Sex assault suspect jailed as case continues

By Matt Ford

The Guardia Civil has opened an investigation into the alleged sexual assault of a 37-year-old woman in broad daylight on Nerja's Burriana Beach.

A 25-year-old man has been jailed in the wake of the allegations and could be handed a four to 10-year prison sentence, with the victim apparently under the influence of drugs or alcohol at the time of the attack.

Concerned beachgoers raised the alarm after they spotted him having sex with a semi-conscious woman on a sun lounger.

Witnesses told police that she was trying to fight him off while a second man, aged 35, stood by and appeared to be "waiting for his turn."

As police arrived at the scene the pair tried to escape in their car but it failed to start, leaving them with no option but to flee on foot.

Both were caught by fleetfooted officers within a few minutes and transferred to the local Guardia Civil station

Meanwhile, a Local Police patrol interviewed the victim, who claimed that she had entered the car in Granada but was unable to remember anything after that moment, with no recollection of the drive to Neria.

Investigators are now making enquiries to determine whether she had been given the notorious date-rape

The drug originates from Colombia but a 36-year-old woman from Mallorca became the first person in Spain to test positive for it in September 2016.

Made from the seeds of the Brugmansia tree, scopolamine induces a zombie-like state in victims whereby they are conscious but unable to act with free will, while memories are blocked from forming until the effect wears off.

Spanish beaches lead global blue flag ranking

By Matt Ford

SPAIN continues to have the best beaches in the world according to the annual blue flag awards.

The country has been handed 684 flags for 2017, placing it top of the global ranking for the 30th consecutive year ahead of Greece, France, Turkey, Italy and Portugal.

The blue flag is a certification offered by the international Foundation for Environmental Education (FEE), which stipulates that a beach, marina or boating tour operator meets a set of sustainability standards.

In Spain, the flags were awarded to 579 beaches, 100 marinas and five tourist vessels.

At regional level the Valencian Community leads the way, its 129 flags outstripping Galicia (113), Catalonia (95) and Andalucia (90)

Time to pay the tax man

NERIA Council has reminded car owners that this year's road taxes must be paid by May 19.

Many residents will be unaware of this tariff, which is calculated based on width.

In addition, all owners of garages or gates which allow access of vehicles must pay an entrance tax corresponding to 2016 by May 22

Invoices received by post can be paid at any bank, and the town hall recommends that a direct debit be set up for future transactions.

This can be arranged at Nerja's Tax Office (Patronato de Recaudacion) which is located on Calle Axarquia 3, opposite a large paint shop and close to the central Supersol roundabout.

Police save kamikaze husband

POLICE in El Morche have saved the life of a suicidal man who tried to hang himself at home.

The officers burst into the 43-yearold's home after receiving a frantic call from his wife, who was worried about the man's mental state. They entered the property seconds after the man had stepped off a chair with a noose around his neck. An officer quickly caught him, stopping him from suffocating.

The man had apparently wanted to kill himself following marital problems. He had called his wife, who was in Cordoba, threatening to take his own life. She quickly alerted the Local Police, fearing she would be unable to reach him in time.

The man is now being treated at the Comarcal Hospital in Axarquia, and his wife has expressed her gratitude to the rescuers.

€3,700 computer theft hits school

BURGLARS have ransacked a school in Maro, making off with €3,700 in computers, cameras and cash.

The thieves forced entry to the village's Virgen de las Maravillas school in the early hours, turning the school upside down in their attempt to find valuables.

Classes were cancelled while officers from the Guardia Civil investigated, forcing some children to stand in the school's playground all day as their parents could not be contacted to take them home.

The school's headteacher could not confirm whether the institution has insurance and the town's council has said it cannot make up any losses suffered as the school is the responsibility of the Department of Education.

The theft is the second in two days in Axarquia, following the burglary of a municipal storage warehouse in Benamargosa, where  $\notin$  17,000 in tools were taken, as covered on page 12.

SPAIN SO CHEESY! Spaniards love their local cheeses as much as their nationally produced wines, with a Denomination of Origin upholding quality nationwide of some leading brands.

Cheesy cheer

AROUND 100 different varieties of cheese are produced in various regions of Spain ranging from fresh to cured and some fermented to blue.

The key characteristic of each is the type of milk used with currently 13 cheeses with Denominations of Origin - or DO - across the country.

Dependent on the area, time of year, climate and tradition, cheese is produced with milk from cows, goats or sheep, and some products include a mixture.

Each cheese also differs due to varying ageing or curing production processes, with these frequently decades old and identifying with local history and tradition.

Majestic Manchego

MANCHEGO is the most famous Spanish cheese, wholly made from the ewe's milk of the Manchega breed of sheep. It is firm and aged from two months to two years.

Protected under the DO classification schemes of both Spain as well as the European Union, it is named after the La Mancha Province where it is produced and which was the home of Don Quixote.

Mild with a taste of salty nuts, it was originally produced to barter at market and to provide a durable food for Spanish shepherds.

CATALONIA has introduced a controversial sugar tax on a range of soft drinks including some of the world's most famous brands.

Already tagged a 'soda tax,' it could raise as much as €41 million a year for the regional government's coffers, despite an insistence the aim was to improve public health by reducing sugar consumption according to World Health Organisation recommendations.

The tax hike depends on the amount of sugar in a drink, and customers will have to pay more for products like energy drinks, fruit juices made from concentrate, chocolate drinks, sports, and cold tea and coffee drinks.

The central government has previously looked to introduce such a levy nationwide - it is already policy in France and Denmark - but has always backtracked.

The Temple of Diana.

A UNESCO World Heritage Site since 1993, Merida is renowned for its Roman architecture and was built as a stylised provincial capital of Rome, centre of an empire.

Founded in 25BC, with the name Emerita Agusta, it has some of the most well-preserved archaeological remains in Spain and was once the most important city in Roman Iberia.

The city was founded by the Emperor Augustus and his discharged soldiers were employed to protect a pass and bridge over the river Guadiana; the Puente Romana is still used by pedestrians and is the longest of all existing Roman bridges.

Merida remains the capital of Extramadura. Historically its strategic importance was one end of the Silver Way the Via de la Plata – the route between the gold mines of Asturica Augusta and Rome.

Visitors can explore Roman reservoirs still in use, the aqueduct, the Circus Maximus - one of the best examples in the world - and villas with precious mosaics. The Forum includes the Temple of Diana and the theatre is still used to stage Greco-Roman classics or modern plays set in ancient times.

After the Romans. Merida was important to the Visigoths and by the sixth Century was dominated by bishops as the capital of Hispania and the occupation of the Moors meant the ancient buildings were re-used or expanded but maintained their splendour.

OUR VIEW Prince Philip retires

TO some a bit like marmite, love him or hate him, the often controversial Duke of Edinburgh has decided to take retirement from Royal Duties.

There was a huge flurry of interest in the Royal Household when an almost unheard of call for all members of staff to attend a special meeting which included video conferences was announced.

In the end it was simply to confirm that shortly after his 96th birthday, Prince Philip, would retire from public functions and his diary would be cleared with effect from August 2017.

Recently, a number of duties previously undertaken by the Queen who is now 91 were handed over to the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge and after 65 years of service, that Queen Elizabeth and her Consort want to scale down their activities.

This doesn't mean that we have seen the last of the sometimes amusing, sometimes grumpy and sometimes embarrassing Prince but he will simply turn up to events and functions that take his fancy rather than make advance commitments to attend.

