Mob boss held

By Matt Ford

THREE high-ranking members of the Russian mafia allegedly plotting a hit have been held on the Costa del Sol.

The arrests come after armed police swooped on a Marbella eatery where the gangsters were holding a meeting as shocked diners looked on.

They have been remanded in custody on charges of planning a murder, forgery and membership of a criminal network after fake Polish and Ukrainian passports were later found during searches of three properties.

One of the trio is believed to be a notorious crime boss known as The Worm, who investigators say is the mob's third-in-command at the global scale.

GUARDIA CIVIL director Felix Vicente Azon has sparked outrage after placing a female officer on a month's gardening leave and fining her after she filed a formal complaint over a lack of female bulletproof vests.

By Matt Ford

A HOMELESS man allegedly paid €100 by a British stag party to have the groom's name and address tattooed on his forehead has called for them to be jailed.

Polish-born Tomek Matuszewski, 34, says he has reported the offenders to the police after returning to Benidorm from Granada in Andalucia, where he spent a few days with friends.

And he marched to the Foreign Tourists' Office to file a complaint about the incident before being taken for a medical check-up.

He said being handed the money while drunk was "like winning the lottery," but was horrified when he woke up the next day.

"My reaction was: 'what the f have I done?'" he added.

The inking was supposed to read 'Jamie Blake, North Shields NE28,' but only the first two letters of the post code were completed because Tomek was in too much pain, and now he wants those responsible to face justice.

Speaking to UK media, he said: "I'd like to see the culprit go to jail as well as the tattooist. I want justice and I hope karma will come back to them."

Mr Blake, 36, earlier denied his involvement in the stunt having recently moved to Benidorm and deciding to go ahead with his stag party despite separating from his fiancée.

He told the Newcastle Evening Chronicle: "I was not there at the time. There was a big group of around 30 of us drinking in the bar.

"There was a group of Irish lads there as well and Tomek. He isn't homeless, he lives with my friend and works on the strip.

"I got drunk and was asked to leave the bar. I was never in the tattoo parlour and as far as I know he was not paid money."

The incident has sparked outrage among expatriates in the holiday hotspot, and Karen Maling Cowles, president of the Benidorm British Business Association, has been leading a fundraising campaign to get the tattoo removed.

She said: "Tomek has contacted us. He was emotional and overwhelmed by the publicity given by the media and acts of kindness by the public.

"We are looking for help with various things for Tomek including somewhere not expensive for him to stay while we get things organised with doctors and so on."

Maureen Daniels added: "Well done for standing up to help this poor man. He has gone from an encounter with the worst of British in Benidorm to the very best. I hope his problems will soon be on the way to being solved."

Holidaymaker Paul, a 35-year-old lorry driver, told The Sun: "Today I've seen in the papers that Jamie has said it was nothing to do with him and Tommy wasn't homeless. That's a joke - it was his idea."

Police have confirmed they are probing the incident.

Holiday bug 'outbreak'

THE Junta de Andalucia regional government has confirmed that an outbreak of gastroenteritis which left around 60 - mostly Spanish - holidaymakers at the Marconfort Hotel in Torremolinos bedridden was viral. A team of investigators had been probing the case and found the bug was not related to food or drink.

Dutch and go

TRAFFIC police were left baffled after a motorist seen veering off the A-397 Ronda road before swerving into the path of oncoming traffic tested negative for alcohol and drugs. It later emerged the Dutch expatriate had been prescribed medication which made him unexpectedly drowsy, according to reports.

Hot pursuit

A HOLLYWOOD-STYLE car chase through the streets of Malaga City ended in the arrest of a 50-year-old van driver who fled after a traffic patrol tried to pull him over. Armed officers eventually shot out the wheels of his vehicle after a five-kilometre pursuit during which he rammed two police cars.

Jet ski smash

A 22-YEAR-OLD Middle-Eastern holidaymaker is in intensive care after being hit by a speeding jet ski on Marbella's Funny Beach. The Belgian rider, 43, later admitted she does not have the required licence after careering into the victim, who was boarding a recreational boat in a designated go-slow zone.

Close shave

A 29-YEAR-OLD drug addict from Estepona has been remanded in custody for shooting at police after being reported for threatening his mum. When officers arrived at his home he fired a single bullet which flew through the open door and into his neighbour's living room, leaving a dining family stunned as it smashed a window.

Rental scam

TWO people have been held in Fuengirola on suspicion of running an internet rentals scam. The pair allegedly advertised cheap holiday apartments in the area, advising tourists to pay a deposit into a current account owned by an acquaintance they threatened at gunpoint before forcing him to hand over the cash.

HEAVENLY VIEW: The incredible shot was captured in Italy's Dolomite mountains.

Shooting stars

THE view is out of this world.

This stunning shot shows the Milky Way emerging over the three peaks of the Tre Cime di Lavaredo in Italy's Dolomite mountain range.

And it landed Spanish snapper Carlos F Turienzo on the shortlist for the 2018 Insight Astronomy Photographer of the Year contest.

Organised by the Royal Observatory Greenwich in association with BBC Sky at Night Magazine, the competition this year received more than 4,200 entries from 91 countries.

And after making the final cut, the Galician photographer said: "We had been travelling for 24 hours without sleeping to reach our destination before the one night where clear skies were forecasted ended.

"After reaching the hut and having a nice dinner, we climbed up to the cliff and waited for night-time to come.

"Unfortunately it came with a cloudy sky. We stood there being optimistic, knowing that all our efforts would be rewarded, and eventually the clouds disappeared and the magic happened: a beautiful Milky Way emerged over the mountains! "It was amazing being there together enjoying the magnificent spectacle, truly a dream come true."

Murder plot revealed

He recently fled Italy, where he is wanted on suspicion of assassinating a rival gang leader, and arrived in Spain just a few days before the dramatic restaurant raid.

A police statement said he was accompanied by a sizeable entourage 'from bodyguards to errand boys,' adding the group rented 'dozens' of apartments and hotel rooms under the names of third parties.

The men were due to hold a meeting with other mafia chiefs during which the execution of an enemy kingpin who planned to settle in Spain was to be organised.

But the murder plot was revealed over the course of a covert surveillance operation, with detectives also learning of the ring's plans to restructure after 129 suspects, including seven top dogs, were rounded up by the Spanish National Police and Interpol in June.

It is thought the planned killing was intended as a show of strength in the wake of the giant offensive.

The probe was launched last month, when several known associates of The Worm, believed to be holed up in Lithuania at the time, appeared in Marbella.

The 10 elite criminals held during the recent swoops are known as vor v zakone - thieves in law - in the Russian underworld.

IN THE POST: Orwell is thought to have caught tuberculosis after being shot by a sniper in the Spanish Civil War.

By George

PIONEERING research has suggested British author George Orwell was killed by tuberculosis he caught in a Spanish hospital.

The Nineteen Eighty-Four penman died from a haemorrhage in January 1950.

And while the cause of his death is well known, it has remained unclear where he contracted the condition. But scientific tests on a letter the author sent to Sergey Dinamov, editor of the Soviet journal Foreign Literature, appear to have solved the mystery.

It was written in July 1937, shortly after Orwell returned to Britain after fighting against the military uprising of General Francisco Franco. The analysis was carried out by Israeli researcher Gleb Zilberstein, who in an earlier study verified traces of kidney disease on the manuscript of Russian writer Mikhail Bulgakov's The Master and Margarita.

He used acetate film to extract bacteria and morphine from the document, which were checked against archived medical registration records for those that fought in the Spanish Civil War, which broke out in 1936 and ended in 1939. Zilberstein told The Times: "The level of infection was very high and the [hygiene standards of] hospitals were very poor.

"The civil war in Spain was the last war in the 20th century without penicillin.

"Most wounded people got infections in hospital in Spain and mortality was higher from infections.

"Orwell got TB at a period of the civil war when there was a higher probability of hospital infections."

Orwell went to Spain to write about and fight in the war, during which Franco's fascist regime battled the Republican government for control of the country, eventually becoming a lieutenant in the militia of the communist, anti-Stalinist Workers' Party of Marxist Unification. He was shot in May 1937 through the neck by a sniper while moving through trenches at the Aragon Front, with the injury permanently affecting his voice.

Zilberstein says there is a "very high probability" the author was infected while recovering in hospital, although contaminated food could also have been to blame.

The traces of morphine are believed to have come from painkillers administered to him at the time.

Orwell later moved to the Scottish island of Jura, where he completed Nineteen Eighty-Four as his tuberculosis worsened.

The book was published in June 1949 and the novelist - real name Eric Blair - died six months later, aged 46.

FORMER CHAMP: Ullrich during his pro cycling days.

HE won an Olympic gold medal and the Tour de France during his time as an athlete.

But former cycling star Jan Ullrich says separation from his wife AND children has “thrown me into the deepest despair” after being arrested in Mallorca.

The German, 44, was held for nearly 24 hours after allegedly breaking into the home of neighbour and actor Til Schweiger - known for roles in Inglourious Basterds and Atomic Blonde - and threatening him. It reportedly ended in a brawl between the pair, and Schweiger told German media they had previously been friends but the relationship has recently deteriorated.

He said that Ullrich “had almost become a family member but when his wife left him he started taking amphetamines: he would only sleep for two hours. He’d start drinking beer at 6am and went on like that until the evening. He also told me that he had a prescription for cocaine.”

Dad for it

HIS rock star father is famous for his wild behaviour. And Gene Gallagher, 17, appears ready to follow in dad Liam’s footsteps after big sister Molly Moorish, 21, posted a snap of him smoking two cigarettes at once in Ibiza.

SHE suffered a horror crash while driving a Formula 2 stock car last month. But former Emmerdale star Roxanne Pallett, 35, appeared to be making a strong recovery during a sunshine break in Spain. The Celebrity Stars In Their Eyes winner sent temperatures soaring after slipping into a skimpy yellow bikini before hitting the pool.

SUMMER STUNNER: Roxanne Pallett.

Royal rebel!

SHE’S 38th in line to the British throne.

But Lady Amelia Windsor threw royal protocol to the wind after she went topless on a Spanish beach. The Duke of Kent’s granddaughter, 22, was snapped wearing only a pair of pink bikini bottoms as she strolled on the beach in Santa Eulalia, Ibiza, before topping up her tan on a sun lounger.

The model is holidaying on the White Isle with sister Marina, 25.

MARIA, 32, on holiday from Malaga

“Yes, I think so. There are so many cars and most of them are polluting the environment as much as ever.

“We have to do more, even with recycling, etc. The seasons are changing and it’s quite strange to see. This summer only started at the end of June, and there was a lot of rain before that.

“But the heatwaves everywhere must also be a result of climate change.

“I work in Barcelona and it reached 40 degrees recently. There is a lot of smog there too, it’s sometimes difficult to breathe. But the authorities in Barcelona are trying to make changes to respond to this. There are parts of the city that don’t allow cars through that are over 10 years old!”

Mrs Smith, 58, lives in Spain but originally from Hertfordshire

“Not really no. If you go back in history, there has been catastrophic climate change. Some of the highest temperatures ever were from times when mankind could not be blamed. I’m not saying we’re helping, but it’s not all down to humans.

amount of evidence, I’m more worried about plastics in the sea and the abuse of wildlife. Those are more important environmental issues for me.”

David and Glynis Plume, 61 and 65, on holiday from Manchester

“Yes. Everywhere is getting warmer, although the UK still gets bad winters! The reasons are all around: pollution, cars, factories. These factors are ingrained in society and so it’s not easy to change things. It will take a long time but small things can be done along the way to help.

“The developing countries are trying to catch up though and they are not willing to make the same sacrifices that developed countries are. But then we’ve had our industrial revolution so maybe they have a right to have theirs!”

Chris, 35, lives in Spain but originally from Essex

“Yes. Recycling is so important too. It’s vital for everyone to be aware of the environment and to play their part. It’s hard to see any easy solutions. I think a lot of climate change is down to transportation. Even with all the electric cars, they might reduce emissions, but they have a negative side because of all the acids that are in-involved in battery production. The factories that are used to manufacture the cars emit more toxic waste than normal cars.

“We’re never going to completely solve it, because of the lack of alternative solutions. Solar panels are too expensive and are not enough on their own.”

Anonymous, 30-ish, on holiday from Manchester

“Yes, the evidence shows that global warming has been real over the past few decades.

“The sea levels are rising, etc. We have to reduce plastics and use our own containers from home more. There was a campaign for a ‘plastic free July’ which was a good idea. People could also buy more second-hand clothes and use public transport more. Another problem is that trains are often more expensive than planes!”

Gun gang arrested

now-retired police officer who from 2002 to 2003 was responsible for collecting decommissioned firearms from colleagues.

It later emerged he had been forging documentation confirming the guns had been destroyed, and was working alongside several accomplices in a ring specialised in black market weapons and ammunition.

His girlfriend was among those arrested, while raids on nine homes in Malaga and Murcia saw 10 pistols, a carbine, three shotguns, a pen gun and 1,000 7.62-caliber military cartridges seized.

OUR VIEW

Heatwave or climate change?

