Sex slave arrests Suspects from Alicante and the UK held

by Joe Gerrard

ARRESTS have been made in Alicante Province, across Spain and in Britain, in connection with an international human trafficking ring allegedly responsible for forcing Nigerian women into prostitution.

Guardia Civil officers collaborated with Britain's National Crime Agency and Nigeria's National Agency for the Prohibition of People Trafficking for the operation which saw 89 people arrested.

A total of 58 of those have been charged with organised crime, human trafficking and money laundering offences. Forty three of these have been remanded in custody.

A woman was also arrested in Middleton, Greater Manchester, on suspicion of being a 'madame' in the group which is known as Eiye Confraternity.

The operation also saw 39 women, allegedly trafficked from Africa and across Europe to Spain, freed from 'cave houses' in Cuevas del Almanzora in Almeria.

Police said the women were found to be living in 'extremely' unstable conditions. A total

The investigation began in Torrevieja, Alicante, after officers received a complaint from one of the alleged victims, a girl reportedly underage.

A WOMAN and her 26-year-old son have been found dead in their home in Las Torres de Cotillas in Murcia.

Guardia Civil officers have since opened an investigation into the death. Police said the older brother who discovered the bodies was visibly upset and that his hands were covered in blood when they arrived at the single-terraced family house at around 6.50am.

A court ordered the removal of the bodies which showed clear signs of having being hit with a blunt object, the Guardia Civil said in a statement. The implement used has not been found, they added.

Ten quizzed over 'kidnap and rape'

TEN men accused of giving three escaped girls from a juvenile centre drink, drugs and money before taking them to an Alicante apartment and sexually assaulting them have been arrested.

Those arrested, which included two youths, allegedly locked one 14year-old girl in the building for more than 24 hours. She was repeatedly assaulted and raped during that time, according to National Police.

Officers have located two of the alleged victims but were reportedly tracing a 17-year-old last week.

Police began their investigation after being informed by officers in Alicante that the three girls had left the juvenile institution they were at and had not returned.

Their inquiries allegedly led them to believe that the 14, 15 and 17-yearolds had all been offered alcohol, drugs and money to lure them to the apartment.

Officers from Alicante's Central District Police station, along with members of the Family Assistance Unit and the Response Operative Group later raided three homes allegedly used by the group.

They reportedly found several stolen goods in the properties, including 15 mobile phones, four bicycles, electronics and computers. Police believe these were sold on the back market to fund the group's lifestyle.

The accused were then arrested in connection with sexual assault, abuse. robbery, organised crime and corruption of minors. Their proceedings have been sent to a Magistrate's Court.

RAID: Police reportedly seized thousands in their investigation.

The journey into prostitution

Police investigating the complaint claimed the group had several women under their control who were forcibly transported across thousands of kilometres to Spain.

The women's journey began in Nigeria in western Africa, where they were transported to Libya in preparation for crossing the Mediterranean into Europe after undergoing voodoo rites.

The women, several of who were underage, were regarded as property by the group as they travelled from their home country to Lampedusa Island, Italy.

It was from an immigration camp there that members of Eiye Confraternity in Europe picked up the women and sent them to countries across the continent, including Spain.

When the 39 women arrived in Cuevas del Almanzora they were put under the control of 'madames.' Many of these women had been forced into prostitution themselves in similar circumstances.

Those held were saddled with debts of around € 30,000 for the journey which they were forced to pay off with sex work, according to the Guardia Civil.

Domestic abuse rap

A MAN has been sentenced to nine months in jail for assaulting his wife and mother-in-law in Elda.

The incident occurred after a heated argument between the detainee and his youngest daughter at their home.

Living on the top floor of the house, the maternal grandmother came downstairs to try to calm the situation but was thrown to the ground by the defendant.

He then threw a construction fence on her, breaking one of her fingers and toes which took 40 days to heal.

The following morning and again in the presence of the daughter, the man argued with his wife before pushing her to the ground.

In a fit of rage he grabbed a pair of scissors and put them to her neck, threatening to kill her.

The detainee has also been fined €1,950 for the abuse, has lost the right to vote and is banned from approaching within 200 metres of his wife for 18 months.

The Provincial Court of Alicante has dismissed his appeal.

Holy Week backup

STAFF numbers at the 112 emergency services line's operations room in Murcia are set to increase by 17.4 per cent, to 27, for the region's Holy Week celebrations. Additional firefighters and beach patrols will also be on hand, with reinforcements also available through the spring.

Storm damage

TWO people were left with minor injuries from falling objects in the Valencia region as a result of Storm Hugo. Fallen trees and fences, as well as vehicle damage as a result of winds from the storm, were among 60 incidents reported in Alicante Province.

Plant charges

ANOTHER 11 people have been charged in connection with corruption allegations surrounding payments for the Escombreras water treatment plant in Murcia. Miguel Sanchez, a Ciudadanos spokesperson, said his party valued the plant at €111 million but added it could cost the region some €600 million.

Road request

AUTHORITIES in Elche have appealed to the Ministry of Development to designate the AP-7 'Mediterranean Highway' road as being under public management. The classification would mean the motorway, which is currently funded by tolls, would be free to use as it passes through the area.

White palms

WORKSHOPS in Elche have shipped their traditional Palm Sunday White Palms to Pope Francis, King Felipe, Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy and Valencia Generalitat President Ximo Puig. The palms, measuring between three and 3.5 metres, have been commissioned by the town to show its craft offering.

RECOGNISING THE SACRIFICE: Citizens of Madrid search through the remains of their homes after the city was 'liberated' by the nationalist forces of General Franco (inset) in March 1939.

SPAIN could finally be ready to exorcise the ghosts of its bloodiest internal conflict. This Saturday marks 79 years since the end of the Spanish Civil War.

And a new museum in Teruel, Aragon, is set to become the first in the country dedicated to telling the story of the three-year battle.

The war began when General Francisco Franco's troops launched a brutal nationalist military uprising against the democratically elected Republican government of president Manuel Azaña on July 17, 1936.

By 1937 the nationalists had captured much of northern Spain, while Madrid was under siege.

In 1938 and 1939 they advanced on Cataluña, cutting off Barcelona from the capital and sealing Franco's victory on April 1, 1939.

But the conflict was distorted in the four decades until his death in 1975, as the dictator attempted to airbrush the Republicans from Spain's history books, and the issue has on the whole been neglected by governments since. A recent survey revealed that 69 per cent of 14-to 17-year-olds in Spain received 'little to no' information about the civil war in school history classes. War memorials that appeared across Spain in the wake of the war named only the Nationalist dead, while the relatives of thousands of missing Republicans were told to 'say nothing and forget' as Franco brainwashed a nation. It is only in the last decade that a generational shift has been sparked, after the controversial Law of Historical Memory was in 2007 passed by socialist prime minister Jose Zapatero.

go hire.com

The decree formally condemned the Franco regime and honoured victims on both sides.

And it has culminated in a move that would previously have been unthinkable, as the city of Teruel, which was bombed by both sides in a famous battle, seeks the green light to begin work on the country's first official civil war museum.

Should it go ahead, it could mark an important step in Spain coming to terms with its fascist past.

Drink-driving mayor refuses to buy police breathalysers

MANUEL ROS registered on a breathalyser as being three times over the legal alcohol limit when he was stopped by police while driving through Benijofar at around 5am in January.

He was later convicted of driving whilst drunk, lost his licence and had to pay a  $\in$  720 fine. He also had to attend a meeting to apologise in order to keep his job.

Ros is currently the Partido Socialista (PSOE) mayor of Algorfa. As the town's mayor he has reportedly refused requests from a police union to buy breathalysers for traffic officers in the area on five separate occasions.

OUR VIEW Brexit link triggers democracy doubt

THE Vote Leave revelations bring into question the very democratic foundations of the UK.

Pro-Brexit whistleblower Shahmir Sanni, former treasurer of campaign organisation BeLeave, claimed that his supposedly independent operation was used to funnel €712,000 to a digital services firm on behalf of the official Vote Leave campaign.

He also said Vote Leave and BeLeave shared office space and the campaign fronted by Conservative MPs Boris Johnson and Michael Gove advised the latter how it should spend money.

If proven, Sanni's claims could mean the Vote Leave campaign violated election rules, according to reports, first by making an unofficial donation and second by working alongside another campaign organisation with which it did not share a spending cap.

And the situation has arguably been worsened in the wake of evidence given to the Commons culture committee by former Cambridge Analytica employee Christopher Wylie.

He told MPs: "I think it is completely reasonable to say there could have been a different outcome of the referendum had there not been, in my view, cheating."

When considered together, the allegations raise serious concerns about the Brexit result, and more importantly, whether Britain's democracy remains intact.

And that should trigger alarm bells in leavers and remainers alike.

by Benjamin Park

A MAN has been left seriously injured after being involved in a collision between his motorbike and a car in Torreaguera.

Police received multiple calls informing them of a crash, believed to have involved two vehicles, on the road that links Beniajan and Torreguera.

Witnesses have allegedly reported that the accident occurred when a bridge came down in a road, causing a collision between a car and the motorcyclist.

When emergency services arrived on the scene, they reportedly found the man unconscious and seriously injured.

Following the accident, the man has allegedly been left with a traumatic brain injury and was transferred to the UME at the Virgen de la Arrixaca.

San Isidro mayor resigns

THE mayor of San Isidro presented his resignation to a session of the town's council last Thursday in order to retire.

Francisco Damian Sabateria Culiañez said in a statement that he had fulfilled his commitments to education and sports while in office. He added that he now wanted to retire.

"I am 65 years old now. I told my colleagues that I had complied with expectations and that I no longer had any to fulfil," he said.

The former Partido Socialista (PSOE) mayor added the council had managed to fix the school, fix sports and put fibre into the industrial estate while he was in office.

They were also finishing fixing the playground and Sabateria's statement said the authority had spent some  $\in$  800,000 on improvements to school playing fields.

"I could have sailed through the next year and a half until the elections of June 2019, but you have an electoral platform to do a series of things. To say I have fulfilled all of them would be claiming a utopia," he said.

"I do not care about being mayor, the important thing is to do things and that the people enjoy what you have done."

Sabateria's political career began in 2011 when he became a councillor for San Isidro. He replaced former Mayor Fernando Morales after he left the post of mayor for personal reasons in 2013.

The town's council formally accepted Sabateria's resignation on Thursday at around 9am. He was replaced by Manuel Gil Gomez Cases at a session the following Saturday.

Ex-president on trial over fraud allegations

THE former President of Murcia has appeared in court in connection with alleged irregularities in contact tendering.

Pedro Antonio Sanchez arrived at the court in Lorca last Friday morning and reportedly left two hours later without making a statement to the press.

Sanchez was called before the court to answer for alleged irregularities in the awarding of a contract for works to bridges spanning the Nogalte ravine to the architect Martin Lejarraga.

Prosecutors claimed the projects were awarded without being put out for public tender by dividing the  $\in$  54,500 fee into five  $\in$  12,020 contracts so that they qualified as minor works.

The latest investigation is

ON TRIAL: Pedro Antonio Sanchez has been called to testify in court for the third time in a year.

the third in a year for the former president, who was brought before a judge on six charges in the so-called Auditorio and Punica cases. The courts are currently awaiting the opening of the trials for those two cases.

The Auditorio case sees Sanchez accused of fraud, perverting the course of justice, embezzlement and falsifying documents while overseeing the building of an auditorium in Puerto Lumbreras in 2011.

The project received a grant of  $\in 6$  million from regional authorities.

The Punica case concerns accusations against Sanchez for alleged fraud, bribery and the disclosure of confidential information said to have taken place in 2014.

The former president was a councillor serving in Murcia's government at the time and was preparing to run for regional elections.

Sanchez is accused of adding fees from companies working for his campaign to budgets for his work as a councillor.

He denies the charges claiming the contracts did not materialise. The trials continue.

UK inheritance tax to be simplified?

If you struggle to navigate the UK's Inheritance Tax (IHT) regime you are not alone. Whether you are setting up your estate planning or sorting out the estate of a departed family member, the system can be hard to follow. Getting your planning wrong may mean your family are faced with unexpected high inheritance tax bills.

Now Chancellor Philip Hammond has acknowledged that the rules are "particularly complex" and has asked for a review. While this will not necessarily mean lower tax bills, hopefully the system will be simplified.

UK IHT follows expatriates around the world, since it is based on domicile rather than residence. While long-term expatriates can adopt a 'domicile of choice' outside the UK, this takes time and is a complex area, so specialist advice and careful planning are essential. Assets situated in the UK are always liable to IHT.

Expatriates should continue to follow changes to the UK IHT rules, and understand how it interacts with Spanish succession and gift tax. Cross-border estate planning can be challenging, particularly if you have assets in different countries or complex family situations.

IHT is charged at 40% on your total worldwide estate in excess of the current threshold of £325,000 (potentially £650,000 for a couple). This nil-rate band has not increased since April 2009. A new Residential Nil Rate Band (RNRB) came into effect in April 2017: estates above the basic IHT threshold may be entitled to an 'additional threshold' before any IHT becomes due.

Starting at £100,000 for the 2017/18 tax year, it increases by £25,000 each year until reaching £175,000 in 2020/21 (and then rises with inflation).

It only applies to qualifying residential property which is left to direct descendants. Estates worth over  $\pounds 2$  million receive a smaller allowance or nothing at all, depending on the value.

While a higher threshold is of course welcome, this new 'family home allowance' has added extra complication. It has also been criticised for discriminating against those who do not have children or property.

In January Chancellor Philip Hammond wrote to the Treasury's Office of Tax Simplification:

"Inheritance tax, and the system within which it operates, is particularly complex and I would like to request that the OTS carry out a review. I would be most interested to hear any proposals you may have for simplification, to ensure that the system is fit for the purpose and makes the experience of those who interact with it as smooth as possible."