When you are married to one of the richest women in the world, you can be fairly certain that medical support will be of the highest quality but at 96, time is not on his side and he wants a bit of a rest.

TORROX COSTA'S Iberostar Hotel is set to reopen this weekend following a  $\in 6$  million refit, with the event set to be attended by players and staff from Malaga FC.

The four-star hotel is said to have benefitted from a "profound change of image" with "great results," according to a statement by the company.

The hotel has been open since 2003 and originally cost €36 million. It was initially owned and run by Hotel Ferrara SA but was bought by Iberostar in 2003 in a deal which saw its 180 employees retained. It has over 11,000m<sup>2</sup> of gardens, 319 rooms, 94 tourist apartments and a swimming pool.

Iberostar CEO Aurelio Vazquez commented, "the dining room now has a larger buffet area and a refrigerated and humidity controlled wine cellar has been installed at its entrance. ## Will Eurovision Brit face Brexit backlash?

THE 62nd edition of the world's longest running annual singing contest will take place this Saturday in Kiev, Ukraine, but Britain's entry is not the bookies' favourite.

Ahead of the spectacle, bookmakers Ladbrokes have reported that the UK are looking fairly friendless, with the odds on them taking home the title being bigger than ever before at 50/1.

The bookmakers have even taken several bets on UK entrant Lucie Jones receiving nil points at odds of 14/1.

Nicola McGeady of Ladbrokes told TellvMix: "Punters are preparing for a Brexit backlash from voters judging by the lack of support coming in for Lucie Jones. Usually we are knocked over with patriotic support, but for the first time ever, punters aren't getting behind the UK."

BBC Eurovision host Graham Norton previously admitted he didn't rate Lucie's chances at Eurovision 2017.

WORKS to Nerja's first sewage plant have stalled with construction 95 per cent complete, almost a full year after they were supposed to be finished.

The plant is still missing its pumping station after works were halted for seven months until January this year, and then again for a month over Easter.

The company carrying out the project, Isolux, has financial difficulties, owing more than  $\in 4$ million to its creditors and facing foreclosure. Sources say works will be finalised once these financial matters have been dealt with

The problem is the latest for Nerja's much-criticised water treatment, which recently saw an underwater pipe burst 400 metres off Burriana Beach, expelling raw waste into the water and causing a 'geyser' of sewage to appear.

Nerja Council has invested €100,000 to fix the leaky pipe and workers managed to fix the original hole, measuring around 20 centimetres squared.

However, they were alarmed to find another, much larger leak around 100 metres away. Attempts to repair the damage were hampered by storms but the council is now due to replace four sections.

Nerja is the only large resort in Malaga to still pour untreated sewage into the sea, using underwater pipes on both Burriana and Torrecilla beaches.

The existing plant is now around 30 years old.

Rescued girls start new life in Marbella

JIMENA RICO and Shaza Ismail, the young couple who were imprisoned in Turkey after fleeing persecution in Dubai, are to start a new life in Marbella. following their recent engagement.

The girls, who were duped into flying to Dubai to visit Shaza's supposedly sick mother, had fled after discovering the girl's Egyptian father wanted her to face trial for being gay, which is illegal in Dubai.

The couple escaped to Georgia, where the man caught up with them and took away their documents. The police intervened, escorting the girls to the Turkish border, where they crossed.

Turkish police soon caught up with them though, and imprisoned them on suspicion of terrorism without access to legal advice or phones.

Ms Rico's frantic family. who live in Torrox, contacted the authorities here after receiving a phone message from Jimena saying she feared for her life. Spanish diplomats then traced the girls to Turkey and liaised with the government there to secure their quick release.

The girls, who say they are "shattered" by their experience, are now engaged and have found new jobs at Funky Buddha Beach in Marbella.

They say they will continue to share details of their ordeal, however, to highlight persecution of homosexuality around the world. While in prison in Turkey, the girls say they were "spat at" by the authorities, who also demanded details of their sex life.

N9623R LIGHT AIRCRAFT: Small planes have been involved in three crashes so far this year.

Second small aeroplane crash in just one week

A SECOND air crash in the space of week has hit Axarquia after a plane belonging to a pilot school smashed through a fence at the end of a runway in Velez-Malaga, almost careering into a riverbed. The plane, which was carrying three people, was travelling from Malaga to San Javier in Murcia when it made a stop at El Trapiche airfield in Velez-Malaga, but it did was unable to stop on the runway

Those on board were said to be unharmed although the plane itself was damaged.

The crash is the second in Axarquia in a week after three Germans were killed when their small aircraft came down in the hills above Alcaucin while participating in an air rally.

The plane was travelling to Granada and apparently became lost in bad weather over the mountains. Investigators are now trying to pin down the exact causes of the incident.

Two others were also killed on January 19 this year after their small plane crashed after take-off in Velez-Malaga and exploded in an avocado farm.

The man has now been arrested for property damage and religious hatred after hurling the bomb, which did not detonate but instead spilled fuel over the statue's clothing. Officers located the man after friars called in the National Police who took witness accounts and sifted through CCTV images after the man fled the scene.

The arresting officers confiscated four computers, two electronic

Welcome home Leo the Lion

TEAM EWN: Jackie and Matt hand over a gift.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY: Sofia celebrated her 9th.

HOMECOMING: Many people attended the party.

By Matt Ford

BRAVE cancer battler Leo Bermeja is back in Almeria after undergoing six weeks of ground-breaking proton beam therapy in the United States, and the Euro Weekly News was on hand to join the celebrations at his homecoming party.

A sizeable group of friends, family members and supporters gathered at the Laguna restaurant in Las Marinas, Vera, to welcome him back from his six weeks of treatment in Oklahoma and wish a belated happy birthday to big sister Sofia, who recently turned nine.

Among the many gifts on display was a framed copy of one of the first double-page spreads that we ran as part of our ongoing Leo the Lion campaign.

Leo, mum Karen and Sofia were all in high spirits despite suffering from jetlag, having only travelled to Spain from Canada three days beforehand and losing some luggage along the way.

Karen kindly agreed to an exclusive chat with us, during which she explained what will happen next as four-year-old Leo's fight against a rare form of brain cancer continues.

"We're still catching up to be honest," she laughed. "Over the next two weeks I'm planning to let Leo chill a bit and get over the jetlag.

"After that we'll see how he is about starting at the special needs school in Vera again, then once we've got the clear scan over with we're thinking about hyperbaric oxygen therapy, which they have in Malaga."

She went on to explain how this type of treatment exposes the patient to high oxygen concentrations, which can help stimulate the growth of new brain cells before the delayed effect of the proton therapy kicks in.

Due to a lack of knowledge about the type of cancer he has, Leo must also undergo a brain scan every six weeks for the next two years before any definitive evaluation can be made, and he

"The fundraising doesn't stop since we don't know the cost," says Karen. "They've recommended he needs a walker which costs about €4,000, for example, and he hasn't had any benefits from the Spanish government yet, which won't be backdated when they finally come through."

Overall though, Karen remains incredibly upbeat despite the familv's ordeal, and she was keen to express her gratitude to

EWN readers and others who have helped Leo's cause. "Thank you to everyone who has supported us from day one, there are no words to describe it and it is overwhelming how Leo has touched so many people's hearts.

"It is crazy how people who don't know him feel like they love him and relate to him. "Even if the worst happens to Leo at least he's done that, at least he's given hope to others."

Spain is a popular holiday destination for Muslims

By John Smith

RESEARCH on the preferred destinations for Muslim travellers has shown that Spain has jumped in popularity considerably.

