote the free helpline for women that is run by the Andalusian Government: 900 200 999 (24-hour service).

This specialised helpline offers information on women's rights in Spain and is available in 46 languages, reflecting the range of nationalities in this country.

The campaign entitled 'You are not alone! / ¡No estás sola!' includes posters, stickers and leaflets financed by the Mijas Foreigners Department and printed in five different languages. These will be displayed in public places such as police stations, medical centres, associations, churches and supermarkets which are frequented by women of all nationalities.

The logo used on the publications in this campaign has been designed by the well-known artist José Maria Cordoba.

The official presentation took place last Wednesday, March 29, at Mijas Town Hall, with representatives from the WOMEN'S HELPLINE: Campaigning for women of all nationalities.

Mijas Foreigners Department, the Mijas Equality Department, the IAM and SI Club Costa del Sol. Both the authorities and the Soroptimist members underlined the importance of this multilingual campaign in order to get the message out to foreign women, who suffer from gender violence, as well as those experiencing work or education-related problems.

SI Costa del Sol was founded in 2006 in Mijas, and is part of an international organisation that works to improve the lives of women and girls at local, national and international level. The local association has members of 10 different nationalities and they have decided to use their contacts and language skills to spread information about the help that is available for victims of gender violence to let them know that they are not alone.

Platinum couple celebrate

ON Saturday April 5 1947, Dennis and Jean Davis were married.

Now they celebrate their 70th wedding anniversary, and the couple are still going strong at 88! The pair moved down to the Costa del Sol 30 years ago and didn't look back. Now living in Fuengirola, they put their long marriage down to "just putting up with each other!"

They celebrated with a beautiful cake, drinks at their home and an Indian meal.

Seventy years of marriage marks the platinum anniversary, but instead of splashing out on the fancy metal, Dennis and Jean decided they were happy enough to celebrate 'still being in love.'

Clubhouse Gibraltar announce new employment placements

CLUBHOUSE GIBRALTAR is pleased to announce they have started a new Transitional Employment Placement (TEP) at Central Clinic. The job placement covers general receptionist duties such as answering the telephone and general office duties.

Maxine Goodall is extremely pleased to have been given this opportunity which has helped to boost her self confidence and give her a purpose in life. She has previous office experience and has also been instrumental in reorganising the reception work at Clubhouse. Her new employers are extremely pleased with her work.

The goals of TEP, are to help members gain work experience, build up their confidence and self worth, establish current references, and thereby put them in a stronger position to fully rejoin society through paid work.

Clubhouse members have a duty of responsibility to look after the placement to ensure the long-term viability of the placement. Other Clubhouse members will be eagerly waiting for the possibility of being selected whilst also gaining experience and training of a similar nature at the Clubhouse.

At the same time employers are privileged to have the support of Clubhouse staff to provide job coverage and ongoing training on and off site.

Providing employment placements is one of the cornerstones of the Clubhouse model which is a restorative community for people who have a history of mental illness. Clubhouse philosophy is built on the belief that people can recover from severe mental illness to lead personally satisfying lives. Alongside this, Clubhouse provides opportunities to help people develop to their full potential.

Clubhouse Gibraltar is continually looking for potential employers to discuss the possibility of transitional or other employment opportunities. It is proud to offer a support structure that is second to none and able to assist with matching members' skills and personalities to different jobs.

Additionally, when the placement is terminated there will always be a suitable replacement available to give employers continuity, reliability and a seamless service.

If you would like to find out more about the Employment Programme or discuss it further, Clubhouse Gibraltar will be able to provide you with information and a presentation if desired.

Employment is an essential part of recovery and wellness and Clubhouse is asking the community to be aware of its social responsibility and by enabling individuals to have an opportunity to work a few hours a week in real employment you are helping them along the road to becoming productive citizens.

Paying up on crime increases aid

By John Smith

INVISIBLE earnings from prostitution and drug trafficking that help make up the National Income of the UK are to provide an aid boost to Third World nations.

The news is likely to annoy tens of thousands of British pensioners who claim - in Spain and throughout the world - that their hard earned taxes are being wasted whilst they fear that their pensions may be frozen after Brexit.

David Cameron promised that Britain would commit 0.7 per cent of

£1.19 trillion
(€1.39 trillion)

is the total Gross National Income figure for Britain in 2016 on which percentage is calculated.

its national budget on foreign aid and with estimated illegal income added to the 2016 figures due to an instruction from the European Union, the amount has increased accordingly.

A number of MPs including conservative Andrew Rosindell are calling for the promise to be ignored as they believe that the money should be spent in the UK on social services and the NHS along with other important causes.

According to the MP, whilst Britain has a duty to help those overseas in genuine need, there is little public support for a system which simply hands out money based on an imaginary national income.

Committing £13.3 billion (€15.5 billion) on foreign aid based on 2016 figures, Britain is one of the few countries in the world which meets or exceeds international aid targets.

Possible tax refund on way

AT least 20,000 British residents in Spain may be due a mortgage refund.

This is the estimated number of people who took mortgages which included a 'ground clause' fixing the rate of interest regardless of how the bank rate moved.

This was beneficial when interest rates were high, but when they dropped many paid far more interest than was considered fair and banks have been instructed by government to compensate those involved.

The UK Treasury said refunds may be liable to taxation.

Quote of the Week

"This is a great victory for European consumers," Miapetra Kumpula, European Parliament spokesperson, on removal of mobile phone roaming charges within the EU from June 15.

Down to earth Brexit view

RAFAEL DEL PINO: No UK opportunities at present.

By John Smith

FERROVIAL, the Spanish company that runs Heathrow Airport in London, is not to seek further investments in the UK until after the Brexit process has been completed.

The company reported very solid results at its annual shareholders meeting in Madrid and acknowledged that the UK was an important market but they were uncertain of the future.

Chairman of the group which runs Heathrow as well as other UK airports, Rafael del Pino said that the company was conservative in nature and saw no opportunities in the UK at present.

Having secured part of the High Speed Rail contract in the UK and with the public consultation on the third runway at Heathrow finishing in May, the company which earns 30 per cent of its income from the UK doesn't however rule out significant new investment within the next five years.

Having expanded its international reach through takeovers, the company has increased turnover to €10.759 billion and increased dividend by 2.3 per cent over 2015.

Match fixing

POLICE arrested five officials from a Spanish football club on suspicion of match fixing after they lost 12-0.

Investigations are being undertaken by both the police and Spanish Football Federation after third division side Eldense were beaten by Barcelona B amidst accusations of a deliberate attempt to benefit from placing bets on the result.

Unicaja shares

UNICAJA BANK will issue an additional €625 million in share capital later this month if stockholders agree.

The Bank will then apply to be the first Malaga-based company on the Bolsa de Madrid (stock exchange) and if successful will then repay government bail-out loans.

More jobs

UNEMPLOYMENT will drop to 16.6 per cent this year as the economy improves, the Spanish government predicts.

Much of the new employment will occur in the government sector including health care, education and social services.

Switching their fortunes

RUSSIAN investors in Spain who once were said to focus mainly on buying residential properties now concentrate more on commercial buildings.

A report by Russian property group Tranio, says Spain is likely to be one of the most attractive targets for investors looking for long term rental income of well-sited commercial property during 2017.

Smaller Russian investors who used to purchase holiday homes are now more sophisticatedly looking for rental income.

Safer €50 banknote issued

By Karl Smallman

THE European Central Bank (ECB) has released a new version of the €50 bank note with more security measures that will help prevent counterfeiting.

The new bank note that came into circulation on April 4 is a slightly different colour and has been manufactured on a firmer and more resistant paper and incorporates a hologram. And when you turn it, the silver band on the right shows the value of the note and the euro symbol (€).

It is very easy to check a real euro bank note by using the simple FEEL, LOOK and TILT method.

A special printing process gives the banknotes their unique FEEL.

LOOK at the banknote against the light. The portrait window and watermark as well as the security thread become visible.

TILT the banknote. The silvery stripe reveals a portrait of Europa in a transparent window and the emerald number displays an effect of the light that moves up and down.

NEW NOTE: Has been manufactured on more resistant paper and incorporates a hologram.

The new design, designed by the German Reinhold Gerstetter, follows the line of new five, 10 and 20 euro banknotes that have been introduced over the last three years.

In addition, the new bank note includes countries that have joined the European Union since 2002.

And the acronym of the issuer, the ECB, appears in nine linguistic variants, instead of the initial five.

The €50 is the most used bank note in the euro zone, where there are more than 8,000 million, which represents 45 per cent of the total bank notes in circulation.

This change is welcomed by many as the existing €50 note is the most regularly counterfeited and a regular miscreant in Girona has just been arrested with material from which fake notes with a face value of €450,000 could have been made.

Increase in tourist spending

A REPORT issued by Spanish tourist organisation Exceltur confirms that tourism income has grown in the first quarter of 2017.

The bulk of the growth is driven by visitors from overseas and the Brexit result doesn't appear to have discouraged British visitors nor is it likely to this year.

Numbers of foreign visitors have increased and hotel demand has also increased allowing for owners to increase prices and profits.

Whilst the strength of the external market has grown, Spanish holidaymakers are flying internally less often and are also spending less in hotels whilst looking more to make bookings in rental properties.

It is forecast however that the situation will improve in the second quarter as bookings for Holy Week (Semana Santa) were very strong and the most popular areas for the major increase in tourism generally are considered to be Andalucia, the Canaries and Madrid.

Spain facing costly EU fines

THE Spanish government knows it has a very short time before it will be fined by the EU for not passing the 'Stevedore law.'

Minister of Public Works, Íñigo de la Serna has now presented a new plan which whilst not totally in accordance with government expectation may save it from an immediate €23 million fine plus a daily penalty of €134,000.

The European Union decreed that the stevedores were operating a 'closed shop' within Spanish ports and the government tried to agree new terms with the various unions and other political parties as it proposed major changes in employment status.

It was over this draft law that the government lost its first major vote when opposition parties voted against it and political partner Ciudadanos decided to abstain.

In a press conference held in Barcelona, the minister made it clear that the compromise law had to be pushed through parliament quickly or else these penalties would be enacted.

Having escaped an even larger fine for missing budget targets, the government wants to ensure that it is complying with EU regulations over this particular matter which if allowed to continue unresolved could cost the nation €4 million each month.

Shopping centres proving to be attractive investments

By John Smith

IT is not only the Russians who are looking to invest in commercial property in Spain but shopping centres are now back to being big news.

Malls and centres around the world are attracting big investors as well as major retailers and of course shoppers to facilities which are often out of town, but also in such prime areas as Barcelona and Madrid.

One of the main attractions of a shopping centre is that it can often be built on 'virgin' land with plenty of easy access and parking and the very large players such as Inditex, Mango and El Corte Ingles can actually dictate the size and position of their favoured stores.

Once the 'big boys' are confirmed then other smaller operators will be attracted as they know that there will be a captive audience visiting so footfall will be significant.

Latest beneficiary to the return of major investment is Malaga City where the Malaga Plaza has been sold to the New Winds Group and they plan to expand the centre in order to bring in an even better range of offerings to visitors.

This year will see the opening of 21 new shopping centres in Spain together with the expansion of six existing facilities and with nearly 20 per cent of all of these centres, estates and malls in Spain being based in Andalucia it is clear that they play an important part in the local economy.

A new centre will bring employment for a range of construction workers and decorators followed by large numbers of shop assistants, general finance staff and a relatively prosperous management structure.

The amount of income tax and IVA that is collected from the 106 outlets in Andalucia is a regular and welcome addition to the local and national economy especially as much of the spend comes from foreign tourists.

AGM: Ana Botín explained that 2016 had brought new challenges for the economy.

