So macho

Killer husband ruling angers women

By Matt Ford

A High Court decision to cut the sentence of a Malaga murderer who stabbed his wife 30 times by eight years has sparked outrage.

It comes as the unnamed husband will now serve 17 years instead of 25 after an Andalusian tribunal concluded his actions were "not necessarily" cruel.

Furious women's rights campaigners have rallied against the move as Women's Link Worldwide, an international organisation headquartered in Madrid, branded it the worst court ruling of the year in terms of women's rights.

Marian Gonzalez, the victim's sister, said: "The recognition that this is a terrible decision gives me and my family new hope and support as we continue to seek justice for my murdered sister."

"Hundreds of people have told the court that it was wrong to issue a reduced sentence, which seems so macho, because stabbing someone 30 times is certainly cruel!"

The husband was convicted of murder with aggravated cruelty in Malaga, but the High

STAMP IT OUT: A Madrid homage to women murdered by their partners.

Court ruled that the legal idea of cruelty does not conform with the popular conception that it relates to brutality.

In a statement, it said that "hitting someone 30 times involves brutality and fury or blind anger, and, in common language, violence, but it does not necessarily equate to cruelty."

"It is not enough for the perpetrator to repeatedly execute an aggression capable of causing death, it must have been intended to increase the victim's suffering, nothing more."

The Women's Link awards were created to investigate how court decisions can have both positive and negative impacts on female lives, and this year's best decision gong was given to the Canary Islands Court of Justice after a divorced domestic violence victim won the rights to her dead ex-husband's pension.

It comes after three women died within 24 hours at the end of last month at the hands of their partners.

Thirty women having been killed in domestic violence incidents across Spain since the turn of the year.

Money traps return

A PAIR of controversial speed cameras are going to be reintroduced to the A-7 motorway in Mijas.

Spain's Traffic Department (DGT) announced the return of the two devices in the second week of June.

In 2015, they were the two most active cameras in the entire country, with one handing out 27,552 speeding tickets and the other close behind with 26,721. The cameras had been de-activated due to repair work carried out on the structures they were attached to.

DGT has said they hope the re-activation of the devices will help drivers keep to the 80kmh speed limit, making the roads a safer place.

Critics say they are placed strategically to fine the maximum number of drivers with safety not an issue as the central government rake in the profits.

All eyes on UK

British poll takes place today

ALL eyes are on the UK as the nation today (Thursday) goes to the polls to select a new government.

By tomorrow (Friday) the British electorate will know who is to lead them from 10 Downing Street for up to the next five years, with Theresa May heading the Conservative Party, Jeremy Corbyn the Labour Party, Tim Farron the Liberal Democrats, Nicola Sturgeon the Scottish National Party, Leanne Wood Plaid Cymru, and Paul Nuttall UKIP, with Caroline Lucas and Jonathan Bartley jointly leading the Green Party.

While in recent General Elections and other national votes opinion polls and national forecasts have frequently been inaccurate, in the countdown to today's election they have pointed to a Conservative victory despite the Labour party making up ground.

Thousands of British expats in Spain will have taken part in today's vote if they have only left to live abroad within the last 15 years, although there have been mixed reports concerning the arrival of ballot papers with some councils sending them out very quickly and others taking their time.

Both leaders consider this the most important General Election for years, and while politicians call for a united country, the result is more likely to highlight deep divides between many UK regions.

Sharing pain of atrocity

IN SILENCE: With thoughts of the victims.

MARBELLA Council joined a number of other town halls, Guardia Civil commands, schools and other institutions in observing a minute's silence for victims of the weekend's atrocities in London.

It comes after at least eight people died in the attack, during which a van ploughed into pedestrians on London Bridge before three men carrying knives stabbed people in Borough Market.

Police have named Youssef Zaghba, 22, a Moroccan-Italian who lived in east London, Khuram Butt, 27, and Rachid Redouane, 30, both resident in Barking, as the men responsible.

SPANISH FACTS OF LIFE... 15

Whether avoiding the colour yellow or placing cacti on windowsills to ward off evil spirits, there are rafts of superstitions in Spanish culture, and none are more popular than fear of Tuesday 13th.

Unlucky for some

WHILE Friday the 13th is considered an unlucky day in most Western countries, superstitious souls in Spain view Tuesday as the day to dread.

This is because Tuesdays are said to be dominated by Ares, the Greek God of War, who was known as Mars in Ancient Rome and gave his name to dies martis (Tuesday) in Latin, which later became martes in Spanish.

Events such as the fall of Constantinople to the Fourth Crusade, which happened on Tuesday April 13, 1204, and the fall of Constantinople to the Ottomans on Tuesday May 29, 1453, added more weight to the belief that bad things happen on a Tuesday.

TUESDAY 13TH: Unlucky.

In Greek, Tuesday is known as Triti, meaning the third of the week, and this has further boosted the superstition since bad luck supposedly 'comes in threes.'

There is even a traditional Spanish proverb which warns: 'En martes, ni te cases, ni te embarques, ni de tu casa te apartes' [On Tuesday, don't get married, don't get on a boat, don't even leave your house].

Occurring in months which start on a Thursday, next Tuesday marks the first and only occasion that sufferers of trezidavomartiofobia (fear of Tuesday 13th) need fret this year.

Very superstitious

OTHER widespread superstitions in Spain include an aversion to the colour yellow, which is traditionally said to represent sulphur and the devil. Thus, Spaniards will not wear yellow in certain situations including job interviews and exams, while it is considered bad luck to gift friends or family members, especially babies, with yellow clothes.

Cacti are popular window plants in Spain, and while this has plenty to do with the dry, sunny climate it is rooted in the long-established belief that the spiky succulents ward off evil spirits. The theory is that the plants absorb moisture from the air, drowning fiendish phantoms as they try to cross the threshold.

Wicked spirits are also thought to dwell in human hair, from where they are easily transferred to headwear, so leaving a hat on a bed in Spain is also considered a bad omen.

YELLOW: Do not wear to an interview.

It argues that whilst men with bare chests are perfectly acceptable on the beach, there are areas where this should be prohibited in order to maintain social standards.

Grandma's boy

A YOUNG thief who stole €30,000 in cash from his grandparents was arrested by National Police. The 22-year-old enjoyed a brief taste of the high life, even spending thousands on a ring, before the law caught up to him.

Toxic threat

MARBELLA'S push to finish repair work before the tourist season begins has left many worried about damages to seawater quality. Social media images show muddy-brown waters stretching along Fontanilla beach, with many locals saying they are reluctant to swim in it.

€40 million boost

THE mayor of Estepona envisages spending €40 million on public infrastructure over the next year. Employment is up while a number of public departments have been outsourced in order to obtain better value for money.

Key witness

SPANISH Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy will appear as a witness in a major corruption trial involving members of the governing conservative Partido Popular.

Spain's High Court called on the politician to give evidence in person at the so-called Gurtel trial and it is expected he will appear at a court in San Fernando de Henares near Madrid in July.

The case centres on a vast cash for contracts kickback scheme that is alleged to have helped finance Mr Rajoy's PP, which has faced repeated accusations of corruption. The 62-year-old leader is not accused of wrongdoing but it is believed as the head of the party since 2004, he could provide key evidence.

Curry favour

INDIA'S Prime Minister Narendra Modi has urged Spanish firms to invest in his country saying it was "an enormous country" and there were "many opportunities" as his government set out a massive infrastructure programme.

The politician met with Spanish government representatives and business leaders. India plans to build six massive sea ports, 250 airports, 27,000km of roads, and modernise 400 train stations by 2025. Mr Modi said Spain was a global leader in areas India needed as a priority.

Dignified rally

TENS of thousands demonstrated in Madrid on a 'march of dignity' calling for better wages and job security as Spain recovers from a painful recession.

Postcard from Cáceres

STONE WALLS: A medieval city.

THE medieval city of Cáceres has a starring role in the new series of the award-winning Game of Thrones, its stone walls and fortifications making it an ideal choice to be cast in the drama.

Early in the morning or at dusk, visitors almost feel they have stepped into a time machine and returned to the Middle Ages, such is the feel of history all around.

A lively university city with a population of 95,814, its old town Ciudad Monumental is a UNESCO world heritage site and is an impressive reminder of the past. It is 300km south west of Madrid, in the region of Extremadura, a drive of about three hours.

It is a mixture of gothic and renaissance architecture and the narrow cobbled streets twist and climb amongst the ancient stone walls, a skyline decorated with turrets, gargoyles and enormous stork nests.

The streets are packed with shops and taverns; people can enjoy full-bodied red wines, cherry, blackberry and chestnut liqueurs and cheese made from the milk of Merino sheep. Cáceres is also famous for its food; stews, roast meats - especially pork, lamb and game - all recipes with a rich country tradition.

The provincial capital of the province of Cáceres, it has been home to Romans, Visigoths, moors and Spanish after the reconquest and it is situated on the Via de la Plata, the pilgrims' route from Sevilla to Santiago de Compostela.

People travelled from across the country to join the protest, walking behind a banner reading: 'Bread, work, homes and equality.'

Critics maintain many workers face a precarious future with no guarantee over hours and are often poorly paid.

Taxi brake

THOUSANDS of Spanish taxi drivers went on strike in Madrid and Barcelona in the ongoing protest against 'ride-hailing' companies like Uber and Cabify.

Industrial action lasted 12 hours in the capital and a full 24 hours in Spain's second city; taxi drivers believe their jobs are at risk while the new cheaper competition did not implement existing laws.

Pirates' tale

SPANISH actor Javier Bardem stars as bad guy Armando Salazar in the latest of the Pirates of the Caribbean, the fifth film in the saga of Johnny Depp's Captain Jack Sparrow.

In Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Men Tell No Tales, Javier plays a Spanish pirate hunter leading a motley crew of 'undead' seamen trapped inside the Devil's Triangle; naturally Capt Sparrow is the focus of his revenge.

Infant killed

A MAN was arrested in Arcos de la Frontera, Cadiz, after he suffocated his eight-month-old baby before brutally beating his pregnant partner.

Police were tipped off by concerned neighbours, but they arrived too late to save the child while the mother was hospitalised.

Balearic babes

SHE'S in Mallorca as filming for the new series of ITV's Love Island is about to begin.

But Caroline Flack has clearly been taking the opportunity to relax as she posted a cheeky topless shot as she lounged in the pool next to friend and stylist Fiona Fagan, who also dispensed with her bikini top.

The 37-year-old presenter added the caption: "When you work with your bezza."

The pair are reportedly holed up in Sant Llorenç des Cardassar, which is where the upcoming series of the hit augmented reality show will be set.

Elsewhere in Mallorca, 2003 Miss Wales winner and Big Brother star Imogen Thomas, 34, put on a busty display atop a stallion as she posed to promote her Chasing Summer swimwear range.

Rocking a skimpy scarlet bikini with a halterneck top and tie side bottoms during the red hot photo-shoot, the curvaceous beauty seemed to enjoy her horseback experience after earlier slipping into a sea-green number on the beach.

In Ibiza, 32-year-old Victoria's Secret model Izabel Goulart paraded her impossibly pert posterior in a t h o n g bikini as she cuddled up to German boyfriend and Paris St Germain goalkeeper Kevin Trapp, 26.

Her break came after she wowed the red carpet crowds in Cannes during the film festival, and provided an equally show-stopping spectacle as she performed an eye-popping exercise routine on their rented yacht.

Tickled pink

SHE grabbed the nation's attention 20 years ago following a skimpily-clad appearance in a TV ad campaign for Boddington's bitter.

But Melanie Sykes, 46, showed that her own bikini bod hasn't aged a day as she shared a series of sexy snaps to her Instagram page during a break in Mallorca.

The mum-of-two flaunted her fabulous figure after slipping into a bright pink bikini, although it appears the Balearic weather failed to match her enthusiasm after she captioned one Cup a load of this!

REAL MADRID stars warmed up for their thumping 4-1 victory over Italian giants Juventus in last Saturday's Champions League final by enjoying a break in Ibiza.

Defender and Captain Sergio Ramos was joined by girlfriend Pilar Rubio and several of his teammates aboard a luxury yacht.

The group savouring some much-needed downtime ahead of the showpiece in Cardiff also included Luka Modric, Lucas Vazquez, Keylor Navas and Mateo Kovacic.

Ramos was pictured aboard a powerful jet ski before taking the plunge as he launched himself into the Mediterranean from the side of the boat.

And the Andalusian helped ensure his team did not fall short after they became the first club to retain the European Cup since AC Milan in 1990.

THE third Torremolinos Pride broke all records as an estimated 40,000 revellers flooded the coastal town for the four-day spectacular.

This represents a 30 per cent increase on 2016, with organisers and councillors delighted.

It is now considered the third most important LGBT event in Spain after the prides in Madrid and Barcelona, with 9,000 people marching in the main parade last Saturday.

The motto for 2017 was 'Se tu misma, Be Yourself,' a nod to lesbian women who suffer from double discrimination over their sexual preferences and simply for being women.

There was also a major focus on sexually-transmitted diseases as volunteers handed out leaflets, answered questions and offered free confidential screenings.

The social and cultural messages were delivered against a hedonistic backdrop, as revellers waved rainbow flags and danced under the blazing sun.

Local businesses reported a 14 per cent increase in takings while hotel occupancy approached 100 per cent over the course of the jamboree, which closed on Sunday.

OUR VIEW

Bag disposal

AS more councils in Spain tighten up their regulations concerning dog ownership and traceability, a new phenomenon seems to have appeared.

One of the aims of the regulations is to cut down the amount of dog excrement seen on the streets and to some extent this is working, but there is a hidden surprise.

Whilst owners have started to carry 'poop bags' with them and do stop to pick up the faeces, many appear to be unable to decide where to safely dispose of the bags and suddenly there are lots of little black bags appearing on pavements, roads or thrown onto waste plots.

It's a double-edged sword as there are fewer piles of poo on the streets which must make it safer for children, but there is the problem of cute little bags waiting to be picked up and opened.

At least when it rained heavily or when the sun was at its strongest, the dog mess was either washed away or petrified, but now it has the potential to sit and fester within its own little home.

Dog ownership comes with responsibility, not only for the well-being of the dog itself, but for those who don't have a dog and for the sake of public health and pride, public bins should be used to dispose of the mess.

POLICE are cracking down on Costa del Sol fraudsters who pretend to be victims of violent robberies to claim money on insurance policies.

Seven separate arrests have now been made in three months, with officers suspecting many more fraudsters are at large.

All seven are accused of making up a crime during which they lost money or valuables, conveniently with no witnesses. They made police reports, which were then used to claim back money on insurance.

Fake crime fraudsters

One man claimed to have had his high-end phone stolen by muggers, another claimed to have been threatened by an assailant with a razor blade.

Police eventually decided the stories didn't stack up. The accused are believed to have either lost their own possessions, or to have deliberately lied to police for monetary gain.

They face charges of fraud and making false reports.

Pirate patrols ramp up

MARKET: Police are scanning stalls for pirate goods.

A SPECIAL police investigation into counterfeit goods led to five arrests and the seizure of hundreds of items at a Costa del Sol market.

Marbella police conducted an intensive search of stalls at the market on Avenida Manolete in Nueva Andalucía. Eight plainclothed officers and four uniformed took part in the latest action against pirate sellers.

They found 654 counterfeit sales items at five different stalls. The men arrested and charged were Moroccan, Senegalese and Spanish.

Public Security councillor Javier Porcuna hailed the operation. He warned that police now have special training in intellectual property and are well equipped to identify counterfeit goods.

Porcuna said such operations would continue to help protect local and legitimate small businesses who paid good money for genuine articles. He announced additional counterfeit patrols on the Paseo Marítimo and throughout Puerto Banús this summer to help rid the city of pirate vendors.

In the past three months alone police have seized more than 4,000 counterfeit items in Marbella.

Waste of space

Council officials named in toxic dump probe

LOCAL businessmen and public officials from Nerja are among a group of 40 people being investigated in a Guardia Civil environmental probe.

Among those implicated are the mayor, Rosa Arrabal and her predecessor Jose Alberto Armijo, plus a number of other current and former councillors and 26 entrepreneurs.

It comes as enquiries into an allegedly illegal landfill site, which reportedly lacks official paperwork and may pose a serious environmental threat, near their conclusion.

All of the suspects must now appear before a judge in a case headed by detectives from SEPRONA, the Guardia's nature protection offshoot.

The dumping ground is said to be at least 15 years old and by the end of 2016 covered a staggering 36,000 square metres adjacent to the La Miel

ILLEGAL SITE: May pose a serious environmental threat.

River within the protected Pinar y Dehesa del Rio Chillar and Sierra de Tejera, Almijara y Alhama natural parks.

Investigators say that the site has seen "uncontrolled fly-tipping of all types of dangerous construction and demolition waste, plus large amounts of cut vegetation."

They concluded that the tip represents a "serious danger to the environment and the balance of natural ecosystems, as well as a significant fire risk."

The space is supposedly managed by a society formed by five companies with the town hall fully aware.

They are accused of issuing 'false certificates' suggesting the landfill to be legal to clients who contracted them for waste management.