The 2017 MasterCard-CrescentRating Global Muslim Travel Index (GMTI) published in Jakarta, Indonesia shows that Spain is now the ninth most popular non-Islamic country for Muslim visitors out of the 130 which were reviewed.

Only Britain and France within Europe are more popular destinations which is explained in part by their relatively large Muslim populations, although the top two were Singapore and Thailand and unsurprisingly the USA has dropped into 10th position following the presidential election. This particular market sector which sees increasing numbers of young affluent Muslims exploring the world is forecast as continuing to grow and travellers will be attracted to destinations which adapt to the needs of the Muslim tourist.

The GMTI is the most comprehensive research available on one of the fastest growing tourism sectors in the world, which represents 10 per cent of the entire travel economy.

Factors considered when producing the rating included Muslim air connectivity, visa restrictions, suitability as a family holiday destination, ease of communication, the level of services and facilities any destination provides, accommodation options, marketing initiatives and the availability of special food such as Halal meat.

Oil reservoir over fault line scrapped

PROJECT CASTOR: Platform is to be dismantled.

AFTER commissioning a report from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Harvard University, the Spanish government has decided to scrap Project Castor.

This is a pipeline and reservoir for natural gas off the coast of Castellon which happens to be situated over the Amposta fault line and is believed to have caused 500 small earthquakes before it was closed in 2013.

The concept of using a depletther review.

ed oil cavity in the Mediterranean appeared sensible when it was first mooted in 2007, but Spanish Energy Minister Álvaro Nadal has now confirmed it would be against all sensible advice to reopen the reservoir.

It will be dismantled in due course but as the area is currently stable, time is not of the essence although the government has already compensated construction company ACS to the tune of €1.2 billion and more may follow.

Property help for young and elderly

IN an effort to assist those who have found it difficult to find affordable accommodation, the Spanish Minister of Development has unveiled the 2018 plan.

Iñigo de la Serna has made it clear that the government is dedicated to helping those that need it the most, namely the young, the elderly and those who have been evicted.

In the case of those aged under 35, the state will make up to €10,800 available to anyone with a salary of less than €22,365.42 so that they can purchase a property, but the maximum of the grant will not exceed 20 per cent of the purchase price.

Provided that recipients earn less than  $\in 1,597.53$  per month (which is three times the average monthly rent) then financial aid will be made available to assist in the rental of a property.

So for this group, if they are not purchasing, the government recognises that rental prices are increasing dramatically, especially in certain areas of Spain and will aid those renting a property and pay 50 per cent of the cost of rent which does not exceed €900 per month

For those aged 65 with income also less than  $\notin 1,597.53$  per month and a net worth of less than  $\notin 100,000$ , they will receive a similar amount to cover rent up to  $\notin 900$ per month for three years or if the property is owned, there will be a contribution of up to €200 to help with maintenance and utility bills.

There will be cash assistance to companies building apartments to house low income families and the ministry will also help those who have lost their properties or been evicted from rental accommodation by taking properties held in the Sareb 'property bank' and renting them out at heavily subsidised prices.

With this plan to run from 2018 to 2020, the government expects to spend €321 million a year in overall support and assistance.

Spanish banks to be questioned over movement of funds for HSBC

ALTHOUGH British-based high street bank HS-BC came through the banking crisis relatively unscathed, it has been accused of a number of irregularities over the years.

Having been fined billions of dollars by the US authorities and also shelling out to the British government, it is now under investigation in France and Spain.

The various bankers will be questioned about their knowledge and involvement.

The Spanish High Court has ruled that seven current and former employees of Banco Santander and three from BNP Paribas Spain must be questioned over allegations of collusion in moving funds for HSBC to an account in Switzerland.

According to the judge who made the decision, the transfers estimated at €74 million were made in a manner which protected HSBC customers from national tax authorities and as such could be considered money laundering once the whole trail is unravelled.

WHISTLE BLOWER: Hervé Falciani behind the microphone.

This current investigation started as long ago as 2008 when a self-proclaimed whistle blower Hervé Falciani leaked details of large numbers of customers who had accounts with HSBC's private bank in Switzerland and details were sent to tax authorities in a number of different countries.

The Swiss responded by sentencing the French citizen 'in absentia' to five years imprisonment for industrial espionage.

The various bankers will be questioned about their knowledge and involvement in this matter by way of assistance to the French investigation which is concentrating on the period between 2005 and 2010.

Should any evidence of wrongdoing emerge concerning the Spanish banks involved, a decision will then have to be made as to whether the courts will need to consider further action to establish if any Spanish laws have been broken.

Another bank will transfer staff to Frankfurt

ONE of Britain's largest banks Standard Chartered has confirmed that it will be moving several hundred jobs to Frankfurt in advance of Brexit.

This announcement follows one from US financial giant JP Morgan, which employs about 16,000 people in Britain, which is also planning to move hundreds of jobs from London to Frankfurt, Luxembourg and Dublin.

Although considered a UK bank, Standard Chartered which recently appointed former Deputy Governor of the Bank of Spain and Director of the International Monetary Fund Jose Vinals as Chairman only receives about 5 per cent of its income from the UK market.

Although it currently intends to keep its headquarters in London, its interests in Asia and Europe mean that it cannot afford to chance any banking restrictions following Brexit.

Airbnb still under review

FOLLOWING the example of the Barcelona City Council, Madrid is investigating ways of 'policing' untaxed property rentals.

Although there are a number of property portals which offer short term rentals in Madrid and other large cities in Spain, American company Airbnb is the most prolific and successful in the market place.

As previously reported, Barcelona has tried to levy significant fines of the company which has successfully appealed against them, but it has also offered a compromise whereby it will not accept multi-property lets from professional landlords.

The main bone of contention appears to be the fact that significant amounts of local tax may be evaded if short term lettings are made through these portals.

FACING CHARGES: Neymar de Silva Santos Jnr.

Barcelona star Neymar is to be charged with fraud

By John Smith

FOOTBALL finance just can't keep out of the news and it has been confirmed that Barcelona star Neymar will be charged with fraud and corruption.

Like so many South American superstars, the Brazilian's parents are involved in his management as well as day-to-day financial affairs and his father at least will also be charged.

The reason for the prosecution centres on Neymar's transfer from Santos in 2013 with his transfer fee being declared at €17 million, when it was once suggested that the actual fee was €57 million. However the court now suggests the real fee was nearer €25 million.

Following the example of a number of other players, Neymar had a deal with a third party group, in this case the Brazilian investment company DIS which was entitled to 40 per cent of any transfer fee.

The Brazilian's parents are involved in his management.

They received €6.8 million but the court believes that they were 'short changed' by €3.5 million which is the reason for the charges which also include Barcelona president Josep Maria Bartomeu and his predecessor Sandro Rosell, who it is suggested were aware of the deception.

Originally in 2016, a Spanish court ruled that the matter should be subject to a civil action but has now been persuaded by the prosecutor that the player and his father were aware of an allegedly fraudulent arrangement between Barcelona and Santos to defraud DIS.

Prosecutors are calling for a two-year prison sentence and €10 million fine for Neymar whilst DIS want to see five years and at the very least a suspension of his right to play in Spain for the period of any sentence, even if a suspended one.

The Barcelona club has already paid a  $\in$ 5.5 million fine in order to settle a different case with similar circumstances, but these accusations still continue to arise and there is a separate investigation taking place in Brazil.

INTERNATIONAL analysts Markit have released the results of their April survey which shows that Spanish manufacturing is speeding up.