Greater dividends for all Santander shareholders

By John Smith

THE executive chairman of Spanish bank Santander, Ana Botín has told shareholders that the board wishes to increase annual dividend.

Speaking at the Bank's Annual General Meeting held in Santander she explained that 2016 had brought new challenges for the economy and for the banking sector but the group had performed very well.

It wants to ensure that its 190,000 staff, 125 million

“ The 2017 dividend will be increased by 5 per cent per share. ” customers and four million shareholders all benefit from the strength and the success of the bank which has reported a profit of €6.2 billion for 2016.

Thanks to this performance achieved despite financial problems in China, Brexit uncertainty in the UK, elections in Spain and the USA and political turmoil in Brazil, profits were up by 4 per cent and if it had not been for currency fluctuations the true profit would have been even greater.

As a reward to shareholders therefore and with their approval, the 2017 dividend will be increased by 5 per cent per share to 22 cents and the board expects this positive financial situation to continue into 2018.

Spain tops world tourism report

SPAIN tops a tourism competitiveness report ahead of its European neighbours.

The recently published World Economic Forum's Travel and Tourism Competitiveness Report 2017 shows that the top three destinations are Spain, France and Germany with Japan rising to fourth place.

With tourism accounting for 10 per cent of both global GDP and global employment it is one of the most important growth areas in the world today and contributes huge amounts of money, directly and indirectly to almost all economies.

The bulk of the most successful destinations are those with advanced economies, whilst Asia in general is becoming increasingly more important not just as a destination but also as more of its inhabitants travel further afield and India has experienced a huge growth in popularity.

Even though world trade has slowed down due to protectionism, this doesn't appear to have had any negative affect on tourism and indeed the enjoyment people have from travelling to new countries and cultures has led to a continued and steady growth.

The World Economic Forum produced the report in collaboration with its data partners Bloom Consulting, Deloitte, the International Air Transport Association (IATA), the International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN), the UNWTO and the World Travel & Tourism Council (WTTC) so findings are likely to be viewed as being accurate.

Give us all a well-deserved break

LEAPY LEE SAYS IT OTHERS THINK IT

I AM not, never have been, and hopefully never will be, a racist. I challenge one reader to show me a single example of any writing or column comment to disprove this statement.

Well, I'll save you the trouble. You won't find one. Sometimes I feel like Enoch Powell. David Frost once asked this much maligned brilliant politician, why he didn't like black people? Powell then asked him to name one example or occasion he had made such a statement. Frost of course could not.

Powell was merely anti immigrant, stating that our infrastructure, culture and resources would not be able to cope if vast numbers of immigrants were continually allowed to enter the UK unchecked. The fact that most immigrants of the day happened to be black, was totally irrelevant. Frost was subsequently humiliated and his credibility sorely dented.

Well far from me to compare myself with such a great exponent of prescience as Mr Powell, but I am of exactly the same ilk. I may have strong anti views to certain cults, attitudes or religious interpretations, but I don't personally care what colour, creed or nationality anyone aspires to.

In any event, as a Spiritualist, I believe we have to manifest in anything from five to eight hundred lifetimes, so we will have to experience all the lessons of the human spirit anyway, ie the next reincarnation could find me emerging as a deprived black child during an African drought!

So not only do I object to being regarded a racist, I consider it a personal affront of my beliefs to be even considered as “ I may have strong anti views, but I don't personally care what colour, creed or nationality anyone aspires to.

one. In my experience 'racism,' a term that I personally had never even heard of until the early 60's, is generally shouted the loudest by the biggest racists of all, and is fast becoming the greatest threat to free speech that exists in the world today. Psst 'wanna stifle a losing argument'? Call the other guy a racist! For sanity's sake, give us all a well-deserved break.

What a lot of old rubbish!

Trudy Stewart

MY old man's not a dustman but my grandfather was. Back in the days when it wasn't huge wheelies but solid metal bins which had to be lifted and emptied by hand into the back of the bin lorries. They would also remove furniture etc without having to go through all the bureaucracy involved to do that now.

It also meant there was the occasional treasure in another man's trash which you might spot after everyone put their bins out. I suppose it was an early form of free-cycling.

Now, if someone does find something useful that's been thrown away, they can clean it up, slap on some paint and sell it for more than its original value by calling it up-cycled!

Disposing of all of our rubbish has been a huge problem made worse since the introduction of plastic in the 1860's. It takes hundreds of years to decompose and we know the devastating effect it has on the planet's animals and sea life.

A large percentage of our waste ends up in landfills. There, the rubbish produces methane as it breaks down and has to be treated for the noxious chemicals it produces. And yet, in some parts of the world, some people not only scavenge through the toxic rubbish heaps looking for salvage to sell, but also call them home.

In Delhi, 9,200 tonnes of trash is produced a day and with no waste disposal, ends up in landfill. Three sites have sprung up and tower over the local towns. Together, they are twice the size of Vatican City. The stench is so bad that in the heat of the summer, nearby residents cannot open their windows. It is also starting to have an impact on their health. This situation is only going to get worse as the amount of rubbish produced is set to double by 2024.

In contrast, there is a town in Japan called Kamikatsu which has a zero waste programme. The 1,700 residents initially used open incineration to dispose of their waste but realised the effect it was having on their health and environment.

In 2003, they introduced the programme as an alternative. Rubbish is separated into 34 categories for recycling. The rubbish must be washed, cleaned, sorted and brought to the recycling centre. Initially, residents were resistant to the idea as it involves a lot of work, but it has now been embraced by the entire community. There is a circular shop where people can bring unwanted items for free-cycling and a factory that makes clothes, teddy bears and handbags from recycled materials. They now recycle, reuse or compost 80 per cent of their rubbish with the aim of 100 per cent by 2020.

Unlike any other animal, we produce more rubbish than can be recycled back into the planet. It's a massive problem on a global scale and something which won't be solved by paying for your supermarket bags. Some might say it's too little too late but I'm going to keep rinsing out my tuna cans and trotting my separated rubbish across to the recycling point by the Ayuntamiento. Every little helps.

SERRA DEL PORTS: A haven off the beaten track.

A worthy port of call

FROM crystal-clear rivers to stunning rocky outcrops, the little-known Serra del Ports is a haven for those wishing to get off the beaten track.

Located close to the River Ebro delta, the massif offers a dramatic, rugged landscape which covers around 60,000 hectares of the Catalonia, Valencia and Aragon regions.

The rivers Senia and Matarranya rise in the mountains and have carved out spectacular limestone formations, with impressive cave and pothole systems and plenty of hidden pools where you can take a dip.

There is also a range of signposted hiking and cycling trails covering all types of ground, from ravines to streams, thick forest or high plains.

Wildlife includes Spanish ibex, wild boar, roe deer, badger, fox, wildcat, squirrel, and otter, plus numerous bird species including eagles and an important griffon vulture colony, while there are over 1,000 species of flora and other vegetation.

The main access routes are at Horta de Sant Joan, where there is a small museum and information centre, Roquetes, and La Senia.

Accommodation, including camping, can be found around the villages of Valderrobres, Beceite and Arnes in addition to those mentioned above.

Clampdown on fines

AS part of a new series, we answer some common driving questions, kindly provided by members of the Guardia Civil based in Torrevieja, Costa Blanca, who set up the N332 website and Facebook page to help break down barriers.

ROAD SAFETY: Brussels denounced the lack of cooperation between countries.

THERE are calls for stronger actions to be implemented to simplify sanctions of foreign drivers after Brussels denounced the lack of cooperation between countries.

DGT officials from Spain were in Malta to attend the EU High Level Road Safety Group meeting. The officials said the high volume of the fines processed makes the system insufficient 'in terms of efficiency' as they reported that only 50 per cent of the files opened end with the fine paid according to a Brussels report as in many cases it can be foreign drivers who are fined, who then return to their home country and the information is lost and the fine never received.

The request from the Spanish Government comes after a report found that the 28 countries had not 'exploited the full potential' of the electronic system designed to exchange information on traffic offences between countries.

Brussels denounced this lack of cooperation, eg Portugal, which does not exchange data.

The Spanish DGT also wants stronger cooperation and wants to take action against more dangerous foreign drivers who do not maintain the safety distance, carry out dangerous manoeuvres or who put safety at risk. Currently these are not considered in the present directive, which only provides data for speeding, failing to stop at a traffic light, riding without a helmet, using a mobile phone, not wearing a seatbelt and driving whilst under the influence of alcohol or drugs.

Gregorio Serrano, the Director General of the DGT, said they are working on being the first country to share this additional data, adding that Spain's roads were amongst the safest: "We were told at the meeting of the European Union that Spain is the fourth safest country in road safety."

Q. Our Community has a new President and things have changed. The AGM was called but no details of proposed resolutions were given. Only about 20 out of 130 owners attended. Ten weeks after the AGM, we were sent the Minutes. Several resolutions were passed committing the Community to extra expenditures and increased fees. The majority of us had no idea that these items were to be discussed and voted on. A few weeks later a mass of information was distributed, so the majority finally were put in the picture. This is clearly unsatisfactory. Are some specific laws or regulations being flouted?

R.C. (Costa Blanca)

A. When the AGM of the Community is called, the members should receive a copy of the Agenda, which lists the items to be discussed and voted on. Properly, no item can be voted on unless it appears on the official Agenda. This ensures that the members have time to study the issues beforehand. Members who could not attend the AGM can protest after they are officially informed of the results and it seems you have grounds for protest.

Liberty Seguros are rewarding both existing and new customers

BETWEEN March 20 and June 26, 2017, existing customers of Liberty Seguros who take out a new home, car or life insurance policy, which is paid by direct debit, will be rewarded with 60€ Cashback directly to their bank account as long as it's in the SEPA zone.

Normally these Cashback offers have been exclusively for new customers but now, Liberty Seguros is rewarding loyalty to their own customers too with this 60€ Cashback.

However, new customers, taking out their first policy with the company, are not forgotten either. By taking out any of the aforementioned insurance covers they will get 40€ Cashback paid into their bank account in the SEPA zone, again if paid by direct debit!

These offers are not for renewals or replacements and some minimum premiums apply. For example, car insurance must be for fully comprehensive cover with an annual premium exceeding 400€;

CASHBACK: Now being offered to existing customers as well as new customers.

Home insurance premiums for cover on the mainland and the Balearics must exceed 200€ or 150€ if the home is in the Canary Islands; and finally, Life Insurance premiums must have a value greater than 150€.

One advantage in choosing Liberty Seguros is also the fact that you can discuss your requirements with a true professional agent or broker face-to-face (of which Liberty has over 300), in your own language, making the whole procedure much more personal than doing things over a telephone.

Liberty Seguros provides insurance not only for car, home, life, but also for pet, business and commercial, leisure like golf, marine, and personal injury; almost anything you may need to do with insurance from one leading company. That's why Liberty Seguros is considered the expat's number one choice.

For those who need the whereabouts of a Liberty broker or agent, they simply have to call 913 422 549 or visit www.libertyexpatriates.es.

Stop Press! The story behind the headlines

Nora Johnson
Breaking Views

Nora is the author of popular psychological suspense and crime thrillers and a freelance journalist. To comment on any of the issues raised in her column, go to www.euoweeklynews.com/3.0.15/nora-johnson

IT'S not often I'm left speechless, but that's precisely what happened during a recent appointment with my gynaecologist in London. As soon as all the medical stuff was over, his next words were: "That novel of yours could have been about me!"

As I said, I was speechless, having no idea he even knew about my first novel, The De Clerambault Code, let alone had read it or the others. (Every single one, as it turned out.)

Anyway, just like the main character in it, he described how, over a period of several months, he too had been obsessively stalked by a patient who sent him aggressive emails ending up in blackmail.

Eventually, he referred himself to the General Medical Council - and was subsequently totally cleared by the medical tribunal.