The letter suggests the OTS look at how the current gift rules interact with the wider IHT system and if the current system causes any distortions to taxpayers' decisions.

The OTS has since confirmed that it will carry out a review of a range of aspects of IHT and how it functions today. The overall aim is to identify opportunities and develop recommendations for simplifying IHT, from a tax technical and administrative standpoint.

IHT is a good earner for the government. Receipts for the 2016/17 tax year hit a record high of £4.84 billion - more than double 2009/10's revenue. HM Treasury expects to raise £5.3 billion in 2017/18 and £6.5 billion by 2022/23.

All this illustrates how important it is to take professional advice for your estate planning, if you want to make sure you are up to date on the rules, are navigating them correctly, and shielding your family from paying any more tax than necessary.

The tax rates, scope and reliefs may change. Any statements concerning taxation are based upon our understanding of current taxation laws and practices which are subject to change. Tax information has been summarised; an individual is advised to seek personalised advice.

Child strangled by curtain in tragic accident

A 10-YEAR-OLD boy has been asphyxiated while playing with a curtain in an accident at his home in southern Spain.

Emergency services tried unsuccessfully for almost two hours to resuscitate the child.

The tragic accident happened at Caravaca de la Cruz in Murcia when the boy was at home with his mother.

The child was playing with a curtain in the kitchen when the mother realised she couldn't hear him anymore.

She found the boy motionless and with a curtain around his neck.

Neighbours, who heard her calls for help, alerted the emergency services.

Psychologists from the Red Cross supported the relatives of the deceased child.

SOME LEGAL TIPS ABOUT THE SPANISH TAX SYSTEM

Who is supposed to lodge an income tax return in Spain?

If you are resident in Spain for 183 days or more, you are considered a Spanish Tax resident. As such, you are required to submit an annual Spanish resident tax return known as a 'Declaración de la Renta'.

Some people however have more complex personal situations and they spend their time between a few countries and / or have property or business interests in other countries. In these cases there are International Double Taxation Treaties stating where the person subject to the tax should declare their income for tax purposes.

When do I lodge my tax return in Spain?

This needs to be lodged between April and 31st June each year.

The tax year in Spain runs from January 1st – December 31st (for the year previous)

Are there any tax deductions for living in Spain?

Yes, some of the main deductions are:

- A personal tax-free allowance.
- Married couples allowance for joint declarations.
- Employment allowance.
- Child tax allowance.
- Deductions for private pension plans.
- Taxation regime for income from annuity pensions.

Can I pay the tax in stage payments?

Yes. The first payment (60%) will be taken on the 30th of June if you pay it by direct debit. The second payment (40%) will be taken on the 1st of November. If you would like to make the payment in more stage payments you will need to submit an application to the Tax Office.

Defendant to appeal false doctor status sentence

A MAN sentenced to two years in prison for allegedly trying to gain medical accreditation with falsified documents is set to appeal the criminal court in Elche's ruling.

The court heard that the defendant tried to obtain medicine qualifications from the Miguel Hernandez University in the city with an academic document from Tokyo Medical University.

The university at first granted accreditation for three modules in its medicine degree programme when the defendant presented the documentation in 2012. Prosecutors said concerns were raised when the man attempted to validate the remaining modules the following year.

The vice-dean of the university's medical department realised the names of the modules in the documentation from the Japanese university were the same as those at Miguel Hernandez.

The University said in a statement that it would be 'implausible' that the degrees were so similar in their curriculums. The medical department asked the defendant to authenticate and translate the documents and to provide his original degree certificate and transcript.

APPEAL: The defendant has been in court over trying to gain accreditation from the medical school.

Everything on the documents provided were false, including the university's stamp, the curriculum and the names of the subjects.

The defendant also had an average grade of 9.3, which would warrant an honours licence, making the documents more suspicious according to the court's ruling. The man later appealed the decision not to grant him the status with authorities. A subsequent police investigation found Tokyo Medical University had never issued him with the documents and that the defendant had not studied there. the court heard.

The case has now been sent to the Provincial Court of Alicante, based in Elche, which is set to hear the defendant's appeal. Prosecutors have requested his immediate entry into prison to serve his sentence if the court upholds the ruling.

FIVE people who allegedly posed as workers from utility companies in order to gain access to homes and steal from them have been arrested.

National Police based in Cartagena worked with officers in Alicante and in Madrid on the case. The group, with ages ranging from 27 to 54, are believed to have stolen from homes in Murcia, Valencia, Alicante, Castellon, Valladolid and Zamora.

Officers began investigating the group after receiving a complaint from a woman in Cartagena who alleged two people had come to her house claiming to be from her electricity supplier.

She alleged they stole around  $\in 13,400$ worth of jewellery from her home after she let them inside in October of last year.

Police made further inquiries based on the complaint and found similar incidents were alleged to have taken place elsewhere in Spain.

Members of the group all posed as workers for well-known energy companies. They obtained supporting documents, specific tools and uniforms from the firms they claimed to be from in order to convince homeowners they could be trusted.

The group would then select their victims through phone books who they would call to arrange a date and time for a visit for electrical inspections. They typically targeted the elderly, according to police.

Two members of the group would usually go to the homes, with one allegedly there to distract the victim while the other stole from their home. They would then sell the stolen goods to a gold trade-in store.

Police arrested the five members of the group, which included three men and two women, in the Alicante and Madrid areas following an investigation which lasted several months. They are believed to have committed around a dozen thefts.

Officers seized computer equipment, falsified documents, uniforms and the mobile phones they used to contact one another, according to reports. The case continues.

Airport roads ready for upgrade

THE Development Commission of Spain's Congress of Deputies has passed a measure calling on the government to improve road access to Alicante-Elche airport.

The non-binding proposal, which was passed with 28 votes and eight abstentions, was put forward by members of the conservative Partido Popular (PP) on the commission.

Joaquin Albaladejo, a PP deputy, said the airport would be connected by more than 80 routes by next winter if the proposal received government backing.

Rita Bosaho, a deputy for Alicante from the leftist Partido Unidos Podemos, criticised the government for what she said was Spain's fifth most important airport not having adequate road connections.

Good business

THE president of the Orihuela Chamber of Commerce, Mario Martinez, recently attended a meeting in Valencia with the Spanish Ambassador to the United States, Pedro Morenes, in order to help create new trade agreements that will benefit local exports.

Martinez said "it is important that we attend these meetings so our businesses are recognised and can take advantage of the contacts introduced in these kinds of get-togethers."

Therefore, he explained, the owners of the businesses will also learn about the commercial trade agreements that are developed overseas.

"Morenes has provided companies in the Valencia region with contacts to both the Embassy in Washington and the various commercial entities that Spain has in the United States, which serves to link our companies with American institutions, both on a national and state level," he said.

The meeting was attended by various other representatives of the Valencia Chambers of Commerce, as well as those from various businesses, who expressed their concern about several protectionist policies in the United States.

"We cannot forget that the United States is the most important economy in the world, and we must take advantage of the opportunities offered by its market, even if it is difficult to access," said the head of the Orihuela Chamber of Commerce.

Nursery deadline

REGISTRATION for one of the 300 places in seven public nurseries in Murcia has opened with a deadline set for May 11 for babies born between January 1, 2016 and May 11, 2018.

Port head

THE Port Authority of Cartagena's new president, Joaquin Segado Martinez, took office in a ceremony in the city on Monday and said he plans to make it more sustainable, modern and competitive.

Birth figures

THERE were 1,323 babies born in the Unified General Hospital of Elche in 2017, with 707 boys being delivered and 616 girls, and the total figure falling from 2016 by 26.

ROBBERS in Murcia City have recently been fitting small plastic sheets to the doors of houses that indicate the residents are out, according to police.

The sheets are small, see-through and are a few centimetres wide. Thieves reportedly attach them to house doors and return later to check if they are still there.

If they are still on the door then this means it has not been opened. Would-be robbers then know there is no one in and that they can break in to a home undetected, National Police said.

The news comes as police issued Murcia residents with advice on how to protect their houses from robberies during Holy Week and the spring festival season.

Police said homeowners should check their doors and windows are closed both in outside and inside courtyards, especially in properties on the ground or first floors.

Police have also recommended that homeowners leave washing on their clothes line or the radio on if they leave the house to make it look as though someone is inside. Serial numbers for electronics should be recorded to make them easier to trace if stolen. When out of the house, valuables should be kept in a safe place and out of sight and vehicles should not be parked in a poorly lit area, National Police added.

Escape Room riddle

THE Unit of Scientific Culture and Innovation of Murcia University has introduced a new initiative which hopes to promote interest in science through strange stories and enigmatic experiences.

Called 'Escape Room,' and in collaboration with Mystery Motel Murcia, the concept already has many followers around the world.

It began in 2006 when a group of computer scientists from Silicon Valley developed a computer game based on solving a case in a limited timeframe.

A new challenge will see people put into a real life escape room, and their way out will be by passing a series of tests whose solutions are science based.

Sessions will last 45 minutes and will be held throughout this year. "It is a physical and mental adventure in which a group of players must escape from a room by solving different riddles and puzzles," says the organiser, Jose Manuel Lopez Nicolas.

Is there a way to invest sensibly and securely in Spain? By Sam Kelly, Managing Partner, Chorus Financial.

I see more and more 'guaranteed return' investments offered here in Spain. I always ask myself 2 questions: 1) How are these returns achieved 'risk free' when interest rates are near zero? 2) Why do these companies not include information about how and where they are regulated and exactly who it is guaranteeing these returns, as would be the legal requirement in the UK?

These so called 'guaranteed' returns actually rely on complicated underlying investment scenarios, which often result in capital being tied up for many years, and investors making absolutely no growth on their original deposit. I'm not denying it can be difficult knowing where to turn to in Spain – out here the products we're used to can create major problems: ISAs are frozen and NOT tax free, UK Bonds offer no tax efficiency and, in many cases, can actually result in you paying substantially more tax as a Spanish resident. They also require complicated accountancy at the end of each tax year, as does simply holding stocks and shares.

My advice if you're looking for decent, steady returns, is to turn to global institutions you know and trust, rather than risking your money on promises that sound too good to be true. Two providers who have proved incredibly popular with my clients here in Spain are The Prudential & Old Mutual. These FTSE 100 companies have a combined 40 million clients worldwide and have set up solutions specifically for Expats in Spain.

They both offer plans designed for Spanish residents which I like to call our 'Spanish ISA' due to their tax efficiency and no requirement for any complex annual accountancy.

With The Prudential, you can invest in one of the World's oldest, largest and most diversified funds for steady annual returns. Old Mutual offer a perfect option for those with an existing portfolio they wish to move out of an inappropriate 'UK' bond or ISA, into a product designed for Spanish residents.

If you get the right, properly regulated advice, there really is no need to take aggressive financial risks to get good, long term returns here in Spain.

If you have any questions about these products or their suitability for you then please contact me today on 664 398 702 or email s.kelly@chorusfinancial.es to arrange a free consultation.

European leader in water treatment

AROUND 98 per cent of the Murcia region's purified wastewater is reused, according to the region's Water Ministry.

The figure is higher than that of Spain's at 15 per cent and the European average of 9 per cent. About 99.2 per cent of people living in the region's urban areas have access to wastewater treatment systems.

The ministry said in a statement marking World Water Day that the region's farmers now had access to the most innovative irrigation systems which were capable of controlling fertiliser levels.

"We are the first community to implement a system to avoid evaporation of water in irrigation ponds. We also capture rainwater and make it available to irrigators by collecting rafts of urban waters or runoff from the ravines," the statement said.

The 105 billion litres drawn from the treatment process supplies some 20,000 irrigators across 80,000 hectares of farmland, around half of all the water used to hydrate crops.

Murcia has some 93 wastewater treatment plants, more than 5,700 kilometres of collectors and 470 pumping stations, according to the ministry.

The levels of water reuse are reportedly due to the region's General Sanitation and Purification plan, which ran from 2001 to 2010. The scheme saw an investment into Murcia's water infrastructure of  $\in$  645 million, which came from government and European funds.

Murcia falls short of deficit target

MURCIA is among six regions who failed to meet their spending targets last year, according to data from Spain's Treasury Minister.

Murcia's budget deficit stood at around 1.5 per cent of GDP at the close of its accounts for 2017. It was joined by Aragon, with a deficit of 0.9 per cent, Castilla y Leon at 0.9, Castilla-La Mancha ,0.7, Estremadura, almost 0.9 and Valencia at more than 0.7.

Spain's other autonomous communities met the deficit target set for last year, which was 0.6 per cent of GDP.

Four regions, the Canary Islands, the Balearic Islands, Navarra and Pais Vasco achieved surpluses of more than 0.6 per cent, almost 0.5, 1.2 and 1.5 respectively.

Man hurt after car falls off road

A MAN was taken to hospital after being injured by his car coming off the road and landing upside down in a ravine near Lorca.

Firefighters and other emergency services personnel were called out after several calls were made to the 112 emergency services line at around 2.50pm on Monday.

They reported the car had come off the RM-711 motorway in the direction of Caravaca de la Cruz near the junction to Zarcilla de Totana.

Witnesses said one person was in the vehicle when it came off the road and that he was conscious but was trapped inside. The reasons for the car coming off the road are still unknown, according to reports.

OVERTURNED: Firefighters helped to get the trapped man out of his vehicle after the accident.

An ambulance arrived at the scene from La Paca and Guardia Civil officers were also dispatched. A nurse who had finished her shift reportedly treated the man at the scene before he was taken to Rafael Mendez de Lorca Hospital.

Valencia region suffers '€35 million in losses' due to weather

by Benjamin Park

THE region of Valencia has reportedly suffered significant production losses in fruit crops across thousands of hectares of farmland due to the recent poor weather conditions.