To go with this news is an announcement from the Ministry of Employment and Social Security which says that unemployment in Spain fell by 129,281 in April which is a record. Whilst encouragingly, unemployment amongst those under 25 has dropped, the percentage of young unemployed is still at a high level.

Following some poor figures recently, Andalucia has been one of the leading areas for the fall in the unemployed with its drop exceeding the combined drops of Barcelona and Madrid Stone King - Translating complex foreign law into plain English

They honestly haven't got a clue

LEAPY LEE SAYS IT OTHERS THINK IT

PERSONALLY I think the voting age should be raised to 21. It's not that I consider the young lacking in intelligence, or am ignorant of the view, that if your old enough to die for your country you should at least have a say in who runs it.

The fact is they lack experience; they simply haven't been around long enough. An 18-year-old today wasn't even born when the last Labour government was first elected, and were still children when they lost power.

They have no idea what it is like for adults to exist under the depressing, inept incompetence of a left wing government. They have never experienced the sight of the fat cat bully boys of the unions, tanned and fresh from their Marbella villa holidays, emerging from Downing Street and announcing that half the nation would be on strike, if the 'workers' weren't given what they (the unions) demanded.

Of times when 'everybody out' issued from the employees of one vital institution after another, until the whole country staggered from one crisis to the next and employers were blamed for everything from the price of soap to the shortage of cat litter.

They have no knowledge of a country, run by a party who bribes its constituents by creating whole cultures of benefit scroungers, and to pay for these free handouts, taxes those with any initiative to create jobs and wealth to such a degree that they leave the country in droves.

Labour is, and always has been, a party that has no idea how to actually create resources and always uses the wealth, painstakingly earned by previous governments to create the illusion that they are a successful organisation, by pouring investments into popular schemes that will ingratiate them to their constituents.

When there are no longer any previous legacies to lay claim to, they borrow, beg and steal (Brown stole the country's gold reserves and sold it for a pittance!) until finally there is nothing left and they are finally voted out, leaving the incoming party to once again pick up the pieces.

Margaret Thatcher summed up this bunch of incompetent con artists perfectly, when she stated that the Labour party are fine, until they run out of other people's money. Thank the Lord for Corbyn and the likes of Diane Abbott. They are the true face of the left, and not in fact the false faces of Tony Blair and his henchmen of yore.

So, to all the young voters, who believe that the 'all men are equal, tax the rich and ban the bomb' tirade that issues from the left is the answer to what ails us, I suggest you all think again. I'm not saying it's going to be plain sailing. But at least with Theresa May we have a chance. And be honest, do you really want Diane Abbott to be in control of the nation's police force? Ha!

Eugenio Noguerol, General Manager at Citroen, Velez-Malaga

WHAT types of car do you sell?

New and used Citroens as well as other used car makes. We also have a garage and parts shop for all types of car.

Do you have many expat customers?

Yes, around 30 per cent of our customers are foreign and the majority of those are British. What languages do you speak in the showroom? We speak English, German and French. One of our sales representatives, Rafael, even has a degree in English and German and has lived in the UK.

Are there any services you offer that expats may be particularly interested in?

From our face-to-face meetings in English when choosing a car, to our after sale care, we support our clients fully through the process and legalities of buying a car in Spain.

We offer free yearly vehicle checks, and a free pre-ITV check to help your vehicle pass first time. When it comes to the ITV itself, we remind our customers when theirs is due. We even pick their car up, take it to its ITV and drop it back to wherever is convenient, all for free. We also have a loyalty card scheme which gives customers 5 per cent off the price of any service on their next visit.

Is it possible to get financing if a customer doesn't work in Spain?

Yes, Citroen has developed a unique system to make the process of getting financing much easier than other companies. Along with proof of identification, we simply need proof of transfers into a Spanish account. Ninety-five per cent of our financing queries are accepted and we give customers an answer on the spot. Are there other services you offer?

We have a garage and parts shop on-site which offer a full range of services. While your car is in the garage, we offer a free courtesy car and will always call a customer with a price before beginning any work. If you have a prang, we will even help you deal with your insurance company if you need help with translation.

Are there any cars you particularly recommend for those living in the campo or on the coast?

We always help recommend the right car for different terrains. For our clients who live in the campo, we recommend the C4 Cactus, C4 Aircross, new C3 and DS4 Crossback. For those living on the coast who are looking for something sporty, the DS3 can be a great option, and for families you can't beat the C4 Picasso - the most sold family car in Spain due to its quality, size and price.

SUPPORTING CLIENTS: Through the process and legalities of buying a car.

And finally, you're heavily involved in community work, what sort of events do #### you sponsor?

We sponsor a golf tournament at Baviera golf club every July, the Velez-Malaga children's football team and several Cofrades events. We would also love to help an expat association.

With HiFX international money transfers, there's no fees, no fuss

IF you need to send money abroad - perhaps to transfer a mortgage or pension, or just to make a one-off payment - your first instinct might be to turn to your bank. Many people will assume that this is the easiest method, or that their bank will offer them the best deal, but this might not be the best option for you.

At HiFX, we're dedicated to saving you time and money, whatever the reason for your international money transfer. Every month, we use an independent company to check all the UK high street banks and building societies to make sure our rate is better. We can help you save money in two ways:

1. Absolutely no transfer fees

With HiFX, you'll pay no transfer fees whatsoever, regardless of the amount you are transferring.

Opening an account is free, plus we don't charge fees for receiving money or any other transfer fees on foreign exchange transactions. There are no monthly charges either.

These exchange rates were obtained online at 9.45am on Wednesday 29th March 2017 based on sending an international money transfer of £10,000 in €s as quickly as possible.

EXCHANGE RATES: You can get a quote at any time using our online system.

Please note that this does not include the cost of you transferring funds to HiFX or any charges incurred where the funds are being sent in a different currency to the destination bank

2. Bank-beating exchange rates

To get an idea of how much you could save, we compared the rates and fees for transferring  $\pounds 10,000$  into Euros using the main UK high street banks: With a HiFX account, you can get a quote at any time using our online system, which will make it clear to you exactly what exchange rate you will be getting. When you see a rate you are comfortable with, you can make a transfer online 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

DURING the latest seven-day campaign focusing on speeding motorists, the Guardia Civil checked some 581,294 vehicles on Spain's roads. Officers found 31,086 were in breach of the law, however the controls conducted by the various local and regional police force also need to be added to these figures, so it is expected to be considerably higher.

The campaign targeted mainly the secondary road network where the majority of serious and fatal incidents occur.

Four of the drivers stopped now face criminal proceedings after they were found to be exceeding the maximum permitted speed limit by more than 80km per hour.

Drivers caught speeding face fines of between €100-600 plus the loss of between two and six points. Exceeding the speed limit by

What can a 'fed up' President do?

I am President of a Community of Property Owners and I am about to resign the position. I am completely fed up with some owners who have everything to SAY but will not stand for President. One main problem is our Administrators. When you quote anything to them, they just say, that is their opinion. You never see the rules, that is, the law. When I

I hope you feel better for getting it off your chest. Keep in mind that you will not resign as President. You will officially be President until the Com-

Can you wash your hands?

I STOPPED to fill my car with petrol and I use a garage where the attendant does it for you. So I was sitting in my car and he started to fill my tank. At the same time my phone rang so I answered it. The attendant was at the back of the car but standing on the other side.