Phew, what a personal story, which hit the national headlines! Unfortunately, there wasn't time to mention that I'd also been stalked - in Los Angeles - an experience that resulted in the obsessive delusional relationship depicted in my novel.

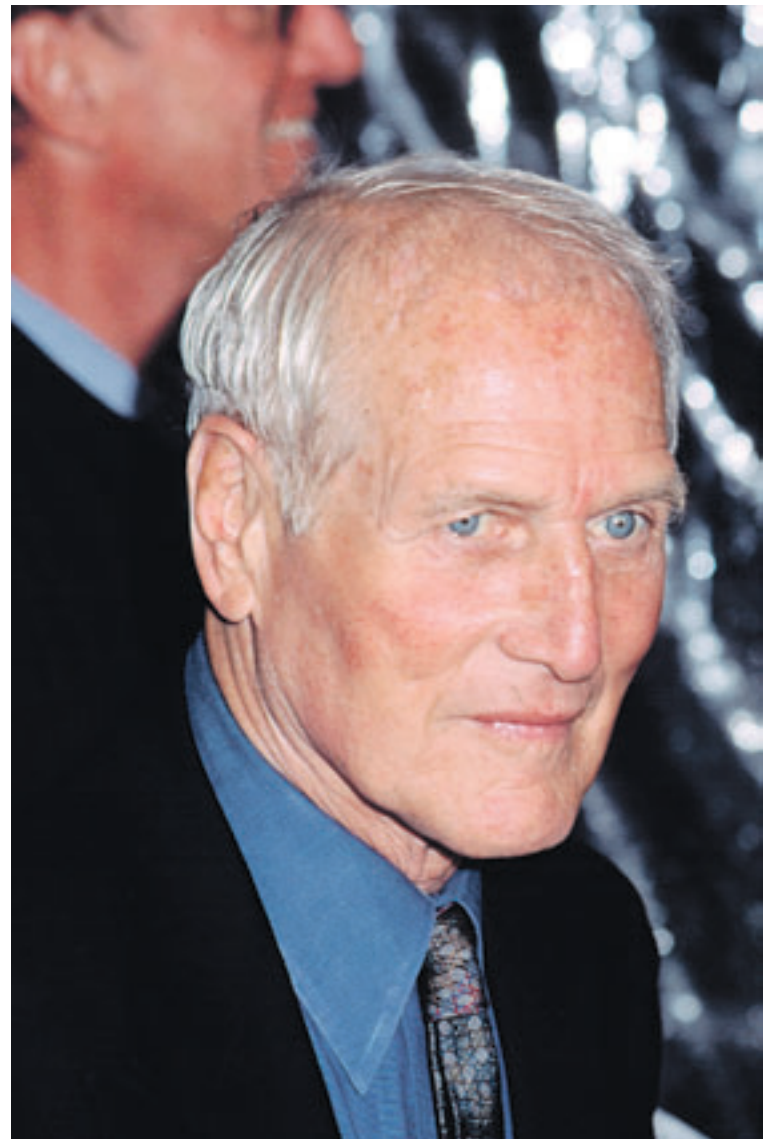

Nor that studying law there, specialising in criminal law, led to my growing interest in writing these psychological crime thrillers featuring investigative journalist Alice Myers (as you know, all profits to Costa del Sol Cudeca cancer charity), including the latest in the series scheduled for publication this summer.

No time either to mention the colourful years I spent in LA. Apart from bit parts in movies (the English accent was wot dun it!) and, again through contacts, meeting famous actors - Paul Newman (those eyes!), Harrison Ford and others - there were also some dodgy moments. Like the morning when I rushed into Law School and a Tax Law Professor was shot dead right in front of me! This shortly after J D (Juris Doctor) Finals; I never did find out if he'd pissed off some former client or just a student with failing grades...

Which reminds me, once one of my readers, a student, graciously offered to proofread my manuscript and pinpoint any errors in punctuation, spelling and style. Of course I spell perfectly and there's never no punctuation, errors! so her job was like, :- easy! Hapy Easta!

Nora Johnson's psychological / suspense crime thrillers 'No Way Back,' 'Landscape of Lie,' 'Retribution,' 'Soul Stealer,' 'The De Clerambault Code' (www.nora-johnson.net) available from Amazon in paperback/eBook (€0.99; £0.99) and iBookstore.

PAUL NEWMAN: Oh those eyes!

Yet another delay

■ FIRST there was unexpected asbestos and now the building contractor employed to refurbish the new Calpe House in London has gone into liquidation. This will add even more delays to the completion of the building as a new contractor will have to be found which may also result in additional cost to the project which is funded by charity.

Flower power

■ LOCAL sentiment from politicians in Cadiz and La Linea suggests that many are certainly against the repeated demands for shared sovereignty from the Spanish government. According to a report in the Telegraph, Cadiz MP Salvador de la Encina has observed "If you want to woo someone, you give them flowers - not a flowerpot on the head."

A & E Department

■ PERHAPS stung by criticism of the service provided, the Gibraltar Health Authority has announced it is introducing reforms in order to increase efficiency and to improve quality of service in Accident and Emergency. The first phase will see the employment of two additional skilled charge nurses as well as streamlining of the services to concentrate more on treatment.

British Labour party leader confirms support for Gibraltar

By John Smith

GIBRALTAR Chief Minister Fabian Picardo spoke at some length with a number of Labour front benchers.

During the course of the week, he had spoken to Jeremy Corbyn leader of the Labour party in Britain who assured the Chief Minister of his full support for Gibraltar and, in particular, for working people who might be affected by the process of the United Kingdom leaving the European Union.

In addition, he spoke with and received messages of support from Labour Shadow Minister for Brexit, Sir Kier Starmer, and Shadow Foreign Secretary, Emily Thornberry.

FABIAN PICARDO: Spoke at length with a number of Labour front benchers.

The Chief Minister said: "I was very pleased to talk to Mr Corbyn about the issues facing Gibraltar as a result of Brexit. He was fully briefed on the issue of Clause 22 of the draft EU Council Guidelines and the problems that could raise for Gibraltar.

"He restated the commitment to British Sovereignty of Gibraltar and the double lock in that respect. I am very happy to be able to report to the people of Gibraltar that Mr Corbyn and the rest of the Labour front bench team do not share any of the views of those in the Labour Party who in 2002 tried to force Gibraltar to share its sovereignty with Spain. I thanked Mr Corbyn for his support and commitment to Gibraltar and its people."

This last comment may have been a deliberate reference to former Labour Cabinet Minister Lord Hain who was involved in the 2002 proposed deal and has once again referred to it, suggesting that Gibraltar would be far better off if sovereignty was to be shared with Spain.

Cross border worries

THE introduction of new Schengen regulations which have caused some serious delays for workers crossing the border coincided with a visit from Spanish union leaders.

Representatives of Unite, UGT and Comisiones Obreras met with the Chief Minister to discuss this and Brexit matters as some 10,000 workers enter Gibraltar every day.

Mr Picardo said: "The opportunity to meet with the unions across the frontier and fully brief them on developments is an important one. We have common concerns which require us to keep in close touch."

50th anniversary of the Referendum

THE Deputy Chief Minister Dr Joseph Garcia is to chair a committee which will be responsible for events celebrating the 50th anniversary of the 1967 referendum.

This was the first time that the people of Gibraltar were given the choice to remain British or to come under Spanish sovereignty.

There were two options on the ballot paper open to the people of Gibraltar. The first to pass under Spanish sovereignty in accordance with the terms proposed by the Spanish Government to Her Majesty's Government on May 18, 1966. The second choice was to voluntarily retain the link with Britain, with democratic local institutions and with Britain retaining its existing responsibilities.

Announcing this, Dr Garcia said: "The referendum took place on September 10, 1967. On a turnout of 95 per cent, 12,138 people voted to remain British and only 44 voted for Gibraltar to become a part of Spain. This was the first time that the Gibraltarians had been given the choice and encouraged to exercise

it. They spoke with devastating clarity."

A project is already in the pipeline, in conjunction with residents, for the repainting of the steps at Devil's Gap in red, white and blue. This part of Gibraltar was an emblematic representation of the spontaneous actions taken by the people of Gibraltar to decorate the areas in which they lived in the colours of the Union Jack.

Dr Garcia announcing the celebration.

YOUR STARS FOR 7 DAYS

ARIES ♈ (March 21 - April 20)

An opportunity to do something socially arises. It is not earth shattering, but could have a great long-term impact. Others seem to have confidence in you and enjoy your company this week. Having been given the chance to show what you are really capable of, allow your talents to show through.

business commitments. As you are a people person, there will be fun and times out aplenty this week. Burning the candle at both ends works for a while and there is the chance to meet someone that you admire.

LEO ♌ (July 24 - August 23)
May we consider for a moment what you thought that you would be doing, right now, five years ago? Yes, do you see what I mean? Breaking away from an old habit could be the best thing that you have done for a long time.

VIRGO ♍ (August 24 - September 23)
Taking a step back from the activity appeals right now. After an active time, energy needs building up. Basking in someone's glory shows you just how things could be. Give a new relationship more of a chance to grow. The avenues this person can open up to you will put a twinkle in your eye and a blush on your cheek.

LIBRA ♎ (September 24 - October 23)
The strong urge to make physical contact with someone leads to a bit of bother. Not that there is anything wrong with a few hugs and kisses. It is the person or the timing that could be wrong.

SCORPIO ♏ (October 24 - November 22)
The past has been kind to you but also unkind. It is the same for most of us, so don't think that you have been singled out for a bumpy ride. Be aware that basing a decision made this week on what happened a long time ago could be a mistake.

SAGITTARIUS ♐ (November 23 - December 21)
At some time in the future you may look back on this week and ask yourself, 'Why didn't I do that?' Let me help you to see the possibilities. The emphasis is firmly on your social life and someone special is about to step into it.

CAPRICORN ♑ (December 22 - January 20)
Feeling really balanced and calm? Being aware that you have full knowledge of a situation is good, isn't it? Absolutely anyone could snap at you this week and have no success at all in upsetting you. To say that the period is tranquil is an understatement.

AQUARIUS ♒ (January 21 - February 19)
More than one possibility presents itself in connection with a problem. A foreign visit or visitor figures highly in plans and solutions. A change in someone close is brought to your attention. Get people talking to make real progress. Some may be inclined to put their head in the sand but not you.

PISCES ♓ (February 20 - March 20)
A date on your calendar draws near. It seems less important than it did and you may be tempted to cancel. Think twice.

The question of who to go on holiday with comes up and someone is keen to tie you down. Keep options open because things this week are changeable, indeed.

TOP 10

Most popular UK pets

APRIL is national pet month and many around the world have one, but what are the most popular household pets? If you are an animal lover you will no doubt have a preference but according to www.statista.com here's the UK's most popular pets owned by households last year.

1. Dogs

Man's best friend is number one with 24 per cent of households owning a dog. Not only do they make great pets but they are beneficial in work environments such as the police, on farms, as guide dogs, etc. They are also increasingly used to provide therapy to older people in hospital or war veterans. Whether pure breeds or cross breeds our furry friends have wormed their way into the hearts of the nation.

2. Cats

A quick 'purr'usal of the statistics show the second most popular pet, with 17 per cent of households owning one, is the cat. Often more aloof and less demanding, cats make perfect pets as they are more independent and self-sufficient. With more than 70 breeds to choose from there's plenty of choice to find the right companion to snuggle up on the sofa with.

3. Fish

The third most popular pet is fish with 13 per cent of households having either indoor or outdoor fish. They make great pets as they're easier and less expensive to care for, they're quiet and although the tank needs maintained otherwise demand very little of your time. They can be quite therapeutic too as watching them swim around can have a tranquil and calming effect.