Experts also found that there is no rainwater drainage system, that waste is deposited directly on the ground, and that controls for emissions and accumulation of natural gases, some flammable, are entirely lacking, while there are no fire breaks or perimeter fencing.

The situation is further complicated by the presence of rare flora, including endangered species, meaning a wild fire could have 'catastrophic' consequences on biodiversity and even threaten the nearby Maro-Cerro Gordo cliffs.

The investigation continues.

Going green with illegal power

A SOPHISTICATED Costa del Sol drugs lab was dismantled by National Police. Officers seized more than 500 marihuana plants and uncovered a vast network of fraudulent electrical supplies.

Just one person was arrested in the raid of an industrial warehouse in Malaga. Inside officers found halogen lamps, transformers, fans and a huge ventilation system elaborately designed to cultivate a substantial marihuana crop.

There had been reports of discrepancies from the city's electricity grid. The address was illegally connected to the city supply, illegally siphoning off thousands of euros worth of power.

Feria season underway

SPANISH national basketball coach Sergio Scariolo formally opened the Marbella's San Bernabe feria, praising the city for its regrowth as an important destination.

Comparing the city to sporting heroes, he said "like the teams with a winning mentality, the municipality has not lost its identity."

He added that "basketball is a sport of statistics and, in this case, we must remember recent data such as the rise in average occupancy, hotel profitability or the decline in unemployment that invite optimism."

Italian born Scariolo made it clear Marbella is his second home, saying "when people ask me where I live, it is a pride to be able to say that I live in Marbella and sometimes I even see a flash of envy in the person who asked the question."

The opening took place at the Marina and was attended by the mayor, José Bernal, and other members of the council team, continuing with the crowning of the Queens followed by the traditional fireworks.

The event continues until next Monday and is expected to attract thousands of revellers, with a full programme available at <http://www.marbella.es/fiestas/fiestas/san-bernabe/12-san-bernabe/553/programa-de-san-bernabe-2017.html>.

Banco Popular sold for €1

THE European Central Bank has endorsed the sale of Spain's ailing Banco Popular and ordered the transfer of all of its shares and capital to Banco Santander SA for the sum of €1.

The ECB decided that the sale was in the public interest as it protects all depositors of Banco Popular and ensures financial stability.

Shares in Banco Popular have fallen 63 per cent over the past month amid concerns the lender, which has been struggling under the weight of billions of euros in non-performing loans, would need to raise capital or seek a government rescue. Due to its recent stressed liquidity situation, the ECB had decided that Banco Popular was 'failing or likely to fail.'

The deal will create the biggest bank in Spain and Portugal, with around 21 million customers.

Santander said in a statement it would raise around €7 billion in new capital as part of the rescue process "which will cover the capital and the provisions required to reinforce the balance sheet of Banco Popular.

"The current shareholders of Banco Santander will have preferential subscription rights in the share capital increase. Banco Santander holds underwriting commitments for the total of such amount."

Drugs found floating in the sea

THE Maritime Unit of the Guardia Civil reported the finding of 800 kilos of cannabis in 27 bales found floating in the Bay of Malaga. Previous discoveries have been made by members of the public, some of whom kept the evidence for themselves.

It is assumed by officers that drug smugglers threw the bales overboard thinking that they were about to be discovered by the authorities and although investigations continue it appears unlikely that the source of the illicit drugs will be identified.

Nobu opens first restaurant in Spain - Marbella

Nobu Restaurant & Lounge, the first Nobu to open in Spain, is set to launch on June 15 at Puente Romano, Marbella.

The new restaurant will introduce Nobu's world-renowned New Style cuisine to the resort's discerning guests. Inventive style, known as Nobu-San style, has joined Japanese cooking and Peruvian flavours.

The Nobu menu will offer a mouth-watering array of signature dishes including Black Cod Miso, Yellowtail Sashimi with Jalapeño and Tiradito, as well as speciality plates inspired by Marbella itself.

Nobu is known for his playful cuisine and creativity as well as keeping his regular guests intrigued by introducing them to new tastes and flavours.

Nobu-San enjoys sharing his recipes and once humorously stated: "They can copy the recipes, but they cannot copy the heart that I put into each recipe."

Drawing on inspiration from the ingredients themselves, Nobu has created a stunning menu filled with incredible dishes, each delivered with beautiful presentation, a feast for all the senses.

Nobu's signature cocktails, crafted by master mixologists, will be served alongside its Bar Menu in the Nobu Lounge. It has a chic and refined design that is set to have an electric atmosphere adjacent to the restaurant and overlooking Puente Romano's famous 'La Plaza.'

Designed by StudioPCH Malibu, Nobu Restaurant & Lounge Marbella will balance comfortable simplicity with natural materials and textures, consistent with the recently refurbished resort's contemporary aesthetic.

Nobu Marbella will serve dinner every day from 7.30pm - 1am. Nobu Lounge will offer a Bar Menu from 7.30pm and Nobu Bar will serve cocktails accompanied by music from live DJs until 4am on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

After leaving the keys in the ignition, she was shocked to see the car speeding away, immediately calling the police, but the vehicle was abandoned just 200 metres down the road.

Stolen van contained gasoline

AFTER spotting a van which appeared to be driving erratically, officers of the Guardia Civil tried to get the driver to stop as he passed through San Roque.

The driver of the vehicle put his foot down and drove dangerously along the

A-7 motorway for several kilometres almost causing accidents with other cars as well as trying to ram the Guardia Civil car.

Eventually he stopped and having abandoned the vehicle ran off leaving the officers to discover that the van was stolen in Madrid and contained 38 plastic canisters each containing 20 litres of gasoline believed to have been taken from a waste management company.

It is possible that the fuel was due to be used by local drug smugglers to power their boats which go back and forth to Morocco and officers are keeping their eyes open for the escaped driver and similar movements of fuel.

Guardia Civil attend injured canyoner

Performing a delicate landing procedure.

WHEN a 31-year-old man from Almansa got into trouble whilst canyoning on the Guadalquivir River, a Guardia Civil helicopter was sent to help him.

This sport which was developed in the USA consists of an individual or group jumping into a fast flowing stream or river and allowing themselves to be carried downstream at speed.

In this case, as the area in which the man was injured had such limited access, it was necessary to send out a helicopter to rescue him, but even the experienced Guardia Civil pilot had difficulty in landing safely.

Once officers managed to reach the man, he was placed on a stretcher and then evacuated to the Baza Hospital in Granada Province.

Free roaming charges may not be so free

MUCH has been made by the EU decision to scrap mobile phone roaming charges from June 15, but Spanish customers may be in for a surprise.

At least one Spanish media source suggests that in order to offset any loss of income caused by this decision, a number of mobile line suppliers are considering increasing their base tariffs for Spanish subscribers.

Effectively the decision to allow regular travellers to save on their mobile calls whilst travelling within up to 30 countries in Europe could mean that their gain will be subsidised by those who don't travel and those who do travel may have to pay more for their package as well.

Those with British phones will be able to benefit by using them anywhere within the European Union and paying the same as if they were calling from the UK but no-one is able to confirm whether this is likely to continue after Brexit.

There may also be a 'fair use' agreement which means that those who use their phones more than would be reasonable to expect whilst abroad may have to pay an additional charge, but the EU has pegged this at a maximum of 3.2 cents for a call and one cent for a text message.

The cost of data roaming will also drop by a third from June 15 for each gigabyte used and will continue to drop until 2020 when it should cost no more than €2.50 per gigabyte.

Every phone company is required by law to advise customers of any new or special charges before imposing them.

PALACE WALL: The gypsy girl who has caused the argument.

French Invader in Malaga upsets local Bishopric

CONTROVERSY is raging over the artwork produced by anonymous French graffiti artist Invader which has suddenly appeared in Malaga.

The 29 images nearly all based on scenes from the Space Invader game have been placed without permission on buildings throughout the city but one in particular, that of a gypsy girl has been placed on the wall of the Episcopal Palace.

The mayor of Malaga, Francisco de la Torre has admitted that he likes the concept of the art, but has received complaints from the Malaga Bishopric saying that the Palace is classified as a Building of Good Cultural Interest (BIC) and should be removed.

As the Bishopric did not receive an immediate response to its complaint, it has reportedly made a separate complaint to the Department of Culture of the Junta de Andalucia and the mayor has indicated that he will wait for the ruling from the Junta.

He did however point out that as the majority of artwork appears on buildings which are not classed as BIC then it was up to the owners to decide whether they wished to keep or remove the designs which are affixed with industrial glues.

The opposition PSOE party also criticises the fact that the image has appeared on the Palace, but a local art expert has suggested that the artwork is more important than the building.

Invader has now placed 3,481 of these artworks in 71 cities in Europe and North Africa and is quoted as saying “I define myself as an UFA, an Unidentified Free Artist. I chose Invader as my pseudonym and I always appear behind a mask.

“As such, I can visit my own exhibitions without any visitors knowing who I really am even if I stand a few steps away from them. Since 1998, I have developed a large scale project, code name: Space Invaders.”

In the same way that British artist Banksy has gained a following in the art world, some of Invader’s pieces have been removed and sold to collectors.

Spanish hero dead following attack on London Bridge

THE Spanish Foreign Minister Alfonso Dastis has criticised British authorities for not acting quickly enough to identify a Spaniard believed to have been killed in Saturday's attack which left seven people dead.

Thirty-nine-year-old lawyer

Ignacio Echeverría was last seen fighting off the three terrorists with his skateboard as they attacked a woman.

On Tuesday night the journalist and aunt of Ignacio, Isabel Durán, appeared to confirm the death in an emotive tweet saying, "Ignacio Echeverría attacked the terrorists to try to save a woman. He is in the sky with his inseparable skateboard." But later she apologised for giving the painful news when she realised it wasn't official.

Mr Echeverría's worried parents flew to London from their home near Madrid.

It is thought identification took so long because Mr Echeverría was not carrying any identification after he had been participating in sport.

Police said they needed fingerprint confirmation before identifying any victim and Boris Johnson, the Foreign Secretary, insisted that protocols must be followed before making identities public.

Sadly however, his family finally confirmed that he died during the London Bridge attack.

IGNACIO ECHVERRÍA: Was caught up in the recent terror attack.

His sister Ana announced the news on Facebook saying "Ignacio did not survive the attack."

"Thank you to everyone who loved and cared for him. We know we are not the only ones saddened."

The family also thanked the Spanish government and the bank he worked at, HS-BC, for their help in searching for Ignacio.

Foreign Minister Alfonso Dastis said "He is, for all of us, a shining example of solidarity.

"His valour when trying to defend another person serves as a reminder that we all need to stand united and face terrorism," he added.

Heroic act draws praise

TRIBUTES are pouring in for a Local Police officer from Fuengirola after he saved a drowning woman in the middle of the night.

The drama unfolded just after half-past-one in the morning, when a hotel guest made an emergency call informing police that a person was drowning off Los Boliches beach.

Two traffic officers, Angel Lobaton and Manuel Madrid, were nearby, and on arriving at the scene they found a couple who were friends of the victim alongside a group of teenagers, none of whom had seen her for several minutes.

After Madrid spotted her 150 metres offshore using his torch, Lobaton pulled off his uniform and swam in her direction.

Having got the 33-year-old Ukrainian, who had been drinking, onto dry land she began to vomit but soon recovered from the ordeal.

“As a professional I am proud to save a life and to have been there when the citizen needed it,” said Lobaton.

Town mayor Ana Mula added: “The officer put his life at risk to save that woman, he did not think about himself and that is a reason for everyone to be proud.”

NEWS EXTRAFun run

THE anti-domestic violence 'Carrera Hay Salida' fun run returns to Madrid for the fourth time on June 11, to raise awareness and support for abuse victims.

Shared area

AN agreement has been reached between seven councils in the Guadalhorce Valley area to share police officers when needed. This will be useful when short term increased security is needed.

Large claim

A FIREMAN in Torremolinos will receive a payment of €100,000 in settlement of a claim for harassment. The current council which was not involved believes it wrong for taxpayers to have to pay.

Fatal crash

ONE person died after an accident between a car and a motorcyclist in Calahonda. Emergency services attended but were unable to revive the bike rider and the driver of the car was taken to hospital.

Beach death

AN 85-year-old woman has died of a suspected heart attack on a Benalmadena beach, after paramedics were unable to resuscitate her.

Variety visit

THE Greek cruise liner Variety Voyager has made its first-ever stop at Malaga Port, with representatives from the city's Tourist Office, Port Authority and cruise company Cruceros Malaga exchanging commemorative plaques.

High fall

HAVING accidentally fallen from the third floor of a building in Torremolinos, a 71-year-old man was taken to the University Clinic Hospital for observation.

ALTHOUGH there are a number of shotgun and rifle licences granted in Malaga Province just 100 people are allowed to carry hand guns in public.

Whilst all law officers carry guns, it is the responsibility of the Guardia Civil to grant licences to individuals to carry pistols and there are very strict criteria as to who will be allowed to do this.

They need to be able to prove that they have no existing psychological problems, have no criminal convictions and most importantly to demonstrate that their lives may be at risk so need protection.

Such individuals will include judges, prosecuting lawyers and even individuals who transport large volumes of cash or other precious items on a regular basis.

There are large number of hunters in the province which explains why there are some 77,000 shotguns and 7,000 rifles registered.

The recent discovery of 10,000 illegal firearms and the increasing use of guns in drug smuggling cases suggests that no matter how well controlled legal weapons may be, those of a criminal nature may find it relatively easy to obtain illegal firearms.

Day to remember

IT was all smiles at the Ronald McDonald House in Malaga City as the institution celebrated its fifth birthday with an open-doors event.

Live music and dance performances were accompanied by mini-workshops featuring handicrafts, face painting, balloon modelling, gardening, cookery and much more.

There were also two enormous paellas feeding 500 people, a bar and a tombola with 1,400 gifts donated by local companies, with all proceeds donated to the house.

Funded by the McDonalds charitable foundation, the La Caixa bank and other companies, the 14-bedroom building provides accommodation to children suffering from cancer or heart issues during their treatment at the adjacent Materno Infantil Hospital.

Each of the rooms houses three to four people, and more than 1,000 families have benefited since the house opened five years ago, with 50 per cent from Andalucía, 25 per cent from Melilla and 25 per cent from Morocco.

Manager Vicente Moros said: "We want people to learn about our project and have a great time with us."

"Our goal is to keep families together while the child is undergoing hospital treatment."

First year of Butterfly Children Charity Bench

ON June 1, DEBRA Butterfly Children's Charity celebrated the first anniversary of its charity bench situated at the peak of La Concha (1,215m).

The bench was the brainchild of local Marbella fireman José Pérez Bellido. José wanted to give visibility to Butterfly Skin at the same time as offering a place for visitors of the mountain to rest and take in the views. With the help of his fellow firemen, la Obra Social 'la Caixa' and the town hall, in 2016, Jose saw his dream become a reality.

Since then hundreds of visitors have made use of the bench and shared their selfies with the hashtags #Banc Solidario and @pieldemariposa to create awareness of the cause.

To celebrate the anniversary of this unique initiative a group of special individuals set off intent on reaching the peak. Nieves Montero, founder of the charity and mother of an affected child was accompanied by Paco Raez, a local fireman but primarily the father of Pablo Raez who lost his fight against Leukaemia despite his hard work in creating awareness of the need for bone marrow transplants.

Also supporting the families was the local Marbella boxer Antonio 'El Chato' Benitez who is recovering after receiving a devastating blow whilst defending his title of Spanish champion, plus the instigator of the idea, Jose Perez Bellido, who was accompanied by his firefighting colleagues, representatives of the Municipal Police of Marbella, the National Police, Guardia Civil and World Bodybuilding Champion Rafel Vera, martial arts trainer Miguel Rodriguez martial arts trainer and ex-Málaga FC footballer Basti.

Adrian in the helicopter.

The mayor of Marbella, Jose Bernal, was present at the Fire Station for the departure of the expedition. He praised the firemen of Marbella for the work they do within the city and congratulated them for the solidarity they have shown to Butterfly Skin.

The highlight was when a helicopter provided by 'World Aviation Helicopters' circled the bench with Adrian Soto, a 12-year-old boy with Butterfly Skin on board.

To conclude the celebration and reward the participants, they were treated to a huge paella at Marbella Fire Station afterwards.

€6 million triumph

A €6 MILLION annual investment by Fuengirola Council has seen the company responsible for rubbish collection replace 46 vehicles with tens of new jobs created.

Mayor Ana Mula visited the headquarters of private firm Urbaser, who last year beat off competition to win the contract.

She was quick to praise the new machinery before pointing out that the company has also increased its workforce by 62 per cent and now employs 224 local people.

The vehicles are fitted with GPS units allowing resources to be optimised, while a special team is deployed to the municipal fairground after the flea market on Tuesdays, Saturdays and Sundays, reducing the cleaning time from six to two hours.

Supporting local schoolchildren

THE headmistress of El Chaparral school in La Cala de Mijas, Vanessa Caballero Villanueva was recently presented with a cheque for €4,000 by the President of the La Cala de Mijas Lions, Paul Butler.