On the forecourt was his mate who waved at me and signalled, by using his thumb and little finger and placing it to his ear, and then changing it to give me the wiggly 'no don't do that' finger gesture. This, in normal circumstances is fine, except this guy had a lit ciggy in his other hand! I mean, it's bad enough that they have these signs saying don't use your phone in a garage when there has never been a reported incident of it blowing the place up, but to tell me not to use my phone whilst he has a lit ciggy is just nuts.

Talking of signs, here are a few others that set me off. When I was in the UK a little while ago there was a sign in the gent's toilet which said 'now wash your hands.' That's fine but it then went on to show you, by the use of diagrams, how to wash them. Yup a sign showing you how to wash your hands. Now, I'm not the sharpest tool in the box, but I don't think there is anybody in the living civilised world, over the age of four, that doesn't know how to wash their hands. You stick them under the tap, turn the water on, add soap, rub them together then rinse and dry.

The even crazier part is that some idiot somewhere has spent money on producing these dumbass signs and got paid to do it!

How about this one. At the entrance to the urbanisation where I live is a map that shows you how to get to all the different Phases of which there are five. It's a great idea because it's a big urbanisation and there is a one way system just to confuse you even further. However, there is just one problem. The map has been printed upside down so anyone who looks at it for the first time has not got a hope in hell of finding how to get anywhere.

We told the town hall, who put it there, and two years later it's still there this upside down useless sign that cost a fortune to make. The last one for now is when you are driving down the road and all of a sudden, without any warning, there is the sign that says the road is closed and you can't go any further. How hard is it to put a sign at the top of the road and at other entrances that the road is closed ahead? So now you have to find a way to turn around, usually in a confined space and then find another way to complete your journey.

What signs have you seen? Let me know. mikesenker@gmail.com

War of words over the EU's "plot" to sabotage Brexit

Nora Johnson Breaking Views

Nora is the author of popular psychological suspense and crime thrillers and a freelance journalist. To comment on any of the issues raised in her column, go to www.euroweeklynews.com/3.0.15/nora-johnson

THERESA MAY'S searing attack on unelected Eurocrats for trying to sabotage both the general election and Brexit is unprecedented. She said she wanted to reach a Brexit deal, and for the EU to succeed: "But the events of the last few days have shown that whatever our wishes and however reasonable the positions of Europe's other leaders, there are some in Brussels who do not want these talks to succeed."

Not totally surprising you might think, given the hostile leaks and threats from that recent 'car crash' dinner. What's perhaps more surprising is that she's going flat out and calling on voters to tool her up to 'fight for Britain' against Brussels at such an early stage in this election and leading in the polls.

Much was made of alleged Russian interference in the US presidential election. There are parallels domestically, too, as the EU attempts to influence with whom in the UK it negotiates. It's clear from recent 'leaks' that the EU would rather not deal with Theresa May, and certainly not if she wins a commanding majority. They'd much prefer dealing with Corbyn or Farron, wouldn't you?

Basically, according to Iain Duncan Smith, former Conservative leader, the EU Commission "doesn't care if negotiations succeed, they're obsessed with the idea of the EU: it's where their money, jobs and power come from."

But surely all this will backfire on them. Already former hard-nosed Remainers as well as reluctant Leavers I know have switched sides and are now pro-Brexit. A number that will inevitably increase with time and more EU threats.

So, another day, another EU threat/leak - the dirty games of a rattled European Commission. My boots are worn out with quaking. Soon I'll be terrified of Timmy Farron.

Finally, it's interesting that all French politicians end speeches with 'Vive la République' and Americans with 'God bless America.' What's the British equivalent?

Well, with a stiff upper lip our politicos would probably say: 'Mind how you go,' 'What a lot of weather we're having,' 'Chin up' or 'Now, if you'll excuse me, I have a train to catch.'

Nora Johnson's psychological/ suspense crime thrillers 'No Way Back,' 'Landscape of Lies,' 'Retribution,' 'Soul Stealer,' 'The De Clerambault Code' (www.nora-johnson.net) available from Amazon in paperback/ eBook (€0.99;£0.99) and iBookstore. All profits to Costa del Sol Cudeca cancer charity.

YOUR STARS FOR DAYS 7

TAURUS X (April 21 - May 21)

Get out in the fresh air as much as possible and be kind to your body. You may have neglected yourself because you have been such a busy bee of late. What about a trip to the seaside or a walk in the hills? Maybe a trip to the local cocktail bar is more your style! Whatever puts a spring in your step will be good.

posite to you will surprise with an offer. Although you are naturally suspicious, give them the benefit of the doubt. Leopards do not change their spots but they are capable of behaving for the bigger good. .

SCORPIO M,

(October 24 - November 22)

An intimate meeting is less exciting than anticipated. This should not bother vou because time could vet change that. You need to be in the right place at the right time, so don't give up hope, just have a little patience. A change of plans will be more beneficial than irksome, at least in the longer term.

SAGITTARIUS 🗡 (November 23 - December 21)

While counting your pennies, also count your blessings. Money can be a big problem or merely an irritation but the lack of it must be kept in perspective. You are right to think twice about accepting something that seems to be for nothing.

CAPRICORN D (December 22 - January 20)

The goat in you is keen to find pastures new. It isn't a nibble that is needed at the moment, but a feast. Accepting anything less would be a mistake because someone is watching your reaction to an offer. If you feel unsure of your worth, then ask a few trusted friends. It is so hard to see ourselves. Heed their words

Don't allow an open-ended offer to muddle your mind. There is no need for an immediate decision and this may be too soon for a positive move. A sense of urgency may be put down to practical reasons when, in fact, it is no such thing. A feeling of insecurity is more likely to be the trigger to uncertainty.

PISCES H

(Febraury 20 - March 20)

Are things going swimmingly? Good. Maybe you had forgotten how to have real fun. Remember when you were a child? Life was so simple. Relax and be that child again. If some old fogey accuses you of being silly, feel sorry for them

ARIES

(March 21 - April 20)

Awkward situations usually bring out the best in you and this week proves that. In the longer term, you will be grateful to those making things difficult now.

Nonagram

How many English words of four letters or more can you make from the nine letters in our Nonagram puzzle? Each letter may be used only once (unless the letter appears twice). Each word MUST CONTAIN THE CENTRE LETTER (in this case G) and there must be AT LEAST ONE NINE LETTER WORD. Plurals, vulgarities or proper nouns are not allowed.

Are you feeling that you have been dealt a rough hand? Consider this: there are some who are not dealt a hand at all. Many are missing those few cards that mean they are never really in with a chance. Instead of lurking on the shady side, walk out into the sun. You will soon see the bright side.

Sedition and treason

SIR

'Sedition; actively promoting and advocating a movement to overthrow a legitimately constituted authority.

LETTERS

Spain's prime minister Mariano Rajoy should have reacted immediately (almost four years ago!) in response to Catalan president Arthur Mas' call to separate from Spain to form an independent and sovereign 'nation' by imprisoning the rebel for treason

Instead, Sr Rajoy simply repeats again and again that he won't allow the illegal and unconstitutional referendum to be held in the Catalan 'nation.'

And as Commander-in-Chief of the only legitimate 'Spanish Nation;' he should stop talking so much and act decisively to finally call a halt to this seemingly endless and harmful farce that is undermining the already downtrodden morale and confidence of Spanish citizens. Time to practice a bit of the old reliable 'actions speak louder than words.

In the USA we had a Civil War that lasted four years (1861-1865) over 'sedition and treason,' but even then, at least nine of our 31 states were rebelling from the Union, and not just one: as is the present case today in the Catalonia Province.