4. Rabbits

A timely entry with Easter just around the corner

BEST FRIEND: Dogs are the number one favourite pet.

rabbits are owned by 2 per cent of households. Whether outdoor or indoor again there is a variety of breeds to choose from such as the Netherland dwarf, one of the smallest breeds, to the Flemish Giant, one of the largest breeds. Rabbits have distinctive personalities and can be just as playful as puppies or kittens.

5. Birds

Indoor birds squawked their way into number five, with 2 per cent of households owning one. Feathered friends most often kept include budgies, cockatiels and parrots. Birds make great pets because they are low-maintenance, inexpensive and ideal for small spaces. They make better pets as many species live longer than mammals so children are less likely to suffer the grief of losing their beloved pet.

6. Hamsters

One per cent of households in Britain own a hamster as a pet. These pocket pets can be ideal for children who just love to handle them and it can be great fun to watch them burrowing and climbing around their cage environment. They are fairly low maintenance, inexpensive to buy and also come in a variety of shapes and sizes although the most common is the Syrian.

7. Guinea Pigs

Another popular furry friend the guinea pig is owned by one per cent of households and similar to the hamster are a popular choice for children. They make wonderful pets as they are fairly easy to care for and in comparison to hamsters are less fragile, less skittish and live longer with an average lifespan of between five and seven years. As long as they are handled gently they enjoy being petted and purr like a cat when happy!

8. Snakes

The kind of pet that would give most people nightmares, surprisingly one per cent of households own a pet snake. The most common variety kept as pets are the corn snake, the milk snake and the ball python. They can make great pets as once set up they require very little care, they don't take up much space, they are cheap to feed as most only need to eat once a week and they are the perfect pet for those allergic to fur.

9. Tortoises/turtles

Again one per cent of households own a tortoise or turtle as a pet. They make good pets because they are relatively small, they are quiet and are fairly easy to care for. They also live longer too although their life span depends on what species you have. For example the Hermann tortoise, with proper care and attention, will live for between 50-100 years so would be around with you for quite a while.

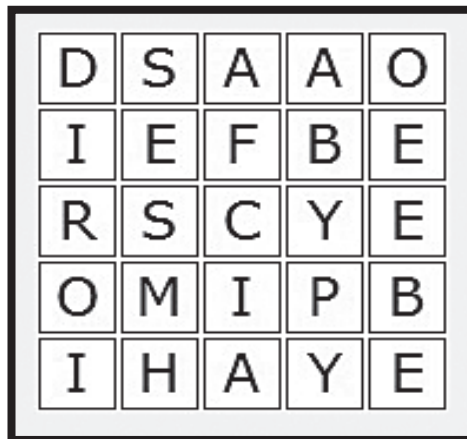

10. Lizards

Finally we have another reptile, the lizard, which again is owned by one per cent of households in Britain. There are many different species but the most common are the bearded dragon. They make good pets because they are less messy, suitable for people with dust/fur allergies and need less attention than some pets. They can be fun to watch as they have really expressive faces.

The Treaty of Rome

CARSTEN THORBOLD says there is nothing to celebrate but there is. If we go back 50 years to the original treaty we would see a trading agreement between the countries 'The Common Market.' If that agreement was still going there would have been no Brexit. The Common Market worked the current political behemoth of the EU, is the reason for Brexit. Perhaps Theresa May can negotiate something along the lines of the 1967 agreement.

Mike Priestley, Calahonda

Good old Leapy

LEAPY, it is the weekly anticipation of your column that gives me the energy to bend down each Thursday to pick up the paper. You haven't said much about Brexit recently so I wanted to run this past you.

I think that TM is playing a very clever double game here. By going down the Brexit road she satisfies all the Brexiteers but in the end if she can't get a good deal she will just say 'sorry chaps I tried but in the end we had to stay,' and everybody is happy ever after.

Do you remember the EWN front page a couple of weeks ago about the damage fruit growing is creating to the water supply? I wrote to 'have your say,' I agree with your headline 'Rivers at Risk.' It is an absolute disgrace river water is to be diverted from tourist and expat swimming pools and wasted on farmers growing food.'

It did not get printed... a bit too sarky perhaps?

Julien, Nerja

Dodgy walk

I HAVE just taken my first stroll along the beach boardwalk from Los Alamos towards Malaga with my son. On our way back, he chuckled as a bronzed naked man ran past us with a dog. Unfortunately we caught up with him by the beginning of the golf course and he was lying in the sand right next to the boardwalk, naked and very obviously masturbating for all to see.

Next was an old man urinating whilst standing on the boardwalk but clearly wanting people to see his member as they passed him. There were lots of people, young and old and families on bikes to witness this.

Perhaps your reporters should walk there some time and help put a stop to such lewd and obscene behaviour before more people are offended as I was this afternoon. Perhaps you should print a warning in your paper next week so people know what to expect. I most certainly will not be returning!

Helen, Malaga

Fly tipping

THIS may be a bit simplistic and I am probably stating the bleeding obvious, but, it seems to me, the reason 'Mr Smith' fly tips is because of the very high charges required in order to dispose of rubbish legally.

If charges were dropped there would be no need to fly tip and 'Mr Smith' could sleep easy in his bed at night.

Do the faceless ones who imposed these charges assume that if they discourage 'Mr Smith' from getting rid of his rubbish legally that a rubbish fairy will come along and magic it away?

By scrapping these charges, councils would save money by not spending large amounts clearing the countryside of rubbish which still has to be disposed of.

Ramble over, Keep the Faith.
C J Rushton, Alicante

WHY don't the GIBRALTERIANS [sic] have respect for Spain? Why should they? The Spanish don't deserve any respect, the Spanish don't have any respect for anybody but themselves... so selfish.

MAYBE, just maybe, it is because the Spanish have no respect for the sovereignty of Gibraltar and the people of Gibraltar. Works both ways you know.

WHAT this proves is that the Local Police are disrespectful, there for corruption / money and buggar all else. It's high time they were replaced totally by the National Police and Guardia Civil. HOW does this prove anything? Have you spoken with the officers involved? They were doing their job and an idiot who has taken the p1ss with Malaga over the investment in Marbella, continually missing deadlines, wasting years and millions of euros on a project he is not going ahead with, felt he deserved special treatment? The road was closed to traffic. Which bit of that did he not understand?

Caring for animals

REGARDING Mr Fresham's letter:

You obviously do not or cannot read a Spanish newspaper nor listen to the Spanish radio.

Spain's OK... Not in my book regarding animal welfare. Literally thousands of Galgos/hunting dogs in Spain, when the hunting season ends, are either hanged in the woods, thrown down wells or taken into the wilderness to die of hunger.

In Mallorca last year a man killed his horse - beating it over the head with an iron bar because it didn't win its trotting trace. I'm a volunteer for the Centro Canino Refuge in Mallorca and have experienced the rescue of injured animals. Times have changed and attitudes too with education and the awareness that all creatures know pain, anxiety, fear, as well as joy and well-being.

In the hospital grounds in Mallorca a dog was found living and sleeping there. They told me he'd followed the ambulance when his owner was brought in and then died. The dog would not leave.

Marbella Moments

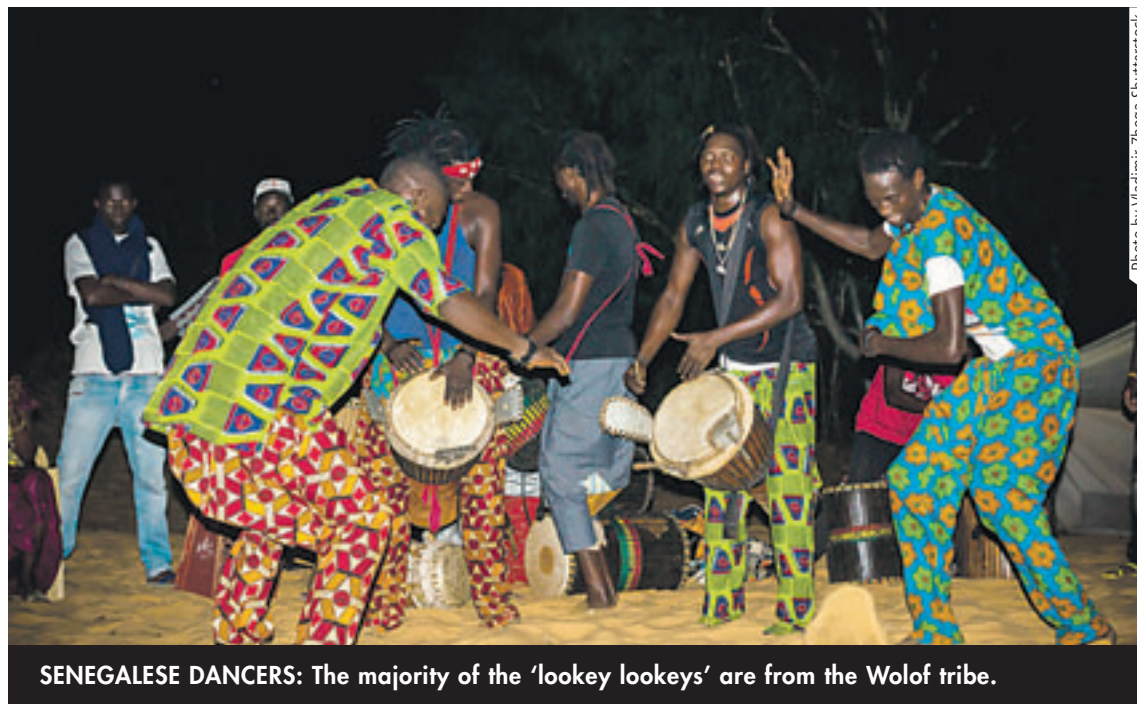

by Nicole King

WHEN I was about 12 we had to draw and colour the map of Africa. Although I enjoyed the art aspect of the assignment I clearly remember my lack of general interest, as I'd never be going there.

I couldn't have been more wrong. When trying to get my first work permit in Spain, before we joined the EEC, I was recommended to go to the British Consulate in Tangiers to stamp my papers. The trip didn't get me my papers and the weather was so bad I was trapped there for three days until the boats could cross the straits safely back to Spain.

I didn't dare venture from my hotel room until the moment I was about to leave, marked for life by the feeling of poverty and under-development that was so very tangible and so very different to the world I had just come from. The only thing that kept my fear at bay was reminding myself that all I had to do was hold out for a few days until the weather improved.

For thousands of Africans however, even in our 'modern' times, a chance of leaving means risking their lives and all too frequently so does staying at home.

It's kind of sad that we can live and work side by side with people who can be going through such extreme experiences but we can be completely oblivious to them. Particularly in Marbella we are blessed with unique opportunities to learn so much about so many, but perhaps because of the seemingly endless flow of knock-off products passing by with more frequency than the waves breaking on the shore we are forgetting to notice and get to know the really cool people who are selling them.

For example, did you know that some of our 'lookey lookeys' are from Cameroon and Nigeria but that the vast majority are from Senegal, and the vast majority of those from the Wolof tribe?

Had you ever even heard of the Wolof tribe, or the Wolof language, or the Wolof dance or thought how amazing it is that we have African tribesmen living in our midst?

I've always found it exciting to know that in Marbella we get a chance to dance flamenco, do an Irish jig, or even a traditional folk dance in our local world celebrations if we want to, but how cool would a tribal Wolof celebration be?

It certainly is anything but relaxing and can literally drive you to insanity when you're trying to nap on the beach or dine with friends to be thrown the same sales pitch time after time, but if we do have a moment to chat and you make an effort to be interested in the person, we will have at least extended the same courtesy as we would to any other fellow Marbellí, and that to me is about as 'bueno, bonito and barato' as it gets!