The Lions of La Cala this year chose as their project, to celebrate 100 years of their founding in 1917, helping local children. In providing El Chaparral with a tannoy system and a new telephone and intercom system, their aim has been truly fulfilled. To show their appreciation for all that the La Cala Lions have done, the school has put up a plaque on the wall recognising the contributions the La Cala Lions Club has made, not only this year but in others as well. Paul Butler thanked them on behalf of all of its members.

MARBELLA IS set to reinforce its position as the Costa del Sol city of glitz this weekend as the dazzling Luxury Week ends takes place from today (Friday) until Sunday. It comes after the closure of the Cannes Festival in France, with councillors eager to ensure the annual event becomes an international reference for the luxury sector, according to tourism delegate Javier Porcuna. City Hall has handed the majority of organisation to local businessmen, who have arranged a Luxury Forum at the Goya Theatre, where 16 personalities and high-level professionals will discuss challenges facing the luxury sector. It comes as Marbella cemented its lofty position among the Spanish and international elite, ranking second in the country for the sector in 2016 behind Barcelona and ahead of Madrid, contributing 26 per cent of sales. The glam city also contributes a staggering 98 per cent of the region's contributions from non-EU foreigners in Andalucia. According to businessman Miguel Gomez, Marbella Luxury Week is "an economic impulse and milestone aimed at positioning Marbella as a tourist destination at a time when it is becoming the epicentre of luxury in Spain." Gomez went on to explain how the timing of the event was designed to take advantage of the concentration of millionaires attending Cannes, hoping that many would be able to extend their stay in Europe and "go shopping in Marbella. For the first time in the world, four Michelin-starred chefs will offer a three day 'ephemeral' menu, a gastronomic milestone," enthused Gomez.

Adana Dog Show breaks the record

TUESDAY May 30 was not the best of dates, but the only one available for the event. There were two competing events in nearby municipalities and it was perfect beach weather, but in spite of all that, the ADANA Dog Show brought the charity more income than the previous years' events.

Several hundred people visited the show and enjoyed the competitions; the various stalls offering craft goods, refreshments and a variety of ADANA branded merchandise.

All who attended were entertained with a display by the Estepona Police Dog Team, the students of the Pena Flamenca Estepona and a parade of ADANA dogs, all of which and more are available for adoption from the ADANA kennels.

President Mary Page thanked everyone who had helped make the show a success and said that although she was nervous, as it was the first time she had put the Show together; the wonderful team of people made sure everything turned out well.

The ADANA Team is planning more events for the forthcoming months, including an Italian night, a Paella Cava and Flamenco evening and a Friday night Estepona Dog Walk.

Age Care's summer afternoon party

ONCE again Age Care Association hosted their annual Summer Afternoon Tea Party for clients and guests including some from Costa Care Nursing Services, in the beautiful surroundings of the terrace of the Tamisa Golf Hotel, adjacent to their beautiful swimming pool overlooking green slopes of the golf course. Clients and guests attending amounted to 102 and many of them receive support from Age Care and others regularly visit the coffee mornings at Benalmadena, Calahonda, Fuengirola and Alhaurin-Coin throughout the week.

Age Care organise transport, to enable them to attend a special event for those who would otherwise not attend any functions to meet, chat, socialise and enjoy being in a totally different environment which is stunning; remembered and talked about for a long time.

Everybody was served a traditional English high tea of delicious sandwiches and quiche followed by a selection of sponge cakes and of course, scones with jam and cream. The food and the service were first class and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

The entertainment was fabulous, provided by the dulcet tones of Martin Joseph, who is part of the tribute band, 'The Rat Pack' and he sang many Frank Sinatra songs.

Once again 'Mania Performers,' an amazing group of singers and entertainers led by Alex Avery volunteered their time, and dressed in Pearly King and Queen outfits, gave a rousing performance, singing many well known Second World War songs and 'old time musical songs.'

Age Care would sincerely like to thank all the entertainers for such a brilliant afternoon.

Charmaine Arbouin, The British Consul for Malaga, was delighted to accept an invitation to join in the fun and also see firsthand the work of a local Charity. Anette Skou of the Mijas Foreigners Department, who supports the work of Age Care was joined by Ray Perez, a councillor from Mijas.

President Syd Weldon gave a speech welcoming everybody and thanking all the volunteers for their hard work, for without all of them, Age Care Association would not be possible.

Two faces of Naseema

NASEEMA CARLISLE was born and will die a Muslim.

However, her life in reality has two faces, for when in Spain - where she mainly lives - few but her closest friends realise her faith, even though she is proud of it.

When residing in Spain she assimilates her attire to match Western customs.

But when she annually visits family in her native Malaysia each winter for up to two months she wears a headscarf when out with aunts and uncles and goes dry, not drinking any alcohol.

She dresses and acts exactly the same as many other local Muslims in Malaysia.

While not choosing to wear a burka, she covers her hair with a full scarf when out with family 'and I wear only a little make-up.'

This is a far cry from when she is in Spain, for though she dresses conservatively compared to many Spanish and visiting tourists (not wearing short skirts or tight skimpy tops) Naseema does not purposefully hide her religion.

"The global call that we should wear a burka and cover up in public totally to me is mainly driven by frequently uneducated men who seek to control women so that it is of benefit to them, but of no benefit to the women," she says.

But this does not mean that when in Spain, Naseema forgets her religion.

She regularly gets out her prayer mat at her smart three-bedroom duplex apartment in Calpe, on the Costa Blanca, 'especially when [she is] feeling down.'

Living alone having separated from her British-born husband of more than 20 years prior to her own move to Spain from Thailand eight years ago, the couple met when both were working in Singapore. They later married in a civil ceremony in the UK where they then settled to bring up their own now grown-up daughters..

Now aged 53, Naseema has in fact spent around half of her life living abroad in non-Muslim countries.

Shortly after meeting Alan some of her former school friends who wore burkas and sarongs (traditional Malay attire) 'began to distance themselves,' as 'they did not see me as the same person.'

“Some of the burkas are very colourful and appear to have become a fashion statement.”

"But I still respect my religion and though I choose not to wear a sarong when in Malaysia I fully respect my local culture."

Even so she feels many of the Muslim girls in Malaysia 'cover up to be the same as friends and to compete on how they look.'

"Some of the burkas are very colourful and appear to have become a fashion statement."

Viewing life internationally, Naseema supports the belief that people living in foreign countries should follow local traditions.

"If I was in Saudi Arabia, I would cover up fully as it is part of the local culture," she adds.

"But in Spain I have no desire to wear my religion so firmly on my sleeve and show I am Muslim.

I have no need. I dress conservatively and make sure I do not stand out, but enjoy wearing jeans, dresses and high fashion clothes, depending on the occasion.

"I also drink in bars with friends, wear more make-up than I do in Malaysia, and occasionally eat bacon which I love.

"When I die it will be between me and my God," she concludes.

After a decade of debate the future Big question

Does outlawing the Muslim headdress improve security or alienate a vulnerable minority? David Noon weighs up the pros and cons of a burka ban

FOR more than a decade, Spain has tussled with the idea of banning the burka.

Those for the ban argue that burkas support outdated sexist ideologies and pose a security threat.

While those opposed to it say that outlawing the burka will alienate a vulnerable minority and gives Islamist extremists further ammunition to carry out acts of terror.

While some towns (mainly in Cataluña) have enforced a partial ban, a nationwide blanket ban on the Muslim headdress has yet to come to fruition.

The debate has failed to go away for 10 years and looks likely to rumble on for some time yet. What Spain does next is anyone's guess.

Tensions between European Muslims and non-Muslims have never been as high as they are right now.

A spate of terrorist attacks by Islamist extremists in France, Belgium and the UK - including the London Bridge killing rampage at the weekend - has only intensified the arguments of those claiming that burkas should be banned across Europe.

But is it the time to risk further alienating a culture that is already feeling cut-off or is it time to put political correctness to one side and stop worrying about hurting people's feelings?

In Cataluña, as many as a dozen municipalities have laws against the face coverings including the burka and the niqab.

The town of Lerida was the first to do so in 2010, introducing a ban on the headwear in municipal buildings.

In the same year, a similar ban was introduced in Coin in Andalucía's Guadalhorce Valley.

However, just three years later

BEHIND THE BURKA: Many fear burkas will be used by terrorists

Spain's Supreme Court overturned the law in both towns, ruling that it 'limits religious freedom.'

Even so other areas have continued to implement their ban, bolstered by a 2014 ECHR (European Court of Human Rights) ruling that banning the veil does not breach human rights.

In the same year, Spain's interior minister Jorge Fernández Díaz said that the government was considering including a burka ban in national security reforms.

In fact, proposals for a ban were part of a draft bill but were eventually knocked on the head before it passed through parliament.

And while Spain has debated the issue (almost to death), its European neighbours have been clamping down.

France - most notably - outlawed the burka in 2011, with Belgium, the Netherlands and Bulgaria following suit.

Germany is about to make it illegal to wear burkas while driving.

And just last month, the Austrian parliament passed a bill banning the burka in public, issuing fines of up to €150 for those wearing full-face veils.

Outside Europe, the burka is banned in many African countries (including Morocco) for security reasons.

Last month, the Iraqi government

POLL OF THE WEEK

THE Spanish terror threat level remains at level four out of five after recent attacks in the UK and Western Europe, but with concerns that outlawing traditional dress may incite Islamic extremists, of the burka remains unanswered facing Spain

ts as disguises.

BIKINI OVER BURKA: Spain embraces liberal values.

even took the unprecedented step of banning the burka in the city of Mosul in a bid to clamp down on Daesh militants using the headdress as a disguise.

But does that mean Spain should follow suit? While the threat of a terrorist attack in Spain has remained high since Daesh rose to prominence a couple of years ago, none has been carried out on mainland Spain since the Madrid train bombings in 2004.

Instead of improving security, introducing a ban now could have the opposite effect and make Spain a target.

It also has huge social implications which undermine the freedom of daily life in Europe.

By outlawing certain clothing, the freedom that Europe prides itself on would be ironically undermined.

The only time the government should restrict personal choice is if it can cause considerable harm to others.

Maybe the burka does, maybe not?

And that is the conundrum that Spanish politicians have been wrestling with for a decade.

Many point to the limitations of identifying people wearing a burka as being conducive to terrorism.

While at the same time, implementing a ban undermines freedom of choice and punishes all Muslims for the actions of a minority of extremists.

The best estimates state that 106,000 of the 1.6 billion Muslims worldwide are members of designated Islamic extremist groups, meaning just 0.006 per cent of the Muslim population are extremists.

Similarly, many point to the burka as a symbol of female oppression, especially contradictory to Spain's liberal attitude where women regularly sunbath topless without thinking twice.

Yet, some Muslim women value the sense of privacy that comes with the burka.

For every reason to ban the burka there is a contradictory argument why it shouldn't be outlawed.

If Spain takes the bold decision for such a ban it needs to be for the right reason. Not just a knee-jerk reaction to fear.

Maybe - for once - Spain's slow and steady judicial process is the right action to take.

When a burka isn't a burka

THE term burka is largely used in non-Muslim countries to label all forms of Muslim headdress.

In reality, burkas themselves are infrequently worn and there are dozens of forms of headdress sported by Muslim women.

Knowing the difference is important before casting any judgement or passing any laws.

The most popular headdresses are the burka, the niqab, the hijab and the chador.

Bans around Europe

WHEN France outlawed the burka in 2011, it came under immense pressure from global bodies to reverse the decision.

However, as the threat of terrorist attacks from Islamic extremists continues to mount, a raft of European neighbours have quickly come round to the French way of thinking.

Hot on the heels of the French, Belgium outlawed the headdress later in 2011. By 2015, the Netherlands had outlawed the burka along with Latvia and Bulgaria.

A year later and Switzerland was in on the ban, imposing fines of up to €10,000 for those wearing full-face veils in public.

Meanwhile in some parts of Italy, local authorities banned 'burkinis' or full Islamic swimming costumes last summer.

Austria is the latest country to ban the burka (imposing the law last month) and Germany is pushing through a bill to ban the headdress while driving.

Which European countries follow suit remains to be seen.

Tiger killer

■ A SUSPENDED jail sentence and heavy fine was handed out to a Russian man convicted of shooting dead an endangered tiger. The killer shot the endangered female Amur tiger during an expedition in the far east province of Primorye. Numbers of the Amur tiger remain extremely low but have almost doubled in recent years to around 600.

Race fears

■ FOOTBALL fans paraded provocatively in blackface ahead of Russia's home match against Cameroon. Hundreds marched through Sochi in a colourful display also featuring Mexican sombreros. The parade raised more concerns about racism ahead of the 2018 World Cup to be held in Russia next summer.

Lethal storm

■ POWERFUL winds ripped through Moscow killing 13 people. Dozens more were injured by flying fences and falling trees during the surprise storm. Winds sped across the capital at 80kph. Emergency services worked overtime to prevent more damage, already estimated in the millions.

Web mobile

■ YANDEX, the leading

RARE: Endangered Amur tiger was killed by hunter.

Russian internet search engine, unveiled a prototype of its self-driving car. The autonomous car was developed by Yandex's Taxi Unit, which offers services similar to Uber. Yandex, whose homepage is the most popular website in Russia, expects its new model army on the roads by 2019.

Teen trouble

■ A NEW poll found that almost a third of Russian parents believe they should have the right to physically punish their wayward teenage children. More than half say they are entitled to read their children's texts and emails. The survey was taken on International Children's Day on June 1.

Spy wars

■ SEVEN foreign diplomats were expelled from Russia as the Kremlin took revenge on the unfriendly Estonian and Moldovan governments. The two countries ejected Russian officials without any stated reason, provoking the Kremlin's response. Relations between Russia and its smaller western neighbours are fraught with tension.

True faith

■ BELIEVERS waited in a two-kilometre long queue to visit the remains of St Nicholas the Wondermaker at Moscow cathedral Christ the Saviour. His rib bone is on display in Moscow after spending almost 1,000 years in Italy. The 4th century saint enjoys special veneration among the Orthodox faithful.

Spain tries to repay euro debt

By John Smith

CHINESE conglomerate Wanda decided that it had made a mistake in purchasing the Edificio España in Madrid and has sold it at a loss of €7 million.

Initially intending to turn the building into a modern hotel, it got cold feet over the Spanish market generally and was worried about possible problems in obtaining planning permission.

After entering into a heads of €400 million is the amount that the Riu Hotel Group has indicated it expects to spend on transforming the Edificio España building in Madrid into a hotel.

agreement with the Baraka Group headed by eccentric millionaire Trinitario Casanova 10 months ago, it finally completed the sale in Madrid this week with the new purchaser turning up wearing a Matador's jacket.

Having paid €272 million for the property without bank borrowing, he unexpectedly announced that rather than lease the property to the Riu Hotel chain from Mallorca as previously announced, he was actually selling it to them but his company will be managing a 15,000 square metre shopping centre within the building.

The Mallorcan hotel group was set up as a private company in 1953 and family members are still involved in its management but sold a percentage of its shares to Europe's largest tour operator, the German company Tui.

It is planned that the new four star hotel will have 650 rooms, restaurants, a conference centre and a rooftop swimming pool.

WHEN the Spanish banks suffered so badly from the financial downturn, Spain borrowed €41.3 billion from the eurozone rescue fund.

Now it has requested and received permission from the European Stability Mechanism (ESM) to repay €1 billion, taking the total repaid so far to €7.6 billion.

As the economy is relatively buoyant, the government wants to repay a further €2 billion later this year but has had to apply to the MEDE, a division of the fund for permission to do this and any payment will depend upon the amount fitting in with the fund's finance plans.

Quote of the Week

"If they told me that I had to sign a document, as President I signed it," was the testimony in court of Modesto Crespo denying all knowledge of what was going on in the CAM Savings Bank.

INDUSTRY: Workers at a plant in Pontevedra.

» BUSINESS EXTRA

Temporary work

MERCADONA has increased its work force by 7,000 for the summer to a total of 79,000. Although many of the positions are temporary, the company hopes to be able to make some of them full time as business expands.

Banco Popular

TROUBLED Banco Popular has announced that after a revaluation of its real estate debts, provisions in the accounts could be as low as €2 billion. No firm offer to take over the bank has yet been received.

Finance help

THE Spanish government is expected to announce the creation of a financing line worth up to €50 million to support small export and investment companies. This and a number of other financial projects are being considered by the council of ministers.

Manufacturing sector healthy

SPANISH industry is growing at the fastest rate since January 2016 and job creation is the highest in 19 years.

Orders received in May have increased dramatically and in some cases, manufacturers have been unable to keep up with demand as although there has been an increase in the cost of some raw materials, others are simply not available in the volumes required.

The best markets for Spanish exporters are currently Europe and South America especially as some economies such as Argentina are showing signs of recovery with an increasing demand for imports.

Most forecasts suggest that this will not be a short term rise which will end quickly but is a sign of increasing prosperity with the expectation of even more manufacturing jobs being created during the rest of the year.

Unions call for dockers strike

DESPITE the fact the new Stevedores bill finally received approval in the Spanish Parliament, unions have called for more strikes.

The government finds itself in a difficult position as it wasn't policy to change the law which protected dock workers' jobs but was forced into the position by threats of major fines from the European Union. It seems unlikely the matter will be settled quickly as the unions don't want to see any existing members losing rights.