According to the State Agency of Meteorology, areas such as Alicante Province have suffered their coldest start to spring since 1949, leading to frosts affecting fruit crops in the region.

And according to the Valencian Farmers Association (AVA-ASAJA), the bad weather has reportedly led to an estimated affected area of 7,500 hectares of farmland leading to a likely loss of more than €35 million.

AVA-ASAJA President Cristóbal Aguado told local media: "The cold arrived at a particularly delicate time because after a relatively warm and dry winter many fruits were already in an advanced state of production.

"For many farmers, the season had already begun and this will have very negative repercussions for their work and towns which rely upon agriculture as their primary source of income."

AVA-ASAJA has reportedly also estimated that this year's persimmon harvest could be close to 10 per cent less than last year as a result of the poor weather.

Ryanair slams 'claim chasers'

A HIGH COURT judge in the UK has rejected a case against Irish low-cost airline Ryanair by a firm of solicitors over flight delay compensation claims.

Cheshire-based Bott & Co had sought to recover their fees in compensation cases where Ryanair had settled directly with their customers.

In court the firm said they handle around 25,000 compensation claims a year and the average payout is  $\in$  325 (£285) of which the legal firm takes one third.

But the company revealed that in 2016 Ryanair began to settle directly with passengers.

Bott & Co said it had tried to recoup their fees from the passenger, but 30 per cent did not pay so they sought to recover it from Ryanair.

Judge Edward Murray threw out their claim and ruled, "Ryanair has established a straightforward and easy to use process for its passengers to make their flight delay compensation claims, either online or by correspondence, without the assistance of a third party."

David Bott of Bott & Co said, "We are very disappointed in the judgment in our case against Ryanair as we believe it is wrong and we will be appealing the decision.

"For over five years we have worked tirelessly to bring airlines to account under Regulation EC261/2004 and in doing so, to improve the rights of millions of air passengers flying in or out of the UK each year.

"This latest judgment is of course a setback for the freedom of choice of passengers in getting help on their compensation claims in an area of law that is not without its complexity.

This will help prevent 'claims chaser' firms like Bott & Co, Fairplane, Hayward Baker, Sky Legal, Flightright, and Flight Heroes, deliberately and needlessly dragging consumers through the courts so they can grab more than 40 per cent of customers' compensation, for providing no useful service.

"As part of our 2018 'always getting better' customer plan, Ryanair has established a dedicated claims team to process these valid claims within 10 working days and to make it as straightforward as possible for our customers."

ASYLUM: Spain rejected around two thirds of all asylum requests in 2017.

Door swings shut

AROUND two thirds of all asylum applications submitted to Spanish authorities in 2017 were rejected, according a refugee NGO.

Last year was a record year in terms of the number of requests, with Spain receiving around 31,120 applications.

That is double last year's amount, according to the Spanish Commission of Refugee Aid (CEAR) and European Union data.

Requests for asylum made to the country made up around 4 per cent of the EU total. Applications made to Germany, Italy and France were higher at 222,560, 128,850 and 98,635, respectively.

Almost a third of all applications submitted to Spain came from Venezuelans, at 10,350. Requests from Syrian citizens stood at 4,225, followed by Columbians at 2,460, Ukrainians, 2,265, Palestinians and Algerians both at 1,165, Salvadorans, 1,120, Hondurans, 970, Cameroonians, 750 and Moroccans, 525.

J.

Requests from male applicants made up 58 per cent of the total, while those from women made up 48 per cent.

A total of 595 requests were resolved by granting the applicant refugee status, out of the 13,350 applications resolved.

Around 4,080 applicants were granted subsidiary protection status. That means they were not granted asylum but were allowed to stay in Spain due to the risk of them facing serious harm if they returned to their home country

The number of requests pending resolution, when the figures for 2017 are included, now stands at a total of 38.880.

NGO slams weapons aid

by Joe Gerrard

AMNESTY INTERNA-TIONAL has said that Spain, along with Britain, the US and others, could be contributing to atrocities in Yemen by supplying arms to Saudi Arabia.

The international human rights NGO made the claim as Saudi's involvement in the country's civil war enters its third year.

The country has been conducting air strikes against the Huthi armed group since March, 2015.

Amnesty International said the Saudi air force was using weapons manufactured by several countries. including Spain, in strikes on the group and on civilians.

Lynn Maalouf, from the NGO's Middle Fast division, said there was 'extensive' evidence that the sale of arms to the Saudi-led coalition was causing great harm to Yemeni civilians.

"This has not deterred the USA, the UK and other states, including France, Spain and Italy, from continuing transfers of billions of dollars' worth of such arms," she said.

"As well as devastating civilian lives, this makes a mockery of the global Arms Trade Treaty."

Among the cases cited by the group was that of a bombing raid on January 27 in a Rakab which left six civilians dead.

Amnesty International claimed the strike was conducted using a GBU-12 laser-guided 500-pound bomb, made by Lockheed Martin in the US.

Spain was the third largest arms exporter to Saudi Arabia after the UK and the US in 2017, according to Greenpeace.

Weapons sold to the Saudis included mortar shells, aircraft and various kinds of ammunition.

Between late 2016 and August, 2017 the country delivered more than 310 containers of explosives to Saudi Arabia, according to reports.

A 2015 report on the sale of Spanish arms stated that all weapons licences for Saudi Arabia were made with a strict clause prohibiting re-export or use outside home territory.

The Yemeni Civil War began after Houthi fighters seized control of Sana'a, the country's capital, following the controversial election of Abdrabbuh Mansur Hadi.

Hadi fled the capital and the conflict has since escalated, leading to the involvement of both Saudi Arabia and Iran.

The conflict has claimed the lives of more than 5.974 civilians and has wounded more than 9,493, according to the latest statistics from the UN's High Commissioner for Human Rights.

The body also said more than 20 million people, 80 per cent of the country's population, are in need of humanitarian aid.

Snapchat cockpit shock

AN easyJet captain and his co-pilot have been suspended after filming Snapchat videos during a flight to Spain.

The pair could be seen interacting with an owl and other animated characters generated by the app whilst in the cockpit and taking selfies.

The captain then posted the images on his social media accounts, which have since been deleted.

According to reports the footage was filmed on a Paris flight to Madrid.

easyJet has said passenger safety was not compromised at any point, but it had been contacted by passengers who branded their behaviour as 'dangerous' and 'irresponsible.'

A spokeswoman for the airline told news outlets:

"Whilst at no point was the safety of the passengers compromised, this falls well short of the high standards easyJet expects of its pilots.

"It is not acceptable and is not representative of the thousands of highly professional pilots who work for the airline.

"We take this issue seriously and, as such, the pilots have been suspended (in line with our procedures) pending a disciplinary investigation."

Fake

A 45-YEAR-OLD horse rider has died in Spain after falling from his mount and being swept away by the fast-flowing current.

The accident happened in the town of Paracuellos del Jarama, northeast from Madrid and very close to Madrid-Barajas Airport.

Witnesses quickly alerted the emergency services and two helicopters were drafted in to help in the search for the rider.

Firefighters in an inflatable boat also helped search the river.

The man's lifeless body was eventually found around one kilometre downstream from where he fell in.

The horse managed to get out of the water by itself and did not need attention.

Man dies following festival fight

A 27-YEAR-OLD man has died after a fight broke out at Spring Festival on the Costa del Sol

Police believe the man was not directly involved in the fight but took two punches and hit his head on the ground at the party attended by hundreds in Plaza de Martin Carpena in Manilva.

The Spanish man, a town resident, was pronounced dead at the scene by the emergency services.

His body has been transferred to the Institute of Legal Medicine in Malaga, where an autopsy will determine the exact cause of death.

This afternoon an emergency meeting of the town council was called and all forms of violence were denounced.

The council also offered their condolences to the Vargas Morera family and announced three days of mourning.

The mayor of Manilva, Mario Jimenez, also called for a demonstration on Monday to request more security in the municipality.

Happy Monday

THE 'Almoradi Monday Club' meet every first and third Monday of the month at 4pm.

The meeting place is in the 'Centro Social Rooms,' Plaza San Andres, Calle Antimo Illescas, off Calle Comunidad Valenciana, in Almoradi.

The idea of this modern and progressive club is that people who speak English and live in Almoradi or the surrounding area can meet one another on a regular but informal basis to talk together and enjoy life in this Spanish community.

The club activities will include social events, club lunches and evening meals in and around the local area, with guest speakers at meetings and entertainment when possible.

They will also try to join up with other local clubs that hold events including coach trips and anything that may be of interest to members.

If you are interested and would like to have a wider circle of friends then come along to one of the meetings.

For more information contact: davedanie@gmail.com or on Facebook under Almoradi Monday Club.

There are no meetings in July and August and no meetings on bank holidays if they fall on a Monday.

Exercise and meet people!

A NEW English Country Dancing Class is opening soon at 'EveryBody's Dance, Fitness, Hair and Beauty Centre' at Campoamor.

Organiser, Pip Shail, said the idea is to have a drop-in class where people can exercise, have fun and meet people.

"The dances are very easy and there are no steps to learn as I give instructions all the way through, all you need is a pair of comfortable, soft-soled shoes to dance in."

Live music for the dances will be provided by Pip's husband, Mike, who plays the melodeon, and other friends. In between dances, refreshments are available such as tea, coffee, soft drinks, cake and snacks at reception.

The charge is € 2 per session and the first class will be from 3pm - 4.30pm on Thursday April 12.

For more details of this class contact Pip on 633 084 406 or Jean on 634 375 072 or e-mail mikeshail45@google mail.com.

Handshake boosts budget

SPANISH Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy could finally get his 2018 budget passed.

Negotiations have been frozen for weeks with opposition groups unwilling to sign off the conservative minority government's proposals.

But Albert Rivera, leader of centreleft Cuidadanos - Spain's fourth-largest political party - has revealed that he has reached an agreement to support the budget after Rajoy 'yielded' to some of his demands.

These include an increase of 2 per cent on minimum state pensions, a

"The government knows how to count seats and without our support this [budget] could not happen," Rivera told Spanish media.

Rajoy must now appeal to other parties to get the budget approved, since he remains seven seats short of a majority vote despite Cuidadanos' support.

He is expected to appeal to Basque nationalist party PNV, but its leaders have repeatedly said they will not negotiate the budget while the controversial Article 155, invoked by Rajoy to impose direct rule over Cataluña last October, remains active.

A PNV official said: "The latest events in Cataluña and Spain have left us very concerned, and talking about budgets seems a little frivolous... let them find support from other groups."

The businessman is lined up to assume presidency of ACS when Perez eventually steps aside, with the latter's pension fund currently amounting to a jaw-dropping €41 million, according to reports in Spanish media.

Dram good performance BOTTOMS UP AS WHISKY SALES SKYROCKET

SPANIARDS' favourite tipple is whisky, a report says.

According to the latest data from the Spanish Federation of Spirit Drinks (FEBE), 214 million litres of spirits were sold across the country in 2016.

The boozy blowout produced revenues of  $almost \in 7.6$  billion  $- \in 1$  billion more than UK drinkers spent over the same period - and provided 330,000 jobs while swelling the public treasury's coffers with  $\in 1.3$  billion obtained via indirect taxes.

And consumers chose whisky as their go-to imbibe, as year-on-year sales grew by almost 2 per cent for a 27 per cent market share.

Trendy rival gin was the second-most popular spirit, accounting for 22 per cent of the market as sales increased by 9.9 per cent.

But rum sales dropped by 2.3 per cent, leaving the Caribbean classic a distant third in the market with a 16 per cent share.

Less popular still were liqueurs (13 per cent), brandy (9), anisette (7), vodka (5) and tequila (1).

A FEBE official confirmed that figures for 2017 are currently being analysed but are not expected to differ wildly from 2016, meaning 'whisky will be the most-consumed beverage, followed by gin and rum.'

Scotch whiskies topped the national brand ranking, accounting for 73 per cent of sales, with Johnnie Walker, Ballantine's, J&B, Chivas, Grant's and William Lawson's among the most popular.

The gin market was more evenly-spread, with 47 per cent of boozers opting for Spanish brands and 53 per cent preferring international products, with Malaga's Larios 12 the best-selling overall.

Rum sales were dominated by dark varieties, which accounted for GIN AND BEAR IT: Spain's thirst for whisky shows no sign of being quenched with gin a distant second. 86 per cent of the market, while the most popular brands included Bacardi and Havana Club from Cuba, plus Barcelo and Brugal from the Dominican Republic.

But Vicente Montecinos, director of market research group NPD, believes that vodka will be the next big thing in Spain.

"Vodka is a growing market," he told Spanish media. "Spirits move slowly with fashions and trendy brands including Smirnoff, Absolut, Grey Goose and Zubrowka are becoming more popular. "The Spanish vodka Basmmon, made from potatoes, has won international awards and is another that is on the rise."

Gross domestic product record as Aragon tops regional charts

THE Spanish economy continues to grow.

And new data from the National Statistics Institute has revealed that gross domestic product (GDP) last year rose most in Aragon among the country's autonomous communities.

The northern region saw its GDP increase by 3.6 per cent in 2017, with Asturias (3.5 per cent) and Madrid (3.4 per cent) completing the top three.

These figures eclipse the European average of 2.4 per cent, with only Castilla y Leon (1.9 per cent), and La Rioja (1.8), plus the African enclaves of Ceuta and Melilla falling to beat the benchmark.

GDP per capita smashed records in 2017 with Madrid ( $\in$  33,809) topping the rankings, followed by the Basque Country ( $\in$  33,088) and Navarra ( $\in$  30,809).

EQUITY FUNDS 'ARE LIKE MIGRATING BIRDS' €10bn deal world's biggest

IT was the biggest real estate deal of 2017.

The €10 billion agreement which saw American asset management firm Blackstone snap up the property portfolio owned by failed Spanish bank Banco Popular leads the worldwide ranking for sales involving a single asset or portfolio.