Neater Heater, introducing the Adax Neo

SINCE discovering the benefits of Norwegian designed convector heaters seven years ago Richard and Tony have been striving to give their customers more choice by adding variety to their range of Neater Heaters.

"The choice we can now offer through our website's online shop is quite staggering," said Richard. "We can offer the cheaper basic Adax VP range, glass fronted heaters in a variety of colours, our original Beha panel heater, the contemporary Neo Heater with digital controls and the quirky Vigo heater. They all function using the same Norwegian technology (except the Turkish manufactured Vigo heater), but they offer a variety of style choices and can, in the case of the Neo, offer a whole lot more."

"We have had Neos for a couple of years now and they have proved to be very popular," Tony informed us. "First of all, they come with a choice of colours: White, silver, black, red, light blue and pink. They have a stylish contemporary modern look to them with a small digital LED

The choices are yours. However, if the programmed temperature is not what you want, you can either temporarily override it for that specific period, or re-programme it, if you want a permanent change."

Neater Heaters are available as panel or skirting heaters. They can also all be supplied with feet to provide a stand-alone option.

There is now a network of agents and outlets throughout southern Spain. If your area is not covered, then the website's online shop will allow you to select and pay for your heater, which if in stock will be delivered to you by courier free of charge within a couple of days of purchase.

Food allergies are on the rise

FOOD allergies are increasing amongst the Spanish population and the country is not alone. According to the EACCI (European Academy of Allergy and Clinical Immunology), it is estimated that by 2025, one in every two Europeans will suffer from some form of allergy.

President of the the Spanish Association of People with Food and Latex Allergies (AEP-NAA), Angel Sanchez, said: "The impact of food allergies on patients themselves, on the family and society is very important, since it seriously limits the social, school and work activities of those who suffer from them. Everyday activities become truly complicated for those affected."

Food allergies, which occur when a person reacts to contact, ingestion or the inhalation of a food, may result from minor reactions such as a rash, hives, itching, cough, diarrhoea or vomiting, to more severe or serious reactions including respiratory distress, asthma, hypo tension, palpitations or anaphylactic shock.

Hospital admissions in children due to anaphylactic shock have risen in recent years. Although the data varies according to the age group or geographical area, in Spanish children, eggs and cow's milk are the most common allergies, followed by fish.

“ It is estimated that by 2025 one in every two Europeans will suffer from an allergy.

Some 1.3 million Spaniards are affected by allergies of some sort with nuts and seafood the most common amongst the adult population.

The figures were released during World Allergy Week.

Just because we grow older doesn't mean that we have to feel older. Unfortunately, sometimes our skin finds it difficult keeping up with the lively, energetic person we might be on the inside.

Botox eliminates all the dynamic wrinkles on the forehead, frown lines and around the eyes, producing a lifting effect of your eyebrows, leaving your face wrinkle-free but with a natural, younger and fresher look, not only because we use the best products on the market, but also due to the technique 'Arques Natural Expression', known for its completely natural results.

As we age, our skin produces less collagen and eventually loses its elasticity and youthful appearance. The revolutionary Platelet Rich Plasma (PRP) therapy harnesses the existing power of your own body to help healing and improving the look and feel of your skin.

The platelets in our blood are responsible for healing any damage to our skin. They have an ability to stimulate cell growth and regenerate tissue which, when used in PRP, can also help to promote the collagen in your skin to grow.

First, a small amount of blood is drawn from your arm and spun in a centrifuge until the red blood cells separate from the platelets and plasma. The platelet-rich plasma is then injected back into your troublesome areas to help soften, smooth and tighten your skin.

You may start to notice a significant difference in the texture and tone of your skin in just a few weeks, as your skin begins to start producing more collagen.

It can naturally improve the appearance of fine lines, wrinkles, sun damage and skin that looks dull and tired. It can rejuvenate your face, neck, hands, and other body areas giving the skin a more radiant, fresher and youthful look. It can also be used to improve the appearance of scars and stretch marks, as well as to stimulate hair growth.

ONE IN TEN: Men said they wanted less sex than their partner.

A SEX survey has revealed that almost two-thirds of couples say sex is an important part of their relationship, yet one in three women admit their partner wants more sex than they do.

The findings were revealed from a survey of 5,000 people aged between 16 and 65 who were in a relationship. It was carried out by researchers from the Open University and Huddersfield University and found that 33 per cent of women agreed with the statement that their partners wanted more sex than they did. However, it also revealed that they accepted this difference as 'part and parcel' of a normal relationship.

Just one in 10

men said they wanted sex less than their partner.

The findings were presented to the British Sociological Association's annual conference in Manchester.

Do you have the sleep gene?

ARE you one of the lucky ones who sleeps like a baby, or know someone who can 'sleep for England'? Well it could be in their genes.

Scientists claim that some people are born with a gene that helps them sleep better at night. The scientists at the Washington State University in the USA looked at how genes change during the sleep-wake cycle and found one called FABP7 which changed over the day throughout the Researchers found that those with a variant of the FABP7 gene tended to have irregular sleeping patterns. Whilst normally getting around the same amount of sleep as the others, they would often wake up regularly throughout the night.

Meanwhile, a study has suggested that sleeping less than five hours a night makes you twice as likely to develop prostate cancer.

Type 2 diabetes

SPECIALIST: Doctor Luis Perez Belmonte.

I'M a 50-year-old woman who has just been diagnosed with type 2 diabetes. I'm a little overweight but have never eaten many sweets. Can I do anything to fix it or will I need insulin?

Diabetes is a chronic illness which overweight and obese people are more likely to develop, regardless of how many sweets or cakes they eat. Usually it can be kept under control with pills, daily exercise and diet and insulin is kept for the most severe cases.

- So will I be on a diet for the rest of my life?

Yes, in that you will have to learn to follow a correct, balanced diet as this is an important part of treating diabetes.

- Will I have to stop drinking alcohol too?

You can drink without overdoing it. Two glasses of beer or wine (preferably red) are fine but stronger drinks should be left for special occasions.

- I've heard it's hereditary. Will my children get it too?

There is indeed an inherited genetic predisposition, yet weight is a more important factor. It's very rare for people who aren't overweight to develop this type of diabetes.

- I've heard diabetes can lead to other health problems. What are they and how can I avoid them?

Type 2 diabetes is a chronic illness which can cause inflammation of the arteries. This can lead to eyesight problems, kidney problems, affect nerves and increase the risk of heart attacks and strokes. The best way to reduce these risks is to keep up treatments, diet and exercise to keep your diabetes under control.

You should also stop smoking and keep an eye on your cholesterol and blood pressure levels.

A specialist in internal medicine can help you control all these factors.

- I didn't notice any symptoms before my diagnosis. Are there any warning signs?

Diabetes is tricky as there are often no symptoms initially. When they do appear they can range from a dry mouth, extreme tiredness, frequent urination and frequent infections to those of complications such as a heart attack or stroke.

If you have any symptoms something is amiss you should consult your specialist in internal medicine.

Casa Kon-Tiki in Fuengirola is now open again under new management NAMED after the Sun god of the Incas, Casa Kon-Tiki intends to be a shining light as it has just reopened after a five week total refurbishment.

The well-known restaurant near to the sea front has a new fitted kitchen, a new menu and most important of all a brand new team which is new to the restaurant, but has years of experience in preparing delicious food and offering a really first class table service.

Open continuously from 12 noon until 11pm every day of the week, this spacious restaurant offers drinks and food both on an airy patio or inside the well-presented restaurant.

The new menu includes very reasonably priced tapas made on the premises by the chefs and will include curry, chilli, meatballs, Russian salad and soup to mention just a few, but it will also be possible to order snacks, sandwiches and baguettes if you fancy a lunchtime 'lite bite.'

Main courses of which there are a wide variety include half a roast chicken, lasagne, gammon steak, curry and chilli with each dish costing just €6.95 and there is a menu del dia offer of a choice of starter, main and dessert for a very reasonable €10.95.

CASA KON-TIKI: Has been totally refurbished.

Sunday sees special roast meals and the whole ethic of the new Kon-Tiki is to offer quality food, real value for money in attractive and enjoyable surroundings.

It is not just the food that makes this an economical place to visit but the fully stocked bar offers draught beer and Strongbow cider at €1.95 a pint, a decent glass of wine at €1.50 and tea or coffee at €1.

All are welcome to visit including well-behaved dogs for those eating on the patio and with the ability to seat up to 100 people, inside and out, the restaurant is available for large bookings for family and company celebrations.

There is music in the background but it is not intrusive and the team wants to encourage guests to visit once to see how things have changed as they are confident this will once again become a popular spot for local residents and visitors who will return on a regular basis.

This is an oasis of good food at reasonable prices ideally situated near to the seafront and its easy parking.

Casa Kon-Tiki can be found at Calle Francisco Cano, 29, Fuengirola and if you would like to make a reservation call 678 292 792.

Aquamijas reopens for summer

ON Monday April 10, EWN headed to the highly anticipated reopening of Aquamijas. The park offers 11 main attractions, including the 15-metre high 'Kamikaze' slide, rapid rivers, and a spectacular wave pool.

Formerly known as 'Parque Aquatico Mijas,' the park has rebranded to Aquamijas, giving it a "younger and fresher feel," according to Director, Maria del Mar Asesio.

The gates have opened earlier than usual this year, capitalising on Semana Santa crowds, and the park was packed full of smiling faces.

Director Maria del Mar Asesio is optimistic for the summer season, and told EWN that she expects to surpass last year's figures, welcoming over 200,000 people to the park this year.

"Preliminary figures from the Regional Council of Andalusia indicate that this year is going to be a very good year for tourism."

Asesio is sure that "as long as the good weather continues, the park will have a successful summer."

Aquamijas has partnered with the Mijas Council and the Red Cross, in an initiative which aims to provide small children with nappies, wipes, bottles, and more.

OPEN EARLIER: Local authorities, park representatives and collaborating companies were present.

The park has donated 12,000 free tickets that people can claim every Wednesday between 5pm and 8pm at Teatro Las Lagunas, Mijas, in exchange for just a few items that the Red Cross can pass on to children in need.

Mayor of Mijas, Juan Carlos Maldonado, said that "the contribution Aquamijas makes to local tourism is significant and Mijas is delighted to collaborate with the park in activities which will allow local people access to its facilities."

With thrilling attractions, ample relaxation areas, a variety of entertainment, and several onsite restaurants, there is something for everyone at Aquamijas. The park will be open until September 30. For information on opening times, and to discover fantastic offers and discounts, head to www.aquamijas.com and book your tickets.

TOP THAI: A 'Top' restaurant.

If you want traditional and authentic Thai food, then Top Thai (named after the chef Mr Top) is the place to visit especially as it can boast that it is listed as one of the Top restaurants in Puerto Banus on TripAdvisor.

The original concept when the restaurant was first set up was to offer good value, tasty and genuine Thai food from a restaurant run by a family (plus friend) and success brought the need to expand.

In July 2013, they opened the new Top Thai Restaurant in the Centro Plaza of Nueva Andalucía with a terrace for the summer and room to seat up to 80 guests.

The restaurant is simple, clean and friendly with a theme in the decoration and staff who understand the food that is being offered with the traditional Thai politeness to all that they serve.

The menu seems endless but each of the dishes are based on one or more of the Thai main ingredients including coriander, chilli, lemongrass and shallots as well as some of the aromatic sauces that Thailand is famous for.

Don't be afraid to explain if you have any nut allergies or like your food hot or mild as the restaurant will do all that it can to meet your requirements.

So popular is this restaurant that they have now opened another branch in the charming Laguna Village Estepona with dining both inside and on the terrace overlooking the Mediterranean.

Are you a Dirty Beer Drinker?

GOOD FOOD, GOOD WINE AND GOOD FRIENDS WITH GARRY WAITE

Pubs in the city of Bath serve the least clean beer in the UK, while the South West is the worst region for unclean beer lines (with 40 per cent of lines unclean).