May the cash be with you

THE Spanish Post Office has jumped on the Star Wars wagon and could make €1 million from a single stamp.

It has just released a sheet containing one postage stamp with a face value of €5 and five labels which look like stamps but are simply unvalued labels in a 'limited edition' of 300,000 which means that if all are sold, the Post Office will receive €1.5 million.

“ The cost of the sheetlets is unlikely to be more than 20c per sheet, but the main cost will be the licence fee.

A postage stamp is a receipt for a service yet to be fulfilled and by producing the sheetlet in this manner using a value that doesn't actually cover any postal rate (the nearest being €4.85 and €5.25), it has been suggested that this is purely a money making operation.

The cost of production of the sheetlets which use a form of lenticular (adding depth to an image) printing developed several years ago by the Spanish State Printers is unlikely to cost more than 20c per sheet, but the main cost will be the licence fee charged by The Walt Disney Company.

Normally, licence deals require a recoverable advance guarantee and a percentage of revenue earned but assuming that this is no more than 25 per cent, then the total cost of production and licence fee if all sheetlets are sold to Star Wars collectors rather than for postage would be €435,000, leaving the Post Office with a profit of €1,065,000.

Even more unusual is the fact that customers can also spend €20 on purchasing two different Star Wars cash cards to which they can add funds and use in any outlet that accepts MasterCard.

Numbers of unemployed still falling

THE month of May is historically a good one for employment and 2017 is no exception with a fall in unemployment of 111,908 people.

This takes the number of unemployed to 3,461,128, the lowest level in eight years and to add to the good news, 223,192 new workers were added to the Social Security lists.

Whilst the fall in unemployment is without question helpful to the economy, much of the work created will last for the summer only and then these figures will creep up again before falling in the run up to Christmas.

More young people are being employed, but the increase is smaller in percentage terms than for older people and many who have good skills but no work are looking to other parts of Europe and the USA as potential work places, making it more difficult in some areas of industry and hospitality to recruit good quality staff.

Spanish budget for 2017 has finally been accepted

THE 2017 Spanish budget was finally approved last Thursday even though Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy voted against an amendment by mistake.

From an economic point of view this was a very important vote and the minority ruling party had to offer a number of 'sweeteners' to smaller and regional parties in order to gather sufficient votes to carry the day.

With a renewed opposition now that Pedro Sanchez has been re-appointed as leader of the PSOE - even though he is no longer an MP - the government can expect a much harder time in the future.

Under the Spanish Constitution however, if the government continues to hold power - as there may be a vote of no confidence in it shortly - and its 2018 budget is voted down, it can simply renew the 2017 budget and carry on.

The budget which sees less cuts and forecasts more income and expenditure now has to be passed by the upper house but as the ruling PP has a clear majority in the Senate, approval should be forthcoming.

VISIT: King Felipe with Mr Modi. India looks to Spain for investment in economy

SOON after she became Prime Minister, Theresa May travelled to India to try to obtain business, but in contrast the Indian Prime Minister has visited Spain.

The visit by Narendra Modi is the first official visit by an Indian leader to Spain for 30 years and is part of a short tour of Europe which included France, Germany and Russia, but ignored the UK.

Whilst Britain is hoping to increase direct trade with India, the Indian government has its eyes firmly fixed on investment from Europe and Mr Modi met with a number of CEOs from major Spanish companies inviting them to considering investing in the growing Indian economy.

He went on to meet King Felipe and discussed the need for India to develop its railways, and infrastructure which were two of a number of areas where Spanish companies could find opportunities to create new companies in the sub-continent.

LEVEL: First cheap Spanish long haul airline.

Pay as you fly – it's on the Level

A NEW economy long haul airline owned by the IAG Group has taken off from Barcelona with almost every item costing extra.

Level is offering a range of different cost options with the cheapest guaranteeing a seat and hand luggage only with additional charges for, suitcase, seat choice, food, drink, wifi, in-flight entertainment, toothbrush and blanket.

Passengers are used to paying for everything on short haul flights but with flights to Buenos Aires, Los Angeles and San Francisco taking up to 13 hours and to the Dominican Republic 11 hours it is likely that passengers will require food and drink at least.

IAG which owns Aer Lin-

gus, BA, Iberia and Vueling has announced that this new option attracted 134,000 advance ticket purchases prior to the first flight departure to Los Angeles last Thursday and will attract a whole new group of travellers flying long haul for the first time.

“ Passengers can pay extra for seat choice, food, drink, wifi, in-flight entertainment and a blanket.

Whilst much has been made of the need to pay for everything and the lack of trolleys going through the cabin, the new airline is introducing a fleet of new A330

Airbuses and there are all inclusive options in economy and premium economy plus Avios points which can be used on any airline in the group will be awarded.

The initial launch saw no frills flights as cheap as €149 one way but even paying full fare, costs are considerably cheaper than other airlines offering similar facilities.

Seeing off the first flight, Willie Walsh, IAG's chief executive said: "This is the start of a fantastic new adventure for IAG. The brand has resonated with a new audience, many of whom are flying long haul for the first time.

"In 2018, Level will increase its fleet to five aircraft and we are considering other European bases for the operation."

Inflation rates drop

MORE good news for the Spanish economy as inflation rates fall to match the European Central Bank (ECB) target of 2 per cent.

May consumer prices have risen at their lowest rate since December 2016 and the result has been that Spain has met the ECB inflation target for the first time in five months which is encouraging.

Germany however sees an even lower rate of inflation at 1.6 per cent and the euro zone as a whole stands at 1.9 per cent so Spain needs to ensure that it takes action to try to remain close to the target figure.

Some raw material price increases will be reflected in consumer prices later in the year, but it is forecast that the Spanish economy will continue to prosper during 2017.

Drastic times call for drastic measures

LEAPY LEE SAYS IT OTHERS THINK IT

WELL well. I almost don't know what to write this week (I can hear the squeals of delight from here!).

The reason being, that in the light of yet another terrorist atrocity, Ms May has finally echoed, if not all, certainly a number of the Leapy 'rantings' I've taken stick for over the years. Shame they've come too late to save scores of precious lives. Better late than never? Not, for the tragic victims.

Still at least her recent Downing Street statement showed that she, and hopefully the rest of her cabinet, are finally emerging from all the years of appeasing denial which allowed us to be drawn into this dangerous and horrific state of affairs in the first place. What she failed to mention was, in the light of this new tough approach to Islamist terrorism (yes she actually admitted it folks; I wonder if the traitor Obama would have done the same!?) was to say exactly what these 'new measures' would include?

Well, apart from reiterating my suggestions of last week, ie, stopping provocative, hate inspired marches through the streets of towns that have b e - c o m e p r e - dominantly Islamic. Banning public 'religious rituals,' such as self-flagellation and the ilk and outlawing the hated full Burka, I would also suggest; cancelling the passports of any ethnic young men travelling to Mid-East countries without thoroughly bona fide reason.

Interring and interrogating any suspected of returning from terrorist conflict areas. Banning streets being taken over for prayers, denying planning permission for any more Mosques and probably most controversial, but undoubtedly the most effective deterrent of all, deporting back to their country of origin, the entire family of all those who commit acts of terror. Bit drastic?

Well drastic times call for drastic measures. If they save even one innocent person's life, to my mind any action is worth the uproar of indignation that would no doubt issue from the 'do gooders' that still lurk among us in their towers of ivory and never-ending pacifistic and dangerous opinions.

Well, by the time you read this the first results should be coming in. Let's hope that the week is a proverbial long one in politics and Ms May has managed to redeem herself from what, to my mind has been a pretty disastrous campaign.

Still the alternatives don't even bear thinking about. Frankly the thought of Corbyn and the ilk of Diane Abbott preening on the steps of number 10 and ultimately sitting around the Brexit negotiating table, actually brings a shudder.

Likewise the idea of Nicola Sturgeon 'propping up' Labour on a 'policy by policy' basis, is even more terrifying. Thanks for all your letters of support, particularly those of last week. They all mean a great deal, let's hope a couple find their way to the letters page. Have a good week, Make sure your X marks the spot of good sense and whatever you do.

*Always Keep the Faith.

Battered, bothered and bewildered by a boring election campaign

Nora Johnson

WHAT a boring, unexciting election campaign we had overall! But it's sad that, initially at least, Theresa May had to resort to personal smears on the opposition leader in an attempt to garner votes. She made a fundamental mistake in attacking Jeremy Corbyn's integrity.

Every attack she made gave him credibility and the impression that not being Mr Corbyn was the only policy that she had - other than negotiating 'aggressively' on Brexit.

As for Corbyn and the Labour party, for those of us who recall growing up at the end of the 70's when the trade unions brought their own 'coalition of chaos' to the UK, and Labour's economic incompetence gave rise to spiralling inflation, it's beyond belief that they nonetheless seemed happy to foist on younger generations a multibillion-pound debt with their wild promises and 'magic money tree.'

BORING CAMPAIGN: Jeremy Corbyn and Theresa May.

Well, remember the economic mismanagement of a previous Labour government? Step forward Mr Gordon Brown, 'saviour of the world.' And nearly destroyer of Britain. And as for Corbyn's admission that the UK's involvement in Middle Eastern and North African wars has been a factor in breeding terrorism, step forward Mr Tony Blair.

If this were the end of a full five-year term of office, the Conservatives would have been facing a landslide against them for their incompetence on most levels with Theresa May a liability. This, though, was an election for socialism of 1945 versus Conservatism and things should have been in the Conservatives' favour, what with a controversial Labour Party, a controversial Labour leader and a 'wish list manifesto.'

In the final analysis, which is better: an incompetent Conservative government or the alternatives on offer? Well, whatever your choice it just goes to show that this was a negative election. There was no positive sounding of hope anywhere. The vote will inevitably be for the least bad option.

So, a negative election with little hope and probably higher taxes whoever's elected. Actually, probably one of the most negative, depressing, unimpressive campaigns of the past 20 years. Even Major was more exciting - something I never thought I'd write ...

A weekly look

- and not entirely impartial reaction - to the Spanish political scene

METROSCOPIA and CIS opinion polls found that support for independence inside Cataluña is at its lowest since rumblings were first heard years ago.

Both the national government and Cataluña are deadlocked because the only thing that can settle the issue once and for all is a referendum.

There is no provision for a unilateral referendum in Spain's Constitution but even an illegal one would be better than Carles Puigdemont's threatened unilateral declaration of independence.

It would put the 62 per cent of Catalans who don't go along with his plans out of their misery and the rest of Spain too.

Skinning the rabbit

SPAIN'S president Mariano Rajoy vowed that the government will use everything within its power to prevent Cataluña's referendum.

But what, apart from force, can it use?

On the other hand, if a referendum is unstoppable Rajoy can put the boot in gently but destructively by mentioning the little question of state pensions. Or the small matter of EU membership. There's more than one way of skinning a rabbit.

Seeing is believing

NAPOLEON the pig said in Animal Farm that all animals are equal but some are more equal than others.

By the same token probably all politicians are corruptible but some are more corrupt than others. Political parties usually have their quota of rotten apples but in Spain the Partido Popular appears to have a monopoly and Mariano Rajoy's spluttering promises of transparency have yet to bear fruit.

CATALUÑA: The only thing that can settle the issue once and for all is a referendum.

To top it all his Minister of Justice and Attorney General are allegedly close to principal players in the Lezo corruption case and the Public Prosecutor responsible for Anti-Corruption resigned after his offshore account in Panama came to light.

The aphorism about 'Justice must be done and must also be seen to be done' does not have a Spanish equivalent, more's the pity.

Very different ballgame

BARÇA star Lionel Messi got 21 months for tax fraud although he won't do time as his was a non-violent offence and he doesn't have a criminal record. Team-mate Neymar also has tax issues and it looks as though their arch-rival, Madrid player Cristiano Ronaldo could have problems too. All are bad boys for not doing their fiscal duty and robbing Hacienda of its dues, but what about the corrupt politicians and ex-politicos who have done the same?

Obscenely overpaid players get rich through the sweat of their brows and by pushing a football around with their expensively sponsored twinkle-toes.

Shyster politicians past and present are infinitely worse because they got rich on public money. And they're less entertaining to watch.

THURSDAY THOUGHTS

By Angus Silvie

Why no headphones?

THE other day I took a bus to Malaga. Well, the driver did, I was just a passenger. As we moved off a young man sat next to me and decided to forcefully entertain all the passengers, but me in particular, by blaring some tinny drum beat 'music' out of the woeful speakers on his phone.

My plans for a dreamy stare out of the window were put on hold as this awful noise assaulted my ears.

It got me thinking what it is about human beings and their selfish need to impose their musical tastes on others.

Hardly a day goes by when you don't see a teenager loping along with music blasting out of their hand (via a phone), and here in Spain I regret to say I have seen quite a few old gents doing this too now as they combine running with shuffling in an effort to keep fit.

It is not as though they benefit from superior sound quality through this approach, indeed quite the opposite, so why do none of these people use headphones? It can only be the same primal urge that persuades young men in their first cars to open their windows and pump up the volume to prove that... well, what does it prove?

In the 1980s, you might want to show off a big sub-woofer you had just spent the weekend attaching to your parcel shelf. These days, almost all cars have decent speakers as standard so rocking the street in your standard issue Seat Ibiza isn't going to impress anybody.

But here's the thing - when people look at you in your car because you are banging out what you think is a top tune nobody is impressed anyway. They are looking at you because they are thinking 'prat,' not 'legend.' So perhaps it is all about dominance. I'm a top dog, you lot are going to listen to my sounds whether you want to or not (that still doesn't stop us all thinking you're an idiot, mate).

People walking along the pavement wasting their batteries blaring out music because they are too lazy to put headphones on may as well be holding a big sign which says 'I am a nuisance and a fool' to complete the effect. On second thoughts, maybe you don't need the sign.

LEGALLY SPEAKING

Do you need a hat?

AS part of a new series, we answer some common driving questions, kindly provided by members of the Guardia Civil based in Torrevieja, Costa Blanca, who set up the N332 website and Facebook page to help break down barriers.

OPEN TOP CARS: Are usually safe.

A REGULAR question that occurs is 'do you need to have some sort of hat protection when driving in a convertible?'

According to the N332 Guardia Civil team, no. Hat protection is not required when in an open top car. In fact, there is a chance that wearing a hat would prove dangerous if not worn correctly and it blows off potentially blocking the view of other drivers.

However, not talking legally, it does make sense to wear a hat to protect yourself from the sun and its harmful rays whilst driving, but it is not a legal requirement.

Convertible cars are designed to be as safe as cars with full roofs. They are often fitted with strengthened supports around the windscreen and roll bars although these are not often as clearly fitted as those you see in rally cars. So as long as drivers and passengers are positioned correctly, sat down, wearing seatbelts in the correct manner, open top cars are usually perfectly safe. As in all vehicles, it is when passengers don't follow the design and safety guidelines that problems occur and accidents can happen.

It is becoming more increasingly common to see occupants with their arms out of the windows or doors and legs up and feet on the dashboard, particularly during the summer months, but this is a dangerous and illegal practice. The legs and feet can obscure the driver's view, but also, in the event of a collision, as the airbag is deployed, legs over the airbag will feel the full force which can result in serious injuries.

The only safe way to sit in any vehicle is within the design of the seat, with the seatbelt securely fastened.

For more news and articles visit www.n332.es or search N332 on Facebook.

Can we change our 'cuotas'?

Q. We are proposing to change the way we divide our Community fees. Our 'cuotas' are not the ones recorded in our "escrituras." Our fees have been changed three times without unanimity.

The current fees have never been registered either in the Property Registry nor our Book of Minutes and some owners are paying much more per square metre than others. The community has re-measured all 144 properties by a qualified architect. We will soon vote for the changes at our AGM. The proposal is that we base the fees on the area of the property.

My question is: If we do not get a unanimous vote but only a simple majority, can we proceed with the change?

A W (Costa Blanca)

A. The short answer is yes. In your unusual circumstances, you may change your system by majority vote, as you apparently have already done.

Tattoos – the big picture

Marbella Moments

by Nicole King

I HAVE to admit that when my kids were in their early teens and brought home a friend with piercings from ears to nose, tattoos on every visible limb and a hair cut that looked like they must have had to anaesthetise him to get the shave so close, it scared the s.t out of me.

This reaction I knew was purely as a result of my 'education' which had us believe that these attributes come with negative connotations about the person. Even so I reassured myself that my kids are good kids and obviously must see something in this child that I couldn't through all that ink and metal.

Some half hour later this same young teen approached me and said "Can you please call my mummy and ask her if I can stay the night, if that's OK with you?" Yes, he even used the word mummy and his tone of voice and attitude were so polite and gentle I couldn't help but laugh at the incongruence.

Today many sports and music 'heroes' are tattooed to the point of distraction and we all meet many people with loads of tattoos on a daily basis so it certainly doesn't instigate the same reaction as it used to; it really isn't a big deal at all. Some of the artwork is also quite spectacular and can look truly amazing. Even though some professions still consider a tattoo inappropriate, this is not usually a disqualifying feature either if it can be covered during working hours. We've come a long way.