It came after rival banking group Santander acquired Banco Popular for a token  $\in 1$  last June, and involved forming a company of which Blackstone bought a controlling 51 per cent stake.

The remaining 49 per cent remains with Santander as part of its Banco popular rescue package.

It leaves Blackstone, which also picked up the housing portfolio of Catalunya Caixa - now part of BBVA - among others, as one of the largest real estate owners in Spain.

And the huge deal was followed a few months later by American private equity firm Cerberus Capital Management successfully bidding €5.5 billion for 80 per cent of BBVA's property portfolio.

"It is striking how some of the opportunistic private equity funds move in flocks like migratory birds," says Borja Sierra, international executive vice-president of real estate consultancy firm Savills Aguirre Newman.

"One minute they are calm in a pond in Africa and then they start flying and travel 4,500 kilometres to an island in the middle of the ocean to breed.

"This happened in Spain from 2009.

"One of the birds usually starts the flight and takes the lead, marking the direction of travel, and in this case it is Blackstone.

"They have consistently been pioneers and trend markers for their competitors, and as big investors they don't get involved in small operations."

Compiled by New York-based real estate number-crunchers Real Capital Analytics, the list shows that five of the 10 most expensive deals not involving a company takeover last year took place in China, with two in the UK.

The latter pair of sales included the  $\in$  5.1 billion acquisition of shares in a portfolio of hospitals and nursing homes by Chinese insurer Taikang, and a  $\in$  2.1 billion stake in the Bluewater shopping centre in Kent purchased by Royal London Mutual Insurance Society.

€500m energy deal confirmed

AMERICAN multinational banking giant JP Morgan has become Spain's biggest investor in solar energy.

The financial services firm has revealed it is to snap up a  $\in$  500 million controlling stake in a 660 megawatt solar project in southern Spain and Portugal via its investment vehicle Sonnedix.

The scheme includes a number of plants in Andalucia, Extremadura and Murcia, which will generate 495 megawatts, with the remaining 165 megawatts produced by Portuguese facilities.

Together, the project will generate enough electrical energy to power 400,000 homes per year, with Barcelona-based supplier Audax signing a 20-year deal in what is reckoned to be the biggest long-term solar power contract ever agreed in Spain.

Spain remains on debt row TARGET BEATEN BUT DEFICIT STILL EXCESSIVE

SPANISH Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy has revealed that the country met its European Union (EU) debt target for the first time last year.

The leader tweeted: 'Spain achieves: we have in 2017 reduced the public deficit to 3.07 per cent (4.3 per cent in 2016). A fundamental fact to continue growing, create employment and guarantee our public services." It is the smallest difference between public spending and revenue that Spain has registered since the financial crisis broke out a decade ago, and just beats the 2017 target of 3.1 per cent set by the EU.

The final figure of 3.07 per cent is equivalent to an overspend of  $\leq$  35.7 million, a Treasury official confirmed.

It sees Spain continue to claw its way out of a financial black hole triggered by the international banking crisis of 2008, which was later deepened after the country's housing bubble burst in 2009.

The twin collapse saw public debt soar to 11 per cent of gross domestic product (GDP) after it climbed by more than  $\in 100$  million in the space of a year.

But the economy has recently spluttered into life, growing by around 3 per cent per year since 2015 and slowly reducing debt in the wake of sweeping cuts and tax increases which in 2012 totalled  $\leq 65$  billion of austerity measures.

The government has been working to a model designed by Finance Minister Cristobal Montoro which has been dubbed the 'Montoro adjustment,' whereby a small increase in public spending is permitted provided the total is lower than the nominal growth in GDP (with inflation).

Spain will however remain in the EU's Excessive Debt Procedure (EDP), a corrective process for countries with a public deficit of more than 3 per cent, for at least another year.

MAN WITH A PLAN: Brussels believes that Mariano Rajoy could have reduced deficit further but chose not to do so.

EU officials reportedly believe that Rajoy's government has intentionally maintained the EDP because if Spain was to reduce debt below 3 per cent new limits would be imposed, including a  $\in$ 7 billion 'structural adjustment' that would force Madrid into further cuts or tax hikes. The 2018 deficit target for Spain is 2.3 per cent, but there is a widespread consensus in Brussels that the country will again fail to meet it and will instead try to remain at least a 10th above 3 per cent in order to avoid the new adjustment, with regional and local elections due in 2019.

INHERITANCE TAX SHAKE-UP ANNOUNCED Non-EU loophole slams shut

SPAIN'S highest court has ruled the Spanish practice that charges non-residents of Spain a higher rate of inheritance tax to be discriminatory and therefore unlawful.

According to reports, this has now left the window open for those who have paid the higher rate to file claims for refunds.

In a landmark case, the Spanish Supreme Court has ruled that the practice is no longer acceptable even if the non residents of Spain live in a third country that isn't part of the European Union.

As a result, non-European Economic Area (EEA) citizens that have paid Spanish inheritance tax in the last four years are expected to now be able to apply for a refund.

According to Madrid-based tax partner of Cuatrecasas law firm, Antonio Barba, said the judgement will have a 'huge impact on Spain's current inheritance and gift tax rules by not only forcing Spanish authorities to amend the current legislation but "opens the door for taxpayers to claim refunds of all taxes paid under the discriminative rules in the past four years, the standard term of the statute of limitations for taxes."

He told International Investment: "We estimate several hundred non-EU taxpayers to be entitled to apply for a refund of inheritance taxes paid [by them] to Spain during the last four years. "Just think that many

"Just think that many provinces of Spain, [such as] Baleares and Andalucia, where foreign investments in real estate are huge.

"Most of the investors are EU residents - who are not affected by this last judgement, as the law was amended to give them tax breaks two years ago. But there are still quite a few investments from the US, Latin America, China, etc."

Blue passport fury as British firm snubbed

UK HOME SECRETARY Amber Rudd signed off a € 560 million blue passport deal without knowing who had won the contract, it has been claimed.

The controversial deal will see post-Brexit British passports produced by Gemalto, a European company listed on the Dutch and French stock exchanges.

And according to the Home Office, the process was a blind tender, meaning ministers had no clue which firm submitted each bid.

UK-based De La Rue and French company Oberthur also competed for the contract, with the final result sparking a major backlash, with critics calling the decision a 'humiliating symbol' of the post-Brexit UK.

But the Home Office said the deal will save taxpayers €137 million over five years.

Social security fraud savaged

THE Spanish labour inspectorate has slammed a 'huge' social security fraud.

It comes after the Social Security department revealed that an estimated 300,000 'false' self-employed people in Spain receive more than 75 per cent of their income from a single client.

An official from the labour inspectorate told the Congress that the majority are forced to register as self-employed 'so that the company that pays them does not have to pay social security.'

But the practice may now be living on borrowed time after Fermin Yebenes Salices, president of the Labour Inspectors' Union, appeared before a government subcommittee to discuss reforms to self-employed labour laws in order to crack down on the problem.

I really do lose the will to live

GREAT contender for our, 'You thought you'd heard it all' trophy this week.

British police will now no longer attend any shoplifting episodes unless the 'haul' exceeds £200! Apparently, this new policy, which effectively decriminalises shoplifting, has been quietly introduced by ministers over the last few months. Well, we're all in the wrong game, aren't we?

Personally, I see this as a great way to becoming an entrepreneur. We can become wholesale goods suppliers. All we need is a few trucks going around to various collection points and a staff of average 'tea leaves.' We then send them out to various stores, equipped with shopping bags and a calculator. When they have nicked £199 worth of goods, they simply leave the store and drop the stuff off at the pre-determined pick up points. Job done.

Actually, the opportunities are limitless. We could supply our own shops. We'll call them

GRENFELL TOWER: More questions are now being asked about the tragedy.

SHOPLIFTING: 'Effectively decriminalised.'

'Lifted.' I can see us on every street corner. Pound and charity shops will become a thing of the past. One day we could even be quoted on the stock exchange. Ok Leapy, simmer down. Got a bit carried away there. Also, not quite sure how we could prevent stores from nicking their stuff back! You really couldn't make it up though could you? Oh, and by the way. Don't rely on shop security staff to do the plod job. They can be prosecuted for laying a hand on you! Sometimes I really do find myself losing the will to live.

I see yet another toe rag fraudster has been convicted of pretending to be a Grenfell tower victim. This latest individual hailed from Zimbabwe and lived miles from the tower, yet still managed to con social workers into handing over £19,000 before being 'sussed.' With this in mind I decided to ask Google (yes, I do research occasionally!) just how many false claims had actually been made by these despicable fraudsters, who are already presumably enjoying the fruits of the UK's utterly misguided luvvie approach to our immigrant population.

What popped up to my request for more info was indeed something of a revelation. The Metropolitan Police Service have published a form under the freedom of information act. Far too lengthy to put in this blurb, it contains some 20 or so questions that have been put to the MPS since the tragedy. Talk about a waffle.

'Not in the interest' seems to be a phrase that crops up a great deal. I suggest those who are interested take a look. Enter 'Information about the fatalities during the Grenfell fire tragedy' and up it all comes in pdf format. Some weeks ago, I also took quite a lot of disdainful stick when I revealed information given to a friend of mine from one of the firemen who was actually on the scene. This brave firefighter told my associate he had seen at least 40 bodies in one flat alone.

I see rather more official questions are now being asked about this previous 'Leapy Rant' revelation. Remember you read it here first folks. Have a great week. Enjoy the onset of spring. And whatever ya do.

Give us a break

Don't cry for me Argentina if something breaks, says Terence Kennedy

THERE'S rejoicing aplenty in our household when a device breaks. It means we can buy a new one without a guilty conscience.

Filling your country mansion with gadgets by the thousand is all well and good if you're a moneyed technophile like Stephen Fry though to be fair to the great man, manufacturers probably throw scads of free stuff at him in the hope he'll promote it to his 13 million Twitter followers.

As a lesser mortal I grew up with the constricting ethic that you only buy what you will actually use, and vou don't replace it until it breaks. And I've never got over it.

In fact until repairing stuff started becoming something of a dead art a decade or two ago, I would even give up precious free time in hand-to-hand combat with a dodgy toaster, menacing an innocent amplifier with a deadly soldering iron or perhaps the most futile exercise of all, using a couple of euros' worth of glue to do a reverse Humpty Dumpty on a vase

YOU might be tempted to think that when it comes to our holidays, we are creatures of habit, and you would be right!

However, there's an undeniable trend that tour operators and travel companies have cottoned onto. Gone are the days where all we needed was sun, sea and a beach to lie on.

Enter a new generation of travellers demanding ecotourism, archeological explorations, rain forest trails, and every variation of walking tours you can possibly imagine.

It's a funny thing, but the less we have to walk, the more we want to. Typically we live longer, fuller, fitter lives and people taking walking holidays tend to be higher income explorers, or empty nesters enjoying their hard earned freedom and leisure time.

There's no better way to immerse vourself in local culture, history and spectacular scenery than getting up close and personal and walking through your chosen location.

DIY: 'Do you feel lucky, punk?'

costing just half that in the local second-hand emporium.

Now when stuff dies we buy new stuff. Lots of new stuff. We've all got drawers full of dead phones, and even the poor in Africa would sneer at my old Nokia 1100.

It's becoming increasingly difficult to even open up our technology, though the web has any number of people doing 'teardowns' of the latest devices - even on a thousand euros' worth of new iPhone, the spoiled brats.

Fortunately there is still some stuff you can build yourself if you are so waywardly minded.

When my computer died at the ripe old age of 10, I felt like a child with a new Meccano set (rather dubiously renamed Erector sets in the USA, where they don't do double entendres).

I got to work happily assembling my own Dagwood-sandwich-type computer from a case, a power supply, a motherboard, RAM chips, a hard drive, a gaggle of YouTube videos and more bad language than the average sailor.

For the most part though, we just buy.

It's an ethic hard to knock when a friend recently spent more to fix an ageing laptop than it would have cost him to buy another one on eBay, or a new one for  $\in$  50 extra.

Oops, I just 'accidentally' dropped that irritating bedside clock I've hated with a passion every morning for years. Hooray I can finally buy a new one. As Groucho Marx said, if you don't like my principles, I have others.

Make do and mend

THE 'Maker Movement' is a worthy one but they're fighting a losing battle.

Look them up on the internet and perhaps there's one near you, kindly souls with technical expertise, meeting locally over a weekend to repair all sorts of dead technology brought in by members of the public.

'Makers' even produce their own cookbooks of repair recipes.

Some are printed but they are mainly found online, if you're brave enough to tackle technology designed to resist even the most determined siege.

It certainly is morally satisfying to breathe new life into an old toaster, or to get that old Apple Newton back up and running again - even if only to find that Steve Jobs took its proprietary software with him to the grave.

I'm now a convert to BA

Views of a Grumpy Old Man

SO just when I thought Ryanair was getting their act together they mess up again. I was booked on a flight to the UK on Thursday. My hire car was booked and my hotel was booked and at 1am on Wednesday I got an email from Ryanair telling me my flight's been cancelled because the French air traffic controllers are going on strike.

Let's just digress on to that for a moment. Why do the ATC think that by punishing the public anybody is going to have the slightest sympathy for their cause? Anyway, I'm now left with the job of finding a new flight to the UK. All the flights to Stansted were full and every other airport was too expensive or I couldn't get a direct flight. Ryanair's choice was to cancel and get a refund or to book a new date which is no good to me because I was only going 'til Sunday.

I finally, at 2.30am, found a BA flight to a different airport to where my hire car was being collected. So I now have to contact them to try and get a car there and then return it to Stansted. I'm informed by them that to do that it's going to cost me double the price I've already pre-paid. Why? Because when you prepay you can't change anything. You have to start again even when changing the pick-up time. I finally told them I'd get car from the original destination and they agreed to change the pick-up time. All I had to do now was get from one airport to the other and my mate agreed to get me.