DON'T GET ME WRONG! I'm not accusing beer drinkers of being 'dirty'! We are actually talking about the beer itself. I am not a beer drinker as such, but admit in the summer to be able to sink a couple of draught Mahou or Alambra and watching the cooling effect of the condensation running down the side of the glass.

On the few occasions that I have ventured back to the UK the first thing that my dear late father and I would do was to go to a local country pub where he would have a small 'boy's beer' - obviously the least potent on offer, normally a pale ale type beverage!! - and I would go for one of the highly popular selections of real ales now in abundance especially in the South West of England.

Two pints of that - in a mug not a sleeve - and that would be my craving for 'English Beer' satisfied and would probably be my last visit to a pub that trip!

But a recent report discovers the following little known facts that have further fuelled the 'North-South' divide!!

Meanwhile, Newcastle and Warrington are where the cleanest beer can be found, with the North East the cleanest region with only 27 per cent of beer lines adjudged to be unclean.

These bombshell findings came into the public arena thanks to the findings of the Beer Quality Report 2017. Apparently, researched by that internet of things provider Vianet, that monitors the flow of beer through lines in pubs across the country, together with beer quality accreditation and training firm, Cask Marque.

Any bar man/pub landlord should know that the cleaning of pipes and equipment should take place every seven days.

As a trainee in the UK we had to clean pipes after the weekend which was done on a Monday morning by the staff. Over here the cleaning is undertaken by the suppliers of which ever beer that the establishment uses. Obvious the light beer/lager style that we serve in Spain does not create as much grime as a real ale, so greater care has to be given to the great British beer!!

Whichever way you like to drink it - you pays your money and makes your choice.

The report found while beer may be substantially more expensive in the South - in some cases almost £1 a pint more - quality can be substantially lower. Another fact that confirms what many visitors coming to the UK unaccustomed to Britain's Real Ale Drinking Culture know, is in many cases the beer is served too warm.

In other findings, one in four pubs were found to have major temperature issues with 6 per cent of all pints served too warm with the West Midlands most likely to keep their beer at the right temperature and Scotland was the region with the highest percentage of beer served too warm! Well I suppose it's cold enough at the best of times north of the border!!

CALVADOS IS ONE OF THOSE LIQUEURS, (or is it a brandy?) that is divisive. Similar to the age old quip about Marmite, you either drink it or avoid it. Although, I have never seen an accolade such that has been levelled at my featured drink this week. THE WORLD'S BEST CALVADOS 2017.

The story of Drouin Calvados started around 1960. Apart from a love of good food and fine wine, there was nothing to suggest that Christian Drouin the elder, an industrialist from Rouen, was destined for a career in spirits. Despite this, he purchased a farm in Gonneville with one aim - to produce the very best spirit he could from the cider apple orchards. Fast forward almost 60 years and his Calvados' are now some of the most sought after and awarded in the world with the 1989 being the pick of the bunch.

For a Calvados to be classified as 'Pays d'Auge,' it must adhere to various rules, including being double distilled and being aged for a minimum of two years in oak barrels. It is also limited in the production area to the east end of the department of Calvados between Caen and Rouen. Due to this permitted delimited area, production and availability is always limited. However, that hasn't stopped it picking up the award for 'The World's Best Calvados' at the recent World Drinks Awards which is amongst the most coveted awards on the planet. To win this award is to be up there with the greatest achievements that any product can receive. The 1989 Pays d'Auge will now join an elite group of other Calvados' to achieve such heights Tasting notes: "Restrained on the nose with baked apples and light vanilla notes. Almost lemon zest freshness. Lean and zesty with a sharpness of fruit. Well paired with pastry or crumble based desserts."

Oh well, I have always used Calvados to “ Alcohol may be man's worst enemy, but the bible says love your enemy.”

Double distilled and finished in sherry casks, the 1989 vintage was bottled in 2015 and retails at a cool 150€ (prices can vary throughout Europe).

THERE'S PLENTY MORE FISH IN THE SEA, as the age old expression goes!! But I never wanted to go out with a fish!! But in reality there is 'something fishy going on in the state of'... well in this case - Norway!

Three fishing areas in the North Sea have seen haddock sustainability downgraded after a fall in stocks but the downgrading of haddock does not apply to any Norwegian fishing grounds. Norway is home to one of the largest haddock stocks in the world, but this is no coincidence. It takes a lot of hard work and a strict quota system to maintain.

Haddock has been on the International Fisheries watch list for many years as it has been overfished from the North Sea and the Atlantic Ocean. With the expansion of fish farming things have taken an upward swing. Thanks to Norway's scientifically managed fisheries, haddock stocks remain abundant in Norway's cold, clear waters. Which means Britain's staple Haddock and Chips is not in danger - yet! Haddock is the usual fish of choice in Scotland, Yorkshire, other parts of Northern England and many parts of the Midlands. Thanks mainly to our affinity to fish & chips (around 382m portions consumed per annum), the UK is the biggest haddock market in the world, consuming around 120,000 tonnes annually. Only 30 per cent of the haddock we eat is caught from UK waters, therefore there is a constant need to source outside the UK to satisfy demand - 70 per cent comes from the Barents Sea (*)

The Good Fish Guide, published by the Marine Conservation Society states: 'Depending on how and where it's caught, this species ranges from sustainable to unsustainable. Check individual options to make the best choice.' Norway's haddock stocks, all of which come from the North East Arctic, are classed as 'good sustainable fish to eat' by the Guide.

ON THAT NOTE I will bid you farewell until next week and should aspiring restaurateurs need some help or advice, please do not hesitate to contact me. A toast to Good Food, Good Wine and Good Friends.

(*) The Barents Sea is a marginal sea of the Arctic Ocean located off the northern coasts of Norway and Russia divided between Norwegian and Russian territorial waters.

Ready to cooperate

Cassandra Nash

A weekly look

- and not entirely impartial reaction - to the Spanish political scene

THERESA MAY'S 'dear John' letter to Brussels activating Article 50 and Brexit was achingly polite.

But May did not get off to the best of starts as every member of the remaining EU family homed in on a barely-veiled warning about cooperation on security and terrorism and compared it to blackmail.

On the other hand Spain doesn't do too badly in combatting terrorism on its home ground, with a regular haul of would-be jihadists. And May would do well to remember that cooperation cuts two ways.

Vote-catchers

NICOLAS MADURO half-heartedly backed off from his intention of stripping Venezuela's parliament of its powers but before that, Spain reacted as would be expected.

All the country's main political parties condemned the attempt except Podemos, some of whose leading figures were in the past well-paid to assess and advise Hugo Chavez and later Nicolas Maduro, his successor.

It was necessary first to "focus on the complexity of the matter" explained Pablo Bustinduy, responsible for Podemos's international relations. Maduro was 'democratically' elected, he unblushingly maintained.

Next he'll be saying that Kim Jong-un was, too.

No laughing matter

CASANDRA VERA, a 21-year-old from Murcia received a one-year prison sentence for joking on Twitter about Luis Carrero Blanco, Franco's prime minister and probable successor.

His car was blown up by ETA in 1973 and Vera was recently found guilty of exalting terrorism and humiliating its victims.

The jokes that Vera tweeted between 2013 and 2016 have been doing the rounds since 1973 and some were much funnier than Vera's: Spain is, after all, the home of black humour.

But pursuing her under anti-terrorism legislation doesn't put Spain's legal system in a good light and doubtless will provide ample opportunities for more jokes.

Deviating from the script

WHEN the then Spanish president Jose Maria Aznar signed up for the Iraq war he stressed that the troops would provide 'humanitarian support.'

There wasn't much humane about the Iraq war but the Spanish contingent in Nayaf did as good a job as they could. Their softly-softly approach, understanding of local customs and politics was popular with the Iraqis and getting good results.

That wasn't what the Americans wanted and instead the Spanish were accused in April 2004 of 'sitting on their arses' and 'watching American soldiers getting shot.'

Unlike the US troops and the Blackwater mercenaries the Spanish were aware that wars are not fought or won according to Hollywood scripts.

Get a fresh breeze and decorate your home

MOST interior designers don't like ceiling fans because they think fans are outdated and ugly. But what if you don't like running air conditioning and want to focus on better room climate, good air circulation and energy efficiency?

No worries, in searching for an attractive looking ceiling fan you will surely find your perfect ceiling fan at Casa Bruno American Home Decor. They carry beautifully designed ceiling fans from ultra contemporary to transitional, decorative, tropical or even traditional, matching any interior style.

A ceiling fan from Casa Bruno can really be an eye catcher. But you can even get your fan to blend into its surroundings and almost disappear by having one with retractable clear blades or one that is the same colour as the ceiling.

'Lights or no lights?' is another question. If you research Casa Bruno's fans with lights you will realise you will not even notice the lights in most ceiling fans because they are so streamlined and contemporary. If your room needs overhead light, why not

Versatile pallets - turn them into planters

PALLETS are very useful in the garden, and can be manipulated into a structure that presents plants and flowers in creative ways.

Summer is on the way and it's time to start planting. If there is a shortage of garden planters, there is a solution in the form of a wooden pallet. They are normally used for shipping and storage, but have recently become popular in creative home and garden projects.

Pallets are versatile, and can be manipulated into a structure, such as planters, displays, garden furniture, and even used to build a house. A garden that has a patio with a barbecue would find a free standing, pallet herb garden useful. It is a perfect structure to display herbs and also becomes a decorative feature.

To start off, it's a good idea to choose a kiln-dried pallet that has had heat and chemical treatment. Then remove three of the horizontal boards from one side. Sand down splinters, rough edges and hammer down all nails.

To create a support for the pallet, scrap wood can be used and if this seems challenging, find a friend who is good at DIY.

To protect the wood, it's a good idea to use some wood stain. Finally, take some fabric weed barrier and cut into shape, stapling it into shape between the pallet boards and then fill the pockets with herbs.

The pallet herb planter provides storage for herbs and a stunning display in the garden.

Crop rotation in a vegetable garden

By Graeme Tyrrell

FINDING ways to improve the quality of a vegetable garden is every gardener's aim.

A natural method to improve soil fertility, reduce weed proliferation and assist in keeping pests and disease under control can be simply planning the garden to introduce a crop rotation system.

It works very well for annual vegetables that you replant every year and should be considered when biannual and perennial plants need replacing.

Crop rotation is not essential if you build up the soil with regular composting after each crop and keep your weeds, pests and diseases under control in other manners, such as intermixing plants of different types in the same beds, but if you prefer the convenience of growing rows or blocks of the same plants together for easier planting out and harvest, it is a very beneficial method.

The principles of crop rota-

tion are that the main plant groups of root vegetables, legumes, nightshade (tomato and potato family), onion family, vines (squash, cucumber, melon families), leafy greens and other types of plants, such as herbs, are planted in groups in different beds and each season they are replaced by a different group of vegetables or plants so that the plant groups are always rotating to different beds.

If you have enough beds it is also a good idea to include a bed as fallow for a season to rest the soil. I usually don't even water the fallow beds to allow the sun to do its work to sterilise the soil as it remains dried out and inhospitable to most bugs and soil borne diseases.

There are different ways to categorise the plant groups and each has its advantages but generally I follow the principles of just making sure that something different is planted each time with consideration of what was planted in previous years to fit as best as possible the idea of having constantly changing plant groups.

Each group of plants for rotation have different nutrient requirements, influence the weeds ability to grow differently, thus reducing the ability of domination by any particular weed, have different pest and disease problems so rotating reduces the build up of soil diseases and pests in the garden beds.

So moving the site for growing vegetables each season changes the ecology of the soil system in a way that supports healthier growth for the next crop than is the case when the same plants are continually planted in the same beds season after season.