THERE seems to be almost inevitability at the way in which the temperature across Europe is increasing so dramatically.

There have been heatwaves in the past, the most memorable perhaps in the UK the summer of 1976 but that was something of a freak, although 1977 also had hot periods.

This however is different as the temperatures are rising to unprecedented levels and although there is a forecast by the University of Alicante that this latest bout of hot weather has officially finished, they also believe that it will return again in September with a vengeance.

The mainstream media doesn't seem to find this particularly bothersome, although it does allow for some useful 'scorchio' headlines, but the reality seems to be that climate change is becoming more likely than ever to be the reason for this increased heat.

Many of us moved to Spain in order to enjoy the warm weather but when it becomes so hot, both day and night, that it is difficult to breathe let alone take walks; we have to sit up and take note!

For older people, the heat can be dangerous and there is also the likelihood of increased outbreaks of wildfire due to the parched undergrowth, although it appears there haven't been as many disastrous outbreaks as last year (although there is still time).

At the end of the day, please be careful during the very hot weather, keep hydrated, use sun block and if you have animals make sure that they aren't exposed to danger.

Now we want to hear your views.

Feeling supersonic

€430m research deal agreed

BRITISH tycoon Sir Richard Branson's Hyperloop One project is to build a €430 million research centre near the Costa del Sol.

The US-based start-up, which is developing a near-supersonic rail transit system, has signed a deal with Spain's government-run rail management firm ADIF to build the 19,000 square metre facility in Bobadilla, around an hour inland from Malaga.

Due to open in 2020, the centre will design and safety test components for the Hyperloop system, a shuttle that travels on magnetic rails in a tube.

It has already been tested in the US state of Nevada, where it has reached a speed of 386 kilometres per hour.

Virgin Hyperloop boss Rob Lloyd said: "By investing in the development and testing of Virgin Hyperloop One, Spain is extending its long tradition as an innovative, global transport leader.

LIGHTNING POD: Richard Branson's Hyperloop is set to top 1,000kph.

"We are excited to partner with such a forward-thinking country in developing the next generation of transportation."

ADIF added in a statement the scheme will receive €126 million in Spanish public funding and employ "250-300 high-tech skilled professionals."

It comes as Malaga continues to cement its growing reputation in the transport and logistics sector, with more than 9,000 companies employing 20,000 people based across the province.

Unveiled by Tesla chief Elon Musk in 2013, Hyperloop is eventually expected to whizz travellers between destinations at speeds of more than 1,000 kilometres per hour.

Jumping for joy

SPANIARD Cristian Valenzuela said he was "delighted" after winning the international BASE Jump EWC Ascari contest in Ronda.

The spectacular competition is now in its third year and the Barcelona-born 28-year-old bagged the trophy as the thrill-seeking contenders launched themselves into the picturesque town's famous Tajo gorge.

THE family of a man who was reported missing on the Costa del Sol have said they are 'eternally grateful' for the help they received from the expatriate community and the Euro Weekly News in tracking him down.

Jim (James) Crawford had left the Hotel Casa Consistorial in Fuengirola at 8.45am on the morning of August 2 but, at the time his brother Michael said,

Family thanks expats

"We are obviously very concerned as a family as this is very much out of character for Jim."

Speaking exclusively to the Euro Weekly News Michael confirmed, "We found Jim in Benalmadena.

"As a family, we are ecstatic but realise now Jim has a long road to go to recover mentally however he is safe with myself and my two brothers who flew out yesterday and we will take him home on Sunday night."

He added: "It was the owner of Mallones Bar, Dawn Webb, in Benalmadena who read the social media coverage and helped to narrow down his location.

"My family are eternally grateful for your help and support."

Too hot to handle

By Matt Ford, Tara Rippin and Joe Gerrard

THE death toll has risen to at least nine after Spain was gripped by a scorching heatwave.

A 40-year-old German holiday-maker walking the Camino de Santiago pilgrimage was the latest victim after he succumbed to heatstroke in the eastern region of Extremadura.

It comes after the mercury soared to 46°C in parts of the country over the weekend, just short of the all-time record of 47.3°C set in Montoro, Córdoba, last summer.

And firefighters were left battling a series of forest blazes which broke out in the wake of the sizzling conditions.

Alerts for extreme fire risk were issued across the country, with Civil Protection warning against throwing cigarette ends from vehicles or leaving rubbish, especially empty glass bottles, in the sun.

Nature scare

Two wildfires in Huelva Province, Andalucía, were eventually brought under control by more than 200 firefighters, 10 helicopters and four large capacity aeroplanes after flames ripped through forest near the tourist village of Almonaster la Real and nearby Calañas.

They followed hours after more than 1,700 hectares of land were burned in the municipality of Nerva, also close by, with police now probing whether the three incidents were the result of arson.

And a blaze near La Jonquera in the Pyrenees mountains, Cataluña, forced the closure of the border with France for several hours.

Thousands evacuated

Thousands of people were evacuated from their homes as fire ripped through the mountain range of of Llutxent in Valencia.

An estimated 1,400 hectares of forest is believed to have been destroyed in the blaze which saw 2,500 people seek refuge.

The Military Emergency Unit dispatched 120 troops, 25 vehicles, and nine aircraft, 12 forestry brigades.

The fire started in the Pujol de Llutxent area but continued to move uncontrollably northwards until it threatened the natural area of El Surar, an environmental reserve protected for its ecological wealth.

WALL OF FLAMES: A firefighter surveys the wildfire in Llutxent.

Panic in Portugal

Hundreds of firefighters were deployed in the Algarve to tackle a wildfire which spread towards the Spanish border.

At least 740 firefighters, 12 aircraft and 122 vehicles headed to the Sierra de Monchique to tackle the blaze which broke out last Friday and remained out of control five days later, with smoke clouding the skies of beaches packed with sunbathers.

Spain sent two large aircraft to help Portuguese emergency services fight the fire and unconfirmed reports on Monday placed the number of personnel on the ground at more than 1,000.

The blaze later spread near to the towns of Tavira and Vila Real de Santo Antonio, both of which lie near Portugal's border with Huelva.

At least 29 people were injured and several firefighters received medical attention for exposure to heat and smoke.

RISK TO LIFE: Flames approach houses in Monchique.

Council sex claim

A CONSERVATIVE councillor from Algeciras is being probed on suspicion of harassing her ex-husband's lawyer.

Laura Ruiz, a member of the Partido Popular and chief of education, fisheries and the environment in the city near Gibraltar, has been accused of posting the alleged victim's telephone number on a website offering paid sex to gay men.

But she has strenuously denied the claims and says she is herself the target of a smear campaign.

Investigators confirmed she will be quizzed over the allegations in the next few days, although she is not expected to be charged at this stage.

It comes after the unnamed solicitor reported he had been bombarded with calls from men seeking male prostitutes.

And detectives reportedly found the advert offering the service was linked to a computer used by Ruiz, who has been locked in a legal battle with her former partner.

She said in a statement: "I am innocent and hope the situation will be clarified as soon as possible.

"It is not the first time this year he has gone to the media, having been unable to demonstrate the facts on earlier occasions," she added, although she did not specify the reports in question.

Ruiz has previously been slammed by city mayor Jose Ignacio Landaluce, a member of her own party, after being spotted illegally walking her dog without a lead.

'I AM INNOCENT': Laura Ruiz has denied the allegations.

TWO barefooted North African men suffering from exhaustion have been rescued eight nautical miles off the Costa del Sol after spending four days adrift on a jet ski, maritime rescue confirmed.

PROSECUTORS in Granada have been urged to probe claims that arms and explosives have been illegally shipped from Motril to Saudi Arabia three times this year.

The leftist Motril En Comun group and the regionalist Nacion Andaluza party have both called on authorities to investigate the shipments and halt them if the allegations prove true.

The groups claimed the shipping of military weapons from the port broke several Spanish and European regulations. They have requested further shipments be stopped if an investigation is opened.

The first of this year's ships, the Bahri Hofuf, left Motril's port in February laden with explosives and ammunition made at a Granada arms factory.

The Bahri Jazan left two months later and a third ship set out on June 26. All were bound for the Saudi port of Yeddah, the groups claimed.

The allegations come as Amnesty International called on Spain and other countries to cease arms shipments to Saudi Arabia earlier this year.

The NGO claimed the weapons were being used to target civilians in the ongoing Yemini Civil War which Saudi Arabia has intervened in.

Summer gala dinner & musical 2018 in Puente Romano

ON Thursday, August 16, Puente Romano has the pleasure to host its yearly charity Summer Gala in aid of World Vision organisation.

This year's gala will be slightly different than all previous five years, due to the fact the location has been changed from Sea Grill to El Chiringuito Marbella.

The gala will feature a great mix of International artists; targeted for different age groups and musical preferences. The line up on the night will feature Las Vegas Showgirls performance, band Midnight Workout, live from Trevis, DJ Roger Sanchez and as a special guest 90's Eurodance group Snap!

World Vision is the charity specifically chosen by Daniel Shamon, owner of Puente Romano. It is the world's largest international children's charity, working to bring real hope to millions of children in the world's hardest places.

Every year the gala helps to fund a different project. This year's project is to save children from preventable diseases around the world.

The reality is that there are many children living in fear of catching preventable diseases and are lacking access to basic essential healthcare. World Vision is continuing to work alongside families in Somalia to fight the spread of tuberculosis - one of the leading causes of death in the country.

Families across Sudan continue to struggle to feed their children and access nutritious food. This leaves children especially vulnerable to diseases and malnutrition, including stunting and wasting. World Vision is working in partnership with the Ministry of Health to provide screening and treatment for malnourished children under five years of age.

The goal of the Summer Gala is to raise funds needed to ensure the vital work of healthcare continues. The gala begins at 8.30pm in El Chiringuito with cocktail and canapés prepared by internationally acknowledged Nobu restaurant. Once guests are seated the gala dinner commences, the four-course meal is prepared by Puente Romano's award-winning chef Thomas Stork and served with a selection of wines from the Puente Romano's acclaimed sommelier.

As a good tradition, the evening will host a charity raffle with a huge variety of gifts where all profits will be given to the charity. The night will end by the sea with spectacular fireworks. The party will continue in La Suite with Roger Sanchez party Under the Radr.

This year's event is supported by Solvilla, Lis Melgarejo, Neuhaus Jewellery, Antima, Eladio, Blackshaw Interior Design, Virginia florist, Guearnerie, Julio Carrasco, Gray Goose and Monkey Club.

A BRITISH holidaymaker who plummeted from a Mallorca hotel balcony while having a poo has discharged himself from hospital to avoid a €600 fine.

The unnamed 25-year-old is believed to have fallen from the sixth floor of the TRH Magaluf and landed on an interior patio.

And local reports suggest he checked himself out of island capital Palma's Son Espases hospital two days later without receiving the all-clear from medics.

He reportedly lost his balance after dropping his trousers and squatting over the edge of the balcony, and faced a €600 fine for doing so.

Police confirmed he was 'seriously injured' in the wake of the accident after photos of him lying on the ground appeared in a Spanish newspaper.

And distressing video footage shows a tourist thought to be a friend or relative breaking down in tears after arriving at the scene.

He can be heard shouting "no, no, no" before a blonde woman appears to comfort him and the pair are led away by a police officer.

The state of his health remains unclear after he vanished from hospital, with a Calvia Council statement suggesting he suffered a broken kneecap.

British holidaymaker Andrew Rhys Phillips was last May hospitalised after falling from the first floor at the same hotel.

And Irish teen Padraig Morgan was last week left fighting for his life after plunging from a second-floor balcony at the Hotel Apartments Deya in Santa Ponsa.

The 18-year-old from West Belfast hurt his hip and spine and medics said he had been admitted to intensive care at Palma's Son Espases Hospital.

The accidents are the latest in a spate of balcony falls involving British and Irish tourists in Mallorca this year, in which seven people have died.

A RYANAIR pilot found dead at a Spanish airport is thought to have committed suicide.

It comes after Captain Jouke Schrale, 45, failed to turn up for a short-haul flight from Malaga to Brussels.

The Dutchman, who lived in Mijas on the Costa del Sol and was known to friends as Jake, reportedly died in his vehicle in a staff car park.

The 8.30am flight was delayed for hours while a replacement pilot was organised.

A well-placed source told UK media: "He'd never missed a flight in 15 years and so people knew something must be wrong."

An official from the budget Irish airline said: said:

Shotgun bandits held

TWO men have been arrested accused of a string of violent armed robberies.

Guardia Civil started an operation after four petrol stations in Granada had been held up by shotgun-wielding robbers.

They were described as 'very dangerous' after they beat several service station employees in the course of their raids.

To commit the robberies they first stole vehicles by holding up their drivers at knifepoint, before using them in their criminal activities.

On July 21, two robbers struck at a petrol station on the Jucaril de Albolote industrial estate.

The masked robbers held up three shop assistants with a sawn-off shotgun and a pistol, hitting one of them on the head before getting away with €6,500 in a stolen car.

Then on the afternoon of July 26, three more robberies were committed, by a lone knifeman riding a stolen moped.

He threatened to stab the petrol station attendants before getting away with a total of about €1,250.