I got to the airport expecting to see lines of people because of all the cancelled flights. Guess what - the only company that had cancelled flights to the UK was Ryanair! There were some cancelled by airlines going to France but to the UK none.

This got me wondering why. So I asked the two pilots that were waiting to get on my flight. Well actually, I suppose technically, I was waiting to get on their flight and they told me it's easier and cheaper for Ryanair to just cancel the flights than get involved with the admin and overtime payments to staff. They really don't do themselves any favours. So I am now a convert to BA flights to London City Airport which, by the way, actually came with a meal included too. Maybe my mate at Talk Radio Europe, Bill Padley, can ask his ABTA contact why Ryanair always do the thing that manages to pee their customers off the most.

LEGALLY SPEAKING Checking your details at the roadside

WE answer some common driving questions, kindly provided by members of the Guardia Civil based in Torrevieja, Costa Blanca, who set up the N332 website and Facebook page to help break down barriers.

AS they go about their duties patrolling the roads of Spain, the Guardia Civil traffic police have a whole range of tools in their arsenal to both help those in need, and of course deal with those drivers who break the law.

One piece of kit carried by all of the officers, often stored in the panniers of their motorbikes, or inside their patrol cars, is their Personal Digital Assistant, or PDA.

The device is linked via Bluetooth to a thermal printer, and so able to issue fines on the spot, and pools its data with the central office of the DGT traffic department.

The PDA can be used to check driver and vehicle details, such as if you are actually qualified to drive, if you've been banned, if you own the vehicle you are driving, and details about that vehicle and its insurance.

The whole process of checking the information is almost instantaneous, but it can take a lot longer if the information provided by the driver is either inaccurate, or unknown.

One particular problem facing foreign drivers is when they are not registered as residents in Spain, or have not transferred their licence to a Spanish one.

For those who have, you are likely to be sent on your way a lot quicker than those with no registered details, as a single check of a driver's NIE number links all of the relevant driver and vehicle details together, so the officers can almost instantly find the information they are looking to confirm.

However, when the information is not linked, such as for drivers who haven't swapped to a Spanish licence, then the process takes a lot longer to complete, and your journey is likely to be increasingly delayed as a result.

Converting your UK licence to a Spanish version is a relatively easy process. It can be done at your local DGT traffic office, or you can hire one of the many specialist advisors who will complete the administrative process on your behalf, and a simple medical and computerised reaction test is all that is keeping you from joining the many residents who have already converted and enjoy an easier life on the roads.

There is more information on the process available at our website, n332.es, as well as links to find your local traffic office and the information required to complete the process.

Enjoy a new pool in three days

POLYESTER swimming pools have many advantages in relation to traditional pools such as the material quality, the easy maintenance and durability. In addition, there is another advantage to have in mind - its quick and easy installation.

A professional, qualified team guarantees to install a pool in three days (depending on the model and soil conditions).

The process includes three steps:

1 - Preparation of the ground. It is necessary to make a previous analysis of the surroundings to ensure a proper installation. Afterwards, the process of excavation, levelling and construction of the pool floor will start.

2 - Placing - The pool will be placed on site by a crane. After finishing the attachments and tensors needed, the installation of the hydraulic system is made and it is checked for water leaks.

Once all the verifications of attachments and levels are finished, the perimeter of the pool is filled by pouring in the special filling material at the same time water is adding to the pool.

FREEDOM POOLS: As easy as one, two, three.

3 - Assembly and installation -Once the pool is placed and fixed, the next step is to install the purifying equipment, water pipes networks and the corresponding electric system.

Nowadays, it is not surprising that there is an increasing trend towards the use of polyester pools. Moreover, brands like Freedom Pools offer a lot of designs, shapes and colours, so choosing a model can easily become a problem due to the great variety. Freedom Pools is an Australian brand specialising in the design and manufacture of prestigious polyester pools and spas which are installed around the world.

For the last 40 years, Freedom Pools has been the leader in the fibreglass pools industry, due to the constant innovation of its manufacturing procedures.

Freedom Pools has also developed Eco Pure™, an antimicrobial system that helps prevent algae growth. Eco Pure can reduce up to 99 per cent of common bacteria, meaning pool owners can limit the number of additional chemicals and additives needed to keep their pools clean and healthy.

Eco Pure<sup>TM</sup> is UV, chlorine and fade resistant giving longevity to the health of your pool.

Freedom Pools manufacture its pools under the Australian standards, which ensures complete reliability for the structure of the pool. Only Freedom Pools offers a structural guarantee of 35 years.

Importance of good hearing for good well-being

PEOPLE can help themselves maintain their memory, reasoning skills and ability to focus by engaging in such brain-stimulating activities as learning a new language, volunteering in the community, taking a class or choosing a new hobby.

When you are over 65 it is recommended that you do 150 minutes per week of moderate aerobic activity. Cycling or walking are good examples. Bowling is very popular in Spain. You need to be able to hear your colleagues / teammates at the other end of the green which can be up to 40 metres away. You don't want to have to rely on hand signals.

Regular exercise can reduce the risk of chronic illnesses such as heart disease, type 2 diabetes and stroke. It can also boost your mood and keep your weight under control.

When you are out exercising you must be aware of your surrounding and being able to hear correctly is essential. Safety is essential. I HOPE that springtime has sprung wherever you are reading this. I'm writing this week's piece in the beautiful Boulevar Cafe in Estepona, with a view of the Mediterranean, silently praying that Jane McDonald doesn't go by on a cruise somewhere or that her army of loyal fans don't descend on my café con leche - I check with the owner, seems I'm fine, Jane is sailing around Cuba apparently - catch up with Jane on 5 SELECT, Monday if Jane, cruising and a bit of singing are your thing.

No cruise ships on BBC2 on Saturday evenings as Giles Coren and Monica Galetti guide us around some Amazing Hotels: Life Beyond the Lobby. Last week Giles and Monica were in Ireland, roaming around Ashford Castle. We learned that the castle, which is beautiful, was built over 800 years ago by the De Burgo family and more recently was home to the Guinness family.

What I like about this programme is that it does what it says on the tin. Yes, we get to see wonderful hotels, but also get a glimpse of what is going on beyond the showpiece guest experience - Giles hoovering the walls and Monica doing something with falcons.

DOES WHAT IT SAYS ON THE TIN: Monica Galeti and Giles Coren in Amazing Hotels: Life Beyond the Lobby.

If the chap cleaning and the lady covering the birds of prey segment doesn't prove Auntie is committed to gender equality, I don't know what would... Next time the Amazing Hotel is a former grain silo in Cape Town; Giles and Monica are tasked with cleaning the windows during the worst drought to hit the Cape for 100 years. It is a shame we can't send over some of the rain that's been falling across Spain over the last few weeks.

If you caught Picasso's Last Stand on BBC2 last week you netted a gem. The show used his final years in the 1960's as a hook for Sir John Richardson (Picasso's biographer) to try to persuade us that Picasso produced some of his best work in his final years. I don't need to be persuaded. Sir John elegantly made the case, through memories of Picasso's family and friends, that although his final pieces weren't universally welcomed at the time and are some of his most explicit work, his creative genius shone through. For a short while, you can make your own mind up via BBC iPlayer.

Amazing hotels, singing and a touch of class

What did you make of The Real Full Monty: Live ITV on Wednesday night? I thought Alexander Armstrong and Ashley Banjo did a great job in pulling everything together whilst supporting the male celebrities to take everything off in front of a live audience in Sheffield. The stripping celebrities wanted to raise awareness of testicular and prostate cancer and I take my hat off to them all.

The personal stories were moving and made the show so much more than some of the preshow headlines suggested. This wasn't just someone who used to be in EastEnders and a rugby hunk getting their kit off, this was a prime time push to save lives.

A group of lady celebrities, supported again by Ashley, take a turn to do the same as the men and to raise breast cancer awareness tonight (Thursday) on ITV. Look out for Ruth Madoc in a Calendar Girls pose and Coleen Nolan showing the other ladies how it's done.

I applaud everyone involved. Happy Viewing.

Summer is coming and so are motor homes

WE are writing to express our concern regarding the increase in motor homes/caravans invading this beautiful area of coastline.

Visiting cars to Playa Carolina beach (totally monopolised by mobile homes) found difficulty in parking. This serves as a car park and not a caravan park!

Not content with parking on vast areas of local coastline it is now noted they are also using various spaces in town areas including the Health Centre.

Please advise on local authority policy regarding this increasing menace? With thanks.

David and Sally, Aguilas

Editor's note

It would appear that the answer lies in the hands of local authorities and police. If these motor homes are parked illegally they can be moved on, although in some towns they are allowed to stay for 48 hours.

Pets or pests?

FRONT page news? Pet shame fury?

HAVE YOUR SAY

Mobile phones or cloaking devices?

DRIVERS may have noticed that pedestrians leap out in front of you, whilst using their trusty mobiles as some sort of defence and not having even seen your car coming, are not alarmed when we have to make an emergency stop in order to avoid hitting them.

The worst offenders are in the town, since there are plenty of zebra crossings for them to practise their art and anywhere near the crossing will do!

Hybrid cars are great for drivers, but I reckon that in electric (silent) mode these will be a real hazard to the 'mobiles' who may only rely on their hearing to identify a road user.

We no longer have to remembermy mobile phone? I know I willanything any more cos with ourring my mobile from my fibre optictrusty Smartphone, just click onlandline and hope I did not leave itGoogle and voila, there it is! Ah wein silent mode - Telefonica is usefulknew that was what we had forgot-after all!

Comments from EWN online

Pilots suspended over midflight videos

Their crime was getting caught. I'm sure many of the pilots on the short haul flights mess around to relive the boredom during the two-hour flights. Engage auto-pilot, disengage brain.

Ron Curtis

Shel Louise

I'm almost sure the plane landed safe and well so what's the problem.

Almost everything mid flight is automated.

Felicia Ang

Brit fine for spitting on cabin crew

Hopefully BA will ban her for life too.

lean Grav

Should have had at least a five-year ban from flying. Gill Reynolds

Good! I cannot stand anyone spitting, absolutely disgusting.

Janet Lawrenson

Anti-tourism groups threaten summer protests

The problem here is that tourism is booming and it is making life hard for the average Mallorquines. The cost of renting a home is now almost the same as their monthly wage. Prices are soaring. The island is very rich because of tourism, but it's not being passed on to the working people.

Barbara Jago

There are two sides to every story. Having lived in Mallorca I can understand both views. Although tourism is needed there are different types.

I am sure you will agree with the locals when they say they are fed up witnessing hundreds of drunken youths chanting and screaming, etc etc in the streets, all night and every night of the week in some holiday areas. They want them to enjoy their island but not at the detriment of all else.

Since moving to the coast I've never encountered such hysteria about unwanted animals. It's an industry here, over a hundred charities, thousands of soppy people wasting millions of euros, when an inexpensive injection would solve the problem.

Then people could turn their attention to the desperate plight of the millions of hungry, brutalised humans right across our planet.

The number of stray dogs in the world is nearly half a billion, and five million of these live in Spain. That's just dogs. For goodness sake let's put them down. We really need to take a serious look at our priorities.

Edmund Taylor, Fuengirola

Big cats

COULD you not run a piece asking all readers to report the location of any circus they know of (Issue 1707)?

That way every single one could be checked and hopefully have their animals removed after local protests.

"It comes after months of negotiations between officials from the circus, local authorities and animal rights groups, with lawyer Raquel Lopez from the DeAnimals law firm acting as mediator."

If the above is true and those animals were in such awful conditions how does this square with animal rights legislation? Is the law here so toothless?

There should not have been negotiations, the animals should have been removed, the circus owners jailed pending trial, with prison time, large fines and life bans at the end of it.

I have lived here 40 years and it shocks me that my adopted country still has such a long way to go.

John Little, Alicante

Spitting mad

BACK in the 40's and 50's, spitting was considered to be a health hazard, regrettably, in recent years it has become commonplace in a sporting context and most noticeably amongst the footballing fraternity.

The revelation Jamie Carragher spat at a critic has caused outrage but isn't it time for this disgusting and unhealthy habit to be condemned and stopped?

It sets such a terrible example to children as they tend to mimic their heroes! Ken, San Fulgencio

Men choose tote bags for the style

Nick Horne The Rich Pick

Freelance correspondent, London, England

OVER the years I have destroyed more briefcases than I care to remember, much less admit to, mainly by stuffing them full of paper, newspapers and magazines as well as other random objects.

Of course some only use their briefcases to carry their lunch or more recently their lunch plus their laptops and sundry charging devices. The briefcase has been the staple accessory of the European male of a certain sort for decades. While the hat vanished, the briefcase strode on.

So why have men adopted the tote bag? It is at root only a simple strong large square bag with robust handles.

Yet a global trend has emerged and been seized upon by traditional all male brands like Dunhill London with their Duke tote costing  $\in$  3,317, or James Purdey an Son - famed for their guns - with 'The Keeper' tote in two versions, heavy at €1,295 and lightweight at €1,025. Suitable for the campo or elite shopping streets of Milan, Marbella or Madrid.

But French and Italian houses have not allowed the grass to grow under their feet. Berluti's elegant 'Silhouette Leather Tote' at €2,681, Ermenegildo Zegna Couture with their 'Pelle Tessuta Brown Tote,' a snip at €2,796. And Connolly England have created their casual Nubuck version which can be yours for just €1,146.

Not to ignore the more traditional manufactures who have found a sudden extension into high end men's fashion. One such is Ichizawa Shinzaburo Hanpu of Kyoto, Japan, now celebrating 110 years of manufacturing canvas bags with unobstructed interiors and robust handles serving the task intended when first designed to carry heavy blocks of ice from the ice house to home.