What I do feel is lacking however in this new trend is background information. With every passing day more tattoo parlours are opening and more people expose themselves to invasive needles to decorate their bodies, even if it's just a four-leaf clover on an ankle, without really thinking about what they're doing. There is very little information about the actual process and the mishaps of having a tattoo in the media, with the exception of the recent headline about a man who actually died after swimming with a new tattoo.

The swimmer who died did have a liver condition, which left him more susceptible, but the instigator of his demise was the flesh-eating bacteria from the water attacking his open wounds! Getting a tattoo is an invasive procedure.

It can take days or several weeks for the lacerations to heal so perhaps getting a tattoo whilst on holiday is not such a good idea, however tempting it may be at the time. Sunbathing is also ill advised. What is advisable though is not only to make sure that the artist is good enough to display on your body for a life-time, but that you have all the facts and how they relate to your personal situation beforehand. We wouldn't want any more people to die from the dye just because they didn't also think to look at the big picture.

Increase your revenues with Europe-wide marketing through Novasol

AS one of the largest holiday rental providers across Europe, Novasol has been helping home owners successfully rent out their properties for almost 50 years.

Established in Copenhagen, Denmark, in 1968, Novasol offers rentals in 29 different European countries and was launched in Spain 10 years ago.

With offices in Malaga, Barcelona and Murcia, there is a dedicated team of over 30 staff based in Spain ensuring that when you make the decision to rent your property, you are fully aware of every aspect of the process with Novasol helping you every step of the way.

Unlike other rental portals that simply allow you to register your home for rent, Novasol inspects all the properties themselves. They meet with the owners, assess the property and take all measurements and details to allow them to accurately and efficiently market the property across the European-wide Novasol network.

With this, guests booking have peace of mind knowing that they are renting through a reputed agent and that the house actually exists, unlike some horror stories that are beginning to emerge of families booking properties for holidays to find there was no knowledge of the booking or that the property never actually existed but their money was gone. But with Novasol, their ethos is to provide a 'home with a heart.'

For home owners they are also just at the other end of the phone. With a dedicated customer care centre of 14 staff members, you are never on your own when renting your property. Any agent can rent a property in the busy summer months of July and August, but Novasol will work with you and advise you on the best way to present and prepare your property to maximise its rental potential throughout the year.

For those needing key holding, maintenance or cleaning services, Novasol can recommend their trusted and reputed service providers.

So to get the most return out of your home in Spain, contact the expert professionals at Novasol and then why not treat yourself to a little break of your own and rent your own home away from home through Novasol in one of their many destinations including Scandinavia, France, Italy and Croatia.

From holiday cottages in the countryside to beachside apartments, they have it all.

Legal advice in your own language

SANCHEZ SOLICITORS SL provide legal services you can trust and rely on.

Based on the Costa del Sol, covering from Almuñecar to Estepona and the Axarquía area, Sanchez Solicitors law firm are experts in the legal world.

Spain's laws can be complex and confusing, particularly for expats who choose to move to Spain or own a home in the country and struggle with the language. This makes choosing a professional and reputed legal team even more important, but language will not be a barrier with Sanchez Solicitors.

Solicitor Ernesto Yague Sanchez has been chief executive for six years and heads a multinational team which provides services in eight different languages reflecting the multiculturalism of the area and gives them thorough knowledge of their clients' needs besides communicating with them in their native language.

Providing legal advice services in many areas such as real estate, banking law, tax advice, inheritance, corporate and litigation law amongst others, their services are comprehensive. They analyse each client's requirements and search for the right solution for every individual case with Sanchez

SANCHEZ SOLICITORS: Providing legal advice services in many areas.

Solicitors saying: "The client is not just a number in our firm, they are part of it. Our aim is not only to provide excellent professional service, but also to make our clients' life easier."

One of the numerous queries they still receive regularly from clients is related to the floor clause and the reimbursement of expenses relating to the Mortgage Loan Deed. The Supreme Court declared that imposing on the mortgage borrower the payment of all expenses, taxes and commissions derived from the mortgage loan was abusive due to the 'lack of transparency.'

The EU Court of Justice, in its recent judgement of December 21, 2016, made it clear that banks must fully reimburse the money so if you think that you may have been affected by the application of a floor clause in your mortgage loan, or if the bank has not yet reimbursed the costs of your loan deed, do not hesitate to contact the office and they will analyse your case in detail. As a result, many have been awarded costs back and had money reimbursed.

The offices in Nerja and Mijas are open from 9am-6pm from Monday to Friday. To make an appointment call or email and they will contact you as soon as possible with the next available appointment.

I am an apeman, a mere animal

Trudy Stewart

I DON'T think I'll ever understand humans. We're such a complicated mess of contradictions - capable of both great kindness and sheer evil.

We have come so far in our evolution. Humans are the dominant species on the planet, shaping our environment to suit our needs. Capable of true greatness and achieving so much since those first, faltering steps on two legs.

Back in that period of time, I think it's safe to assume that one of the major stresses in life was preventing yourself from being eaten; not were you about to be gazumped on a lovely, little cave you'd put an offer on.

Around 250,000 years ago there was a transition from Homo erectus to Homo sapiens (derived from Latin meaning 'wise' or 'intelligent'). More elaborate stone tools were used and our brains began to increase in size.

Over the centuries, that increased brain power has continued to develop allowing us to climb to the top of the food chain and stay there.

Humans no longer need to hunt and gather. Everything we need to survive can be found only a few strides away in our kitchen. For most of us at least. There are still those who don't have even their most basic needs met either due to poverty or geographical location and I just can't get my head around that.

In the year 2017, after almost 5,000 years of so-called civilization, we still live in a world where people are dying from starvation, lack of shelter, preventable or treatable diseases and war.

The gulf between the vastly wealthy and the poorest in society grows ever deeper. With our superior brains in these, supposedly, enlightened times it seems inconceivable that we don't all have the same opportunities. That we continue to live in a world where people who have more than they will ever need live alongside others who are barely surviving.

Evolution equipped us with the tools to survive but it's human nature that has pushed us to thrive - ever-expanding and claiming the planet for ourselves.

The first weapons we used with our new opposable thumbs allowed us to feed and protect ourselves. Now, we have weapons capable of obliterating the planet at the push of a button.

The arrogance of humans leads us, foolishly, to believe that we own this planet and that our existence here matters. We forget we are mere animals - part of the flora and fauna spinning on a planet as we orbit the sun which will, some day, consume the Earth.

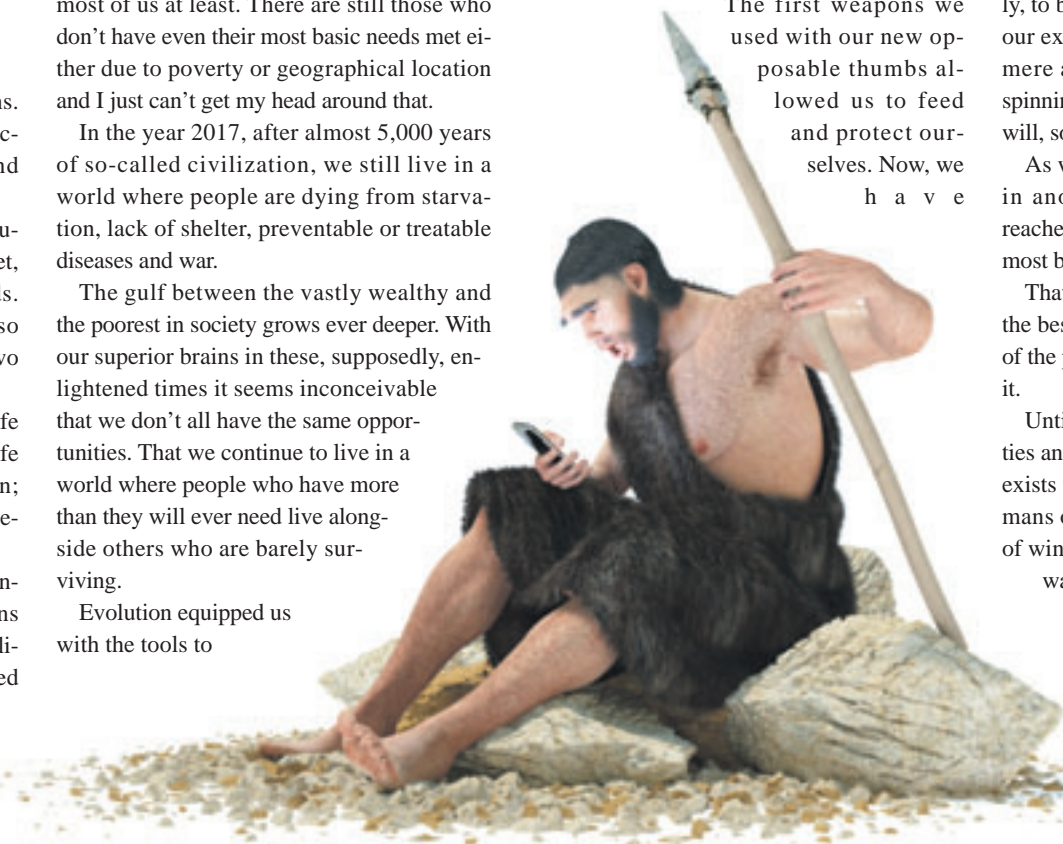

As we continue to evolve, my hope is that in another 250,000 years, we will have reached a point where we develop beyond the most basic human traits that drive us now.

That no more wars are fought over who has the best God or who owns that particular part of the planet with the special stone or liquid in it.

Until every person has the same opportunities and while the sort of conditioned thinking exists that allows us to walk past starving humans on our way to buy an expensive bottle of wine, we may be evolved but we're a long way from enlightened.

Breeding political contempt

I HAVE lived in Spain for 20 years and have been deprived of my right to vote for the UK elections. I cannot vote for the Spanish parliament much as I would like to participate.

There are 1.6 million UK citizens living in the EU. There are 3.3 million EU citizens living and/or working in the UK. Theresa and her fellow Brexiters claim the British people have spoken. Is this true or just an exaggeration, let us look at the figures - 37.4 per cent of the electorate voted to leave, the rest either didn't vote or voted to remain; 26.7 per cent of the population voted to leave, is this the voice of the British people?

I fear not but it does show that apathy is the prelude to the death of democracy and the fertile ground for a dictatorship or autocracy.

What of our future? No one knows. Why the general election, is it for Mrs May to attempt to alienate those that consider that the UK should remain in the EU? In a free society everyone has the right to express their views, whether they are in conflict with the leader or not.

Robert Peake, Mijas

A taxing situation

THE annual vehicle tax renewal needs to be made available online in Spain as it now is in the UK. I arrived in Spain two weeks ago to find the annual renewal invoice in my mailbox. I proceeded to the bank the next day but after queueing for 15 minutes the cashier told me the bill had 'expired' - it should have been paid by May 19.

There was no alternative but go to the government offices at the marina in Estepona, join the queue and get a new bill with the penalty added! Arriving back at the bank I found the cashier was closed for the payment of bills - I had to be there by 10:30! Too late - come back tomorrow!

What takes five minutes online in the UK takes over 24 hours in Spain!

“ SIR,
Hello, I would like to address your columnist, David the Dogman, this week in the Euro Weekly News he had an article on flying with pets. I have read the article and agree entirely with his opinions and advice, as he mentions about more and more people are moving to Spain or spend a considerable amount of time in Spain.

Me and my wife retired here in Spain last year and we have a little dog. When we need to go back to England we have been quoted quite ridiculous fares of 600 euros!!!! This is crazy!!

Can we possibly address all airlines who fly to Spanish airports that this is a problem and by admitting especially small dogs who with mild sedatives can sit on the passenger's knee our little dog is absolutely so well-behaved they wouldn't even realise he was onboard and the airlines could make a lot of money out of this, albeit a reasonable charge, taking in mind that the dogs have all the necessary paperwork and up-to-date passports. I along with many many people would use the service more often.

Keep up the good work EWN we look forward to your paper every week.

*Many thanks,
Michael, Crevillent*

Hello Michael,
Unfortunately the 'budget' airlines (not cheap) have it all their own way.

If you were doing long haul this normally goes through the airline which arranges space in the hold, meaning it seems cheaper to fly off to the USA than more local destinations.

This is all commercial and there certainly is no pressure that can be applied other than numbers.

You might want to consider forming a group with a name like 'Flying Dogs,' get members and build it up. I will help you through the EWN with some publicity and then you have power to your elbow.

Why not have a go?
Regards

David the Dogman

» One Love Manchester concert

The future is in safe hands. The One Love concert in Manchester is the confirmation. On Sunday night in Manchester something changed. Our younger generation fought evil with good. Fought lies with truth. Fought violence with love.

The message to all self-serving politicians, terrorists and peddlars of hatred? It is time to hand over power to the up and coming generation of young people who love each other. It is time to replace hatred with love.

» ITV visits Benidorm

Just returned from Friday to Friday break, hotel, weather and place visited good, plenty of police around main beach areas.

Stag and hen parties numbering upwards of 10 on sea front very loud, boisterous and intimidating. To quote a person who had been visiting for years, Benidorm has lost its sparkle to stags and hen, it is a very different place at night. Drunkenness, fighting and dirty streets. The danger is that the stags and hens spend money on drink in bars, but don't necessarily spend money in the ordinary shops. Don't let it get out of hand.

Nic

They must address this issue if they continue to be soft on crimes against holidaymakers the resort will end up being used only by hen and stag dos and this will ruin the resort and encourage more criminals to the resort. Listen to the holidaymakers who have seen a huge difference for the worse in their favourite resort and act now.

Jean Hunter

I have recently been to Benidorm. I witnessed the pea men scamming tourists. I noticed two different groups of pea men just yards apart with their lookouts and pickpockets working with them. The prostitution problem is rife too. They stand outside certain hotels looking for drunk groups of tourists to rob them. It seems much more needs to be done to stop the ongoing problem in Benidorm.

» Neo Nazi food bank closed

I have no problem with Spaniards looking after Spaniards. There are plenty of support organisations for other groups; the Jews have organisations such as Jewish Care, Tzedek and World Jewish Relief who 'combat poverty and disadvantage to the Jewish community.' Gypsies also have several organisations offering help and support for travellers, including Spain. I wonder why this group is singled out? Europeans are becoming a persecuted group, unable to look after each other. Do we have to wait 30 years to become a minority before we are afforded the same privileges as others groups?

Cannabis found

■ WORKING in concert with the Guardia Civil, officers of the Royal Gibraltar Police Marine Section have recovered cannabis valued at £2.6 million. No arrests were made but 19 parcels containing a total of 570 kilograms of the drug were seized and this action was part of an ongoing fight against smuggling of drugs through Gibraltar waters into Spain.

Main Street

■ ALTHOUGH there is no specific knowledge of a likely terrorist attack, police vans have been parked on Main Street prior to the installation of bollards. The perceived threat remains at the substantial level and the decision to place the vans in the area is intended to reassure the public and visitors by the creation of a visible street presence.

No sexting

■ A MULTI-AGENCY campaign warning youngsters of the danger of sexting (sharing of explicit images via social media) is underway in Gibraltar. Two posters aimed at boys and girls have been produced and it is hoped by explaining the potential problems of sharing such pictures, youngsters will think twice about exposing themselves to the risk of ridicule or even blackmail.

Harry the Griffon Vulture

By John Smith

THIS new project of fitting a GPS unit to a Griffon Vulture is not to help its sense of direction but to feed back useful information about its movement during the annual migration.

Organised by scientists from the Department of the Environment and the Gibraltar Ornithological & Natural History Society (GONHS) Raptor Unit, the aim is to track the movement of the vulture once released using a lightweight GPS transmitter.

This project, known as Vulture track, aims to provide useful information on the wintering grounds of migrating Griffon Vultures in Africa as well as the movements and foraging patterns of the birds in their breeding grounds in Europe.

The first Vulture to be fitted with a solar-powered GPS tracker, known as Harry, was successfully released from the top of the Rock and it immediately continued with its onward journey.

It was also fitted with a unique wing-tag to help scientists identify the bird in the field. The Vulture had been brought down by resident gulls and was cared for by the experts at the GONHS Raptor Unit.

In addition to providing valuable research information that can be used for conservation and environmental education, the project will also help raise awareness on the importance of protecting birds of prey, some of which are threatened in Europe.

This is the latest of several projects which are aimed to connect people with nature. They include the live underwater camera and the live swift nest cameras, all of which can also be accessed in the Thinking Green website (<http://www.thinkinggreen.gov.gi>).

Luther Vandross on the Sunborn

THERE is just time to book your table to see Matthew Winchester who has flown over from the UK to present his Luther Vandross tribute at La Sala Gibraltar. False alarm

AFTER receiving a number of telephone alerts that a young man was walking around Gibraltar carrying a sword over his shoulder police stopped him. He proceeded to show officers the 'sword' which actually turned out to be a musical instrument kept in a case for protection and he was then allowed to continue on this way.

Unexpected death of former politician

THE sudden death of the co-founder of the Gibraltar Socialist Labour Party (GSLP) and former minister Juan Carlos Perez came as a great surprise.

Whilst it was known that the 61-year-old was not in the best of health suffering from heart problems, he was still mobile - often having to use a walking stick - but his brain was certainly still very active.