Using descriptions given by witnesses police were able to identify one suspect. Police subsequently arrested two men aged 18 and 19 and are searching for a 43-year-old man for questioning.

Scooter pulled

GUARDIA CIVIL officers have pulled over a man near Mijas after he was caught driving on the motorway on a disability scooter.

Police claimed the man was spotted at kilometre 206 of the motorway travelling in the direction of Marbella at speeds of around 10 kilometres per hour.

They were called out after a number of witnesses alerted emergency services at about 8.40am last Thursday.

Officers said the speeds were putting other drivers in 'serious danger.' No accidents were caused as a result of the scooter, they added.

A patrol had previously spotted the man near the Bil-Bil castle near Benalmadena. Officers did not stop the man then as he was driving on the pavement, police said.

Refugee camp opens

New arrivals flood coast as populism fears grow

By Joe Gerrard

SPAIN'S Interior Ministry has opened a temporary refugee camp in the Algeciras area to house the growing number of migrants arriving in Spain.

It comes after Spanish Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez said his government will set up a command centre to coordinate Madrid's response to the increasing influx of Africans crossing the Strait of Gibraltar into Spain.

The site, set up on a field in Crinavis near San Roque in Cadiz Province, is set to house migrants arriving at three ports in the province.

It comes as European Union (EU) officials said the handling of the migrant situation could fuel a rise in anti-immigration political populism.

The first 442 people arrived at the camp last Saturday. The facility, which has beds, toilets and showers, can house a maximum of 600 people for 72 hours.

Jose Medina, a migrant co-ordinator, said the camp would shelter people rescued and taken to Tarifa, Barbate and Algeciras.

The facility is set to take in 400 people every 24 hours as those who complete their 72-hour stay leave, Medina added.

MIGRANT CRISIS: New arrivals queue at Algeciras port and (inset) the new camp at nearby Crinavis.

Pepe Villahoz, of the Acoge immigration advocacy group, said they were concerned by the uncertainty arrivals faced.

"Protocols to deal with migrants have never been established and resources have not been allocated to solve the issue," Villahoz said.

The opening of the camp follows a pledge from European Union member states to set up migrant reception centres at June's Paris summit.

The new facility also comes as EU officials said they would support Spain on migration.

Dimitri Avramopoulos, the EU Commissioner for Migration, said during his Madrid visit last Friday that Spain would receive additional resources to address the issue.

"Spain has the full support of the European Commission in dealing with the increased arrivals along the western Mediterranean Sea route," he said. EU officials are concerned the Spanish electorate could be wooed by politicians standing on radical anti-immigration platforms.

The officials reportedly fear a rerun of populist parties including the far right La Liga in Italy being elected and the success of others in Austria and elsewhere.

"At the moment, we cannot afford to lose Spain," one unnamed senior EU official reportedly said.

Pablo Casado, the new leader of the conservative Partido Popular (PP), has begun moving his party to the right on migration.

He recently claimed Spain could not accommodate the 'millions' of people arriving on its southern frontier.

The far right Vox political party also organised a meeting in Algeciras on Wednesday to address what they claimed was a migrant 'invasion.'

Sergio Carrera, of the Centre for European Policy Studies (CEPS) think tank, said the Spanish government had the right approach to the issue. "The response of the Spanish government has been correct, putting the figures in perspective and showing that we are not facing a crisis," he said.

Many of the migrants are refugees fleeing war, conflict and poverty in sub-Saharan Africa. More than 23,000 migrants have arrived in Spain so far this year, according to statistics from the United Nations.

DEADLY? Nolotil.

Painkiller ‘killing Brits’

RESEARCH has shown that at least 10 Britons have died after taking one of Spain’s most popular painkillers, Nolotil, which is banned in the UK.

In addition, more than 100 British and Irish expatriates and tourists in Spain have suffered devastating side effects after taking the drug.

The medicines regulator in Spain confirmed last Saturday that it had launched an investigation into concerns that northern Europeans may be more at risk of side effects from Nolotil.

The painkiller has not been licensed in many countries, including the United States, Britain and Sweden, because of a possible side effect which can lead to blood poisoning and death.

Dr Rashmi Shah, a former senior clinical assessor at the Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency, London, said: “We have known for a long time that because of genetic differences, people from particular ethnic groups can have higher probability of risk or benefit from certain medicines.

The regulators, therefore, require analysis of safety and efficacy data by population, gender and age.”

The Spanish Agency of Medicines and Medical Devices said it was gathering more evidence on the cases.

Boehringer Ingelheim, the manufacturer of Nolotil, responded in a statement:

“We take very seriously every case where a patient suffers an adverse event.

“Nolotil must not be given without a prescription. There is no scientific evidence on specific populations that are prone to develop any side effects.”

Hunt is on PSOE tops election poll

A PREDICTIVE drawing of a suspected child rapist thought to be living in Alicante Province has been released by British police.

Officers in Derbyshire want to question Neil Jackson in connection with the indecent assault and rape of a young girl.

The only photograph available for a BBC Crimewatch 'most wanted' appeal was taken a number of years ago, so an artists' impression was created in the hope it will better resemble the now 62-year-old Jackson.

He has a number of tattoos on his left arm and back, including his own name, and while he has many connections to Spain, Derbyshire Constabulary suspect Jackson may be in Alicante.

Anybody with information is asked to call Crimestoppers on the Spanish overseas number 900 555 111.

DATED: Old photograph of suspected child rapist Neil Jackson.

SUPPORT SURGE: Pedro Sanchez's party would win an early election according to pollsters.

by Joe Gerrad

THE results of an opinion survey have found that Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez's left-leaning Partido Socialista (PSOE) would win a general election if one is called early.

The poll, from the Sociological Research Centre (CIS), found that almost 30 per cent of its respondents would vote for PSOE in an early election. The party came to power two months ago following a no confidence motion.

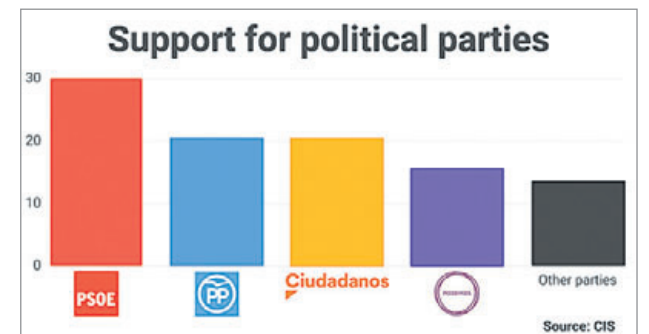

Adriana Lastra, the party's spokesperson in the Congress of Deputies, said it was the first time since 2009 that the PSOE had topped the survey.

The poll placed the conservative Partido Popular (PP), who were ousted from government following the motion, second with 20.4 per cent of respondents backing them. They came joint second with the centrist Ciudadanos party.

A total of 15.6 per cent of those surveyed said they would vote for the leftist anti-austerity Podemos party in the CIS's latest quarterly survey.

The previous quarterly survey, released in April, placed the PSOE second with 22 per cent of respondents backing them. The PP, in government at the time, came first with 24 per cent.

There are currently 84 PSOE members in the Congress of Deputies, Spain's lower house of parliament, out of 350 lawmakers. The party has 62 out of 266 seats in the Senate, making it the government with the smallest minority in Spain's democratic history.

The poll was taken shortly before the PP chose Pablo Casado to succeed predecessor, and former prime minister, Mariano Rajoy.

Casado stood on a platform of moving the party to the right on a number of issues including abortion and migration. He also floated banning independence parties such as those in Cataluña in a bid to thwart their independence ambitions.

The new PP leader met with Sanchez in Madrid at his official residence of La Moncloa on Wednesday.

The results of the poll come as the PSOE marked two months since they toppled the PP government on Wednesday.

The party came to power after the then ruling PP became embroiled in the Gurtel corruption scandal.

The motion passed with 180 votes in favour and 169 against, after Sanchez secured the backing of regionalist parties.

The PP became the first party to be ousted by a no confidence motion since Spain transitioned to democracy in the late 1970's.

‘Wolfpack’ member jailed

IN COURT: Angel Boza appeared before Sevilla’s Court of Instruction Number 16 yesterday.

A COURT in Sevilla has remanded Angel Boza, the youngest member of the La Manada (‘Wolfpack’ in English) gang, in custody without bail after he was charged with attempted robbery.

Boza, 26, was arrested in Sevilla on Thursday. He stands accused of attempting to steal a pair of sunglasses worth almost €200 and of trying to run over two security guards.

Agustin Martinez, the lawyer acting for Boza, called on justices not to add more bail conditions to ones previously handed down by Navarra’s Superior Court of Justice.

The Navarra court bailed

Boza and the four other men convicted of sexually assaulting an 18-year-old woman at Pamplona’s San Fermin festival pending an appeal.

“The conditions connected with the Pamplona case were strictly observed. It would not make sense for them to be expanded,” Martinez said.

UNITED: Women in Malaga marched to protest against sexual assault.

Spanish rape cases up

by Matt Ford

THE number of rapes reported in Spain has soared by 28.5 per cent.

In the first six months of the year, 788 official complaints were made about the offence compared to 613 in the same period of 2017.

In total there were 6,519 sexual crimes reported, a 14.4 per cent increase. This pushed the overall crime rate up 2.7 per cent.

By contrast, homicide and murder cases fell by 3.3 per cent to a total of 146, while attempted homicide and murder complaints fell 17.3 per cent to 354.

Vehicle theft dropped nearly 20 per cent from 22,055 cases to 17,681.

The biggest increase in crime came in Cataluña (12.7 per cent) and the Basque Country (5.9 per cent), while it decreased in Andalusia (-2.8 per cent), Aragon (-3.4 per cent) and Canary Islands (-4.8 per cent).

Bleach attack charge

A WOMAN in her 60's has been jailed for killing her friend with bleach fumes after an attack of extreme violence in Alfafar, Valencia.

A jury heard how the two sextagenarians were in the bathroom of the victim's home when an argument exploded into extreme violence.

Harsh words led to the victim pushing her friend - an act that would lead to her own death.

A red mist descended on the killer, who knocked the victim to the floor, snatched up a porcelain toilet brush and hit the woman over the head with it so hard it snapped.

Stunned and by now helpless, the victim then had her head repeatedly smashed against the edge of a bathtub.

The killer then sprayed the unconscious woman's wounds with bleach before closing the bathroom door due to the strong fumes - an act which would finish the victim off.

Emergency services were called by the aggressor's son, but they were unable to save the woman who died in the ambulance on the way to hospital due to fluid in the lungs and brain, which was caused by a lack of oxygen and the bleach fumes.

Judges at a Valencia court jailed the unnamed aggressor for 15 years after applying a reduction for the killer's full confession.

Sex attack rap

HOLIDAY HORROR: The alleged assault took place in Arona.

By Matt Ford

A MOROCCAN man has been held in Valencia in connection with the sexual assault on a British OAP in Tenerife.

The 25-year-old is suspected of violating the unnamed victim, 74, during a break in at a holiday apartment on the holiday island.

He has reportedly been remanded in custody ahead of a court appearance following his arrest in the city's Plaza del Mercado.

A police statement said: "National Police officers have arrested a 25-year-old Moroccan man in Valencia on suspicion of a sex attack and robbery in Tenerife."

"He allegedly got into an apartment in Arona via the balcony in May and sexually attacked a 74-year-old British woman before taking her belongings.

"He was arrested in Valencia and has been handed over to the courts."

"The incident in question took place on May 13 at apartments in a tourist part of Arona."

"The woman victim was staying at the apartments."

Tot mauled

A GIRL aged two is in hospital after being mauled by an American Staffordshire terrier.

She was visiting the dog's owner with her family when the animal turned on her and bit her on the cheek.

The girl was treated locally in Massamagrel before being transferred to the Hospital Clinico de Valencia. According to hospital sources she had been kept in but her condition is 'evolving favourably.'

The owner of the dog, a man aged 27, is being investigated for a crime of injury, while the dog has been taken to an animal shelter in El Puig. There it remains in quarantine until a judge determines its fate.

Graffiti sparks outrage

AUTHORITIES at the Cathedral of Santiago de Compostela have spoken out after arriving at the holy site to find a statue covered in graffiti mimicking the American rock band Kiss.

Vandals are believed to have targeted the statue, which dates from the 12th century, at the cathedral which is part of a UNESCO World Heritage Site. The building is located in the Galicia region.

The city council said workers arrived at the holy building to find the statue defaced last Monday. The sculpture is located on one of the building's facades and those responsible remained at large yesterday (Thursday).

Martin Noriega, Santiago's mayor, said on Twitter the graffiti was an attack on the city's heritage and on its citizens.

"It shows a lack of civility and respect," the mayor said.

Pictures of the statue showed its face covered with graffiti which mimicked the make-up of Kiss drummer Peter Criss, also known by his stage name 'The Catman.' The vandal also scrawled the band's name on a document the figure is holding.

Roman Rodriguez, Galicia's culture spokesperson, said the graffiti was a "barbarity" and a cultural attack.

"Penalties for such actions can range from €6,000 to €150,000," he said.