The brand has suddenly found a global demand from men looking for a practical and stylish alternative to the briefcase. As Ichizawa will only deliver mail order within Japan itself, you could visit their shop or they now have a stockist in London, Trunk Clothiers of Marylebone, who will deliver to

The question that is no doubt uppermost in your mind though is where did I get my current tote? The perhaps surprising answer is the Museo del Prado, Madrid,

A recipe for leaving a very bad taste in the mouth

NEWS that the Metropolitan Police responded to calls relating to the recent KFC closures - 'Please do not contact us about the #KFCCrisis, it is not a police matter if your favourite eatery is not serving the menu that you desire' makes you wonder, whatever next?

Last year, Police Scotland's emergency call handlers were amazed when a woman reported the theft of her snowman. Other calls included a request to check a woman's height, another reported a 'dirty look' from a neighbour and a woman asked for help with a large spider in her home.

Some 2.8 million 101 nonemergency calls are made every year in Scotland with just under half a million 999 emergency ones.

Heck, if crime writers like myself came up with motives as weak as these for calling out the cops in our thrillers, we'd be nicked for wasting readers' time!

The East Midlands Ambulance Service was asked if storing cracked eggs in a fridge was a 'health risk'. Other daft 'nuisance' calls included someone with a broken toenail, someone wanting a taxi home, another with toothache, and a patient who didn't want to wait 30 minutes for their GP appointment.

And according to the BBC, ambulances and emergency response vehicles were deployed more than 1,500 times to five patients in 12 months, while a single patient reportedly called the ambulance service almost 10 times a day. Maybe I'm being thick here (no need to comment), but why?

of age, they had more accrued wisdom than all the examples of 'adults' quoted here.

Finally, 999 calls due to loud bangs heard in Manchester city centre recently turned out not to be an emergency. It was a hen party popping balloons on a 'Butler in the Buff'. Good grief! (Actually, that's not what I wrote originally but a much more restrained comment!)

Each number in the Code Breaker grid represents a different letter of the alphabet. In this week's puzzle, 5 represents R and 14 represents J, so fill in R every time the figure 5 appears and J every time the figure 14 appears. Now, using your knowledge of the English language, work out which letters should go in the missing squares. As you discover the letters, fill in other squares with the same number in the main grid and the control grid.

Hormones: a hot topic

THE health and wellness industry is becoming increasingly more tailored to individuals and their body's specific needs.

The latest frontier to be tackled in the quest to keep everything running as smoothly as possible is hormonal health.

> To find out whether your hormones are functioning properly you can get tested to check if you have any deficiencies.

Not only do hormones impact your mood, they also affect your health and having an imbalance can lead to all manner of conditions, such as exhaustion and fertility issues. Hormones are produced by glands and are the chemical messengers that trigger activity in different parts of the body to help keep cells and organs working properly.

To find out whether your hormones are functioning properly, you can get tested to check if you have any deficiencies.

This can then give you an idea of whether you need to make any diet or lifestyle changes, or if you need to take any supplements.

However these tests can be pricey but there are several things you can do regardless to help your body stay in check.

Testosterone levels for example, can be boosted by doing strength training and ensuring your diet has enough good fat and protein.

Meanwhile vegetables such as kale, broccoli and cauliflower contain a compound that helps the body to metabolise oestrogen.

EXHAUSTED: An imbalance in certain hormones can make you feel more tired than usual.

NEW TREATMENT: Remove unsightly varicose veins.

Help is at hand if you have varicose veins

FOR those who suffer the discomfort of painful and unsightly varicose veins, new treatment is now available.

The team at QUPA based at Clinica Mejorate clinics in Alicante Province offer a wide range of different health treatments as can be seen at their detailed website www.clinicamejorate.com.

It is important to select a specialised medical team who guarantee a complete and permanent result on all those suffering from their veins especially as the clinic keeps a close watch on patients for a whole year to ensure that there are no medical surprises which involve additional cost.

Generally speaking varicose veins are mainly found in the leg although they can appear elsewhere and are veins that have become enlarged and twisted which can be caused through genetic inheritance as well as environmental factors.

Although in most cases they are simply a painful irritant, severe long-lasting varicose veins can lead to leg swelling, venous eczema, skin thickening and ulceration. Life-threatening complications are common but varicose veins may be confused with deep vein thrombosis, which is very dangerous.

Some veins can be controlled by sclerotherapy (which involves the injection of a chemical into the vein to obliterate it), elasticated stockings, elevating the legs or exercise but traditionally, those badly affected are literally removed by surgery.

Now, as technology has progressed, so there are alternative techniques which include ultrasoundguided foam sclerotherapy, radiofrequency ablation and endovenous laser treatment all of which are becoming increasingly more popular. As most of the blood in the legs is returned by the deep veins, the superficial veins which tend to be most affected, return only about 10 per cent of the total blood of the legs and can usually be removed or ablated without serious difficulty.

For more information on how to cope with varicose veins and the other procedures offered, call in at either Clinica Mejorate clinic in Alicante Province, or contact them on 966 721 687.

Often, first consultations are free of charge which will allow you to receive advice about your problem and to gain some idea of likely cost of resolving your health problem.

Prevention is better than cure

THE Quirónsalud Torrevieja hospital has launched a free campaign for the early diagnosis of colon cancer on World Colon Cancer Day, which is celebrated on Saturday.

The initiative involves giving free faecal blood tests to the population of Vega Baja (national and foreign), and to the hospital's patients, aged between 50 and 74 years, who do not already have symptoms (blood in the stool, abdominal pain, change in bowel rhythm, etc).

The kits are available until today (Thursday) from 10am to 12pm and the collection of samples will be from next Tuesday to Friday April 6 at the same time.

Those interested may request information by ringing 966 909 506 or emailing prevenc ion.trv@quironsalud.es or through the website www.quironsalud.es/torrevieja/es/campana-prevencion-cancer-colon.

The kit necessary to carry out the analysis must be collected at the information points located at the entrance to the Quirónsalud Torrevieja hospital.

The objective of the campaign is to raise awareness among the population about the importance of prevention and early detection to increase the survival rate of this disease.

The intention is to inform and raise awareness in society about colon cancer since there is a low awareness about the risk of suffering from it and help prevent this disease in men and women over the age of 50. "Curing colon cancer is possible if it is detected early," said Dr José Farré, head of the Oncological Surgery and General and Digestive Surgery Unit.

Colon cancer is the most frequent cancer diagnosis in Spain. However, when detected early, this tumour can be cured in 90 per cent of cases. Most colon cancers develop on pre-existing lesions and take between 10 and 15 years to develop.

"Through different diagnostic tests, not only can it be detected early when there aren't any symptoms, but it can also be prevented by locating and removing existing lesions before they become malignant," says Dr Farré.

The faecal blood test is a non-invasive test that consists of checking, in a quick and simple way, if blood is visible in the stool in order to detect the existence of any lesions. To do this, the patient must deposit a small amount of faeces in the provided kit and then deliver it to the collection points where the specialists will analyse it.

A negative test result "indicates that it is very unlikely that the person has colon cancer, although the result is not 100 per cent accurate. Therefore, it is recommended you repeat the test every two years and consult the doctor in case you feel discomfort," warned Dr Farré.

"The presence of blood does not imply, in most cases, that there is colon cancer." he said.

IT'S reportedly possible to tell if someone is suffering from depression based on how they speak.

According to new research published in the journal Clinical Psychological Science, people with depression use particular words and speech patterns.

Feeling blue?

The researchers studied large extracts of text from diaries, personal essays and speech to decipher whether depression affects how we communicate.

They claim to have identified several significant differences in both style and content, when comparing the language of those who suffer from mental illness.

It would appear those with depression use a lot more words conveying sad or negative emotions, such as 'sad', 'lonely' and 'miserable'.

They use more first person pronouns and less third person pronouns as well as more 'absolutist' vocabulary, such as 'nothing', 'always', or 'completely'.

However, the researchers did stress that using this language on a frequent basis is not an instant mental illness diagnosis and that it is important to monitor how you feel over a significant period of time before arriving at any conclusions.

Other symptoms of depression include not taking pleasure in enjoyable activities, losing interest in hobbies and daily activities, having trouble sleeping, finding it difficult to concentrate and feeling useless.

If you feel like this, visit: www.mind.org.uk/ or talk to your GP. If you think somebody else might be feeling this way, talk to them about it.

Makeover your mornings

THE morning can either be the best time of the day or the worst, depending on what kind of person you are.

Whichever camp you fall into, how you start your morning can have a big impact on how the rest of the day goes.

Making small changes to your morning routine could quickly make all the difference. Although it's incredibly tempting to reach for the tea or coffee first thing, try drinking a cup of hot water and lemon first which will help to start your digestion, get your liver up and running, as well as rehydrating you.

If you have a busy household, try setting your alarm 30 minutes before everyone else wakes up. This will give you time to take a nice long shower, read the paper or do some exercise; whatever you find most relaxing.

You might find this becomes your most productive time of the day, and could help you make plans for the week ahead or pursue some creative activities. You could also use this time to meditate for five or 10 minutes, helping to clear your mind and get you focused for the day.

MORNINGS: Can be fun.

Could veganism harm your hair?

VEGANISM is gaining popularity across the globe, but several concerns have been raised over whether it could have an impact on your hair health.

While many vegans are well informed about their diets, hairdressers have reported that their clients who have cut out animal products completely complain they have more brittle hair and weaker hair growth.

This could occur because vegans find it more difficult to consume a high amount of protein after they have cut out meat, fish and dairy products.

Hair is made up of a chain of proteins so having a deficiency will directly impact your hair.

Therefore, it is important to supplement your diet with alternative sources of protein such as pulses, and speak to a nutritionist if you need more advice.

If you have weak hair, you can protect it against further damage by using treatments

HAIR RAISING: Could a vegan diet really weaken your hair?

such as hair masks once a week, and avoiding colouring and heat styling as much as possible. Use a protective spray on your hair when it's wet before you brush it and try to find a shampoo that increases hair elasticity and protects cuticles.

Bottom of the barrel

Cassandra Nash

A weekly look - and not entirely impartial reaction to the Spanish political scene

ROGER TORRENT, Speaker of Cataluña's parliament called a fast-track investiture to install Jordi Turull as regional president.

Haste was necessary as Supreme Court Judge Pablo Llarena was due the next day to decide whether Turull, fomer PDeCat spokesman and a member of Carles Puigdemont's government, should be remanded for rebellion.

Turull was remanded as expected and his shot at the presidency scuppered thanks to anti-system party CUP, which punches far above the weight of its four seats and abstained instead of supporting him.

Former Speaker Carme Forcadell, Dolors Bassa and Raul Romeva joined Turrull on remand as Llarena said they were likely to flee the country if given the chance.

Marta Rovira, the ERC party's second in command did them no favours in this respect as she bolted to Switzerland to avoid the Supreme Court date. Slightly defensive, she claimed it was easier to 'rise up' against tyranny outside prison.

Unless the separatist parties find a presidential candidate between now and May 22 there will be another election but the problem now is selecting someone capable of doing the job.

He or she also needs a name and a face recognisable to the masses and capable of charming them into voting for someone who has not been scraped from the bottom of the barrel.

Two separate things

THE Ciudadanos leader in Cataluña Ines Arrimadas is Andaluza by birth but has lived in the region for the last 18 years.

Her husband Xavier Cima is a former regional MP for the now-defunct CiU party, which he left "when he saw what it was becoming," Arrimadas told an interviewer.

He was also a nationalist, she added "but I'm trying to wean him off that."

Crime and punishment

THE Partido Popular and Ciudadanos want to extend the scope for reviewable life sentences.

They cited the deaths of eight-year-old Gabriel, murdered by his father's partner and 18-year-old Diana Quer who was abducted, possibly raped, murdered and hidden in Galicia.

Truth of the matter

A MANTERO is an unauthorised street vendor who sets out his wares in the street on a blanket. They are usually African and are a static version of the looky-looky men who trawl resorts and cities, inviting the public to look at their wares.

A 35-year-old mantero named Mame Mbaye Ndiaye died not long ago in Lavapies (Madrid). Its multicultural population automatically believed social media reports that he was killed by the police, who constantly pursue vendors with a heavy hand.

This unleashed a riot ignited by anti-system activists that ended in a baton charge with 18 injured, 15 of them policemen.

In fact Mame Mbaye Ndiaye died naturally of a chronic heart ailment but the false news outlets were never going to let the facts get in the way of a good story.

Meanwhile the PSOE MP Juan Carlos Campos argued during the debate in the national parliament that the State defeated ETA terrorism when life-means-life sentences did not exist.

And, as Campos pointed out, the law introduced by the PP government in 2015 did nothing to prevent Gabriel's or Diana Quer's deaths.

Travel

Elche: a city of variety

ELCHE and its predecessor, La Alcudia, was settled by the Greeks, Carthaginians, Romans, Byzantines, Goths and Moors. So it is safe to say that the city has some history.

But the city offers far more than museums, in fact, part of its appeal is its variety.

The coastal location provides the obligatory beach attraction but there are cultural options aplenty for those looking for a more sophisticated experience.

Perhaps the most notable is the Basilica of Santa Maria, an impressive, Arabic-looking structure well worth a visit. Another must for architecture is the Torre de la Calahorra.

If greenery is your thing then the Palm Grove of Elche should be right up your garden path, having been declared a UNESCO World Heritage Site in 2000.

Twinned with six towns - including Toulouse in France - Elche is within striking distance of Alicante, for those who want the allure of one of PALM GROVE: The city boasts a Unesco World Heritage site.

Spain's largest cities. But Elche should be easily big enough for all your travel needs and boasts a number of top restaurants and hotels.

The local football team, Elche CF, were in the top tier of Spanish football until last year, but could now make a return to La Liga in the coming seasons, giving football fans the chance to see giants like Real Madrid or Barcelona in very quaint surroundings.