Voting rights

WHAT a cheek! Long-term expats who abandoned their homeland for a Mediterranean lifestyle years ago want the right to vote on the UK's future.

OK, if that's want they want let them have a vote, subject to a satisfactory inspection of their tax affairs by HMRC and Hacienda. That should thin their ranks and lessen the cacophony of self-interested whingeing.

DID you notice? The 'depuradora' in Benalmadena is again causing stink in the area around the Avenida Palmeras roundabout by the sea!

Every night they let the waste water run down and on its way towards the sea it causes a stink that cuts off your breath.

On Thursday April 19, with the wind so strong and the sea very rough, the whole waste got kind of churned up by the violent sea and then the stink like sewer was dispersed by the air even during the day time.

Does the town hall try to cover it up at the beginning of the tourist season? Has the money to fix it gone away? Please investigate and warn the people of the health risks over inhaling the polluted air!

Double standards

I MUST comment on two articles in your Mallorca paper, edition 1660. Firstly, Mike Senker's comments on bars having to put outside seating areas on decking.

In Puerto Pollensa, one very busy street for tourists, they followed these instructions last year. Now the council, who forced two bars and a Spanish bike hire business to put these in, have decided to withdraw use of the road.

So, firstly the council insist on decking, and less than a year later, insist that it's taken down. And never anyone to ask. Just shrugged shoul-Magaluf into a 'first class' resort. This has been going on for 30 years, since the Calvia area became the biggest money area in all of Spain.

The council took the money and thought that was it. But Magaluf is too big to fill up with your words, 'a more discerning guest.'

Don't bite the hand that feeds you springs to mind. I will say Mallorca has now become a more cosmopolitan up-market holiday isle, but it should be for all, because in most cases, the 'all' spend more money. R K Lutschan.

WORLD ASTHMA DAY has been marked in Spain as experts say there are currently around 235 million asthma patients around the world.

According to the World Health Organisation, (WHO) asthma deaths will increase by almost 20 per cent in the next 10 years if no urgent action is taken. Asthma cannot be cured, but with proper diagnosis and treatment and patient education, it can be controlled and a good quality of life enjoyed. One of the main forms of treatment is through the use of an inhaler, however, reports say that only 9 per cent of asthma patients in Spain, use their inhaler correctly.

A specialist department at Barcelona's Hospital de la Santa Creu i Sant Pau, said inhaled therapy is recommended for asthma as it directly reaches the lungs, but many people do use the inhaler correctly and the medication does not reach the respiratory tract. The Respiratory Group of the Spanish Society of Family and Community Pharmacies, added that many patients also have more than one inhaler to use and often forget which one to use when.

They stress that the use of inhalers requires greater teaching and control by medical staff, both doctors, nurses and pharmacists, at the time of prescribing the device, to ensure it is correctly and effectively used.

Another frequent error is that the condition can have phases of stability, resulting in the patient deciding not to take their medication. However, this can lead to a long term worsening of the condition.

Asthma is one of the most prevalent chronic respiratory diseases in Spain, affecting around 5 per cent of adults and 8-10 per cent of children.

Mutual massage is good for both of you

GIVING a massage will not only make your partner feel good, but it will make you feel pretty good too.

That's according to researchers who got couples to spend 15 minutes giving their partner a massage two or three times a week. They found that couples who did this showed significant improvements in their well-being, stress and relationship satisfaction.

The study, which involved 38 couples, reports those who gave the massage felt around 9 per cent better overall, compared to 12 per cent for those who received the massage. It measured their mental well-being during a three-week course where they were taught massage skills and three weeks after it had finished.

Nine out of 10 couples in the study said they would recommend mutual massage.

Making access easy for the disabled

THE first electric car in Spain adapted for people with reduced mobility, has been created.

The Nissan eNV200 has been adapted thanks to the expertise ILUNION of Adaptación de Vehículos which belongs to the ONCE group of social enterprises and its Foundation.

ILUNION said the technical department of Nissan was instrumental in developing this first prototype as there are very strict protocols and guidelines to be followed on this type of vehicle.

The Nissan is a five-seater vehicle and has space for a person in a wheelchair.

ILUNION hopes that this could be a 'car of the future' for those with disabilities and opens the door to making electric taxis more accessible in city centres, making services more accessible for all and more environmentally friendly.

Are you lonely?

MEN could be lonelier than you think. A report has concluded that as many as 35 per cent of men in the UK feel lonely at least once a week, while 11 per cent admitted to feeling lonely most days.

The study was carried out by social media site Gransnet, which reported that the older generation are suffering from an 'epidemic of loneliness' with almost three-quarters describing themselves as lonely. Almost two in five said they could go for days without speaking to anyone and nearly half said they had felt lonely for years as the study authors warned that many, particularly pensioners, were suffering in silence with over 70 per cent saying their family would be shocked to learn they felt lonely.

Over 25 per cent of men aged 65 to 69 blamed retirement for their loneliness as they had lost that connection with going to work and being around colleagues, although the study found that 35 was the age when a man felt the loneliest.

Moving away from family and friends was also a main cause of loneliness in respondents, as well as going through a break up, being unemployed and the death of a family member.

SPECIALIST: Doctor Luis Perez Belmonte.

1. What is sciatica and when does it usually occur?

Sciatica is simply pain felt in the lumbar area that can spread to both legs usually caused by a pinched nerve. Although it can happen at any age, it tends to be most common amongst the elderly due to arthritis in the spinal column. It can also appear after strenuous physical activities causing herniated discs.

2. What are the symptoms?

The main symptoms of sciatica are muscle cramps, back pains that can spread to the legs as well as difficulty in making certain movements, and in some cases being unable to move your legs.

3. What causes sciatica?

The main causes of sciatica are arthritis and herniated discs in the spine. They are most common amongst the elderly and the young after overexerting themselves lifting heavy loads, or bad posture when sitting, among other things.

4. How can it be treated?

Usually a course of anti-inflammatories, analgesics, muscle relaxants and rest are effective in managing the symptoms. Depending on the cause of a person's sciatica it may be necessary to have an operation, such as having herniated discs.

Physiotherapy is also very beneficial for sciatica sufferers.

5. Can you prevent having sciatica?

Certain exercises which strengthen muscles. avoiding bad postures, not overexerting when lifting and sitting correctly are all ways to minimise the chances of suffering from sciatica.

6. Is there a specific exercise which helps?

Any form of exercise which does not strain your back is helpful, as it strengthens your muscles and helps improve blood flow.

Generally swimming, voga, pilates and other similar exercises are all verv beneficial.

7. Is it hereditary?

In general it is not hereditary. Just because parents suffer from sciatica it does not mean their children will too.

VELEZ-MALAGA is set to host an exhibition of more than 100 musical instruments from 40 countries at Teatro del Carmen.

Cynthia Garcia, the town's councillor for Culture said the exhibition, which is on until May 26, is "a very interesting opportunity to interact with music and a diversity of instruments, which visitors may not have seen before."

The pieces are unique for their rarity and artistic value, and demonstrate the tradition and folklore of different countries. The exhibition is adapted to all audiences and the instruments are categorised by the sound produced: cordophones, aerophones, idiophones and membranphones.

The exhibition focuses on cultural, educational, musical, organological, anthropological and artistic aspects, ALMUÑECAR is preparing to host its 19th Gastronomic Fair, which will take place from June 9-11 in Parque El Majuelo.