Legumes are well known to fix nitrogen in the soil which would benefit green leaf vegetables rotated after the legumes. Research has shown that potatoes grow better after a crop of sweet corn.

When potatoes and tomatoes are grown in the same bed for consecutive years they can lose as much as 40 per cent of production even with the same soil improvements added.

It is therefore worth incorporating this method into the gardens routine of planting to gain maximum benefit with just a little more planning and the application of crop rotation.

Small space, big space

SMALL places to live can be quite a challenge, so it is worthwhile thinking about some clever ideas that trick the eye into making the area appear more spacious.

When there is not even enough room to swing a cat, there are solutions to this problem of living in a small place. It is possible to make the most of the space through clever storage, lighting, colour and furnishings, turning a small cramped room into one that feels warm, cosy and stylish.

There are techniques that can be applied when decorating, that will get the best out of the light and space of a room. The use of window blinds can be exchanged for flowing drapes, which work by drawing attention to the vertical space. There are ways of using mirrors that can create the impression of extra space and when put behind a lamp, there is reflection and a warm ambience. If you position a mirror near a window, it can give you the illusion of another.

More ideas to consider are filling a blank vertical space on the wall with an arrangement of artwork. The room will feel larger, because it encourages viewing above the horizontal space. Colour is important as off white and beige colours extend the walls out and give a calm atmosphere. If small-scale furniture is added, this can help to deflect away from the reality of a small space.

Casper a rescued cat loves being at home

RESCUED: Cats like Casper often prefer home comforts.

MANY of our homeowners and pet owners in Spain take in rescued animals and care for them at home. It often takes the newly adopted pets a few months to settle in and feel safe and at home. Then when the owners plan to go away on holiday, they can begin to worry about what to do with the adopted or rescued pet. How will they be affected by the sudden disappearance of the owner? What if they go to new kennels or a home to be cared for and will the new smells be alien to them?

One of our homeowners Teresa has six rescued cats living with her. She is always mindful that she prefers the cats to be cared for at home, to maintain their routines as much as possible. One of her cats Casper was rescued 18 months ago and though comfortable at home now, it's always interested and perhaps a little nervous of strangers. Teresa chooses cat lovers when she selects new house-sitters to come to her home and care for the cats while she is away. We have helped Teresa find great sitters, with police checks and references on several occasions now.

Do you need a house or pet-sitter? Get in touch. House-sitting can be a win-win situation for both parties, a free house, pet-sitting, and the experienced and checked sitters get free accommodation! Register as either house-sitter or homeowner now with a 50 per cent off, introductory offer using coupon code SPECIAL50. To find a house or pet-sitter go to www.HousesitMatch.com.

Clever cats love us

By Francesca Souter

RESEARCH conducted by scientists in Japan has revealed that contrary to popular belief, cats are actually equal to their canine counterparts when it comes to intelligence.

Previous arguments cited a dog's ability to be trained and learn commands as evidence that they have superior mental abilities, but in reality a cat could do exactly the same if it wanted to. The differences lie in their desire to do a certain activity. We know that many cats are independent and will come and go as they please, whereas dogs are pack animals that respond to a social hierarchy.

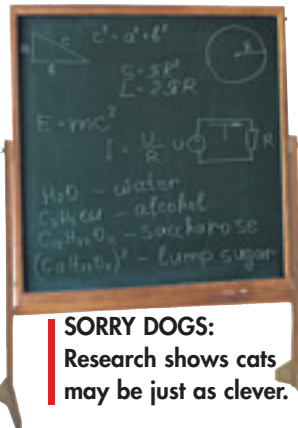

Japanese scientists have found that cats can respond to human commands, gestures, emotions and expressions, just like dogs.

However, the most interesting study involves a cat's memory. We already know that dogs have episodic memories and recall past events.

This suggests that not only do cats also have the same capacity for memory, but they may actually enjoy recalling specific memories, especially of human interactions. This shows a higher level of intelligence than has ever previously been expected and may help to settle the question of whether cats are capable of loving their owners.

SORRY DOGS: Research shows cats may be just as clever.

HEALTHY DOG: I always expect the best quality.

DOG foods vary in quality and so do the companies that make them. For some companies quality is only a word, for others, it's a way of life.

Ultimately, the quality of a dog food is best measured by your dog. Evidence of this shows in how your dog performs on the food, and how he looks, feels and acts. At least 30 per cent of my clients, report an improvement in behaviour when they change their food.

Not all dogs do well on a particular brand of food; some dogs simply do better than others.

Most foods are categorised as economy, regular, premium, super premium and performance. Regular and premium foods are not formulated like a super premium or performance food.

Dogs have simple stomachs and short digestive tracts for digesting meat. They also lack the saliva enzyme amylase, which is necessary for pre-digesting starch.

Dogs have adapted to foods with high vegetable protein levels, however they perform better when fed foods high in meat protein and animal fats.

When checking the label of a super premium or performance food, an animal protein will be listed as the first or second major ingredient. These should include either chicken, or turkey meat, or poultry by-products. At least two sources of fat or oil should be included for adequate energy and essential fatty acids.

Fat in food is the dog's source of energy. Animal fat contains essential and non-essential fatty acids as well as providing a highly digestible and easily metabolised energy source. Generally, poultry, turkey or chicken fat are higher in quality because they have more unsaturated fatty acids and are more digestible than animal tallow.

Vegetable oils, such as soybean oil, lecithin corn oil, wheat germ oil, sesame seed oil or linseed oil all contain high levels of linoleic acid, an essential fatty acid for dogs. These should be combined with animal fats for the best results for a glossy coat and soft pliable skin.

Carbohydrates are the third most important nutrient and ingredient class in modern super premium and performance foods. Simple carbohydrates in dog food come from quality sources like rice, oatmeal, corn or wheat. These are easily digested when properly cooked.

Fibre, a complex carbohydrate is essential for proper digestion and stool formation. Beet pulp and tomato pomace are both high in fibre. Other sources of fibre include rice, soy hulls, oat hulls, wheat bran and peanut hulls. All these come from the external portion of the seed coat. These sources except peanut hulls have microscopic sharp edges, which can cause small cuts in the intestine. This reduces the intestine's effectiveness in nutrient digestion.

Peanut hulls on the other hand, have the potential of being contaminated with aflatoxins and should never be used in a quality dog or cat food.

Vitamin and mineral fortification is an absolute necessity in nutritionally balancing any food for dogs. While the vitamins and minerals generally, make up less than 2 per cent of the total food by weight, they provide some of the most crucial nutrients. These include 12 to 16 vitamins and 15 to 25 minerals.

Often there are more micro nutrients than major ingredients. Super premium usually features more than one source for each vitamin and mineral.

CHARITIES

ACE CHARITY "El Refugio" in La Cala de Mijas is a registered charity. We have on average 275 dogs in our care and we receive no help from the Town Hall or the Andalusian government. We desperately need foster homes and adoptants for our many dogs, especially the small ones and puppies who do not do well in a big shelter. We are grateful for any help offered, including donations of food and blankets. Visiting times are from 13.00 to 15.00 and you can always turn up or make an appointment by calling Denise on 669 018 736. Our website is www.ace-charity.org where you can view all the dogs in our care. (93320)

ADANA THE ANIMAL SHELTER IN ESTEPONA. We always need volunteers to walk and socialise with our dogs and help with cleaning. We also need good homes for our animals that you can see on www.adana.es. Kennels open every day 10-1.30, Camino de Casares, near Parque de los Pedregales, Estepona. (5 minutes from the Poligono) For more information call 952 113 467, available from 10.00am until 14.00pm. SEPE the horse and donkey charity is open to the public week-ends from 10.00 to 5.00. Volunteers are much needed in all departments and are welcome at anytime. For our riding for the disabled classes, we are also in need of extra helpers. We are nationally registered by the Spanish Ministry of the Interior (164640) but only with your support can we give the equine a voice. If you can just commit to 2 or 3 euros a month it will really help make a difference. You can find us at Lauro Golf Equestrian Centre, Alqueria, Alhaurin de la Torre. Tel. 608 258 950 info@sepeonline.net www.sepeonline.net (93321)

AT SOS ANIMAL REFUGE we have dogs, young and old looking for homes. Some of our dogs have been with us for some time and would love to find a cosy spot to curl up in and a knee on which to rest their heads. If you have room in your heart and home we would love to hear from you. We do not put our dogs to sleep - no matter how old, they are safe with us. For day to day needs and to pay for veterinary care, we much appreciate the support we receive. We desperately need items to sell on our market stall to help raise funds and are happy to come and collect. So if you are having a clear-out, please contact us on 605 227 155. If you would like to know more about re-homing, please call 653 257 875. Record UK car sales CAR sale records were smashed in the UK as British drivers rushed to escape hefty new environmental taxes imposed on all new car purchases from April 1.

Now only cars with absolutely zero emissions are exempt from the punitive tax that previously affected gas-guzzlers but not the average vehicle.

The annual tax now stands at £140 (€ 164) for standard cars. Though surely not the sole reason, the increase precipitated a huge volume of sales in March as 562,337 new cars were registered more than in January and February combined. In 2016 a record 2.7 million cars were sold.

March's best seller was the evergreen Ford Fiesta which shifted 25,428 units, significantly more than the Focus at 17,119. Volkswagen, Vauxhall and Nissan are the nation's three other favourite brands.

MAZDA'S MX-5 RF is the latest winner of one of the world's top design awards. The stylish two-seater retractable won the Red Dot: Best of the Best 2017 prize for its visionary design, hailed as a perfect blend of beauty, practicability, and quality.

It's the second time the Japanese brand, which has gone from strength to strength since ending its partnership with Ford, has won the award. The fourth generation MX-5 soft top achieved the same honour in 2015.

The RF is lightweight, fun to drive and can easily back up its claim to be the best roadster in history, design experts claimed. It was selected by a panel of 39 mechanics, design professors and journalists who scoured 5,500 entries, making a shortlist of 102 finalists.

They base their decision on ergonomics, creativity, material quality, green credentials, and functionality. The Red Dot competition is extremely influential in the motoring world. There are 47 categories overall, with each winner having the right to bear the distinguished Red Dot label, an international seal of design excellence.

All winners have been showcased at the Red Dot Design Museum in Essen, Germany since its inception in 1955.

This year's winner of the Red

Dot motorbike design award was the 2017 Yamaha XSR900.

A force of nature

THE world has a new fastest production car. The Bugatti Chiron has a theoretical maximum speed of almost 300mph. That monstrous figure is electronically limited to 261mph (420kph), a symbolic 3mph faster than its predecessor the Veyron. Just for kicks, the speedometer goes up to 500kph.

Named after race driver Louis Chiron who, at 55 was the oldest man to ever race Formula One, the sleek £1.9 (€2.2) million package comes with an evolved 8.0 litre quad turbo W16 engine with a seven-speed twin clutch.

It is not a hybrid. The Chiron can produce 1479bhp and 1180lb ft of torque. It can reach 186mph (300kph) from a standstill in 13.6 seconds, faster than a McLaren P1.

Built largely from carbon fibre the Chiron weighs just 1,995kg and has five different driving modes - Auto, Autobahn for cruising, Handling for track works, Lift for speed bumps and Top Speed presumably for the Mojave desert.

There are three turbos, four water pumps, 10 radiators, 16 cylinders, 32 fuel injectors and 60,000 litres of air pumping around each minute. There's even a one carat diamond in the speakers.

Only 500 Chirons are scheduled for production and 120 have already been snapped up despite the enormous asking price. Many of those buyers will have forked out an extra million just for the privilege of getting it ahead of time.

ROAD TEST by Nick Fletcher

Suzuki S-Cross SZ5

SUZUKI'S original S-Cross didn't look as sharp or as classy as its main rival, the Nissan Qashqai. But now a new version of the S-Cross is available and Suzuki has addressed those styling issues.