SAINT AND SINNER: The graffiti was found last Monday.

Daniel Lorenzo, the director of the cathedral's foundation, said workers had begun cleaning the statue last Monday.

The Cathedral of Santiago de Compostela is believed to be the burial place of St James, one of Jesus Christ's 12 apostles.

The site marks the traditional end of the Way of St James pilgrimage route and thousands visit it and the city every year.

Mayor Noriega said the city was very open and tolerant towards visitors but added it would not tolerate the vandalising of its historical sites.

Kiss were formed in New York City in 1973. They went on to score hits with the songs such as Love Gun and Crazy Crazy Nights.

Drug driver kills

TWO cyclists were killed and two others injured following a collision with a car driven by a drug driver in the north of Spain.

An 18-year-old man was arrested at the scene and has since been charged with reckless driving and driving under the influence of narcotics as well as causing the death of the two cyclists, thought to be aged between 50 and 60.

Two other riders, who were cycling with the victims, were slightly injured having been rammed by the same vehicle on the T-310 at Tarrogonia on Sunday.

The Catalan Traffic Service believes the driver swerved into the opposite lane, 'overwhelming' the group of cyclists, and causing the instant death of two of them.

Flying the flag

MORE than a dozen umbrellas and towels in the colours of the Spanish flag were displayed on a beach in Barcelona in what is believed to be a peaceful protest.

The items remained in place on the sands of Arenys de Mar for two hours, in a supposed response to the placement of crosses and yellow ties on the Catalan coast.

Court to weigh leader claims

SPAIN'S Supreme Court is set to decide on whether to hear a case in connection with allegations that the leader of the conservative Partido Popular (PP) wrongfully gained a degree.

Judge Carmen Rodriguez-Medel, an investigative judge in Madrid, has referred the case to Supreme Court justices after finding signs of wrongdoing over a regional law masters awarded to Pablo Casado.

The PP leader got the degree from the University of King Juan Carlos' Public Law Institute in Madrid in 2009.

Casado said there was no evidence he was guilty of the charges.

"What they've done to me, they haven't done to anyone else in this country or in any other country. I am not under investigation by any court and there is no evidence of guilt against me," he said.

Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez, of the governing left-leaning Partido Socialista (PSOE), said the PP leader owed the Spanish people 'explanations' over the allegations.

Casado has admitted that he did not attend classes at the Public Law Institute. He added he did not sit exams or present his dissertation.

The university waived 18 out of 22 modules as he already had a law degree from Madrid's Complutense University. He was required to produce four papers which are now subject to an investigation.

Judge Rodriguez-Medel's court said it could not hear the case as Casado is protected by immunity laws for public officials. The Supreme Court will decide whether the case can go ahead in light of the immunity status.

Casado was a regional deputy when he obtained the degree. This means he could have a case to answer over accepting gifts offered based on his public position and for abetting illegal decisions from civil servants.

The probe comes as Cristina Cifuentes, the PP President of the Madrid region, was forced to resign in April after facing allegations she falsified her degree. Casado was elected as leader of the PP on July 21.

Double drowning woe

TWO people drowned within minutes of each other in two separate incidents on the Costa Blanca.

The first casualty, a 75-year-old woman, died while swimming in the sea at Muntanyar beach in Javea.

Emergency services arrived at the scene but could not revive her.

Minutes later, a 60-year-old got into trouble and drowned in the Jose Trenzano municipal pool in Alcoy. Again, emergency services were unable to assist and could only confirm the death.

As of July 31 this year, there have been 184 cases of people drowning in public aquatic spaces in Spain.

Figures show that 58 people lost their lives in public swimming areas in July alone.

Ex-ETA boss freed

by Joe Gerrard

A FORMER head of the Basque nationalist ETA terror group has been released from a Salamanca prison after being behind bars for 31 years on a string of murder convictions.

Santiago Arrospeide Saradola, also known as Santi

Potros, was pictured walking out of Topas prison last Sunday at around 8.15am. He was accompanied by three family members and did not stop to make a statement to reporters.

Potros was found guilty of being behind some 40 killings which resulted from ETA attacks he helped to plan. He served 13 years of his sentence in France and 18 in Spain and was originally jailed for 70 years.

Attacks included one in Madrid's Plaza de la Republica Dominicana in 1986 and another at the Hipercor shopping centre in Barcelona which left some 21 people dead in 1987.

Groups including the Association of the Victims of Terrorism (AVT) have said they are concerned Potros could receive a hero's welcome from supporters when he returns to the Basque Country.

Carmen Ladron de Guevara, an AVT lawyer, said psychologists with the group would be monitoring victims of ETA attacks who were most likely to be affected by his release.

The Collective of Victims of Terrorism (COVITE) said on Twitter that the release made Sunday a day to remember victims of the group's attacks.

Fernando Grande-Marlaska, Spain's Interior Minister, said the government would be monitoring the situation.

"If there is a crime which constitutes the glorification of terrorism or contempt for its victims then that is what the state security forces are there for," Grande-Marlaska said.

Potros first joined the ETA in 1968 and was arrested in France in 1987 on 11 charges in connection with the group's attacks.

ETA, or Euskadi Ta

Askatasuna (Basque Homeland and Liberty), was established in 1959 in the Basque region of northern Spain and southern France.

It morphed from a group promoting Basque culture, language and traditions into a paramilitary organisation dedicated to achieving independence for the region by violent means.

It wound up its operations after announcing it had given up its weapons and ceased activities earlier this year.

Several countries have listed the group as a terrorist organisation and more than 820 people, including 340 civilians, were killed during its attacks. More than 300 of its members are in prison in Spain, France and elsewhere.

Urgent recall

Durex warns of faulty condoms

DUREX has issued an urgent recall of its Real Feel condoms in Spain amid fears they could split during sex.

The firm says the 12-pack contraceptives are failing to meet its 'stringent shelf-life durability tests.'

A total of 14 batches due to expire between December 2020 and February 2021 are affected.

In a statement posted on its website the company said: "The safety of our consumers always comes first, and this is reflected in our rigorous quality standards.

"We recently found that a limited number of the above condoms made earlier this year are not passing our stringent shelf-life durability tests.

"Our tests have shown that some batches which are currently on the market in the UK and Ireland do not pass the requirements for burst pressure towards the end of the shelf life for the product.

"The expiry date of the affected batches is between December 2020 and February 2021.

"Our condoms are intended to provide a method of contraception and prevent the transmission of sexually transmitted infections (STIs) through a non-latex barrier that offers a benefit to consumers sensitive to latex.

"Only for the batches of condoms affected by this issue, there could be an increase in the number of condoms that burst during application or use.

"Always read the label which states 'Should a condom leak or burst during use, seek doctor or pharmacist assistance as soon as possible, at least within 72 hrs.'

"There is no immediate safety concern for consumers and only a limited number of batches are affected.

"However, working closely with the relevant regulatory authorities we have decided to recall the following Durex Real Feel and Durex Latex Free batches."

BREAKING POINT: 14 batches have been recalled.

The Health Products Regulatory Authority is advising people to check the bottom of the outer pack and on the foil wrapping to see if they have one of the affected products. They said: "Reckitt Benckiser recently became aware that a number of Durex Real Feel 'Latex-Free' and Durex Latex Free Polyisoprene condoms manufactured in 2018 do not pass the requirements for burst pressure towards the end of the shelf life for the product.

"The expiry date of the affected batches is between December 2020 and February 2021.

"There could be an increase in the number of condoms that burst during application or use for the batches of condoms affected by this issue. "A recall of the affected batch numbers has been initiated by Reckitt Benckiser."

The batches being recalled are:

Parents slam authorities

THE parents of an 18-year-old teenager who fell 70 feet to his death in Magaluf have said they were ‘devastated’ by the lack of support offered by UK authorities.

Thomas Channon, fell over a knee-high wall at the Eden Roc complex in Mallorca last month.

Parents Ceri and John Channon said it was their son’s friends who told them what had happened, not officers who said they were unable to tell them the exact cause of death.

The Foreign Office said it was assisting the family.

South Wales Police said its officers had attended the family home at the request of the Foreign Office, but were not investigating the circumstances of Mr Channon’s death ‘as this falls within the jurisdiction of the Spanish authorities.’

SAFETY ISSUE: Thomas was the third Brit to die at the same Eden Roc complex this year.

During an interview with the BBC, John Channon praised the police officers themselves, but said he and his wife were left without ‘any proper support’ following their visit.

“It was only then that we discovered that there would be no support officer or liaison officer,” he said.

“We realised the process of support only exists if [the death] happens in this country.

“What we needed was someone to come and sit with Ceri, who was broken, and help us deal with all these horrific administrative issues,” he added.

The couple said that when the officers left they were still no further forward in finding out what had happened.

“Was it on a beach, boat trip, heart attack? We had no information at all,” said Mrs Channon, adding: “We waited four hours. In that time I found out via Tom’s friends.”

Poisoned Brit teen discharged

Credit: JustGiving.com

POISONED: Callum was kept in intensive care.

By Dilip Kuner

A BRITISH teenager who was left fighting for his life in a Spanish hospital after being poisoned with pesticide has left hospital.

Callum Forster, aged 17, and his stepdad Jamie Hadland, 24, were rushed to Torrevieja hospital after they both started feeling unwell after a family night out.

Callum had suffered 10 seizures, and the duo were both put into intensive care. They were heavily sedated to avoid seizures, but within a few days Jamie was well enough to be discharged.

However Callum remained seriously ill for a further 10 days, with tests showing both men had strong pesticide in their blood streams.

It is not known how they came to swallow the poison.

They arrived in Spain for a family holiday alongside Callum’s mum, Helen Forster, 36, and younger brother Brandon, 12.

Now the entire family is staying in Villamartin on the Costa Blanca until Callum is well enough to return home to Leeds.

Family friend Jane Rapier set up a crowdfunding page to help them pay the costs of their extended stay. So far it has raised more than €3,000, with Helen thanking everyone who helped.

Reporter death vow

A NEWS organisation head has said he will make efforts to identify those who killed three reporters working for him in Africa.

Mikhail Khodorkovsky's comments follow the deaths of Orhan Dzhemal, Alexander Rastorguyev and Kirill Radchenko in the Central African Republic. They were reporting on Russian mercenaries, Khodorkovsky added.

Prison torture trials

SEVERAL Russian prison guards have been found guilty of ignoring the beating and torture of inmates after an abuse video sparked an outcry. The convictions, including three at a Magadan court in Russia's Far East, come as the Federal Prison Service said it would inspect prisons and probe the allegations.

Band members freed

FOUR jailed members of a rock band have been released after being arrested for storming the pitch during the World Cup final last month. Pussy Riot's Nika Nikushina, Olya Pahtusova, Olya Juracheva and Petya Verzilov were freed before being arrested again, held for another day and let go, their lawyer said.

Back to nature

MATT FORD, the long-serving editor of the Euro Weekly News, is set to leave the company to join a European-wide nature conservation project.

Matt, a biologist by trade, first joined EWN in April 2016 as a translator.

He soon climbed the ranks of the editorial team before being chosen to sit in the editor's chair in March last year.

Matt said he had thoroughly enjoyed working at the paper but added he could not pass up on the opportunity to return to his field and passion.

"It's been great working at EWN. I never would have imagined I would end up editing a newspaper," he said.

Matt said he first moved to Spain in 2008 and later undertook a Biology masters at the University of Barcelona. He later moved to Andalucia with his partner after she found out she was going to have a baby.

Matt soon found himself working as a reporter for EWN and following his appointment as editor he received extensive training from a former journalist.

"I was very lucky to have that. I'd written before for magazines and conservation science websites but that training turned me into a journalist.

"Once I had that grounding I enjoyed it. It gave me an insight into the journalism profession, into newspapers and into the expatriate community," he added.

Matt said highlights for him included working on a campaign for the family of a child who passed away in Almeria and following the ongoing Kirsty Maxwell case.

"I got the most of out of working on stories like that," he said.

Matt has now hung up his reporter's notepad and pen and is preparing to relocate to the German capital Berlin where he will join a PhD conservation research programme.

He will be working at the Leibniz Institute of Freshwater Ecology with leading scientists in the field of conservation biology while partially based at Cambridge University's David Attenborough building for stints with the International Union for Conservation of Nature, the global authority on the status of the natural world.

"The reason this project was created was to assess the European Union's ability to meet conservation targets set by the United Nations.

"It's been great working at EWN. I never would have imagined I would end up editing a newspaper"

"The work I and others will be doing will go on to influence government policy, in my case with fishes in rivers and fresh water areas. Those areas are arguably our most important natural resources," Matt said.

The PhD comes on the back of Matt's lifelong passion for nature. "The chance to do this is a dream come true for me. I have always had a passion for nature and I remember drawing pictures of birds and animals from being a small child. I'm basically a nature geek.

"I care about it a lot especially because many species are dying out and largely due to humans. If we don't take genuine action soon we will be in big trouble," he said.

Matt said he would take the skills he had picked up as a journalist with him into his Biology work.

"I'll never forget the people I've worked with. EWN has prepared me to take on any challenge and I want to thank everyone for the opportunity.