The fair will host a competition for the best dish using typical local recipes. Participating dishes will use traditional recipes and be presented in a 'tapa' format, costing a fixed €3 each.

A jury will be put together to find the winning dish. Judges will take into account the use of traditional ingredients, presentation, complexity of the dish, and flavour in determining the winner.

An honorary diploma will be handed to the successful establishment, who will automatically be allowed to present at next year's fair at no cost. In addition, participating establishments will offer a minimum of five dishes to members of the public over the three-day event. The dishes must be part of the restaurants' normal menus and must cost between €1 and €6 each.

Each stand will be able to offer wines to complement their food and the event will run from 1pm to midnight on Friday June 9, from 12pm to midnight on Saturday June 10 and from noon to 6pm on Sunday June 11.

Restaurants interested in participating can register at the town hall until June 2.

GOOD FOOD, GOOD WINE AND GOOD FRIENDS WITH GARRY WAITE

HERE ARE NOW MORE BIL-LIONAIRES living in the UK than ever before despite fears over Brexit, the Sunday Times Rich List has revealed

This year's list found the richest 1,000 people and families have a record total wealth of £658 billion, a rise of 14 per cent on last year's £575 billion figure.

The wealthiest people in the UK are elderly brothers Sri and Gopi Hinduja, whose latest project is to convert the Old War Office in London into a luxury five-star hotel and 88 luxury apartments for the super-rich.

The pair first topped the list in 2014 and now have a fortune of £16.2 billion, made

The Ned is a beautiful, multifaceted beast, which required the help of a partner to create. After speaking to Ron Burkle, the American investor who acquired a 60 per cent stake in Soho House & Co in 2012, Jones met with Andrew Zobler, the founder and chief executive of Sydell Group. They are now among 134 billionaires on the list - a record number in the UK and 14 more than last year's.

In today's world, being simply a millionaire no longer secures you a place on the Rich List, with a fund of £110 million now needed to get you a place in the top 1,000. Two decades ago people needed a fortune of only (sic) £15 million to make the cut.

Robert Watts, compiler of the rankings, said: "While many of us worried about the outcome of the EU referendum, many of the richest people just kept calm and carried on making billions."

2. Len Blavatnik - £15.982 billion. The Ukraineborn investor owns Warner Music Group and lives in his home in Kensington Palace Gardens.

3. David and Simon Reuben - £14 billion. The brothers made their money in London property and internet. They bought a £70 million car park in Mayfair in 2015 which will be turned into a £500 million redevelopment.

4. Lakshmi Mittal and family - £13.229 billion. The world's top steelmaker is also a shareholder in QPR football club.

5. Alisher Usmanov - £11.791 billion. He owns a 30 per cent stake in Arsenal and made his money from mining and investment.

Original in Design and in Fact -Entrance to the Vault bar at the Ned.

The £220 million investment is now in the hands of Gareth Banner, the managing director of the Ned, who was appointed from his former general manager role at the Renaissance St Pancras hotel, London, and is the person responsible for the hotel on a day-to-day basis, who explained the logistics. "We have a central production kitchen, which feeds into all the restaurants, and a specific kitchen for each restaurant," he says. "The restaurants will all be run independently with their own head chef, restaurant manager and team, while behind the scenes there will be a lot of shared services - such as purchasing."

Staffing the Ned with a team of 800 is what has kept Banner awake at night. The process, however, has been on track, with many individuals being recruited directly from Europe, despite the uncertainty of what Brexit will mean in the long-term with regard to employing staff from within the EU. Teams of recruiters have appointed in Rome and Barcelona through the offer of attractive packages, rather than wait for individuals to come to the UK and for the Ned to then compete with another 10 businesses for their services.

"It is a worry and a concern for everyone in our industry how the government is going to deal with the immigration situation," says Jones. "Over 75 per cent of the people who work for Soho House in the UK weren't born in this country. I'm sure the government will consider a way around it - they are going to have to."

Once again, the Hospitality Industry in the UK shows its concern for the future of employment of foreigners after Brexit. But for the time being the Ned will no doubt thrive in the competitive world of London hotels. It is still one of Europe's top destinations. The City has never been considered a leisure area especially in the evenings, up until about 10 years ago bars closed at 8.00pm. But with the dining experiences and entertainment on offer at this luxury hotel, it will surely be at the hub of the financial district. The old bank may well welcome more bankers as customers. than used to work there!

Pergolas have been around for a long time and their original purpose was to provide protection from the sun. TOILET CLEANING: How to keep your man interested in caring for the loo.

IT seems that men are giving more consideration to cleaning the toilet. It makes sense that they should, as it is a regular port of call.

The days when men only managed to lift the toilet seat and never bothered putting it down may be over.

Things are changing, as researchers have discovered that men are taking more interest in the hygiene of their toilet and even buying products for cleaning, which is an amazing find. However, the report states that women are still taking most of the responsibility towards the cleaning of the 'throne.'

This new wave of interest may be due to there being so many products for cleaning the toilet that smell so wonderful, giving an incentive to take more of a part in this dreaded household duty. Awareness of germs is another reason, with people buying more disinfectants and advice for cleaning the toilet can be found so easily on social media.

Keep the man in your life interested in caring for the loo, by making it a more welcoming place to be. If he likes to read on the loo, get him a bookshelf and he'll take pride in this very important area and invest in keeping it clean.

It is probably the only room in the house, where you can have complete privacy, so turn your visits into pleasurable ones with fresh clean aromas, patterned toilet paper and a squeaky clean loo.

Healing power of cats

CATS are well known for being aloof and independent, but they do offer owners a subtle approach in healing. Cats are so laidback, and seem as if they don't care about anyone but themselves, but they help us more than we realise.

The fast pace of life makes it difficult to wind down, so it's a good idea to spend time with them and the world will slow down. calming your nerves and helping your state of mind. Cats can show you the way to better health, merely by stroking them while on your lap, as this lowers blood pressure

Cats can be entertaining and help us relax, by making us laugh and experiencing emotions. It has been reported, that watching cats online gives us a more positive outlook. There is nothing more relaxing than listening to the purring of a cat, and the frequency of this sound is helpful for a variety of illnesses

Our bodies are healed every night when we sleep, but there is also evidence that catnaps can improve memory and creativity. Cats are true connoisseurs of sleep, so let your cat guide you in the art of rejuvenation.

David THE Dogman Please note that this article was written by Sara Reusche of Paws Abilities Dog Training in Rochester Vinnesota, United States.

IF your cat or dog has a history of trauma, whether suspected or confirmed, here are some guidelines to remember.

1. The cat or dog determines what's traumatising, not you. While you may not have thought that holding your pet down for a simple nail trim was that big a deal, your cat or dog may have a different opinion. Watch your dog's body language for signs of stress such as lip licking, yawning, slower or faster movement, freezing, and turning away so that you can intervene if a situation starts to go south. Pushing through such situations can almost guarantee that they'll create new fear triggers in many cats and dogs.

2. Create safe places. One of the reasons to teach a dog to go to his or her mat is it is helpful for many dogs due to its clear structure of safety. The mat is a positive place where treats, relaxation, and massage take place, we can create a positive conditioned emotional response to the mere presence of this training method. Once the mat becomes a safe place,

Let those sleeping dogs lie

THE structure of a dog's sleep is very similar to a human being's sleep. There are stages of wakefulness, rapid-eye-movement REM sleep and nonrapid eve-movement sleep.

While asleep, the dog's brain is trying to find shortcuts or connections between things that they have experienced. The events of the day are put into categories, when in non-REM sleep. In REM sleep there is an opportunity for the dog to explore, in an environment that's free of consequences.