Perhaps in keeping with his staunch political views, he passed away at the Watergardens headquarters of the GSLP after filing the latest edition of The New People, the newspaper of which he was editor.

A committed trade unionist from an early age, Mr Perez was responsible for promoting the growth of unions in Gibraltar before turning to politics and serving in parliament from 1984 until 2003 including eight years as a minister.

■ Juan Carlos Perez (centre) with Joe Bossano (left).

His former Chief Minister and friend Joe Bossano with whom he founded the GSLP mourned his loss and spoke fondly of him whilst current Chief Minister Fabian Picardo tweeted 'RIP friend, comrade, brother, political giant Juan Carlos. You believed in me from the beginning and never let me down. I will miss you always.'

“ Mr Perez was responsible for promoting the growth of unions in Gibraltar.

Opposition politicians also expressed their regret at the loss of this figure who meant so much to many Gibraltarians and as well as numerous cousins, he leaves behind his mother and sister.

YOUR STARS FOR 7 DAYS

CANCER ♋ (June 22 - July 23)

When your feelings are so positive, which they should be now, it is hard to remember that they have ever been any other way. You may have a plan in mind for a new activity to get the adrenalin flowing. How much more enjoyable, though, to find someone to share this with you. Book that course and maybe you will meet them there.

LEO ♌ (July 24 - August 23)

After a few recent excesses, bad habits can prove hard to shake off. Remember that any time of the year is a good time to make a fresh start. Don't put off looking after your health any more than you would put off stashing a cheque in the bank. Use it or lose it? You know it makes sense. Think about combining health with a holiday.

VIRGO ♍ (August 24 - September 23)

It happens that energy is sometimes low.

GEMINI ♊ (May 22 - June 21)

There are so many things to do or try that you should be spoiled for choice. No, don't settle down in front of the TV. Get out, make some friends and aim to learn something new every day. That may only be the name of your neighbour on the bus but it counts. You are charming and urbane, so don't keep it all to yourself.

Take the chance to read up on why this could be. You may think that you know it all, but in this world there is no chance of that. Maybe you are out of touch generally, or just out of touch with your own needs. Give building your strength priority. How much better you will cope with extra energy.

LIBRA ♎ (September 24 - October 23)

With so much going on, you are in danger of burning yourself to a frazzle. You won't realise until you have done it, so make a point of getting some peace and quiet, preferably both of them at the same time. Relax and don't even think about things that are unchangeable. Time will sort out most things for you.

SCORPIO ♏ (October 24 - November 22)

Leave nothing to chance when it comes to your health. Although you are feeling good now you will soon have problems because you are more concerned with others than yourself. This can be good but can also be overdone. You know how good you can feel. Increase this by simply not accepting second-best treatment.

SAGITTARIUS ♐ (November 23 - December 21)

Your tendency to see yourself through the eyes of others can lead you to undervalue your worth. This could see you going pear-shaped, emotionally. Try not to believe everything that you are told because there are always at least two ways of seeing things. Be positive. You are capable of so much. Take care of your needs on a daily basis.

CAPRICORN ♑ (December 22 - January 20)

Concentrate on your physical needs this week and spend much more time on yourself. There will be plenty of opportunities to look after others when you are feeling 100 per cent yourself. Stay in control of day-to-day plans.

AQUARIUS ♒ (January 21 - February 19)

Keep up the pace this week so that you have plenty to discuss and 'write home about.' With your mind so active, you are capable of doing in a day what would normally take a week. By-pass those who try to slow you down. There will be plenty of time to be a plod later.

PISCES ♓ (February 20 - March 20)

Others may be changing their minds, and generally being a bit of a pain. That may irritate you but it is no reason to change your plans. Both you and your colleagues will be glad that you did in the longer term. You may need to find some peace and space for yourself come the weekend.

ARIES ♈ (March 21 - April 20)

Looking back over the past few months you will realise that fine adjustments are needed. Both your working life and diet need attention, so be determined that progress made will continue apace. Certainly, you have no qualms about facing any problems straight on. You thrive on responsibility and there is no shortage of that at the moment.

TAURUS ♉ (April 21 - May 21)

Now that you are feeling much better, it will be tempting to put aside your healthy eating and exercise, but if you remember what a difference it makes it would be silly to stop now. Enlist the help of a friend or two in keeping the momentum going.

Finding Gobi

By Dion Leonard

IN 2016, Dion Leonard, a seasoned ultra-marathon runner was competing in a gruelling 155-mile race across the Gobi Desert and came across a little stray dog.

As Dion continues with the run, the dog follows him, step by step over the treacherous Tian Shan Mountains and manages to keep up with him for nearly 80 miles, earning the name 'Gobi.'

Dion was so impressed with the dog's courage and determination that he found his priorities were being significantly challenged. He had always been driven and focused on being the best, but this little dog came along and stopped him in his tracks.

The book is about their journey together and how Dion wins a bigger prize to take home to the UK.

STEPHEN KING, the horror writer once said, "an opening line should invite the reader to begin the story. It should say: Listen. Come in here. You want to know about this." An author's biggest challenge writing a novel is how to begin. The opening lines are crucial to grabbing the attention of the reader, making it the most difficult stage of the writing process. The success of a novel also depends on what it contains throughout, but the opening lines need to make an entrance.

REBECCA: A classic Gothic romance novel.

1. Nineteen Eighty-Four by George Orwell (1949)

'It was a bright cold day in April, and the clocks were striking thirteen.' This opening line of Orwell's, commands the immediate attention of the reader, with the strange notion of a clock striking 13. The opening makes us feel uneasy and curious to continue the journey into the dystopian world of 1984, following in the footsteps of the main protagonist, Winston Smith.

2. Rebecca by Daphne Du Maurier (1938)

'Last night I dreamt I went to Manderley again.' The opening line of this classic Gothic romance novel tells the reader that Manderley holds something of great importance to the dreamer. The reader may become inquisitive to know more about Manderley and to know what is Manderley exactly. Even the title conveys a sense of mystery in the name, 'Rebecca.'

3. Jane Eyre by Charlotte Brontë (1847)

'There was no possibility of taking a walk that day.' This novel is considered to be the first to express the modern idea of the self, a radical book for its time. The first line has negativity, suggesting that Jane is restricted in some way. The novel ranks as one of the greatest and most longstanding works of English fiction.

4. Twelfth Night by William Shakespeare (1601-1602)

'If music be the food of love, play on. Give me excess of it, that surfeiting the appetite may sicken and so die.' This line is the beginning of Duke Orsini's speech, which is cynical about the inconsistency of love and immediately gives insight into his character as one who is extreme; bouncing from highs to lows throughout the play.

5. The Picture of Dorian Gray by Oscar Wilde (1890)

'The studio was filled with the rich odour of roses and when the light summer wind stirred amidst the trees of the garden, there came through the open door the heavy scent of the lilac, or the more delicate perfume of the pink-flowering thorn.' These lines are a perfect set up for what follows and offers a hint to the theme of opposites, foreshadowing doom with the inclusion of the word 'thorn.'

6. Moby Dick by Herman Melville (1851)

'Call me Ishmael.' This narrator greets the reader and there is the sense that he is opening up and about to tell you a fishy tale! Ishmael takes the reader on a whaling ship, the 'Pequod,' under the command of the obsessive Captain Ahab who is on a mission to catch the whale that took his leg.

7. The Great Gatsby by F Scott Fitzgerald (1922)

'In my younger years and more vulnerable years my father gave me some advice that

I've been turning over in my mind ever since.' This opening line begs the reader to explore further, trusting the narrator to deliver a few words of wisdom.

8. Matilda by Roald Dahl (1988)

'It's a funny thing about mothers and fathers. Even when their own child is the most disgusting little blister you could ever imagine, they still think that he or she is wonderful.' It is obvious by this line that there is a feeling of resentment, confusion and wonder at other children, who can be cruel.

9. A Christmas Carol by Charles Dickens (1843)

'Marley was dead, to begin with. There is no doubt whatever about that. The register of his burial was signed by the clergyman, the clerk, the undertaker and the chief mourner.' It is clear that Dickens needs the reader to know that Marley is dead and before knowing what happens, you're inclined to think that the emphasis placed on Marley's death is quite significant.

10. I Am Legend by Richard Matheson (1954)

'On those cloudy days, Robert Neville was never sure when sunset came and sometimes they were in the streets before he could get back.' Who are in the streets? The lines put the reader in the character's shoes, not really being sure about what will happen next and this is the perfect hook. Truman Capote said, "A truly great novel grabs you by the jugular with its first sentence, those words - its music - and never lets you go."

TO mark World No Smoking Day, Spain has released figures that show around 60,000 people die every year in the country as a result of tobacco. Worldwide, tobacco kills more than seven million people, with around 890,000 of these being non-smokers exposed to second-hand tobacco smoke according to data from the World Health Organisation (WHO).

Around 27 per cent of the Spanish population are still daily smokers spending an average of €282.39 each year on tobacco. The average smoker has 1,264 cigarettes a year.

Lung cancer and heart disease are not the only health concerns to worry about. Smoking can lead to a range of other diseases and problems such as osteoporosis, emphysema, loss of hearing, cataracts, teeth deterioration and psoriasis.

But despite these health concerns many continue smoking and even for those who want to stop, breaking the bad habit can be tough. But there are things you can do:

Change habits.

Breaking the routine you had as a smoker can help you forget about tobacco and focus on new things. For example if you always have a cigarette with your morning cup of tea try and skip the tea or have something else instead so you don't associate that action with smoking.

Make it public.

By telling everyone your intentions you are more likely to succeed as you will engage the support and encouragement of others not to give up quitting.

Wait 10 minutes.

If you have not smoked for a few days when you feel the urge to light up, breathe and wait for 10 minutes. Have a glass of water and go for a short walk and usually the urge will go, but these short battles will go a long way to helping you achieve your long term goal.

Save the money

Put aside the money you would have spent on tobacco and watch it soon increase. Treat yourself with your extra cash and this economical motivation will soon have you quitting.

Hypnotherapy

For those needing extra help some hypnotherapists offer quit smoking sessions which many claim to help them stop for good.

Stop smoking

CHANGE HABITS: Breaking your routine can help.

Restless Leg Syndrome

By Estelle Mitchell

www.thebodyworksclinic.com

Symptoms

AN uncomfortable itchy, creepy crawly, pins and needles sensation in the legs (and sometimes other parts of the body), which usually occurs at night or during long periods of inactivity and seems to feel better when you move.

Your legs won't sleep

Restless Leg Syndrome (RLS) obviously, often results in poor sleep which makes you feel worse! And sometimes it is considered a sleep disorder rather than a physical issue.

The icing on the cake is that RLS is often referred to as idiopathic, meaning without cause. So sufferers are often dismissed or given medication which treats the symptoms (sleeplessness) rather than finding the cause.

But why?

Some chronic conditions such as diabetes and Parkinson's can often have RLS as a symptoms, however what do both of these conditions have in common? They cause neural issues.

As anyone who has read my articles for a while will know - itchy, burning, creepy crawly ... all these descriptions set off a little alarm that says we need to think about the nerves.

Too tired

There is another factor that can cause RLS - tired muscles.

Ever had a day when you did 10 times as much physical activity as usual? Maybe moving house or walking on holiday?

And at the end of the day you lie in bed, shattered, but aching and muscles twitching trying desperately to relax?

This is what happens with RLS - your leg muscles can be so tired from the general job of trying to get you around when your feet aren't functioning well, literally pulling your feet off the floor, that they twitch and wiggle trying to sleep.

Inflamed, tired muscles also contract, making them 'fatter' inside your legs, removing the space for blood, nerves, lymph and all your body's communication systems.

Feet first

1. Get the feet to work.
2. Take the pressure off your leg muscles.
3. Check your back and hips for good measure (it's where the nerves go).
4. Get a good night's sleep.

For more information about how to help your feet and legs work better and relieve strain, please check out our website www.TheBodyworksClinic.com, our Facebook page Bodyworks Health Clinic or call us on 952 883 151.

IN LOVE: Meeting someone special can give you a buzz.

The drug of love

MEETING someone special and falling in love can give the same buzz as being high on drugs.

Findings have shown that those feelings of excitement, anticipation and butterflies in our stomach triggers certain brain cells and activates the 'feel good' hormone dopamine. This chemical is also released after taking recreational drugs such as cocaine.

Researchers from Emory University in Atlanta, USA, who carried out the study on prairie voles, which, like humans, are one of the few monogamous mammals, say they believe the findings give insight into how we can influence social interactions. They believe this may one day be used to benefit patients suffering from autism as by controlling the release of dopamine, it may help improve interactions in socially awkward people.

Advertorial

The tailor-made artificial ankle joint

A closer observation shows that the arthrosis of the upper ankle joint is a very common orthopaedic pathology. Ankle joint prosthesis have already been inserted for a long time, but the models that were used until now did not show a long service life.

This has now been revolutionised. Nowadays the ankle joint prosthesis has been perfected up to the point where the average standing time can be compared to that of a knee or hip joint replacement. Even though this is a highly challenging surgical procedure, the chances of success are very positive. Nowadays advanced technology allows manufacturing tailor-made prosthesis. The particularity of this type of ankle joint replacement is the customisation, meaning that each patient receives a tailor-made prosthesis, specifically adjusted to his needs. Before the surgery we make CT-scans of the joint which are used to manufacture the prosthesis, which is then inserted during the surgery.

Just recently Dr. Spurek from the Foot and Sports Clinic Marbella inserted the first artificial ankle joint prosthesis of this type in Marbella with success.

Medical experts on the increase

NATIONALLY, Spain has an average of 4.7 doctors and 5.5 nurses per thousand inhabitants.

The number of doctors and registered nurses continues to grow in Spain and there are already 247,974 doctors and 291,848 nurses, an increase of 2.1 per cent and 2.7 per cent respectively compared to 2016. That's according to figures from the National Institute of Statistics (INE), which began to collate figures on the number of doctors and nurses in 1952.

The largest increases in the medical professions have been observed in physicians, dietician nutritionists, occupational therapists, dental technicians and physiotherapists.

Figures show that the health world is largely dominated by female workers with speech therapists having the highest percentage of women, being 93.8 per cent of the total. Over 91 per cent of occupational therapists are women along with 87.8 per cent of nutritional dieticians. However men dominate the fields of dentistry, specialist physicians and doctors.

“ Figures show the health world is largely dominated by female workers.

Taking into account the number of professionals active in relation to the population, Madrid has the highest rate of doctors with 5.9 doctors per thousand citizens, followed by Aragon (5.5 per thousand) and Navarre (5.4), which also has the highest rate of nurses at 8.6 per thousand inhabitants, followed by Madrid (6.8) and Cantabria (6.3).

Andalucia has the lowest rate of nurses in relation to the population with just four per thousand inhabitants, followed by Murcia with 4.2.

DOCTORS: Madrid has 5.9 per thousand citizens.

Dealing with the effects of hay fever

SPECIALIST: Doctor Luis Perez Belmonte.

What is hay fever?

Allergic rhinitis or hay fever is a reaction in the mucous membrane when it is exposed to dust, pollen, sometimes cold temperatures or other substances that a person is allergic to. It mainly affects the eyes and nose.

What are its symptoms?

The reaction can cause nasal secretion and an itchy nose during the months in which plants are flowering or exposure to other allergen triggers. Other symptoms of hay fever include nasal congestion, headaches and in rare cases nausea similar to when a person is suffering from vertigo.

How do you treat it? Can it be cured?

There are various ways of treating allergic rhinitis. The most common are antihistamines, decongestants and corti-coids which all help manage the symptoms. Another way to treat it is through the use of injections, known as immunotherapy. The vaccinations help the body tolerate the allergens which trigger allergic reactions and help manage symptoms, in some cases they have been known to cure hay fever.

Is it hereditary?

No, although some people are genetically predisposed, meaning they are more likely to develop hay fever.

Can it be prevented?

The best way to prevent hay fever is to avoid exposure to allergen triggers or to take antihistamines during the periods where symptoms are the worst. In general the best way to prevent it is to see a specialist who will be able to find the best course of treatment for you.

If you have any questions for Dr Perez Belmonte, please send them to: jefemedico@helicopterossanitarios.com

Clinical trials to help Butterfly Children

PEOPLE living with Epidermolysis bullosa, a rare genetic skin disease more commonly known as Butterfly Skin have seen a positive start to 2017 as a clinical trial on a possible treatment is starting this year in Spain.

The aim of the trial is to evaluate how mesenchymal cells, derived from bone marrow, can improve the healing of wounds caused by Butterfly Skin.

This important trial is being promoted by the Foundation for Biomedical Research La Paz University Hospital and will be carried out by the Department of Haematology and Dermatology at the hospital in Madrid.

The trial, which is approved by the Spanish Agency of Medicines and Sanitary Products, has a budget of €308,000 of which 75 per cent is being financed by the Carlos III Institute of Health and the remaining 25 per cent by the patients association 'DEBRA, The Butterfly Children Charity.'

In addition, the charitable association will also be funding a molecular geneticist for one year and with this extra resource Butterfly Children families will have better access to genetic diagnosis of their condition.

This is extremely important for both the affected and their relatives because it clearly defines what type of Epidermolysis bullosa they suffer from therefore providing prognostic value. It is also necessary for future family planning and for the affected to take part in clinical trials such as this.