"Spain is a wonderful place to live but I will be back and be sure to pick up the EWN for a read.

"Anyone can achieve these things if they believe in themselves."

bet365 swoop on footy clubs

BRITISH gambling firm bet365 has been accused of 'colonising' Spain's La Liga in the wake of a dramatic sponsorship swoop.

It comes as the Stoke-on-Trent based company announced new sponsorship deals with half of the country's top flight football clubs.

The agreements run until 2020, and will see the betting brand's logo appear on the websites, coaches, facilities including stadiums, at press conferences, and social networks of Athletic de Bilbao, Betis, Celta, Eibar, Español, Getafe, Huesca, Rayo Vallecano, Valladolid and Villarreal.

Anti-corruption boss on trial

THE chief of a Spanish anti-corruption group is to stand trial for extortion.

Miguel Bernad, founder of Manos Limpias (Clean Hands), and Luis Pineda, who set up Ausbanc, a legal support service for bank clients, are also accused of fraud and membership of a criminal organisation, according to a National Court statement.

They are suspected of demanding large sums of money from companies, institutions and individuals in exchange for withdrawing criminal cases they had lodged against them.

Manos Limpias filed hundreds of lawsuits after being created by Bernad, a prominent figure within the Spanish far right.

They include the indictment of judge Baltasar Garzon, who investigated crimes against humanity by the Franco regime, and accusing Spanish King Felipe VI's younger sister Princess Cristina of tax evasion in a corruption scandal surrounding her husband's business practices.

During the high-profile trial, the defence team claimed Manos Limpias had requested a bribe be paid to drop the allegations, but her lawyers refused.

She was in 2016 cleared of all charges, but partner Inaki Urdangarin was convicted of diverting public funds for his own gain via the non-profit Noos Institute and was sentenced to five years and 10 months behind bars.

Virginia Lopez, the lawyer representing Manos Limpias in the trial, and seven other people connected to the case have also been accused of extortion in the alleged plot.

Prosecutors have reportedly requested a 118-year jail sentence for Pineda, seen as the ringleader, more than 24 years for Bernad and 12 years for Lopez.

Tax vow sparks diesel decline

SALES of diesel cars plummeted across Spain in July.

The plunge followed Prime Minister Pedro Sanchez's government pledging to slash the existing 30 per cent gap between diesel and petrol taxes. And Energy and Environment Minister Teresa Ribera recently told parliament: "Diesel's days are numbered." While new car sales saw a 19 per cent year-on-year rise over the course of the month, diesel sales dropped by 31 per cent, according to trade association ANFAC.

'No blank cheque' in F1 renewal deal

SPANISH HAM: Brit hero Lewis has won in Barcelona for the past two years.

LAWMAKERS in Cataluña regional say they will not be held to ransom by Formula 1 over the Spanish Grand Prix.

The current contract for the annual race at the Circuit de Barcelona-Cataluña expires next year, but renewal talks have been delayed due to political instability in the northern region. "The regional government is of course looking to extend the contract, but obviously not at just any price," said Enterprise Minister Angels Chacon during an interview. "F1 cannot be a blank cheque."

And she added the new deal must be strongly linked to the circuit's new 'viability plan,' after the track last year suffered losses of €7.4 million, much of which was linked to the Grand Prix weekend.

Spanish pilots to sue

SPANISH pilots' union SEPLA has revealed it is suing Irish budget airline Ryanair in a dispute over contracts.

The organisation said in a statement it has filed a lawsuit with the country's High Court, adding: "After a year of negotiations, the failure of Ryanair to recognise Sepla and apply Spanish labour legislation for the pilots who operate in Spain forces the union to take a legal path to attain this objective." SEPLA represents around 500 of 800 Ryanair pilots in Spain, and although the carrier agreed to recognise unions for the first time last December it has struggled to strike deals, leading to strikes across Europe.

Why plan for your funeral?

- It allows you to consider alternatives and make decisions concerning your funeral in your own time.
- You will feel better knowing your affairs are in order and your wishes will be carried out as planned.
- You will have peace of mind knowing your final wishes will be lifted from the shoulders of your family and friends.
- You relieve your family from the financial burden of your funeral.

Is my money safe?

Yes. When you pre-plan with Golden Leaves, the funds are placed in the Golden Leaves Trust. The trust is managed by an independent board of trustees. Their role is to ensure that funds are available to cover the cost of every pre-paid funeral whenever it occurs.

What happens if the cost of a funeral increases?

However much the actual costs of your funeral rise, you will still get exactly what you've planned and paid for.

Is there an age limit or health restrictions?

Whatever your age, there's no medical or health restrictions with a Golden Leaves Funeral Plan.

"I would recommend contacting Golden Leaves and taking out a funeral plan to anyone."

L. Musgrove

If you would like more detailed information about all your options, please call 8000 98309 or alternatively, email info@goldenleavesinternational.com

Did you know?

Our prepaid funeral plans:

- Offer flexible payment options
- Do not require a health check or questionnaire
- Include conveyance of the deceased in mainland Spain

Is ruling a threat to democracy?

LEAPY LEE SAYS IT

OTHERS THINK IT

LAST week's decision to accept a sharia law ruling into a British court, is yet another highly predictable nail in the crumbling coffin of both Christianity and western culture.

The fact that it seemed quite a fair and reasonable sharia rule simply has nothing to do with it.

The high court decided that a wife, married 20 years ago in an Islamic ceremony at a Southall restaurant, should be valid and recognised because 'their vows had similar expectations of a British marriage contract.'

This highly irresponsible and frighteningly naive decision, particularly when these wholly illegal courts are springing up all over the UK, is setting such a dangerous precedent as to be almost suicidal for British democracy and laws of the land.

You can't pick and choose which laws of an alien culture you agree with and disregard those you don't find so acceptable (ala stoning to death and limb amputation!).

The point is the British high court has recognised and condoned the existence of sharia law in the United Kingdom. Mark my words, it is now only a matter of time before muslim sharia lawyers are challenging all manner of British court rulings, citing this case as an example.

'IRRESPONSIBLE': A high court judge ruled that a couple's Islamic nikah marriage fell within the scope of English matrimonial law.

Whether they are successful in their efforts is beside the point. This ruling has opened a back door to the almost laughable scenario of the laws of the UK actually being put on trial in its own courts! Once again appeasement to large numbers of people, who simply have no intention of integrating into western culture and will buck against its values and traditions at any given opportunity, has been allowed to move even further into the realms of legal acceptance. Of course, no prizes for guessing who will be paying for all the time - wasting and highly expensive court cases which will almost certainly be rearing their ugly heads in the not too distant future? Yep, you've guessed it!

Well, all I can say is on your own heads be it. Let's hope that at the next UK elections a new party emerges which has a degree of common sense and is not petrified of 'upsetting' or 'offending' someone or another. But don't hold yer breath.

I don't know about you, but I am heartily sick of all this 'touchy-feely' syndrome that seems to have crept into British sport of late. Even cricket, which used to be such a wonderful 'stiff upper lip' non-demonstrative occasion, now sees batsmen scurrying up to each other and 'fisting' after a particularly good shot.

Doubles at tennis is another example of this ridiculous habit. In fact, along with beach volleyball and badminton players, these partners still fist each other when they actually lose a point! All this, along with those utterly unacceptable orgasmic grunts of the tennis brigade and tangled pyramids of primped-up highly coffered hysterical soccer players, is turning this ol' boy back to the sport he was utterly in love with as a boy. Have a good week everyone.

Gone fishin.'

Keep the faith.

A weekly look

- and not entirely impartial reaction - to the Spanish political scene

IT was a good-looking, low-key, high-impact gesture when the former president of the Spanish government, Mariano Rajoy, packed his bags after the vote of no confidence.

As a high-ranking civil servant, the post of Property Registrar in Santa Pola (Alicante) had been kept open for him for 28 years and was his to return to whenever he wished.

"I've come to Santa Pola to stay," he said in June, but less than two months later he announced a transfer to the Property Register in Madrid's Paseo de la Castellana, a stone's throw from the Partido Popular's party headquarters in Calle Genova.

Earlier the PP's new leader Pablo Casado drew attention to Rajoy's Santa Pola connection and commented that his wife's family always spent the summer there. No doubt he would prefer his former boss to spend the entire year there, reassuringly distant from Calle Genova. After all, Casado is an Aznar man.

Mr Bumble gets it right

THE Manada - the five men convicted of gang-raping an 18-year-old girl - are still free while appealing their sentences for what a Pamplona court classed as 'sexual abuse.'

Meanwhile, Juana Rivas risks five years in jail and loss of custody rights over her children for six years because she tried to snatch her children from her abusive Italian husband and return to Spain.

The law is the law, the judges say, and must be obeyed to the letter regardless of sentiments. All of which brings to mind - to an English-speaker at least - Mr Bumble.

Remember what he said in Oliver Twist? 'If the law supposes that, the law is an ass - an idiot.'

And before I get done for contempt of court, 'it was Dickens wot said it, not me, m'lud.'

Biding her time

SORAYA SAENZ DE SANTA-MARIA, the former vice-president and Rajoy's right hand woman, has just suffered the biggest setback of her political life.

She lost the Partido Popular primaries to Pablo Casado and now has the indignity of seeing her eternal rival, Dolores de Cospedal - who was knocked out in the first round - in a more promising position than her own. But although she has never before been so publicly tested or rejected, Saenz de Santamaria is tough enough to survive and revive, not least because Casado still has the little matter of his curiously-acquired Master's Degree in Autonomic Law to explain away.

In the meantime, the ex-vice president has declared, "I shall, as always, be loyal," which is never a good sign.

Loyalty should be a given, not a promise.

Nice little earner

CARMEN CALVO, vice-president and also Minister for Equality, would like to see the Spanish Constitution written so that it is 'bi-gender.'

This has nothing to do with sexual orientation but is a newspeak way of banishing the old grammatical preference for masculine plurals. So niños can include a niña or two, and likewise female ministers can be lurking amongst the males referred to in ministros.

It's been pointed out that this might be unfair and belittling but doctoring the constitution as Calvo wants - niñas y niños and ministras y ministros each time - will make for grim and clumsy reading, while depriving the 1978 document of most of its literary punch.

The formula is already peppering politicians' speeches and is noticeable in the written media, but possibly this is one instance where it's welcome - by the hacks who get paid by the word.

An exciting new chapter for the St George School Malaga

STAFF, parents and children at St George, Malaga had some exciting news just before their summer holidays began with the announcement of new owners for their school.

The International Schools Partnership (ISP), who recently included St George Malaga into its expanding portfolio, is a focused, growing and financially secure education investment group who are leaders in educational provision.

The company profile currently includes 32 schools located in Spain, Malaysia, Mexico, Costa Rica, the United States, the United Kingdom, the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

In Spain, one of the biggest regions, the Colegios Laude Group of seven schools, purchased in 2014, has already seen major development and growth with some €30 million of investment already made. St George Malaga is delighted to be joining this prestigious regional group and to be refocusing the educational message to one of amazing learning - something that is at the heart of every ISP school.

When asked of her feeling about the new owners, head of school, Fiona Lee-Allan said, "The International Schools Partnership has been attracted by our philosophy and priorities and is committed to fostering them. As a school we are going to benefit enormously from their wealth of experience in running schools around the world and it allows our students, teachers and families more opportunities to learn from and connect with people around the globe.

"The central theme International Schools Partnership focuses on is all about creating 'amazing learning,' and this for me is the most important factor in creating an outstanding school.

"Each region has a director for learning and we will be working closely with him to see how we can become even better at ensuring our students have the best possible learning experiences whilst at school. The support we have already received in the last month has been exceptional.

"The experience of their team in running prestigious schools around the world ensures that our school will benefit from inclusion in their existing and developing programmes. We are extremely excited by this news and are looking forward to a new chapter in the life of the school."

Regional Director, Nick Rugg commented, "St George Malaga is a strong fit for ISP's vision and philosophy of focusing on quality and excellence, all within a culture where learning takes centre stage.

"There is already a synergy with the school where learning is exciting and fun and we look forward to collaborating with them on ISP's approach to effective learning in the classroom. Equally, we will begin to share other benefits of being part of the ISP family of schools."

Once the new term begins, there will be an opportunity for current and prospective parents to learn more about the way in which the school will be moving forward.

For appointments to come and meet the head of school or to find out more, please contact Monica Gata: admissions.malaga@stgeorge.es.

TV COUCH CRITIC

by Adam Whalley-Lewis

ANYONE who has Love Island withdrawal syndrome, yes, it is a thing apparently, might want to give Our Shirley Valentine Summer, ITV, Thursday & ITV Hub, a look.

For the rest of us, it is worth a look anyway. It is billed as a reality show where a bunch of women celebrities (a gaggle, maybe?) are transported to a remote foreign villa in search of fun, sun and maybe romance. I mean Wall, possible romance, whatever next?

Now, unlike some of the reality shows we chomp through together each week, you will actually recognise most of the celebrities. Among others, Melinda Messenger is there, Sian Lloyd (helping with the weather) and Ingrid Tarrant.