New S-Cross has a bigger, bolder and much more noticeable front end, giving the model greater road presence, and inside there is a softer feel and more classy look to the dashboard and upgraded fabrics for the seats. The revised styling comes together well and widens the market for this type of car, which tends to appeal to more image-conscious buyers.

Under the bonnet, the old 1.6 litre petrol engine has gone, replaced by turbocharged 1.0 or 1.4 litre units, with the smaller one offering less horsepower yet delivering better performance, and with reduced emissions and improved fuel consumption.

The new 1.4 does better still in the pulling power stakes as well as offering 138 hp and a little more economy than the previous 1.6 litre engine. There is also a 1.6 litre 118 hp diesel available, mildly modified from last time and with slightly improved emissions. It produces combined fuel economy of 24.3 kpl (68.8 mpg). Four wheel drive is available as an option with all the engines.

S-Cross prices start at €17,583 (£14,999) for a 1.0 litre version that comes with Bluetooth, digital radio, air conditioning, alloy wheels, heated door mirrors and seven airbags.

Mid-range models add satellite navigation, dual zone climate control, front and rear parking sensors, rear parking camera, rear privacy glass, bigger alloys and LED headlights.

The top-spec S-Cross SZ5 All Grip features extra kit including leather trim, heated front seats, large opening glass sunroof and alloy roof rails among an extensive standard features list. My SZ5 4x4 test model cost €26,786 (£22,849) and had the 1.4 litre engine and six-speed manual gearbox. The 0-100 kph time is a nippy 10.2 seconds and fuel economy is 17.8 kpl (50.4 mpg).

The cabin is roomy front and rear and the 430 litre boot is a decent size and can be expanded to 875 litres by dropping the rear seats. I found the S-Cross very pleasant to drive - smooth, quiet and responsive, with composed cornering and a comfortable ride. What was especially impressive was its precise light-touch agility making it effortless to drive.

Add that to its attractive new look and Suzuki's excellent reliability record and it is clear the S-Cross is now a strong competitor in the expanding SUV sector.

Stats panel:

Model: Suzuki S-Cross SZ5 4x4
Engine: 1.4 litre petrol
Transmission: 6-speed manual
Performance: 0-100 kph 10.2 seconds
Economy: 17.8 kpl (50.4 mpg)
Emissions: 127g/km

New York, New York

JUST one month after the 2017 Geneva Motor Show closed its gates, the motoring press is in New York City preparing for even more debuts and glimpses into what 2018 holds in store. The New York Motor Show runs from April 14-23 and is the 117th edition of the continent's biggest motoring feast.

A full preview is now available and shows that the show will keep true to its roots with a more American feel than its Swiss or French counterparts.

There's the Jeep Grand Cherokee Trackhawk, the latest off-road beast to channel the advertising world's inner Indian. It has a powerful 6.2 litre V8 engine with 707hp. If that's not enough there's the Dodge Challenger SRT Demon, more lightweight than the Hellcat but with 800hp to satisfy power trippers.

Another American classic in the mix is the Buick Regal TourX an estate car set to challenge Volvo and Audi for North American dominance and showing that SUVs aren't always the best option for family drivers.

The Range Rover Velar, a huge hit in Europe, will also make its play for the lucrative American big car market. Reasonably priced at around €40,000, it is already on sale in the States.

from April 14-23.

WE have less sport this weekend than last Saturday and Sunday but nevertheless there's still plenty going on to please everyone.

We'll start with football, and the Premiership matches over Easter are Crystal Palace-Leicester, Everton-Burnley, Southampton-Manchester City, Spurs-Bournemouth, Stoke-Hull, Sunderland-West Ham and Watford-Swansea on Saturday, Manchester United-Chelsea and WBA-Liverpool on Sunday and Middlesbrough-Arsenal on Monday evening.

There's virtually a full Championship programme on Good Friday, the stand-out games being Huddersfield-Preston, Newcastle-Leeds, Norwich-Fulham and Wolves-Brighton while on Saturday, Aston Villa play Reading.

Then, on Easter Monday, all 72 Championship, FL1 and FL2 clubs are in action, several of them being involved in promotion, play-off and relegation battles.

In Spain, Real Madrid, seeking their 33rd La Liga title, visit Sporting Gijon while Barcelona (2nd) face Real Sociedad (7th).

Meanwhile, tonight Manchester United play Anderlecht in the first leg of their Europa League quarter-final. The return clash is at Old Trafford next week.

Champions League matches took place on Tuesday and last night (see Round Up).

Moving onto motor sport, and on Sunday, the third F1 Grand Prix of 2017 takes place in Bahrain while at Donington Park in Leicestershire, we have the second round of the 2017 British Touring Car Championship with Matt Neal expected to do well.

Also this weekend, the World Snooker Championship gets underway at The Crucible in Sheffield.

ROUND UP:

- Over 70,000 punters saw One For Arthur, trained by Lucinda Russell and ridden by Derek Fox, win last Saturday's Grand National. The 14-1 shot was the first Scottish-based winner since Rubstic in 1979. Cause of Causes, my each-way choice Saint Are (25-1) and the favourite Blaklion finished 2-3-4.

- Sergio Garcia won golf's Augusta Masters, beating England's Justin Rose after an extra hole play-off. The Spaniard claimed his first major triumph after 74 attempts after a quite thrilling and absorbing tournament.

- It was Lewis Hamilton, Sebastian Vettel and Max Verstappen 1-2-3 in the Chinese Grand Prix in Shanghai.

- Spain superstar Maverick Vinales made it two out of two with victory in the second MotoGP of 2017 in Argentina. Valentino Rossi was second and Cal Crutchlow third.

- GB, without Andy Murray, lost to France in the Davis Cup quarter-final.

- Premiership leaders Chelsea won 3-1 at Bournemouth; Manchester City (4th) beat Hull 3-1; Liverpool (3rd) defeated Stoke 2-1; Leicester lost for the first time under boss Craig Shakespeare, going down 4-2 at Everton; 10-man Sunderland (bottom) were humbled 3-0 at home by Manchester United; WBA lost 1-0 against Southampton; West Ham pipped Swansea (18th) 1-0; Spurs (2nd) walloped Watford 4-0 and Burnley and Middlesbrough (19th) drew 0-0. Arsenal played Crystal Palace on Monday.

- In the Championship, Newcastle (2nd) lost 2-1 at Sheffield Wednesday (6th); Brighton (top) won at QPR; Huddersfield (3rd) went down at Nottingham Forest; Leeds (5th) beat 2-0 and Norwich thrashed Reading (4th) 7-1.

- In FL1, leaders Sheffield United beat Northampton 2-1 but second-placed Bolton lost 1-0 at Scunthorpe, while the top three in FL2 all won, Doncaster against Mansfield, Plymouth over Crawley and Portsmouth versus Yeovil.

- In the SPL, champions Celtic defeated Kilmarnock 3-1 and Rangers won 3-0 at Aberdeen.

- Real Madrid - La Liga leaders by three points with a game in hand - were held 1-1 by city neighbours Atletico in the local derby, while second-placed Barcelona, who had Neymar sent-off, lost 2-0 at Malaga.

- On Tuesday, Serie 'A' champions-elect Juventus played Barcelona and Borussia Dortmund met AS Monaco in the first legs of the Champions League quarter-finals and last night, it was Atletico Madrid v Leicester City and soon to be declared Bundesliga champions Bayern Munich v Spanish club Real Madrid. The return games take place next Tuesday/Wednesday.

- Castleford Tigers (14 pts), Salford Red Devils (12) and Leeds Rhinos (12) stand 1-2-3 in Rugby's Super League. Widnes Vikings are bottom. And it's Wasps (74 pts), Exeter (69) and Saracens (68) at the top of the Aviva PL.

- Former Harlequins and England Rugby Union international hooker Brian Moore is in hospital after suffering a heart attack. We wish him well.

LEWIS HAMILTON: Won the Chinese Grand Prix in Shanghai.

DID YOU KNOW?

OF the 33m people (4/5ths Asian) who 'say' they support Manchester United, hundreds try in vain to obtain one of the 76,000 tickets for a game at Old Trafford, because the club, said in The Bleacher Report to be the most-hated in the world, doesn't care about fans! Loads of tickets go out to sponsors and some companies don't even bother to hand them to serious football fans, hence at times, thousands of seats remain empty at the ground! Earlier this year, a crowd of 75,229 was declared by MU but the official attendance on the day was 66,782. Say no more!

THE Marbella Club's course was designed by Dave Thomas who reached two Open play offs and was a regular Ryder Cup team. His golf course architecture and design can be found on over 100 courses around the world including the PGA National course and The Belfry.

The picturesque first hole typifies the quality of the course's design with beautifully contoured fairways and immaculate fast greens.

The 18 holes have water features and demanding bunkers which are a trademark of the course designer. Bermuda 419 grass has been utilised on the fairways and tees, a blend of three grasses on the ante greens with a relatively new strain of American grass on the greens.

The computer controlled irrigation system, alongside the latest in fairway moulding and contouring techniques allows the course to be maintained in impeccable condition for year-round play.

The front nine provides the unique experience of three consecutive par 5s, which not only represent a severe test early in the round but also offers some of the most picturesque scenery on the golf course.

Stretching for over 6000 metres, combining length with clever placement of bunkers and water hazards plus intriguing green designs, the par 73 course culminates in one of the most dramatic 18th tees in Europe. One of many elevated tees, the par 5, is a memorable final hole.

Mijas Bowls Club in-house competitions

THE Mijas Bowls Club in-house competitions were held over a number of weeks in the hope that it would be possible to hold the semi-finals and finals over a two-day period but that was not to be as the same names were appearing in more than one discipline. However, winners were finally found.

The Ladies' Singles winner was Val Thornton who beat Jennie Parkin quite convincingly.

The Men's Singles was won by Dave Wilson against Tony Barnes. Tony was stuck on 18 for several ends and was unable to move off it, giving Dave the chance to creep ahead.

Val and Dave have represented Mijas in the Champion of Champions.

The Handicap Singles, this year played as a 'roving jack' competition, was won by Peter Allard, leaving Tony Thornton the runner-up.

In the Drawn Pairs Tony Thornton and Carol Wright were beaten in the final by Robert Wright and Geoff Collins.

The Drawn Triples result was a win for Tony Thornton, Robert Wright and Stuart Parkin over Barbara Land, Geoff Collins and Frank Richardson.

The prize-giving took place in the clubhouse afterwards along with a buffet lunch prepared by Carol Wright.

Fancy playing bowls at Mijas Bowls Club? If so, whether you are a beginner or an experienced bowler, why not call club captain Robert Wright on 952 492 434? You will be made very welcome.

Mijas Bowls Club is situated just off the Carretera de Mijas at 1.8 kms. Turn into Camino de Cortijo Grande at the Farmacia del Agua and you will find the club 150 metres on the left.

Club days are normally held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 1.30pm for 2pm and Sunday mornings at 10am for 10.30am.

WINNING SMILES: The club and its members are on top form.

Benavista Bowls Club

IT has been a successful year for Benavista Bowls Club. Not only is the club the Lions League Champions and member Mike Old was runner-up in the Champion of Champions Competition, but it has also added League Cup Winners to its tally.

On April 1 Lauro Bowls Club provided a wonderful setting for some superb bowling by Benavista and Benalmadena Bowls Club in the final of this competition, which saw Benavista coming out on top.

Individual trophies were presented to each player by the Federation as mementoes, as well as the impressive winners trophy. Thanks to Lauro Bowls Club for its great hospitality on the day.

Benavista Bowls Club is open seven days a week and welcomes visitors. For more information just drop by the club or call 952 885 148.