Vitamin Drips – for a better life

Vitamin Drips (also known as infusion treatment) is a method of feeding vitamins, minerals, and other essential natural substances directly into a patient's bloodstream.

The drip is introduced intravenously as this is the best way for the body to absorb these pharmacological elements, as there are many barriers when taken by mouth (orally) and therefore they may not be ingested 100%. In some cases, these can be inactivated or even get broken down by digestive enzymes, such as the amylase found in the saliva and all the gastric and pancreatic enzymes, therefore the intravenous path is quick, accessible and reliable.

In Clínica Estética Contur our specialised protocol is aimed at 3 groups of people:

■ Young adults between the age of 18 and 45, workers and athletes, those who work continuously throughout the summer and need extra energy to tolerate the hard work and heat, as well as the excessive nights of partying; for these we have designed the 'Protocol Energy', with which we guarantee a 'power on' feeling in your system so that you can carry on with your summer revitalised.

■ Our most popular group, the seniors (from approximately 45 years old), adults who in their working and social life need some more energy, for these we have designed the 'Protocol Tiredness and Anti-aging' which offers them an energy boost in their daily lives so that their system is optimal. It will also help to increase libido in both men and women.

■ For those who want to detoxify their body we have designed the 'Protocol Detox' especially for those who have never detoxified their bodies from the excess caused by their daily lives. As well as those who have undertaken prolonged treatments against Cancer, Arthritis, Diabetes and other chronic illnesses. For this we would like to offer elements that combat free radicals which eliminated all the left-over medicine that has been accumulated over the years.

I AM INTERESTED IN A PROTOCOL

If you would like a complete protocol you should have a consultation with Dr. López first. After a complete medical evaluation which includes: anamnesis, a physical exam and some complementary assessments, then he will recommend one of our protocols if necessary. Once the protocol is chosen you will be accompanied by our nurse to our exclusive room where you can enjoy relaxing music, aromatherapy and beautiful views.

'Enjoy one hour of pure relaxation where you feel that your body is being recharged'

ADVANTAGES PROVIDED BY THE 'VITAMIN DRIP'

Every person that does one of our protocols will feel full of energy and life, as the organism will receive elements that are necessary to repair aged, mistreated cells and those that do not work well, victims of toxic oxygen free radicals which are created in our organism due to the consumption of alcohol, fast food, artificial colouring, sweeteners and flavouring, stressful and fast pace lifestyle, among others.

30 years in the life of the Piano Man, Paul Maxwel

WHEN you hear the name Piano Man in Marbella, it can only refer to one performer, Paul Maxwel who celebrates 30 years in show business.

Apart from appearing most nights at JoysLive in Puerto Banus, Paul who grew up in Andalucia has appeared alongside some very famous names as he has travelled around the world and will be the support act for the forthcoming Crazy 80's gig with Billy Ocean on July 6 and George Benson on July 21, both at the Puente Romano Tennis Club.

Not everyone realises how well-respected Paul is internationally and he has appeared with some major stars, including Michael Bolton, Seal, Simply Red, Earth Wind and Fire, Sister Sledge, Lionel Richie and Gary Moore.

Having recently released a new CD Pure, which shows a different side of him from the lively-crowd-performing for which he's known, Paul comments that the inspiration behind the album comes from his loving family.

"Having my first child Paul Michael has changed my perspective. Recently I'm feeling more deep, more romantic. I fancied singing romantic songs for a change," he SAID.

For the man who started playing drums at the age of 10 and turned professional at the age of 14, performing in piano bars he has enjoyed the world of music and life to the full and wants to share his 30 years in music with a special 'Audience with Paul Maxwel' on June 15 which will be filmed.

The evening will consist of a gala dinner at D Wines in San Pedro Alcantara with Paul performing with his seven-piece band - and some surprise musical guests - as they play a range of Paul's favourite numbers from his 30 years on stage.

Tickets which include a superb meal in the fine dining restaurant cost €90 per person and are available by visiting D Wine or JoysLive, although reservations may be made by email to info@d-wine.es.

After the 'Audience' has finished, all guests will be invited to make the shortish journey to Puerto Banus to continue the celebration at JoysLive, which is one of the most exciting nightclubs on the Costa del Sol and rocks to the early hours every night.

NEXT Wednesday will see a performance in Malaga by a pair of exceptional musicians Xantoné Blacq and Tony Match.

Xan is a multi-instrumentalist and singer who has worked with a host of stars such as Amy Winehouse and Mark Ronson whilst Tony is a drummer and producer and together they will present an evening of Jazz-Funk fusion as part of the regular Malaga in Black festival.

Tickets for the gig which takes place at the Cochabamba Cabaret, Avenida de los Guindos nº19 will cost €12 and the duo will appear on stage at 10pm.

The Worldwide Tapas Day 2017

THE Da Bruno Mijas restaurant is going to take part in the sixth edition of the worldwide tapas fair to commemorate the tapa and all the culture that surrounds this style of miniature cuisine.

This fair is where they promote the Spanish gastronomy to a national and international level particularly the tapas concept that is liked so much by both Spaniards and tourists.

Da Bruno Mijas understands that the whole culture of tapas includes differential elements of the gastronomy and Spanish society, and so Da Bruno will dedicate a few days where the tapa will be the main dish served in the Spanish tradition and the way in which we understand the cuisine.

The Asociación Saborea España is promoting this event, and their function is to boost the gastronomy as a tourist attraction.

With the celebration of Worldwide Tapas Day, Da Bruno Mijas would like to pay tribute to this Spanish tradition and for this reason we are MATAKA: Have just released a CD.

A Malaga band to go listen to

FORMED in 2009 by a number of like-minded musicians, the Malaga-based band Mataka has just released their latest CD entitled Love Machine.

Similar in some ways to Ojos de Brujo and Macaco who blend flamenco with other world music, Mataka incorporate reggae and progressive rock with flamenco to produce a different and unusual sound. Although not one of the better-known bands in Spain, their distinctive sound has ensured that they perform regularly in Andalusia and throughout Spain.

To find out more about this local band visit their Facebook page and discover this, their second album.

Sustainability and the environment

THE Marbella Arboretum is celebrating the arrival of summer with an evening of art, culture and creativity with hundreds of candles on Saturday June 17.

Entry to the event which runs from 8pm to midnight is free of charge although donations will be welcome and visitors are invited to bring a book to donate for sale by the Arboretum.

The evening is dedicated to the environment and there will be poetry, with visitors invited to present their own poems and short stories about nature and a range of musical performances including piano and saxophone recitals as well as a performance by the Pequeña Orquesta Mediterranea.

With plenty of organic food and craft beers, visitors are invited, in the spirit of sustainability, to bring their own cutlery, glasses and plates in order to cut down on rubbish collection and it will be possible to visit the charity's organic allotment to learn how to grow your own tasty food.

This promises to be an enjoyable and educational evening for all of the family.

Foreigner ticket results

EWN Media Group and JoysLive would like to thank all of the readers who entered the competition to win tickets to see Foreigner on June 11.

We were delighted by the number of Foreigner fans who wanted to obtain a pair of Bronze VIP tickets worth €140 each for this concert being held at the Puente Romano Tennis Club as part of the band's 40th Anniversary World Tour.

The lucky winner was Clive from Nueva Andalucia who was delighted by the news as he has been a fan of the band for more than 20 years and is looking forward to seeing them and then returning to JoysLive in Puerto Banus for the After Gig party.

He has agreed to take some photographs of the event and let us have a few words about the event which we hope to share with readers in the next edition of the paper.

The Wright Plaice for quality fish and chips in La Cala de Mijas

IF you are missing the taste of well-prepared fish and chips then you need to visit the Wright Plaice in La Cala de Mijas.

Recently opened by Edward Wright, who has spent 20 years running nine restaurants in Costa Blanca, this bright and modern restaurant offers all of the dishes you would expect, plus a few more.

There is a large interior dining area where you can watch the food being prepared by Alan Whittaker who first became enamoured with Britain's traditional favourite at the age of 11 when he helped his mother in her fish and chip shop and when he was old enough to start work, he served his 'apprenticeship' in Harry Ramsden's in Gateshead.

From there, he moved on to work in a number of restaurants before returning to his first love but the whole menu has been thought out to ensure that much of it is suitable for those with allergies or have strong vegan beliefs.

Everything that has to be fried is cooked in rape seed oil which is considered to be the safest for those with gluten, soy and celiac allergies and also as they keep a second fryer separate and in another room, Vegans and Vegetarians can also benefit provided they tell Edward when ordering.

They welcome take away orders as well as eat in and they offer a number of fish that you don't normally see in Spanish fish and chip shops, so apart from Cod, Plaice and Scampi, they also offer Haddock, Skate and Rock giving customers a first class choice.

Not only does the fish taste good as it is cooked to order but the portions need to be seen to be believed and there is a special children's menu as well.

If one of your party doesn't fancy fish, then there is a good selection of traditional pies, burgers (including a vegetarian option), spit roasted chicken and sausages together with all of the side dishes that you would expect including the ubiquitous Wally, a London name for a large pickled gherkin.

After a fantastic meal, there is also the option to order ice cream or the delicious home-made dessert of the day.

This is a light, comfortable establishment which serves properly cooked fish and chips to eat in or take away and with a huge car park literally outside, the Wright Plaice which is open from 5pm to 11pm Monday to Saturday (except Friday when it opens at 3pm) is the ideal place to visit.

A very pleasant port from 1960

GOOD FOOD, GOOD WINE AND GOOD FRIENDS
WITH
GARRY WAITE

I THE WINE CORNER IS A LITTLE DIFFERENT THIS WEEK. I received a letter from Phil who sent me this photo of a bottle of 1960 Offleys port. It was interesting as I had a bottle some years ago which I consumed and found it to be very pleasant. Well it should be, it was one of the finest vintages of the last 60 years or so, 66 was great and 63 generally undeclared but still very drinkable! It's worth about €120 and below is some interesting information regarding the bottlers.

Quinta Boa Vista (literally Beautiful View Vineyard) hints at the dramatic views enjoyed by one of the most renowned vineyards in the entire Douro valley. Boa Vista is the jewel in the Offley Forrester crown, which is one of the oldest Port Houses (1737) and rose to prominence under Joseph Forrester.

He was a legendary figure in the history of port credited with mapping the upper regions of the Douro, only to be drowned in one of its rapids, allegedly weighed down by the weight of gold he had collected from his tenants. Forrester's life was devoted to improving the quality of port and in recognition of his endeavours the King of Portugal made him Baron Forrester.

Offley's vintages from the 1960s are a rare treat for Port buyers, as little has appeared under the label since.

THE SPANISH ARE MAKING THEIR MARK in the eating out experiences in the UK. Tapas bars abound. Great restaurants, like Fino and Barrafinna in Frith Street, owned by Sam and Eddie Hart, the latter opened in January 2007 and earned a Michelin star under executive head chef Nieves Barragán Mohacho in 2014. This talented Spanish Chef, together with her partner, José Etura, himself General Manager of Barrafinna Restaurants, is opening their own restaurant, Sabor. The name, meaning 'flavour' in Spanish, (as I am sure all readers know) reflects the restaurant's focus on the flavours of Spain, through the use of traditional ingredients and cooking methods, and a relaxed approach to dining.

Situated in London's Heddon Street it is spread across two floors, the ground floor will feature a dining counter surrounding an open kitchen and fresh seafood display. The kitchen will serve regional dishes from across Spain, including those from the Basque country and Catalonia. A separate bar area will offer Sherrys, txakoli, vermouths, beers and wines. Txakoli or Chacolí is a slightly sparkling, very dry white wine with high acidity and low alcohol content produced in the Spanish provinces of the Basque Country, Cantabria and northern Burgos. We don't see much of it here.

Upstairs the focus will be on Galicia and Castile with a menu centred around two specialities from those regions - octopus and suckling pig. Galician octopus will be cooked in traditional copper pans with olive oil and paprika, while a Castilian roast suckling pig will be cooked in the asador (a traditional wood fired oven).

So next time you are in London get some 'home from home' comforts.

Keep the noise down please

WAS LUNCHING IN MY FAVOURITE CHINESE RESTAURANT the other day. It was relatively early so it wasn't as busy as normal. This also meant that the acoustics were more pronounced. I have always known that the Chinese can be pretty loud when talking, discussing and generally giving instructions but on this occasion it was more noticeable. But it got me thinking, the Spanish are pretty good at it as well.

How many times have you sat in a family restaurant to the cacophony that is a family at play! But then, so do the Italians. The Russians are not so noisy in a group, but individually when they talk it sounds like a machine gun! However, if you really want to judge noise how about a bunch of half cut Brits in a bar! KEEP THE NOISE DOWN PLEASE

AS I WRITE THIS READY TO GO TO PRESS, yet another pointless loss of life unfolds before our eyes. Much blame for these terrorist attacks is blamed on understaffing of police and armed officers. But the fact that the response time was so rapid and the perpetrators were shot dead within eight minutes from the first 999 call, does show that the organisation of the first responders is solid. Once again stories of unbelievable acts of bravery emerge. People that do extraordinary things under pressure without thinking of themselves. I often wonder whether I would be able to carry out similar acts if faced with such horror.

Once again a community pulls together and will not allow itself to be beaten. But the world has to do something - and quickly. I have Muslim colleagues who have worked for me for many years. They do not understand this interpretation of their beloved Islam claiming it represents love not hate and certainly not murder. But religious leaders must accept more responsibility, especially those that preach wahhabism, an extreme Islamic doctrine practiced by Daesh and taught in Mosques apparently funded by countries such as Saudi Arabia and Qatar. What the answer is I do not know - sadly at the moment it would seem that nobody else does either.

*ON THOSE SAD NOTES I will bid you farewell until next week and should aspiring restaurateurs need some help or advice, please do not hesitate to contact me.
A toast to Good Food, Good Wine and Good Friends.*

CHARITY EVENT: Raising money for Lymphedema.

An emotional event

I HAD THE PRIVILEGE OF BEING THE AUCTIONEER AT A RECENT CHARITY EVENT for the Tour de Sands, held at Avanto Beach restaurant in La Cala. The charity was set up by Sandra Watson's husband Jerry after the premature passing of his beautiful wife from cancer in March 2016.

I met the couple more than 20 years ago on a Classic Eurosport classic car rally through France and Spain where I organised hotels and victualing. Their passion for classic cars and life in general was infectious. I am not going to go into everything as it is too sad for reading in a newspaper, but I would urge you to go to the website and read the uplifting story of Sandra and her family, it is truly inspirational.

Full details of the story, blow by blow of the trip, the charity and the people involved can be found there, as can the giving page that at this moment has helped the charity reach more than £70,000 from the event (www.tourdesands.com).

The Charity - to which Jerry's efforts have concentrated - was set up to improve the misunderstanding about lymphedema, the side effects of her type of cancer. The run started in Easton on the Hill in Lincolnshire and travelled to Elviria in Spain. The E2E was not done in Classic Cars, but on bicycles. Sandra's bicycle was ridden by different people throughout the 2,600 kilometre trip. Supported by riders from all over, who joined the ride at different stages but only four people completed the whole trip. Jerry, of course, being one of them. One of the most poignant moments for me was when the four that received their trophies were given a section of Sandra's drive chain to drape over said trophy.

It was the most emotional event I have been to in a long time and I hope that I contributed in some way to the event and to the amounts raised by everyone concerned. Avanto Beach restaurant, Restaurant 1870, San Pedro, Virgin Balloons, Tree-Tops, La Chaparral and with special thanks to The George Hotel in Stamford, Lincolnshire (a popular haunt for many of the English contingent) for their Lobster and Champagne Lunch - and many more who gave products and services to the memory of a beautiful woman, inside and out, who was also a loving mother and wife.

Monthly gardening tasks – June

DICK HANDSCOMBE

MANY of us experienced mixed weather during May. Weather that gave some thrills as many flowering shrubs looked their best early, but also some disappointments especially when just one windy rainy night decimated record flowerings and fruit formation on avocados and grapes.

But in general it was a steady changeover from late spring to early summer.

So what do we now need to do to improve the chances of wonderfully colourful and productive summer gardens.

Ten important actions for June

1. Deadheading and tidying pruning regime.

2. Watch out for fast growing weeds that escaped your earlier mulching, hoeing and sowing.

3. Turn up the frequency and volume settings on watering systems and check throughout the pipe/hose runs for leaks and blockages caused by insects grit or calcium deposits in jets.

4. As the heat and humidity rises watch out for signs of insect and fungal attacks and be ready with your eco armouries of garlic, thyme, sulphur, neem and propylis sprays.

5. Give all plants in pots and other containers a good feed.

6. If you have been growing early vegetables in raised beds of containers such as growing tables and large builders buckets replace eaten crops by immediately filling gaps with seeds or plantlets.

7. Be ready to shade the more tender salad crops including tomatoes during the middle of the day to reduce their watering needs, slow down their maturing and lengthening their harvesting periods.

8. Ensure you pull down blinds to provide welcome, even essential shade, to plants in containers on apartment terraces, balconies and windowsills.

If you do plan some late window box plantings preferably do this on north and wet facing situations.