Dogs enter REM sleep about 20 minutes into a snooze session and might stay there for two to three minutes. People and dogs dream in both stages of sleep mentioned, but most dreams are remembered through REM sleep.

make sure to keep it that way. Do not allow anything bad happen to your dog on the mat. You can create other safe spaces as well - places in your dog's environment where good things occur and where there is no pressure placed on the dog.

3. Give your cat and dog choices. One of the fastest ways to traumatise any mammal is to take away all of his or her choices. Create opportunities for your dog to make choices about his or her environment, schedule, and care as much as possible. Whether you let your dog decide which way to turn at the end of the block, wait for your dog to offer a foot for nail trimming, play with nose work, or give your dog several different beds to choose to sleep on, choice is hugely important. Cats decide where they are going to sleep.

Set your dog up to make good choices, then reward those choices to build the dog's confidence.

4. Always try to end on a good note. Research has shown that people who have experienced identically unpleasant procedures created very different memories of those procedures depending on how traumatic the final moments of the procedure were. While we don't know whether dogs have the same cognitive recall abilities, it certainly doesn't hurt to try to make the last few seconds of any unpleasant experience as pleasant as possible.

For example, most dogs are concerned about having their feet handled. I file nails instead of clipping them because this is more comfortable for the dog and the dog is in control of how fast or slow nail trimming sessions go. Your pet is also free to leave at any time if he gets too scared. At the end of every nailtrimming session, I practise simply touching the nail file to her toenails for less than a second, followed by a food reward. Because each session ends with these quick successes, they are more comfortable allowing us to handle their feet when it is time for the next session

5. Your cat or dog is not his story. If your pet has a history of trauma, it's important to be aware of that past, but equally important to help your pet succeed in the present. Too often, we get caught up with the stories, we tell ourselves about our pets' past, and forget to pay attention to the animal in front of us.

Last week's article was also written by Sara Reusche, but credit was not given due to an oversight.

> TRAUMA: Watch body language.

Dogs, of course, dream about things that dogs normally do, while small dogs have more frequent but shorter dream periods and larger dogs have less frequent but longer dreams.

Dogs probably also have nightmares, they can get narcolepsy, which is a disorder that causes the brain to fall into a sudden state of sleep. Unlike some of their human owners, they don't suffer from sleep paralysis, which is when someone becomes conscious, but are unable to move their body.

When dogs sleep, they quiver, make leg twitches and even growl or snap at something chasing them in their dreams. If dogs are having trouble sleeping, it may also be due to pain or fear, which they express through anxiety at night.

A demand for luxury

THREE villas on Campello's Muchavista beach in Alicante have been pulled down to make way for 10 luxury apartments.

Campello's General Development Plan (PGOU) drafted in 2011 originally intended to give planning permission for a hotel on the site. Instead, the PGOU was revoked last year by the Supreme Court on a technicality pointed out by a local business-owner who would have been adversely affected by it.

For the time being any future development will be in line with the 1986 PGOU. Although the Supreme Court ruling put the brakes on the local construction sector last year and at the beginning of 2017, there is still a demand for frontline luxury properties. Three villas built last year above the l'Almadrava beach each sold for almost €1.8 million, sector sources said. The new apartment building will have two 400-square metre apartments costing €1 million on each floor. Although they await planning permission some apartments have already been sold.

They estimate that nine million people would visit the centre each year, while the knock-on effects for Spain's booming construction industry would be enormous.

That meant that just 16.3 per cent of the 56,000 homes bought by foreigners were new builds. Oddly enough the statistics suggest that expats favour second hand homes more than Spanish nationals, 81.2 per cent of whom chose older properties.

But further breakdowns can be made between foreign nationalities. For instance the homes. Norwegians, Belgians and Swedish opt for new builds. Alternatively Brits and Germans typically don't put too much currency on the age of the home. Rather they choose size, opting for homes with more than 100 square metres of homes favoured are old or new, big or small, foreigners are continuing to buy Spanish in record numbers.

They bought almost 8,000 more homes last year than in 2015. That meant that 13.2 per cent of homes were bought by foreigners, a huge increase from the 4.2 per cent recorded in 2009.

The Mediterranean coastlines continue to be the favourite haunt of expats looking for a home in the sun. Some 47,000 of the 56,000 purchased were on the long coastline between Gibraltar and Barcelona.

THE great arc of world motor shows has taken in Paris, Geneva and New York. Last weekend the flashiest, most unusual cars in the industry were in Britain for the London Motor Show which ran from May 4 to 7. It was rapidly emerging alternative to the British Motor Show. As in 2016, this year it was once again held in Battersea Park.

the second edition of the show, a

There were motoring celebrities, including Stig Ben Collins and Jodie Kidd, car safety demonstrations, virtual reality driving experiences, a wild range of supercars and even the new electric London Black Cab.

The Lamborghini Aventador S made its British debut, bringing a V12 engine and incredible 740hp to stunned fans. At the other end of the size scale there was the classic Mini remastered by David Brown and now confusingly known as the 'new-old Mini.

> Other British debuts included the Alpina B4 S, the Kahn Vengeance Volante, and the MG XS, considered the English manufacturer's strongest foray on to the world stage yet.

Among the wilder entrants was the concept hypercar the Aston Martin Valkyrie which is forged from a oneoff partnership with Red Bull Racing. It is the latest of the brand's V cars but that's about all anyone knows except that it's sure to be extremely sleek and fast.

Also making waves, and for very real reasons, was the Jaguar F-Pace. recently declared the World Car of the Year. Crowds also waved a fond farewell to an army of TX4 London Black Cabs which will soon be in the vintage section of future road shows as they prepare to be replaced.

VALKYRIE: Enigmatic new Aston Martin and Red Bull invention.

Hybrid solution

A JAPANESE hybrid car has become the fastest selling car on one of the UK's biggest second-hand markets. In April the Toyota Prius sold quicker than any other car on Auto Trader, taking roughly two weeks to offload.

Tough new taxes on traditional petrol-guzzling cars may have contributed to the Prius' success. It is also considered extremely reliable and economical, winning top reviews from customers and industry insiders.

UK drivers appear to be embracing the hybrid universe as electric becomes more mainstream than ever before Now there are concerns that the number of electric charging stations cannot possibly keep up with demand without a major remodelling of the countrv's roads.

shield Phone sıgnal

TROUBLE caused by mobile phones could soon be a thing of the past. Nissan claims to have developed new technology which acts as an electromagnetic shield blocking calls and any other notifications.

Drivers would simply drop their phone into the so-called Signal Shield sunk in the armrest and no longer have to worry about being distracted. Crucially for many people, especially those in business, they wouldn't have to switch their phones off altogether and risk losing critical messages.

All of the hundreds of various apps, from weather updates to email messages, would be blocked by the Signal Shield. Many drivers have reported feeling the urge to check their phone each time it buzzes, even when the vast majority of notifications are useless updates rather than important messages.

The sheer number of beeps and buzzes emitting from modern smart phones has led to a huge rise in the number of deaths and injuries on the roads caused by 'distractions.' It's no longer people chatting on the phone that is the deadliest, but those reaching for it.

The technology also fills a smart and selfish purpose. Users can virtually guarantee that they won't be caught or fined for using their phone.

Recent smart cameras wheeled out onto Spanish roads can check for phone usage, even seatbelt wearing. Police technology to catch offenders is quickly growing stronger.