The ladies are all looking to make a fresh start or to change something. There is a marriage breakdown, a need to find love, low self-confidence and a longing to find a new hobby - thankfully these don't all relate to the same person and while I'm not entirely sure longing to take up Scottish Country Dancing quite falls into the same category as trying to get over a marriage break up, the show does seem to work.

I'm not sure what's in the Naxos water, but they seem to breed the locals handsome on the Island. A girlfriend of mine needed a lie down in a dark room after last week's Greek language trainer and fitness guru made an appearance. Sian did a bit of reflecting, my friend was hitting rewind! This is probably one for the ladies to be honest, with some friends and a massive jug of sangria. Enjoy, just don't go planning a move to Greece.

Shirley Valentine chasing The Governess anyone?

A GAGGLE OF CELEBS? Our Shirley Valentine Summer.

If you are in a more musical mood over the next few weeks, BBC4 is leading the Proms coverage from The Royal Albert Hall. Monday saw Ben Gernon conduct the BBC Philharmonic in a concert of Beethoven and Brahms, the composer, not of Grace Brothers fame - although Wendy Richard with a French horn might get the folk standing in the audience going. It was lovely. The second half was a world premiere. Great I thought. The music was by Tansy Davies. Don't know Tansy, stick with it.

Tansy is a contemporary composer. You just lost me. Now don't get all 'give new stuff a chance, bringing music to a new audience' on me. Tansy's work just doesn't sit well with Beethoven. Plan ahead via the BBC website for a blast of sounds from London.

Fans of The Chase, ITV, weekdays, and ITV Hub, help me with this please. Regardless of what The Chaser or Brad might say, can it ever be right to take the lower offer? Shelve Brexit, the PM needs a Chequers conference to give us a way forward on this one.

And sticking with The Governess (love her) next time The Chaser is really up against the clock in the final chase, watch how Brad noticeably speeds up asking the questions in the last 45 seconds.

My movie choice this week is Kings of Curry, BBC2, Sunday, late. Worth staying up for if you are a bit of a foodie. The plot isn't taxing. Two chefs, who are brothers, fall out, open competing restaurants on the same street, daughter of one of them attempts a reconciliation for a wedding. Simples.

Happy Viewing.

Why taxi drivers are shooting themselves in the foot

I DO understand that taxi drivers have to pay a very large amount of money in order to obtain their licences and that they see the possibility of selling them on at a profit as a retirement plan.

They obviously believe the existence of Spanish private hire company Cabify and American-owned Uber to be damaging to their livelihoods but have chosen to hurt tourists and residents by striking and blocking access to airports.

In the long run, if they offer a worse service which costs more, the cab drivers are going to lose out and will only get a percentage of the existing business from people who can't be bothered to make an advance booking.

Drivers, if you have a problem with the law, don't penalise your customers!

Guardia Civil officers save the day

BREAKING down on the N332 in 30 degree heat is never going to be fun.

Having a five-week-old baby and a two-year-old toddler in the car as well quickly turns it into a nightmare.

This is what happened this week to my daughter-in-law, who was travelling from Finestrat to Villajoyosa with my wife.

There was nowhere shaded to take the children, so the only option was to wait in the hot car, with the traffic passing at 100 km/h just inches away. The insurance company was called, and a grua and taxi promised as soon as possible, but it was still a scary situation.

Enter the heroes of the day - two Guardia Civil officers - who pulled over and took control. The blue lights on their van obviously slowed down the passing traffic and the officers took the four hot and flustered occupants into the air conditioned van.

As one officer chased up the grua and taxi on the phone, the other entertained the two-year-old (and the adults) by blowing up a latex glove and generally making him laugh. Apart from potentially preventing a crash, they made everyone feel at ease.

They did a brilliant job, so thank you to those two unnamed officers. You went beyond and above the call of duty, and we are very grateful.

in Spain which continues to fight against cruelty to animals.

At the end of August, the town of San Sebastian de los Reyes not only has its somewhat chaotic annual bull run but also has a festival in which calves aged between one and two years are slaughtered in a most inhumane manner.

This 'becerradas' as it is known occurs in a number of towns across Spain and a petition which wants to see the practice banned is hosted at www.becerradas.org.

Jane Thompson, Torremolinos.

Bad planning

I HAVE photos of the unacceptable horror and unhygienic reality of the new 'basura' recycling situation on the El Aspre/Orbeta urbanisation.

More than 18 large bins were removed, which have always been adequate even in the summer months when the urbanisation has a lot of holiday lets and summer visitors in situ. Then, with no other bins available, they began to build a small shed to house the much smaller, and fewer bins. For a few days, there were no bins on the urbanisation or in Orba at all.

Everyone in Orba had to queue (sometimes up to 90 minutes) to get a personal access code and/or the recycling bins.

The access code keyboard didn't work for a while and now the handle on the door has broken, although the lock works with the code entered. Many houses are currently empty, so they have not registered to get their access code, nor will they know the new system when they return to Spain.

The biodegradable bags split easily, and the collection for food waste is once a week. Food waste sits there rotting, and the bin lids are often left open and overflowing.

This is going to be a massive health and hygiene issue. People without access will simply dump their rubbish anywhere. There is very little parking now, whereas the bin areas before had plenty of parking, never overflowed and were completely safe from vermin and insects.

It is not acceptable given the Suma rates we all pay. Complain, and complain loudly people!

Outraged of Orbeta, Costa Blanca North.

 French Polynesia's islands cover around 4,000,000 square kilometres which an area as large as Europe.

DID YOU KNOW?

The cities of Beirut, Byblos, Damascus, Jericho and Luxor have all been continuously inhabited for more than 5,000 years. Damascus, now the capital city of Syria, is believed to be the longest continuously inhabited city in the world. There is evidence of people living at the site of the modern day city for at least 11,000 years and it has benefited from its strategic location.

YOUR STARS FOR NEXT 7 DAYS

AQUARIUS
(January 21 - February 19)

Are you still in a very positive frame of mind? Okay, then. It is time to decide what is to be done about that problem. If you really can't see a way round this then seek help. Even if you don't agree with the reply, you will feel that you have made a step in the right direction

PISCES
(February 20 - March 20)

Don't ask a question unless you want to be told the truth this weekend. Go on, you're a big person and you can take it.

ARIES
(March 21 - April 20)

Sometimes you wonder why people make promises when they find them so hard to keep. However, losing your temper with someone midweek will not help at all because the person you are dealing with is not very sensitive. Patience will pay off and, by the weekend, a weight will have been lifted from your mind.

TAURUS
(April 21 - May 21)

Somehow you seem to be going every which way round a situation but getting nowhere. Rather than burn yourself out and fray your nerves, just stay still. At the end of the day, someone else wants to solve this dilemma as much as you do.

GEMINI
(May 22 - June 21)

It's not so difficult this week to get exactly what you want. Being sure is another matter, however, there are plenty of people who will cast doubts on where you are going and what you are aiming for. What do they know?

CANCER
(June 22 - July 23)

As you are in the middle of a plan, it would be a shame to stop now. Yes, I realise that you have given it lots of time and thought. Even so, the events midweek bring a new perspective.

LEO
(July 24 - August 23)

Something has come to your attention and, quite frankly, you don't understand what is going on. It is possible that, if you don't react, the situation will just go away. Equally, you may want to influence the outcome and fear that it will not be to your advantage.

VIRGO
(August 24 - September 23)

You seem to be in a 'plodding' situation that is starting to cause you some irritation. That is all that is though, irritation. See it as a big dilemma and it throws up all sorts of anxieties.

LIBRA
(September 24 - October 23)

You are being shown a great deal of affection which may be taken for granted. Even you are capable of putting people's backs up. As you dislike making enemies, I suggest that you take a little more time with family and loved ones.

SCORPIO
(October 24 - November 22)

By deciding now that you will not rise to the bait on a certain matter you are taking the best option. Much as you would like to confront someone head on, it is possible that this is just what they want you to do.

SAGITTARIUS
(November 23 - December 21)

Are you being asked to open your heart? What are you most afraid of about that? On the other hand, what would the rewards be if you did? Sometimes, we have to take a chance that others will not let us down or, at least that if they do, they will let us down gently.

CAPRICORN
(December 22 - January 20)

As you try to control someone else's life, it could be that your own is slipping past you. Have you recently given up on a relationship or job that you dearly would have loved?

Code Breaker

Each number in the Code Breaker grid represents a different letter of the alphabet. In this week's puzzle, 6 represents W and 10 represents L, so fill in W every time the figure 6 appears and L every time the figure 10 appears. Now, using your knowledge of the English language, work out which letters should go in the missing squares. As you discover the letters, fill in other squares with the same number in the main grid and the control grid.

Probing the war

THE year is 2020. Around 1.4 million American citizens lie dead and Washington DC and New York have been destroyed after nuclear strikes from North Korea.

A commission led by nuclear expert Dr Jeffrey Lewis has been tasked with finding out how three horrific days in the history of the United States came to pass.

The team has to ask themselves if President Donald Trump and his advisers knew about North Korea's views on nuclear weapons. Did the United States provoke North Korea with social media posts and military exercises?

Ultimately Dr Lewis and his team need to establish if the nuclear strikes that killed so many civilians and laid waste to American cities were inevitable. Or could Donald Trump and his team have averted the catastrophe? The 2020 Commission Report seeks the answer.

Perk up in the morning

EXERCISING in the morning on an empty stomach burns more fat than exercising at other times of the day.

Exercise increases how awake we feel and raises our core temperature. Burning calories is not the only benefit of an 'early bird work out.'

Working out in the morning is great for the mind and body.

It is advisable to take supplements before exercising on an empty stomach. Iron deficiency is one of the leading causes of tiredness in women, with 27 per cent not getting enough.

Eat a lunch rich with animal produce, otherwise known as carnitine. Products like meat, fish, poultry, and milk are the best sources.

In general, the redder the meat, the higher its carnitine content. Carnitine converts fat to your cells so it can be used as energy, while not having enough can cause dizziness and muscle weakness.

Snacks in between meals should involve three key components: protein, fibre and complex carbohydrates.

Apple with some oat-cakes and peanut butter keeps blood sugar levels constant until dinner.

Dinner should be eaten at least three hours before sleeping.

Eating, sleeping and exercising at regular times will build stamina and form an easy to follow routine.

7 Tips to manage back pain

WHEN back pain strikes it can leave you feeling stuck and helpless, especially when you're busy, on holiday or away from home.

So if you've been struck this summer try my top tips to keep moving:

1. Ice - a pack of frozen peas will do. Always wrap it in a damp tea towel to protect your skin. Use it for 10 minutes every half hour.

2. Toilets - If you have a really bad back, sitting on the loo can be a struggle. How do you get down and then get back up? The answer, sit facing the cistern and use it to support yourself down and back up!

3. Car seat - Getting in and out of the car (perhaps to get to your physio appointment?!) can be tricky. A simple trick is to lie a plastic bag on the car seat (to reduce friction), sit down with both legs still out and swivel round. Do the opposite to get out.

By Estelle Mitchell

www.thebodyworksclinic.com

4. Position - changing position can often seem the hardest part, but staying too long in one position can leave you feeling stiff and make it harder to move. So try and shift positions every 20 - 30 minutes.

5. Bar stool - possibly the only time I'll recommend a bar for treatment! Perching on a bar stool can often be the most comfortable position as you are supported but not in a full sitting position. But while one brandy is medicinal, more slows the healing process!

6. Stand tall - try and concentrate on standing well. Focus on your core muscles and pelvic floor and use them to support you. If you're in front of a mirror (cleaning your teeth is good!) pull your chin in so your ears are over your shoulders, draw your shoulders back and down and bring ankles, hips and shoulders into a line.

7. Get help - pain is a protection mechanism - it gets you to stop moving so your body can recover. But if it lasts more than 24 - 48 hours get proper, qualified help!

For more information and tips on supporting back pain check out www.TheBodyworksClinic.com, our Facebook page Bodyworks Health Clinic or call us on 952 883 151.

Start your journey to a pain-free life

COPPER HEELERS are now more accessible than ever, making it even easier to get you on the road to being pain free from arthritis.

The popular Original Copper Heeler® can now be purchased through the dedicated website at www.copperheeler.es which also gives details of the items available and features testimonials from those who confirm the benefit of them.

The Copper Heeler® was developed by Professor Singer, an orthopaedic technician with over 40 years of experience, who wanted to find a natural, drug-free pain relief solution to arthritis. It took him 18 months to develop and is an ultra-thin insole that is moulded to the shape of the foot. It is light-weight for maximum comfort and initial trials proved tremendously successful in providing relief from arthritis.

Worldwide, an estimated nine million people are using heelers to relieve their pain, some with fantastic results such as Jean Davies. Doctors cancelled a hip replacement operation for the 72-year-old after a pair of copper insoles are believed to have cured her arthritis. She became pain-free six weeks after starting to wear the copper heels and doctors said her operation was no longer needed.

Garden designer Helen Basson, aged 39, feared that she would end up in a wheelchair after she was diagnosed with arthritis in every joint of her body following the birth of her third child. Her condition was so bad that she was unable to lift her baby out of his cot or get into a bath unaided. Within three months of inserting the copper insoles, recommended by her mother-in-law, Mrs Basson astounded her doctors by beginning to walk freely.