Hidden Algarve gems in Faro

THE capital of the southern Algarve region is usually used merely as a city to pass through.

But Faro, with its cobbled archways and Moorish architecture, is a distinctly Portuguese coastal city with plenty on offer.

Ideal as a stop off spot, the underrated Algarve resort is less than four and a half hours from Malaga by car and is one of the most southerly points in Portugal.

The monumental Arco da Vila archway belies the city's Moorish influences, along with the original Moorish wall, of course.

The white lighthouse, though, is probably the city's most recognisable landmark.

Other parts of the city are undoubtedly less attractive on the eye. But when you are partying with the near 10,000 strong student population on one of many lively nights out, you probably will not mind.

During the days, the historic old town is packed with outdoor cafes and well-maintained squares, while sophisticated tourists may appreciate the theatre offerings.

The Ria Formosa Natural Park is nearby, boasting lagoons and mudflats.

Attractive parks, intriguing museums, chapels and a 13th century cathedral make for an engaging stroll but, really, it is all about sand, sun and sea.

Situated on the North Atlantic coast, Faro has an impressive marina and a number of attractive beaches in touching distance.

Update on food, drink, entertainments, what's on and weekly happenings

Free guided tours

 $S \frac{OCIAL}{CFNF}$

FROM now on into the summer, Torrevieja will be offering free guided visits to a number of museums.

There will be tours every Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, which will be conducted in Spanish and English with a maximum group size of 15 and places must be reserved in advance at the Tourist Office on the Vista Alegre. The tour will take in the Museo del Mar y de la Sal, the Eras de la Sal, the Casino and for an additional payment of  $\in 2$ there will be access to the S-61 Delfin submarine as well as the Patrullero Albatros.

AN ATP World Tour Tennis Challenger Tour returns to Alicante City for the first time since 1996 and will take place from Monday to Sunday April

The ATP Challenger Tour consists of a series of international men's professional tennis tournaments and are the second highest level of international tennis competition.

Players who succeed on the ATP Challenger Tour can earn enough ranking points to become eligible for the ATP World Tour tournaments. Players on the Challenger Tour are either young players, those who fail to qualify for ATP events, or former ATP winners looking to get back into the main tournaments.

One such player is Australian Bernard Tomic who at one time was ranked 17th in the world and participated in a number of major tournaments, but the last two years have seen him slip to number 169 and participate in Australia's I'm a Celebrity, lasting just three days.

Top class tennis returns to Alicante

BERNARD TOMIC: Hopes to see a return to form.

There will be a number of established Spanish professionals including Tommy Robredo, Nicolas Almagro, Marcel Granollers and Roberto Carballes Baena as well as up and coming youngsters Carlos Taberner and Jaume Munar.

This inaugural Ferrero Challenger Open is named for former World No 1 and local Juan Carlos Ferrero at whose Tennis Academy the competition will take place.

There are two practice days with free entry to the Academy at Casas de Menor,44, 03400 Villena, Alicante on Saturday and Sunday, with tickets for the competition proper costing  $\in 22$  each day, although there are discounts for those under 14 and those who belong to a tennis federation.

10 per cent of proceeds will be passed to charity and tickets may be purchased online via the email address torneos@equelite.com or at the Academy.

WHEREVER you are in Alicante City this Easter there will be the traditional Semana Santa parades with some starting in the morning and the bulk taking place in the evening.

Today (Thursday) sees no less than five processions with the first setting out at 7.15pm and the last at 11.30pm.

Good Friday sees four processions starting at 10.30am then at 6pm, 7.45pm and 8.30pm.

Easter Sunday attracts just two brotherhoods with an 11am and 11.30am start, but these will take several hours to complete and will include church services.

The brotherhoods are groups of people associated to various churches with their own brand of clothing (often surprising visitors as many look similar to the robes worn by the Ku Klux Klan) but in fact they hark back to the days of the Inquisition when penitents were required to wear the Capirote (cone-shaped hat) but with their faces visible.

Each colour represented the sin for which they were atoning for and slowly the hoods became longer until they covered the faces of the penitents.

Nowadays the colour is chosen by the brotherhood and not every group wears the Capirote so that a number still cover their faces but using flat head coverings, whilst women tend to dress in black with a mantilla or lace veil over their heads. Every procession needs three bands who play a range of different tunes (some better than others) and due to the enormous weight of the statues being carried, a bell ringer walks in front of the parade, regularly indicating when rests are required so that the parade stops and the statues are taken off the shoulders of those carrying them.

Many parades include military and Guardia Civil bands with senior officers often being involved in reviewing the march past. Large crowds watch these parades which have become a significant part of Spanish culture as well as a popular tourist attraction.

DON'T deny it, almost everyone of a certain age has sung and danced along to at least one number from the musical Grease.

Originally a stage musical which has toured the world and is regularly resurrected for amateur productions and school performances, it transformed into the hugely successful movie starring John Travolta and Olivia Newton John.

It's a love story with song and dance that should only make sense to an American audience but it has overcome everything to strike the hearts of audiences around the world.

Recordando (Remembering) Grease is a fast moving homage to the musical based on an invitation that a middle-aged couple receive from former schoolmates to attend a Grease themed party which will include a dance contest.

With 18 artists on stage, six musicians, four singers and eight dancers, all of the favourites from the show such as Grease Lightning, Summer Nights, Hopelessly Devoted to You but with some new interpretations and musical arrangements will be included.

This will be a party that takes place at the El Batel in Cartagena on Saturday April 14 with two performances at 6pm and 9.30pm. Tickets cost  $\in 25$ ,  $\in 28$  and  $\in 30$  from the El Batel website or through agencies.

BACCHUS CELLAR

VINHO VERDE is not a 'green' wine nor a grape, but a region (DOC) for its production.

It may be red, white or rose, and translates as 'young wine' usually consumed three to six months after harvest. Vinho Verde in northern Portugal the nation's largest wine region - has produced wine for more than 2.000 years, and is now responsible for approximately 85 million litres each year, of which 86 per cent is white.

Made from local grape varieties Loureiro, Arinto, Trajadura, Avesso, and Azal, the whites are lemon - or strawcoloured with 8.5 to 11 per cent alcohol. The most successful is Alvarinho, which displays tropical aromas, an overall lemony character, high acidity and alcohol levels, and Loureiro which is more floral.

White Vinho Verde are light and fresh and known for vibrant fruit, natural acidity and low alcohol which makes them ideal for pairing with seafood, salads and Asian cuisine, or served as an aperitif.

The reds made mostly from Vinhão, Borraçal and Amaral grapes have an inky texture. are low in alcohol, have sour flavours and are seldom exported. The roses are fresh and fruity, and usually from Espadeiro and Padeiro grapes.

Many of the Vinho Verde wines have a light fizz, originally a natural by-product of fermentation in the bottle, but nowadays a result of added carbon dioxide mainly for enmasse export as better labels do not have any bubbles.

The Vinho Verde image as a young wine has led importers pressing producers to deliver wines freshly bottled, thereby preventing the development of high quality single-varietal labels. Popularity of Vinho Verde has surged in the last decade with consumers discovering it as one of the most affordable and versatile wines on the market, with prices from around  $\in 5$ .

Happy tasting.

Shining sun on your savings

F you have money burning a hole in your pocket, why not think about buying a second property in Spain and reap the rewards of a wise investment?

You can choose to invest in property by either buying real estate as cheaply as possible to sell in the short term at a higher price or by investing in a steadily growing market to receive rental income over the longer term. Which option you prefer will dictate how and where you spend your hard earned cash.

Valencia offers good opportunities for short-term resale properties. With rock bottom prices often 40 per cent lower than their peak in 2007, you can still grab a bargain but you need to act quickly.

Prices are steadily on the rise given that investors are looking south of Cataluña in light of the general political instability there and the almost precrises levels of property in Barcelona.

Another option is Madrid where residential property is currently about 13 per cent cheaper than in 2008. Here, the capital also offers promising returns with prices expected to grow by almost 11 per cent.

For buy-to-let investments, look for areas that have steadily rising property prices. You need to also decide if you wish to offer either short-term or longterm rentals. However, with short-term rentals commanding prices of 400 per cent more over the summer months than monthly long-term rental prices, that choice can be an easy one!

For short-term rental properties, consider locations close to golf courses or ski resorts. This means you can offset the majority of your annual mortgage repayments during the high season and take advantage of low season golfing and skiing rentals to provide a solid secondary income stream.

It will come as no surprise that properties along the Costas can offer fantastic opportunities for this. House prices along the Mediterranean coast are steadily on the increase, having witnessed a 3 per cent rise in 2017 and in the sunnier climes of the Canaries, house prices are expected to increase by almost 8 per cent in 2018.

For non-coastal options, Granada and the surrounding Sierra Nevada Mountains can offer you serious rental income all year though.

Whether for short-term resale or longterm rental, now is the time to capitalise on your savings as Spanish property prices slowly creep upwards since the economic crash ten years ago.

Tourism boom sees wealthy Brits snap up Spanish homes

PAIN received a recordbreaking 82 million visitors in 2017, overtaking the US as the world's second most visited nation

According to the Tourist Market Barometer, the average spending of tourists to Spain rose 13 per cent between January and November 2017.

Unsurprisingly, British visitors were among the biggest spenders, contributing €17.4 billion to the Spanish economy, up 8.2 per cent on the previous year. The tourism industry has been an integral driver of Spain's economy over recent decades, benefiting from the increase in cheap flights through low cost airlines, and affordable accommodation.

However, the success of the low-cost tourism model is at risk of negatively impacting the exclusive end of the market, with Spain accounting for only 10 per cent of the wealthiest tourists in the world.

But as local authorities set out ambitious plans to tackle the issue of mass market tourism, Taylor Wimpey España

TAYLOR MADE: Discerning buyers are increasingly turning to Taylor Wimpey España.

(TWE), which celebrates its 60th anniversary this year, continues to deliver high quality homes for discerning visitors.

Mark Pritchard, TWE's Sales and Marketing Director, said:

"It is fantastic to see Spain's popularity continuing to flourish, and we have certainly received a great number of enquiries from international visitors looking to experience all that this wonderful country has to offer.

"I do believe, however, that it is important to ensure that popular destinations such as the Costa del Sol remain sustainable, which is why we are focused on delivering quality homes in quality locations for generations to eniov."

In terms of numbers, December 2017 saw the sixth consecutive month of growth in sales to British buyers for Taylor Wimpey España.

The majority of transactions were made at the upper bracket of €450,000 and beyond, a trend never seen before.

It is believed that with an eye on Brexit in April 2019, British buyers are splashing out more on Spanish properties to secure the right home either for holidays or retirement.

BEACH EXERCISE: Make friends and stay healthy

The Golden Years

PAIN has just been listed ninth place among the top 10 retirement destinations in the world by the Annual Global Retirement Index compiled by the International Living Magazine.

Among the various factors considered are the ease and cost of buying or renting a property, the cost of living, visa and residence options, and the ease of fitting in and enjoying a healthy and varied lifestyle.

Of course, this news will come as no surprise to the many Brits who have already retired to some of the most popular expatriate communities in Albox and Mojacar. Basking in almost year-long sunshine, these retirees have come to enjoy the relaxed lifestyle and top cuisine along some of the world's best beaches.

If you do decide to come and retire to Spain, remember there is much more to do than simply lie back under the sun. Depending on where you move to, there should be an endless number of activities that you can get involved in. From more active activities such as golf, sailing, hiking or cycling to - perhaps - somewhat less physically demanding activities such as drama groups or yoga and cooking lessons.

Owned and run by Margaret Wormington, Casa Dora was actually the home of Margaret's mother Dora, who had spent many happy years there after finding the hidden delight of Villares. Margaret and husband Peter then went on to demolish a corral that was previously used for holding animals on the property and built Casa Camille.

Despite the 'casa rural' being just six years old they found a builder who was sympathetic to the village's character and used some original bricks and tiles to create a traditional cottage feel that was

Paying for your child's tuition fees? Save money on your currency transfers

A new school of thought

When it comes to transferring money overseas, moving your funds through your bank seems like the logical choice on paper. But in reality, what should be a quick and simple task can end up taking considerably more time than it should.

If you're looking for a simpler and speedier alternative, consider the benefits attached to using a leading currency broker.

Whether you need to make regular, smaller currency transfers or have a large lump sum to transfer, currency brokers can help you save time and money. They can also help you understand the volatility of the currency market and teach you how to time your currency transfers effectively.

For example, while the EUR/GBP exchange rate initially strengthened considerably in the wake of the UK's vote to leave the EU in 2016, the pairing has experienced significant fluctuations ever since.

This exchange rate movement can make planning your transfers a bit of a pain. With complex Brexit negotiations still ongoing, the EUR/GBP exchange rate will remain unstable for the foreseeable future, so it's important to be prepared for sudden shifts.

Do your sums

One major advantage to using a currency broker like Currencies Direct is that they don't charge transfer fees (unlike many banks) ensuring that the money you're sending to the UK is not reduced by unnecessary costs. Transfer fees can quickly add up if you make frequent transfers, so you could end up saving hundreds of euros a year.

By using a currency broker you can also ensure that you're getting the most competitive exchange rate for your transfer, meaning you'll get more for your money.

Revise your options

Using a currency broker also takes a lot of hassle out of the transfer process, as you can set up payments 24/7 from the comfort of your own home and arrange

Putting your child through higher education can be seriously costly, with tuition fees and living costs typically amounting to tens of thousands of pounds in just a few years. If you're living abroad but transferring money back to the UK to fund your child's time in University, the process could be made costlier still if you're using your bank to manage the currency transfers.

for them to be made automatically on pre-set dates.

You can also make instant or 'spot' transfers whenever you need to, so you don't need to wait to move the money if your child needs some emergency funds.