9. Late planting of flowering plants

We are now in June and can expect steadily rising temperatures, reducing rain falls, the drying out of soils and lowering water tables so it makes sense to:

a. Minimise new plantings until the autumn rains,

b. Restrict new plantings to drought resistant plants,

c. Buy plants that are not root bound,

d. Buy plants that have been grown and are being sold in deep pots,

e. Improve soils in areas in which plants are to be planted to minimise water losses from waterings or rains if they occur from excessive drainage, surface evaporation, running off across hard impermeable soil surfaces, sponging away into super dry surrounding soils,

f. Invest in a five-kilo tub of Terra-Cottem water absorbing gel soil improver. Technically minded readers will find the website interesting,

g. Immediately mulch well around new plants. Unfortunately more than 50 per cent of mulching that I see is sub-optimal.

10. Irreversible fruit losses

Fortunately the yields of early fruits such as strawberries and cherries have in many areas been great, and yields of stone fruits such as apricots, plums and olives, the first time for three or four years, look promising.

However just one windy rainy night in early May destroyed, in many gardens and commercial plantations, next autumn's grape and avocado crops. Unfortunately there is nothing one can do to avoid or recover from such natural disasters. Fortunately there are other garden crops to help sustain good living from one's garden.

The inexpensive book 'Living well from our garden Mediterranean style' describes my personal experiences of living healthily for 25 years after two dangerous cancer operations. Continuing to do so is an important objective beyond 80.

Who is to blame for dog bites?

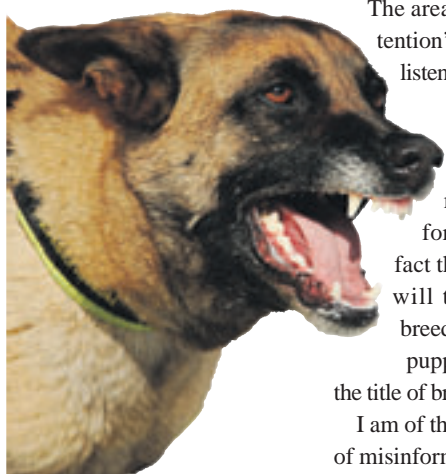

David THE Dogman

(Denia to Valencia) 95.3fm
Mallorca 103.9fm

SOME time ago I mentioned that cars do not kill people it is the drivers who kill!

Of course there are many defence barriers which come into effect when someone is bitten. "He didn't mean it," "He is not dangerous," "He has never done anything like that before," "He is wonderful with our children," but who is to blame?

DOGS: Need to be trained.

I blame owners

I do not blame dogs, I blame owners for not keeping the dogs locked up. I blame owners for not caring about their community, and their neighbours. I blame owners who are breeding and have not neutered their pets. I blame the owners for not being able to control their pets.

I blame parents

I do not care how good a dog is, children and dogs should always be supervised. If a child gets bitten, I blame the parents for lack of supervision. Children must be taught dog's ears are not for pulling, we do not poke the dog's eyes, we do not stick a pencil or pen up the rectum, and we do not pinch dogs.

Any large breeds like the Rottweiler, German Shepherd and Doberman are not suitable for homes with young children. Most parents forget that children have friends. When little Johnny's friend Tommy comes to play, what assurance is there that the dog will like Tommy?

I blame breeders

The area of 'catchment attention' where people will listen is when they buy a pet from breeders. The pet shops and breeders are the main area of misinformation. It is a sad fact that all new owners will take advice from breeders when buying a puppy. Anyone can get the title of breeder.

I am of the opinion that a lot of misinformation comes from breeders who know little if anything about canine behaviour. I meet pet owners every week who think it is good for their female to have a litter of puppies. No health tests have been carried out or indeed to check if their behavioural genes are suitable for breeding. Dogs with unhealthy eyes, ears, hips or elbows can have behavioural problems.

I blame lack of training

All breeders and other sources of supply and vets should make their clients aware that a dog needs to be trained. Most people believe that dogs should not be trained until they are six months old. This is nonsense. All dogs should be trained as soon as possible. All dogs should be attending a social class as soon as possible in order to get them used to other dogs, children and people.

I am not advocating that pet dogs should be trained like police dogs. I am of the opinion all owners should be able to walk their dogs without pulling on the lead, and they should be able to make their dogs sit and go down.

I blame the vets

When the new puppy is taken to the vet for its vaccinations most owners will listen to the vet's advice, it is at this time training should be discussed. Vets see dogs every day. Vets should recognise owners have no control over their dogs. Vets should be directing owners to training clubs or in my opinion they are irresponsible.

Getting ready to go on your holidays?

Take away some stress - leave the dog at home!
We'll help you find house-sitters to help.

IF every year you find your holiday planning getting more and more stressful you may decide it's time to take action to minimise your stress levels and actually enjoy your time off. Why not leave your pets at home this year in the safe hands of a pet-sitter. At HouseSit-Match we'll do our best to help you find a suitable match, a house and pet-sitter who can take care of pets and home to your instructions.

What's more the house-sitter will care for your property and pets for free! That's because what we offer is an exchange of services, the sitters offer you their experiences and presence to keep your home secure and your pets safe and well cared for, in exchange you offer free accommodation!

Annie from Malaga recently called us to thank us for the help we offered her as a Premium Member. We helped her meet up with Rod and Hazel, a retired couple who recently house-sat for her while she went on a holiday with family. She was delighted and really happy to meet them.

Do you need a house or pet-sitter? Get in touch. House-sitting can be a win-win for both parties, free house and pet-sitting, and the experienced and checked sitters get free accommodation! Register as either house-sitter or homeowner now with a 50 per cent off introductory offer using coupon code SPECIAL50. To find a house or pet-sitter go to www.HousesitMatch.com or call Lamia on 00 44 (0) 777 214 2742.

Top cat toys

TUNNEL: Easily stacked.

PLAYING is essential for kittens, to develop their hunting and fighting skills.

It is also a well-known fact that cats love to play, and usually with the simplest of toys, including boxes, paper bags, plastic balls, twists of paper and cotton reels.

However, it is worth having a look at some updated and more stylish alternatives that are available for the cat and of course, the owner to enjoy!

The latest toys are colourful and look good but are also very practical, and the first is a 'Toys R Us colourful Tri-Tunnel toy,' which pops up, folds down and has a dangle toy inside for when your cat 'wants to be alone.'

Next, there is the 'Kong Crisscross Rolling Cat Toy,' which rolls along the floor, with a bell that rings and a rolling ball inside or you could go for a 'Petlinks Wild Thing Motion Cat Toy,' that does all the work with its electronic motion ball, that moves and spins around dangling a feather.

Other toys include the 'SmartyKat Crackle Chute Collapsible tunnel' and the 'Cat1st Ninja Cat Cube' that can easily be stacked and connected to more cubes with Velcro.

As cats get older, like humans, they need more of an incentive to get up and jump around for the sake of it, whereas kittens are young and have boundless amounts of energy. It is worth investing in new toys, so your cat doesn't get bored.

CHARITIES

ACE CHARITY "El Refugio" in La Cala de Mijas is a registered charity. We have on average 275 dogs in our care and we receive no help from the Town Hall or the Andalusian government. We desperately need foster homes and adoptants for our many dogs, especially the small ones and puppies who do not do well in a big shelter. We are grateful for any help offered, including donations of food and blankets. Visiting times are from 13.00 to 15.00 and you can always turn up or make an appointment by calling Denise on 669 018 736. Our website is www.ace-charity.org where you can view all the dogs in our care. (93320)

ADANA THE ANIMAL SHELTER IN ESTEPONA. We always need volunteers to walk and socialise with our dogs and help with cleaning. We also need good homes for our animals that you can see on www.adana.es. Kennels open every day 10-1.30, Camino de Casares, near Parque de los Pedregales, Estepona. (5 minutes from the Poligono) For more information call 952 113 467, available from 10.00am until 14.00pm. (93319)

SEPE the horse and donkey charity is open to the public week-ends from 10.00 to 5.00. Volunteers are much needed in all departments and are welcome at anytime. For our riding for the disabled classes, we are also in need of extra helpers. We are nationally registered by the Spanish Ministry of the Interior (164640) but only with your support can we give the equine a voice. If you can just commit to 2 or 3 euros a month it will really help make a difference. You can find us at Lauro Golf Equestrian Centre, Alqueria, Alhaurin de la Torre. Tel. 608 258 950 info@sepeonline.net www.sepeonline.net (93321)

AT SOS ANIMAL REFUGE we have dogs, young and old looking for homes. Some of our dogs have been with us for some time and would love to find a cosy spot to curl up in and a knee on which to rest their heads. If you have room in your heart and home we would love to hear from you. We do not put our dogs to sleep - no matter how old, they are safe with us. For day to day needs and to pay for veterinary care, we much appreciate the support we receive. We desperately need items to sell on our market stall to help raise funds and are happy to come and collect. So if you are having a clear-out, please contact us on 605 227 155. If you would like to know more about rehoming, please call 653 257 875. Visit our website www.sos-animals.org or please phone Sandy on 952 385 923 or 666 814 056 if you would like to make a donation or help in any way. (93317)

Triple Crown glory

By Matthew Elliott

SPANISH speeder Fernando Alonso astonished spectators with his strong performance in the Indy500. Alonso was so close to victory but his Andretti Autosport Honda retired just 20 laps from the finish.

His strong performance strengthened opinion that the Oviedo man might be the best all-round Formula One driver in the game today. Alonso, gaining confidence from the race, considered among the top three motorsport competitions on the planet, declared his intention to win the prestigious Triple Crown.

Only the legendary Graham Hill has ever completed the feat, which involves winning the Monaco Grand Prix, Le Mans 24 Race, and the Indy 500. Alonso, 35, won the Monaco Grand Prix in back-to-back races in 2006 and 2007. Last week he showed the Indy 500 is easily within his grasp, leaving only Le Mans.

Only a few months ago

Alonso was cracking jokes about winning the Indy500 and not taken seriously. Mark Webber, a top endurance racer, said he reckons the Spaniard has roughly a decade to win Le Mans and cement his legacy at the very pinnacle of the sport.

At 35, with an already glorious career behind him, and millions in the bank, Alonso is also talking publicly about becoming a free agent. He leaves Honda this summer and has ruled out a partnership with Red Bull.

With his name and popularity Alonso might be able to escape the long term contracts most drivers are subject to, even taking on individual race contracts.

His foray into the Indy500 earned him a cool $300,000 for the Rookie of the Year award, perhaps slightly fortunate given his racing pedigree.

But Alonso's move has opened the door for other Formula One stars to follow suit, perhaps sparking a new race for Triple Crown glory.

Road rage

A SHOCKING new survey found that almost two thirds of British motorists have been victims of road rage. An alarming 61 per cent claim to have been verbally or physically abused on the roads.

When threatening gestures were included the number of people targeted by angry drivers rose to 80 per cent. Both men and women are subject to abuse in equal measure although women are often abused repeatedly in short periods of time.

Almost one in three women reported being worried they will be road rage victims before they get in the car. The typical offender is a man in his late 30's.

Just 6 per cent of cases are reported to police, while cyclists today are in particular jeopardy.

Dovizioso wins the MotoGP in Italy as England begin the Champions Trophy guided Enable to victory in the Oaks. This was the sixth Derby win for Aidan O'Brien, Ballydoyle's master-trainer, and very few punters backed it!

Home rider Andrea Dovizioso won last Sunday's Italian MotoGP in Mugello. Maverick Vinales (Spain) and Danilo Petrucci (Italy) finished second and third.

England's cricketers started their Champions Trophy challenge with an eight-wicket win over Bangladesh; Joe Root scored 133 not out and Alex

Hales 95. England's second Group game was against New Zealand in Cardiff on Tuesday; their third is on Saturday versus Australia at Edgbaston. India also started with a win, over Pakistan.

The British/Irish Lions failed to roar when beating the Provincial Union XV, including students, painters, maintenance engineers, a gym owner, builders, a nurse, office worker and shop-keeper, unconvincingly by 13-7 in their first match in New Zealand. Yesterday, the Warren Gatland's tourists played the Blues in Auckland and on Saturday they face the Crusaders in Christchurch.

In football, Darren Fletcher has left WBA for Stoke; Yaya Toure has signed a new contract with Manchester City; Chelsea have transferred 'keeper Asmir Begovic to Bournemouth; AS Roma want England's number one Joe Hart; Arsenal are chasing Atletico Madrid's Alexandre Lacazette and Roberto Mancini is Zenit St Petersburg's new manager.

And last Friday, Olivier Giroud (Arsenal) became the first player to score a hat-trick for France since 2000 with a treble in a 5-0 win over Paraguay. In this same game, Spurs' Hugo Lloris set a new French record for a goalkeeper with his 88th cap.

2017 Champions League Facts

Cristiano Ronaldo hit two goals in last Saturday's win over Juventus, having previously netted in the 2008 and 2014 finals. And the Portuguese star (for Manchester United and Real) and Mario Mandzukic (for Bayern Munich and Juventus) have now scored in Champions League finals for different clubs.

Also last Saturday, Ronaldo scored his 600th goal at senior level for club and country.

Real are the first team in the Champions League era to retain the trophy.

Juan Cuadrado (Juventus) became the third player to be sent-off in a CL final.

Real Madrid boss Zinedine Zidane is the first manager to win back-to-back European Cup/Champions League finals since AC Milan's Arrigo Sacchi (1989, 1990).

Real have won their last six European/CL finals, last losing in 1981, and at the same time they have become the first team in CL history to score 500+ goals (503 as it stands).

This latest victory was Real's 12th in the European Cup/Champions League.

Juventus goalkeeper Gianluigi Buffon was the third oldest player to appear in a European Cup final, aged 39 years and 126 days.

Real Madrid will now face Europa League winners Manchester United in the 2017 UEFA Super Cup in Skopje, Macedonia on August 8.

ANDREA DOVIZIOSO:
Won the MotoGP in Mugello, Italy.

DID YOU KNOW?

Barcelona players' wage bill for 2016-17 was a world record £279m; Manchester United's was £265m; Chelsea's £256m and Real Madrid's £250m.

Monte Mar BC visit La Posada

RETURN VISIT: Group photo taken at La Posada Bowls Club.

LA POSADA'S bowling tour to the Alicante region in 2016 included a match at Monte Mar Bowls Club, where they were warmly welcomed and enjoyed some great hospitality. In a chat over lunch, email addresses were exchanged with a view to organising a return visit by Monte Mar to La Posada and this took place between May 22 and 26.

More than 30 bowlers from Monte Mar arrived on the Monday, staying for four nights at El Tempranillo Hotel.

Tuesday morning saw four rinks matches played, with La Posada winning the session 3-1. Triples matches were played during a hot afternoon and, with many La Posada players playing twice on the day and the Monte Mar afternoon players being fresh from not having played in the morning. It was no surprise to see Monte Mar reverse the morning's result, winning the afternoon session 3-1.

Their visit to Saydo BC on the Wednesday resulted in Monte Mar winning the morning triples matches 4-0 and the afternoon's rinks matches by the same scoreline.

Back at La Posada on the Thursday, rinks matches were organised for both the morning and afternoon sessions. With a score of 4-4 carried over from the Tuesday, there was everything to play for. Some close matches resulted in a win for Monte Mar in the morning by 3-1, so La Posada had it all to do later.

With La Posada having to field players twice on the day against fresh players from Monte Mar for the afternoon session, the odds were stacked heavily against La Posada, however, they won the session 4-0, thus winning 9-7 overall on the 16 matches played during the two days.

A farewell meal was held on Thursday evening. Good food and a great time was had.

Mijas Golf Olivos & Lagos Summer Twilight Offer

CostaLessGolf
Weekly News

with Ron Garrod

MIJAS GOLF is one of the most commercial golf resorts on the Costa del Sol, with two walkable courses Los Olivos and Los Lagos.

Los Olivos opened in 1984 and was refurbished by Cabell Robinson during the season 2000 - 2001, following Trent Jones' original design concept. Slightly shorter than Los Lagos, Los Olivos is most notable for the multitude of trees which its name comes from. With fewer water features, the 18-hole course is nevertheless very challenging. Par: 72 – four x 3 pars, 10 x 4 pars, four x 5 pars. The greens are smaller, undulating and well-defended by bunkers, and the strategic narrow tree-lined fairways and elevated green demand accuracy and skill. With fewer water hazards, this 18-hole course is nevertheless very challenging.

Los Lagos the longest of the two courses with 6,536 metres was totally refurbished in 2012 and has kept the original design.

A Par: 72 – with four x 3 pars, 10 x 4 pars, four x 5 pars, with a few of lakes remaining under repair, the greens and fairways have recovered well despite the winter flooding.

The Signature Hole is no 7: Yardage: 350 Metres, Par: 4, Stroke Index: 5 with a very long carry over two lakes - swinging slowly! The second shot needs a little extra to the raised green, presenting a difficult putting surface on many levels.

Why not book our special offer of Twilight Green Fees offer for only €46.00 on Los Olivos and only €51.00 on Los Lagos playing after 13.30 until 31/08/17. For further details call CostaLessGolf on 952 661 849 or email: enquiries@costalessgolf.com.