These are just two of the many testimonies of users of The Original Copper Heeler® which are available throughout Spain, with many happy customers reporting a positive result after wearing them.

But why is copper so effective? At least 20 per cent of the population suffers from a deficiency of copper which is an essential nutrient for well-being. Arthritis is associated with a deficiency of copper so by getting more copper in to the body, arthritis pain can be eased.

When copper comes into contact with the skin it forms chemical compounds called chelates, which play an important role in oxygen transportation. The 250,000 sweat glands on the soles of the feet provide an ideal environment for optimum copper absorption. The Original Copper Heeler® provides a convenient and comfortable way of encouraging copper into the body, it is then circulated and targets pain throughout the entire body.

For more information or to purchase online visit www.copperheeler.es or call 966 763 770.

Food for thought

MANY of the best tasting foods are the worst, as they are artificially constructed flavours and not like those found naturally.

Research has found that eating red or processed meat every day increases the risk of cancer by 22 per cent.

Consuming alcohol may damage DNA, which may lead to cancer. Research has found the more alcohol you drink, the higher risks for developing certain cancers which include head and neck, liver, mouth, breast and colorectal cancers.

Alcohol consumption is thought to be the second leading cause of cancer worldwide after smoking.

Eating a lot of red meat such as beef, veal or lamb is linked to colorectal, pancreatic and prostate cancer.

Popcorn is a healthy snack, but cooking it makes it extremely unhealthy. Microwave bags are lined with a chemical called perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA). Studies show consuming PFOA can cause cancers of the kidney, bladder, liver and pancreas.

Tinned foods are linked to cancer because almost all aluminium cans are lined with cancer-causing bisphenol-A (BPA). High acidity foods, including canned tomatoes, are dangerous to eat out of a can.

OPEN the garden shed, swat the cobwebs from the deckchairs and prepare the knotted handkerchiefs: phew, it's summer - and sizzling! (However, I'm never quite sure if the knotted handkerchief should be flat on my head or placed at a natty, happy-go-lucky angle. Anyone happen to know?)

Seriously, though, the rules for keeping cool are simple enough: 1. Wear a hat; 2. Apply sunscreen; 3. Drink plenty of water (you know, the stuff from the tap) throughout the day; 4. Consider wearing loose, long-sleeved cotton clothes.

When I did a straw poll among my girlfriends (only the finest of scientific and journalistic methods for this column, folks) about summer etiquette, the thing that really irritates them is men coming into supermarkets shirtless - but marginally better than those who walk around scoffing the food whilst shopping before they've paid for it, or those who carry folded bikes inside the supermarket with them.

And what irritates my male friends?

The heat is on: how to avoid havoc on the hottest days

FEELING HOT, HOT, HOT:
Wear a hat to cool down in summer.

'Traditionally-built' (read: overweight) women in 'absurd, flimsy sunsuits' designed for three-year-olds.

But let's return to those guys walking around topless, showing what they've got (or not). What they do/don't have is usually a six-pack, multiple tattoos and/or a fat belly. What a sight! But not as startling as those doing their shopping sporting 'budgie smugglers' - the butt of jokes everywhere (pun intended)!

Which reminds me of the story of one poor guy who years ago was strong-armed into playing the organ in a nearby church - the Episcopalian Church of Scotland.

At the start of the service there was a procession of office-holders all carrying banners who were played into the church with the minister at their head. As one of the office-holders parked his banner and took his official seat in front of the organ he glanced over at the newly-deputising organ-player and yelled out: "They tell me you have the biggest organ in the church."

Oddly this had such a paralysing effect on the poor guy that, if said anywhere else, would have had him rolling in the, err, aisles ...

LEGALLY SPEAKING

Can they use spreadsheets?

Q. I was treasurer of a registered society for many years, during which time I followed the instructions of a Spanish lawyer for the presentation of the accounts. Our president has now urged a more modern approach and the new treasurer proposes to use spreadsheets instead of the established style which I used, along with explanatory notes.

Also, the minutes of the recent AGM have been sent to committee members for approval in a September meeting. The minutes, however, give no financial information. Surely the minutes have to include financial information at the end of the year? Are spreadsheets recognised by Spanish society laws?

MH (Costa del Sol)

A. Article 14 of Spain's law of associations says only that they must present accounts that give a faithful picture of the association's economic activities. The spreadsheet containing all details with double entries is considered the most complete form to present this.

Standardly, the minutes and the financial report are two separate documents. They both need the approval of the AGM, especially regarding next year's budget.

Greed and power

Mike Senker
In my opinion

Views of a Grumpy Old Man

READ an interesting item this week that there is just one Blockbuster video store left in the world. In their prime they had 9,000 stores worldwide and employed over 84,000 employees. The amazing thing is that it took about 25 years from start to finish and what is even more amazing is that most 20 year olds don't even know what a video is.

They have never had the fun of going into a video store and renting a great movie. Or of making sure you booked it for whatever night you wanted to see it or going round the shop picking up the boxes and finding a night's entertainment. Video was a revolution.

Everything since is evolution and it was the pure greed of the Hollywood Studios that killed video. They hated the fact that individuals were, in their opinion, earning too much money out of their product. So they put obstacle after obstacle in the way to try and control the business. They used copywrite laws in the end to stop the renting out of VHS and then DVD. They wanted all the control.

The dream was that people would be able to download their movies directly from the studio and cut out the middle man. Well, they finally won, or thought they had. All the video stores went out of business and everybody started downloading movies. But instead of the studios getting paid for every movie watched, the punters found a way of by passing the system and are downloading them for free. Is it legal? No, it isn't. Can they stop it?

No, but it was their greed that caused it. I sold my video stores in 2001 as I just couldn't fight with the film companies any more. It was unbelievable how much the studios hated video and DVD even though, in its heyday, it represented 57 per cent of all returns of a movie. Greed and power - that's the problem.

I think the same will happen with Facebook. I reckon in a few years that will disappear too. Kids are already using other forms of social media. They don't want to be bombarded with adverts and stuff. Google, Amazon, Facebook, Apple, Microsoft and a few others want to control our lives. What we watch, what news we are fed and what we buy.

I think people will get wise eventually and do something about it. The biggest taxi company in the world doesn't own one taxi. The biggest food takeaway company doesn't own a burger van never mind a restaurant. I'm getting fed up with it all. I don't know about you but in my own grumpy way I'll try and fight it.

Marbella's living legends - behind the scenes

Marbella Moments

by Nicole King

THOSE who follow my shows, Marbella NOW TV and Mi Marbella FM on RTV Marbella will know that I value and enjoy the 'behind the scenes' aspects of Marbella.

Those who set up and prepare for all the glitzy events, the people who run the charities, the folk that make up our town hall, the everyday 'Joe and Joanna' who work hard to live a good life, hopefully by doing something they love.

I've been one of these folk for many years now, having moved over full time in the very early 80's. However my history with Marbella goes back even earlier to 1965, the year after the Meliá Don Pepe opened and my parents brought me there, a time when the Orange Square and the pharmacy in San Pedro were the tourists' most prominent attractions.

My 'behind the scenes' in those days were the waiters in the hotel and the few other places that started to pop up over the subsequent years, such as Toni

Guests at the special event

Dali's, La Meridiana, Pepe Moreno's, Victor's and Pedro's beaches... all names that live on today, albeit in some cases in different formats.

Thanks to my parents insisting I learn Spanish I became very good friends with the waiters and not only got to practise my Spanish, but also venture behind the scenes into their world: a very, very Spanish Marbella at that time.

Today, thanks to my radio and television shows I have many 'behind the scenes' moments, national and international, which as a market research analyst I find passionately fascinating. However just recently I got to be part of a very special get together, a behind the scenes moment at Victor's beach that was truly a privilege.

I celebrated my 21st birthday lunch at Victor's beach back in the day and could never have dreamt that 35 years later I would be invited to join some of Marbella's most emblematic media, press and paparazzi personalities, the very voices and faces who have been reporting on Marbella's news and happenings for decades, in their annual get together hosted by Victor and Manuela of Victor's beach.

This annual tribute to the Press has become a VIP tradition in itself and to be invited at all was quite humbling. Victor and Manuela THANK YOU!!

It's only now that I know how lucky I was to be 'back stage' Marbella when it all began. I also now know that it's a shame that so many foreigners who have come to live here since have no inkling that there is a whole Spanish world beneath our international community.

Many will not even know these people exist just because they don't speak Spanish or get involved with the locals.

For those of us who do however we know that it's the original business owners and the members of the Spanish press who are truly Marbella's living legends and the rest of us are very privileged to live amongst them; whether we know it or not!

TECH FOR THE TIMID

A COLLEAGUE says he has to buy a new tablet because the old one's full.

Really? Let's see: with a memory card it can hold 144 GB of data. At a rough calculation that would hold every word of, say, the Bible (4.13 MB in its free download from Project Gutenberg), more than 35,000 times with room left over for a few cat videos.

And it's full?

Call me old-fashioned but doesn't it make more sense to empty a bucket when it's brimming instead of buying a new bucket?

Unlike breaking-up in the 1975 pop song, cleaning up is not so hard to do. Or as the Everly Brothers might have put it: 'All I have to do is cle-ee-ee-ee-een, clean clean clee-een.'

The principle's roughly the same for a tablet or a smartphone. First, zap all the obvious junk you've acquired (here's looking at your animal clips and other YouTube funnies).

Clean up your act

Terence Kennedy gets out the broom for a digital sweep

CLEAN SWEEP: Out with the digital dross.

Don't know how to find them? If your device hasn't got a File Manager just download one, some are even called that. Then trawl the folders it reveals and merrily delete where needed. Or to be pedantic: not needed.

Purge unwanted attachments from your emails, then exorcise all the excess pix from WhatsApp and the downloaded music and videos you once thought you couldn't live without but have done ever since.

You can even zap your photos because if your device has behaved as originally configured they'll all be backed up in the cloud anyhow.

Uninstall apps you absolutely don't use and most likely never will - though quite a few will dig their heels in because Mr Google or Mr Apple decided you may not do without them.

Then it's time to get down and dirty. To terminate the stragglers with extreme prejudice as the CIA might say, download a cleaner-upper like the free 'Files Go' for Android, launch it and let it lead you by the hand.

Bingo: space available for several thousand more Bibles or one Spanish Labour Law. Works every time, though in rare cases it can go wrong and this column takes no responsibility blah blah ...

And if it does, or you'd simply prefer to have your device back the way it was when you took it out of the box? Easy-peasy.

Somewhere in the Settings you'll find 'backup and reset' or similar. Its scorched-earth option is called 'factory reset.'

Deep breath, click, wait, breathe. Then welcome to your shiny 'new' toy, and happy re-installing and fiddling.

Oh, what, you forgot to write down all your passwords and save your vital documents before you wiped it clean? Oops.

Factory reset

FACTORY resets are a fail-safe option on plenty of gadgets these days and all you may need is a pin.

Look hard at simpler devices to find a pinhole. Poke your pin in there as instructed in the manual or online, and the device will reset.

A factory reset is absolutely the way to go if passing on a device which contains any personal data; it's almost the only sure-fire way to remove your traces.

Alas, you can't poke a pin at a computer to work that magic. Do your research, choose the reinstall option, enjoy a new and un-sullied version of your operating system - and then schedule lots (and lots) of midnight oil to get it all back the way you want it.

Special guest for Ricky Martin Mare Nostrum concert

THOSE who have purchased tickets for the Ricky Martin concert in Fuengirola on August 16 are in for a special treat as he has invited Malaga Nuevo Flamenco band Chambao to open for him.

There is little doubt that Chambao front person La Mari who has been a prominent figure in the Spanish music scene after overcoming a fight with cancer will appear on stage with the Latino lothario as the pair of them sang together on the highly successful 2006 single Tu Recuerdo (Your Memory) which was nominated for a Latin Grammy single of the year.

As Ricky Martin settles down to regular appearances in Las Vegas, so La Mari is moving more towards Latin American rhythms and her current band played with her at the Castle Sohail some two years ago.

She is also appearing at Starlite Festival Marbella on Friday August 17 in the special Homage to Women concert.

A night to savour at Puente Romano

THE Hotel Puente Romano, one of Spain's best known and most prestigious hotels is hosting its annual summer gala dinner and musical presentation on behalf of the World Vision charity.

Any event held at this hotel is bound to be exciting but on this occasion there will be a number of top musical attractions appearing whilst guests can enjoy a selection of gourmet food.

Canapés will be supplied by international restaurant group Nobu and a four-course meal will be prepared by the hotel's award-winning chef Thomas Stork, and the food will be coupled with a selection of fine wines chosen by the hotel's sommelier.

The event starts at 8.30pm next Thursday, August 16 and promises to go on well into the following morning as there is so much entertainment followed by fireworks and a DJ session, Under the Radr by internationally acclaimed Roger Sanchez.

Entertainment for the evening will be supplied by the Las Vegas Showgirls, the Midnight Workout band, relative newcomer Trevis and a special appearance from 90's Eurodance group Snap who had hits with The Power and Rhythm is a Dancer.