Another option you might want to look into is a forward contract, which gives you the ability to fix an exchange rate for up to two years in advance of making a transfer – protecting your funds from negative market movements.

By doing a bit of research into the different transfer options available you can eliminate the hassle and get more from your currency transfers. Find the services that suit your needs and you'll quickly discover how much you can save.

At Currencies Direct, we've helped over 210,000 customers save on their currency transfers since 1996. Just pop into your local Currencies Direct branch or give us a call to find out more about how you can save money on your currency transfers.

Growing the Sun Parasol or Mandevilla

GRAEME TYRRELL

THE recent wet weather this winter is enough to keep even the most enthusiastic gardener out of the garden.

Waterlogged soil is best not walked on if it is for growing plants. The compaction of saturated soil is very damaging. as even when it dries out the effects of compression last and cause clods of soil in summer that are difficult for plant roots to penetrate. This doesn't mean no gardening, indoor gardening is always a possibility.

Tropical species are a very popular form of plant for indoor gardening. They give a different range of plants that cannot be grown in the outdoor Mediterranean garden.

If you grow tropical plants in pots they can grace the terrace or balcony in summer and be retired to the indoors in winter, or they can be a permanent indoor feature in a bright, warm area of the home.

A favourite, which is hardy and fast-growing in the right conditions, is the impressive glossy-leaved trumpet flowered Mandevilla, also called the Sun or Summer Parasol.

It originates from tropical Central America where it is a climbing plant. It was named after British explorer and diplomat Henry Mandevilla who first botanically identified it.

A Mandevilla needs plenty of sunlight or it will not flower profusely. It is very cold-tender so must be kept in a warm place above 10°C throughout winter. They will thrive in a large container with a good soil mixture and will grow over a metre a year in good conditions and up to seven metres in length on maturity.

It will need a trellis or structure to grow up or along to give it support, unless you keep it very well pruned in autumn when flowers are less frequent. Pruning is also recommended to encourage multiple stems to spread growth by creating more branching to have a more intensive flower display.

Prolific flowering can be further promoted by pinching off the spent flowers and as flowers form mostly on the current years growth, the pruning is done in a way to encourage this new growth.

If you are moving the container from outdoors for winter hibernation and protection from the cold, you can submerge the container in water for at least a few minutes to flush out any ants or other insects which you don't want inside.

Wash the upper part of the plant also and allow the plant to dry and drain well after soaking before moving inside.

In winter, when temperatures drop, it is best to reduce watering so the soil mix is just moist as excess water amplifies the cold effect around the roots.

Low light intensity in winter usually stops it flowering. This can be true in summer if indoors without sufficient light. The leaves may drop in winter if exposed to cold. If this happens reduce water to just moist.

Dogs' instinct David THE Dogman columnists@ewnmedianroun_com

TRAINING dogs does not give the end product; dog's natural instinct plays a vital role.

Man first domesticated dogs because he had so many instincts which could be useful.

When we think that man has used the dog for many thousands of years for his own benefit, it is very difficult to understand why so few owners and trainers can differentiate between instinct and intelligence.

Instinct is an urge from within which makes a dog act in certain ways and has no connection with intelligence.

A dog's first instinct is to survive. When he is born the pup squirms about until he finds a teat and then sucks it. No intelligence or learning by any association plays a part in this process. The maternal instinct tells the female to clean up the foetal membrane etc and stir the puppy into action by licking it.

INSTINCTIVE: Dogs are wild at heart.

The female is not taught this, she has not seen another female do this. Most instincts provide pleasure to the dog and because the dog associates the action with pleasure the instinct grows stronger with usage. In my opinion instinct is something which is either there or not there. Instinct can be strengthened, weakened or diverted, it cannot be put there and it cannot be taken away, it might lie dormant, but once developed it can never be weakened again. I always explain this when people want their dog to be trained for man work, once aggression is raised in this manner it cannot be reduced.

A dog with an obsession for chasing balls can be controlled by training and by providing other outlets for his energy, the same way if a young dog is diverted the first time he chases a car he may give up the idea, but if he is allowed to chase cars the hunting instinct becomes stronger, and in no time it will be very difficult, even impossible, to cure the habit.

Instinct covers survival, maternal, hunting, guarding pack and selfpreservation.

Self-preservation makes dogs furtive and afraid of the unfamiliar. this is no use to man. This nervousness in the domestic dog is, in my opinion, one of the common causes of problems in present-day dogs.

This instinct of self-preservation has been weakened by simply breeding from bold dogs rather than nervous ones, but has never been entirely removed.

Puppy on board

THERE has been a fair amount of controversy recently when it comes to travelling with pets on aircraft.

A puppy recently died after a flight attendant on a United Airlines flight to New York allegedly forced a passenger to put their puppy in the overhead bin.

Then a family discovered that their German Shepherd had been accidently flown to Japan instead of Kansas City when they were greeted with a Great Dane instead.

This has sparked a debate as to what rights passengers have when it comes to flying with their pets and whether airlines are respon-

YAMAHA MOTORS has announced that its new TY-E electric trial bike will compete for the first time in the 2018 FIM Trial-E Cup.

July 21-22.

Featuring advanced new technology, the TY-E has come straight from Yamaha's 'Evolving R&D' programme, where employees have the opportunity to work outside conventional frameworks.

They can devote up to 5 per cent of their working hours developing new concepts, and a beneficiary of that has been the development of a trial model for competition that can overcome typical EV obstacles.

Key progress in the design can be seen in the harnessing of high torque out-

The high rotation electric motor achieves strong off-road performance with powerful low speed torque and extended acceleration.

VOLKSWAGEN has unveiled its brand new €57,000 SUV, and the Touareg is the most technologically impressive model ever.

Its kit list might be expected on a military grade tank and includes two giant displays and advanced safety systems that use thermal imaging and night vision cams.

Infrared beams will pick out animals, pedestrians and cyclists, and hi-tech LED lights will alert drivers to hazards.

The Touareg is also packed with other driver assistance systems for traffic jams, parking and roadworks, while the highlight of the new interior is the 'Innovision' cockpit.

It has a 12-inch instrument panel behind the steering wheel twinned to a 15-inch touchscreen on the dash.

The glass covered HD screens have a customisable 'home' screen to display sat nav, radio, Apple CarPlay and Android Auto.

La Liga Preview

Barcelona aiming for 30 game unbeaten mark

SEVILLA host Barcelona as La Liga returns after the international break looking to halt Barcelona's unbeaten season.

Las Sevillistas are looking to bounce back from two consecutive defeats, a run that has seen them sit in sixth place, just two points above Girona and Real Betis in seventh and eighth.

Champions-elect Barcelona however, come into the match yet to lose a La Liga game this season and will be looking to hit the 30 games unbeaten mark in the league as they travel to the Ramon Sanchez Pizjuan.

Despite making the quarter finals of the Champions League, Sevilla could find themselves outside the top six before kick off if Girona get past Levante in the early kick off.

UNBEATEN: Barca made it 29 games unbeaten with a 2-0 win over Athletic Bilbao.

La Liga's surprise outfit this season, Girona suffered their first defeat in four games as they went down 6-3 to Real Madrid last time out.

Four from Cristiano Ronaldo added to with goals from Lucas Vazquez and Gareth Bale saw Girona fall to defeat despite a noble effort to get back into the game.

And they will now be looking to get straight back to winning ways with a win against lowly Levante, who find themselves in the middle of a relegation battle and sitting just one place above the bottom three.

Real Madrid will look to continue their good run of form as they travel to relegation threatened Las Palmas.

Madrid have lost just one in their last six, while red-hot Cristiano Ronaldo took his tally to 17 goals in his last eight games with four, and will be confident of adding to that against the Gran Canarian side who find themselves six points adrift of safety.

On Sunday, second placed Atletico Madrid host relegation threatened Deportivo La Coruña.

Atletico were dealt a huge title blow before the international break as they lost 2-1 to Villarreal and moved 11 points behind Barcelona, but will look to get back on track as they welcome 10th placed Celta Vigo.

Elsewhere, bottom of the table Malaga host Villarreal as they seemingly head towards relegation from La Liga.

Las Malaguistas, who have picked up just 14 points all season, snatched a rare point against Celta Vigo last time out but have now gone 14 games without a win since they beat Real Sociedad 2-0 on December 10.

In the weekend's other fixtures, Athletic Bilbao play Celta Vigo on Saturday before on Sunday, Eibar host Real Sociedad, Leganes face Valencia, Espanyol take on Alaves while Getafe are against Real Betis on Monday.

Premier League preview Chelsea host Spurs in London derby as race for top four heats up

THE Premier League officially returns this weekend as Chelsea host Tottenham in the London derby.

Tottenham can all but put Champions League football out of reach for Chelsea with a win as they look to cement their place in this season's top four.

Spurs, who will be without the injured Harry Kane for the trip to Stamford Bridge, currently sit on 61 points in the final Champions League spot and a win will move them eight points clear of fifth placed Chelsea with just eight games left to play.

League leaders Manchester City head to Everton on Saturday, knowing that a win will give them the opportunity to be crowned Premier League Champions if they beat rivals Manchester United at the Etihad on April 7.

However, it will not be all plain sailing for the league leaders as Everton have found a recent resurgence of form of late.

The Merseysiders are looking for their third successive victory on Saturday following wins against Brighton and a 2-1 win over Stoke before the International break.

Elsewhere, Manchester United begin the era without Zlatan Ibrahimovic as they host Swansea City at Old Trafford.

The Swede officially completed his move to LA Galaxy late last week having not played for the Red Devils since Boxing Day.

In a battle at the bottom, West Ham host Southampton with both teams sitting dangerously close to the drop-zone.

INJURED: Spurs will be without injured top-scorer Harry Kane.

West Ham, who gave life-time bans to 'at least five' supporters last week after crowd trouble and pitch invasions against Burnley, sit just one point above the relegation zone, while FA Cup semi-finalists Southampton dropped into the bottom three thanks to Crystal Palace's win against Huddersfield.

Crystal Palace themselves face a tough fixture as they host free-scoring Liverpool at Selhurst Park in Saturday's early kick off.

The Reds put five past Watford in their last game, with in-form Mo Salah grabbing four for himself as he moved clear of the injured Harry Kane in the race for this season's golden boot.

The weekend's other fixtures will see Brighton host Leicester, Huddersfield travel to Newcastle, West Brom are against Burnley, Watford face Bournemouth and Arsenal take on Stoke on Sunday.

TEMPERS: Spanish players lost their heads and confronted the referee following the final whistle.

Rugby Europe's decision on qualifier imminent

By Benjamin Park

RUGBY EUROPE is set to make a decision later today (Thursday) on whether the Spain vs Belgium Rugby World Cup Qualifier should be replayed.

In a game full of controversy, Spain lost to bottom side Belgium 18-10 in a game refereed by Romanian Vlad Iordachescu and two Romanian assistants; with the result meaning that Romania automatically qualified for next year's World Cup instead of Spain.

The Spanish Rugby Federation (FER) had asked for the referees to be changed prior to the match and is believed to feel aggrieved by an estimated 19 different decisions against them and have since asked for the game to be replayed.

Following the match, Rugby Europe's referees' selection committee had an initial meeting in Poznan on Friday with the information then given to a conference call between the Board of Directors on Monday, at which FER President Alfonso Feijoo was present.

And in a statement following Monday's meeting, Rugby Europe confirmed that the board needed 'additional information' before taking an 'accurate decision' on the matter.

The statement read: 'Rugby

Europe Board of Directors held a conference call this evening (Monday) to share and discuss the elements related to the Spain / Belgium game, Rugby World Cup 2019 Qualifier.

'Rugby Europe General Secretary recalled the facts and submitted the reports of the different people and groups who have been consulted.

'Board members unanimously requested additional information (in particular those provided straight ahead of the meeting to World Rugby) before taking an accurate decision.

'A new meeting has been planned for Thursday March 29 in the afternoon.' osta Blanca South

By Benjamin Park

ATLETICO MADRID forward Antoine Griezmann has admitted that he wants his future resolved before he travels to the World Cup with France in the summer.

The French international has been continuously linked with a move away from Madrid over the past few seasons, with runaway La Liga leaders Barcelona reportedly favourites to secure his signature in the summer transfer window. However, some outlets maintain that the 27-yearold will be offered a bumper new contract in a last-ditch effort to keep him at the Wanda Metropolitano.

And the forward himself has now confirmed that he wants his future sorted, one way or another, before he boards the plane for this summer's World Cup in Russia.

Griezmann told L'Equipe: "I want to travel to Russia without this concern.

"It's not about knowing where I'll play, but about having the peace of mind if I'm still in one place or another.

"It may be boring, but I have told my sister that, whether I stay or not, this will have to be resolved beforehand

"What bothers me the most is that everyone asks me about this issue."

Valverde cruises to Cataluña title

SPANIARD Alejandro Valverde has won his second consecutive Tour of Cataluña after his closest competitor crashed out in the final stages.

Valverde held a 16-second advantage over Colombian Egan Bernal heading in to Sunday's final stage but cruised to victory when Bernal fell towards the end of the race.

The Colombian landed awkwardly after falling less than 10 kilometres from the finish line, as he was unable to avoid contact with another rider who had fallen just in front of him.

He was unable to continue following medical treatment on the track of the 155-kilometre stage and was later taken away by an ambulance for treatment on a nasty looking shoulder injury.

Thirty-seven-year-old Valverde eventually finished ninth on Sunday, managing to secure a 29-second overall lead over Movistar teammate Nairo Ouintana and 47 seconds ahead of Frenchman Pierre Latour in third.

The final stage was won by Briton, Simon Yates, and after the race, he told British media: "It was very difficult from the beginning.

"I decided to try and go early, and it paid off. I wanted to try to get on the (final) podium but I fell a little bit short."