Snap was the brainchild of German producers Michael Münzing and Luca Anzilotti, initially using session singers and the band has recently reformed with singer Penny Ford back fronting EURODANCE GROUP: The current line-up of Snap featuring Penny Ford.

Snap which is currently touring both Europe and the USA.

Each year the hotel honours a different charity with its gala dinner and Daniel Shamoon, owner of Puente Romano, has chosen World Vision as the recipient of all profits from the night which will see a fantastic charity raffle offering some wonderful prizes.

World Vision claims to be the world's largest international charity for children and its aims are to bring real hope to millions of children living in some of the world's most difficult and underprivileged places, many of which are in Africa.

Tickets for this incredible evening which will take place at El Chiringuito Marbella on the grounds of the hotel cost €275 per person and may be reserved by calling 952 820 900 or by visiting the hotel website and clicking on events.

See Ariel, Simba and all of their friends this weekend

FORGET sand castles, forget jellyfish, the beach in Sabinillas is about to be covered in classic playmobiles.

These little figures have been causing a storm wherever they are displayed around Spain but in a very novel idea, they are about to be laid out on the beach of Sabinillas (in the Cali area).

There are several dioramas in the collection but the two that may appeal to youngsters most are the Little Mermaid and the Lion King.

The first consists of a structure that shows the seabed where the Kingdom of Ariel is located; she is with her family in absolute harmony with the marine environment where you can find fish, corals, molluscs and other sea creatures.

Next to them is the well-known and beloved Ariel in her sunken ship, accompanied by her inseparable friend Sebastian. Finally you can see the cave of the evil Ursula with its rays, sharks and killer whales waiting for the orders of their evil leader.

In the diorama of the Lion King one can view an African plain, broken by the stone where the great herd of lions live and are commanded by the great king Mufasa and his lioness Sarabi as they await the birth of their son Simba.

There will be more than 50,000 pieces of all kinds, including animals, figures and monuments making up the display and it will be possible to purchase a selection of these PlayMobil pieces.

The exhibit opens tomorrow (Friday) afternoon and then from 11am on Saturday until very late.

THIS week I will discuss vitamin B complex. It is complex because there are more than one, but less than 12, which is the largest numeral ascribed to a B vitamin.

The first B vitamin to be discovered was called 'water-soluble B.' That meant that it was only the second vitamin ever identified (the first was fat-soluble A). Riboflavin was discovered next, so water-soluble B became B1, and riboflavin became B2. The system began to get confusing in 1926, when researchers realised that vitamin B1, was actually two vitamins, thiamine and niacin. Thiamine kept the B1 name. B2 was already taken, so Niacin became B3.

As vitamin research continued, scientists found a number of substances they thought at first were new B vitamins. Some, however, turned out to be the same B's that had already been discovered, while others turned out not to be vitamins at all. These phantom B's are the missing numbers. To avoid confusion, scientists now prefer to use the B vitamin names instead of the numbers. There are no vitamins 4, 8, 10 and 11. I will split the B vitamins into four parts; one this week and the rest over the next two weeks.

Thiamine (vitamin B1) helps to break down and release energy from food and is essential for a healthy nervous system. Good sources include: peas, fresh and dried fruit, eggs, wholegrain breads, some fortified breakfast cereals and liver. Symptoms of deficiency include: loss of appetite, fatigue, irritability, tingling in the arms and the legs as a result of nerve damage (this is one of the earliest symptoms displayed), blurred vision and delirium.

Riboflavin (vitamin B2) helps to keep skin, eyes and the nervous system healthy and allows the body to release energy from food. Good sources of riboflavin include: milk, eggs, fortified breakfast cereals and rice. Ultraviolet light can destroy riboflavin, so ideally these foods should be kept out of direct sunlight. Symptoms of deficiency include: weakness or fatigue, mood change, a sore throat is usually the first presenting system, skin cracking, dermatitis and anaemia.

• This week's recipe:
Italian Stewed Beef

Serves 4

1 kg stewing beef, cubed
2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, skinned and chopped
6 whole garlic cloves, skinned and chopped

1 stick celery, sliced
500 ml red wine
1 tin chopped tomatoes
4 whole bay leaves
1 tablespoon Italian dried herbs
2 whole beef stock cubes, crumbled

1. Place beef with the oil in a frying pan and fry to seal.

2. Add the onion, garlic and celery and continue to fry for another two or three minutes.

3. Add the red wine and simmer until the smell of alcohol has disappeared.

4. Pour into a slow cooker set on high and add the remaining ingredients.

5. Allow to cook for a minimum of three hours, ideally four to five.

6. Serve with ribbon pasta (tagliatelle, pappardelle, fettuccine, etc).

Hint: If you don't have a slow cooker, place in a lidded-casserole dish in the oven at 170 Celsius (Conventional)/ 160 Celsius (Fan).

Back to the 80's

FRIDAY night is 1980's night in San Pedro Alcantara when three bands will be presenting music from that decade in a free concert.

The local council is sponsoring a special event in the Park of the Three Gardens and playing will be La Unión formed in 1984 and still playing around the world, La Frontera who can trace their formation back to the same year and the tribute to Joaquín Sabina by the band 500 nights. Sabina in their veins.

Parking on the adjoining industrial estate is free as well as the old fairground (which is not too far away) and the entire family are welcome to bring chairs, food and drink but attendees will be checked to ensure that all liquid is placed in plastic bottles as no cans or glass bottles will be admitted.

LA UNIÓN: 34 years on and still performing.

Access to the event which will run from 9pm to 2am may be made from two entrances in Carril de El Potril.

IN ISTAN: Some of the members of Malaga Acoge collective.

One town and thirty dedicated artists

FOR three days the town of Istan will become a creative hub of artistic expression when artists from the Malaga Acoge collective descend and start creating a series of sculptures and murals.

Tonight (Thursday) at 8pm, Santiago Roldán, will hold an engraving workshop in the day centre which is ideal for those interested in this style of art regardless of their age.

More than 30 artists from across Malaga Province will be taking part in this event which is entitled Istante and they will be working all through Istan to fill spaces and corners with artwork which reflects the heritage and history of the town.

At 1pm on Saturday August 11, the collective will be finished and the closing ceremony will take place in the Plaza de Andalucía followed by the screening of a video produced during the previous days.

Residents and visitors will then have the opportunity to tour the town and enjoy the work which has enlivened it.

FREE ACTIVITY: Announcing the Flamingo Race Party.

WITH the support of the San Pedro Alcantara Council, the new paddle surf school at Tuga Beach is sponsoring the first Flamingo Race Party adapted from a long established event on the Indonesian party island of Bali.

This version is slightly tongue in cheek as rather than race Flamingo styled boats or floats, the race here calls on families and thrill seekers to make theirs Flamenco themed.

It is a free activity for the whole family and is being used as an opportunity to publicise the paddle surf school recently opened on San Pedro beach-front.

Registration for the 11am race will be held on Saturday morning at the paddle surf school (located between Nuevo Reino and Kala Kalúa beach bars). It is for all ages and will have great prizes available.

A paddle surf board is the first prize, a dinner for two people for whoever takes second place and a voucher to use in the paddle surf school the third contender.

Council beach adviser María Luisa Parra hopes both residents and visitors will join in.

TASTY: Hundreds of hams will be cut up.

Hamming it up in Estepona

IF you love the taste of Jamon but aren't so happy with the price, tomorrow (Friday) sees the start of the fifth World Jamon Contest in Estepona which runs until Wednesday.

As usual, the various booths will be set up on the Paseo Maritimo heading towards the port and will offer some of the best ham from around Spain, with tasting dishes at just €5 per portion and the 200,000 visitors expected over the six days can wonder at the art of the experts who cut the Jamon.

Running alongside this contest will be a series of free concerts every night with appearances from Hugo Salazar, Maria Calero, Alejandra Rodriguez, Moreno Brothers, Valerie Blue, Como en Casa and Bordón 4.

Things will kick off each night at 7pm and run until 2am the following morning.

Happy Birthday to Elliott Wright's top venue

UNBELIEVABLY, Olivia's in La Cala de Mijas will be celebrating its third birthday with a big bash next Thursday, August 16.

It hardly seems that long ago that former TOWIE star Elliott Wright arrived on the scene and put his brand new restaurant concept together.

Now, the British TV audiences have seen the trials and tribulations and well as some very happy times as he and his family including Sadie (his now pregnant wife) worked so hard to make the restaurant and night spot a great success.

Celebrating with the celebrity couple will be Elliott's best (and sometimes most irritating) mate James 'Arg' Argent, himself a long time regular on TOWIE and now in an on-off relationship with Gemma Collins from the same programme.

One thing is sure, Arg is

certain to be a great attraction at the birthday do and who knows whether Gemma will turn up as well, especially as there are rumours that the couple are possibly going to be presenting their own reality show set in Essex and Marbella.

Also on the bill for the evening will be former Britain's Got Talent contestant Tony Roberts who is an old acquaintance of Arg and the ever popular Masquerade Duo.

Dress code is smart (no trainers or sports gear), children under 12 are not being admitted on this occasion and booking is recommended by calling 952 494 935.

If you can't make the party, then there is always something going on at Olivia's.

Planning gardens to survive the summer

I AM now enjoying my 30th summer

in Spain without expensive air conditioning and with fresh ecological salad vegetables daily from the garden.

The solution was to: live in an inland valley that had a breeze most days; retain and train natural trees for maximum shade in the summer and maximum sun in the winter; keep windows and shutters closed in the summer until shaded after 5pm and open windows and shutters 9am to 5pm in the winter; recognise that only early and late sun is required for salad vegetables but the roots need to be kept constantly damp - to help this a five kilo box of handy TerraCottem has been kept and used whenever planting new plants.

That is just a brain dump of things that come to mind first. This list is increased and expanded on to several-hundred in the booklet How to Use Less Water in your Garden - a practical guide to water-wise Mediterraneanstyle gardening worldwide.

This is available inexpensively from Amazon in English and Spanish.

Luckily many plants have a defence mechanism when the weather is very hot and slow down their activity with growth and flowering being reduced, except for true tropical and semi-tropical flowering plants and trees.

But even then most plants welcome shelter from the hottest suns in semi-or full shade for at least part of the day. Likewise so do humans, pets, insects and garden wildlife such as geckoes and frogs.

When we purchased our house we kept old trees and planted more, we maximised the use of the natural shade for part of the day on the north side and for much of the day on the western side. Likewise we now take maximum advantage of large trees on the eastern southern and western boundaries, trailing climbers over pergolas or wires from trees to the house wall.

With very few spots in the garden that are not in at least dappled shade for at least part of the day there is always somewhere to rest, read or work in the shade and one can stroll the entire perimeter of the plot largely in the shade.

Thinking about planting-up some areas of the garden, especially those which you see when resting or taking a siesta, with cooling plantings that are predominantly white, grey, blue and mauve as suggested in chapter 2.6 in 'Your Garden in Spain - from planning to planting and maintenance.' This was chapter 4.17 in the earlier version of the book.

Possible plants include white and blue agapanthus, mauve tulbaghias, white flowering petunias, begonias, solanum, jasmine and roses, the grey foliage of echiums, lavenders, some gazanias and sages.

Likewise white walls, white plant pots, rocks in rockeries, areas of white stone chippings, light versus dark coloured paths and terraces and whitewashed trunks of citrus trees - which also helps to prevent them from splitting in the sun - can help cool down the garden.

Lastly but not least, the sight and sound of water can be stimulating, soothing and cooling. A fountain can be purchased and immediately installed, but a pond with a fountain or cascading waterfall is a project for the winter - to be ready for next year.

How to keep your garden hydrated

WITH the arrival in the hot summer months of temperatures of up to 40 Celcius, keeping your garden maintained is extremely difficult.

Here are some tips on how to keep your garden hydrated, even in the hottest summer months.

Container gardens and potted plants will suffer most during the heat. Potted plants in direct sunlight may need to be watered twice a day.

However here are some tips on how to deal with it without having worry about gardening every day:

Use plant trays placed in saucer trays filled with water, so the plants soak the water in from the bottom.

Moving plants to shady areas during the heat will prevent them from drying out too quickly.

Putting potted plants in areas near sprinklers so no watering is required is a good option.

Drip-irrigation is also an idea for plotted plants - these systems ensure plants get watered constantly.

If you have a vegetable garden it is important to water it consistently. Inconsistent watering can cause vegetables like root crops and tomatoes to crack, and leafy crops to bolt.

When vegetable plants are dehydrated, the stress can cause the plant to stop flowering or even drop its fruits and flowers.

Sprinklers set on timers are the best option to maintain your vegetable garden with little maintenance needed.

HOME DECOR: Personalise your home.

How to design a home

DECORATING a house can be difficult, but here are some tips on how to do it well, regardless of its size.

Establishing a colour scheme is the first step towards the perfect home. Choosing favourite colours and matching various items really makes it work. Orange and blue, purple and pink, yellow and lime green or grey, complemented by any colour, are good combinations.

Painting the walls different colours - for example, a dark orange and a light orange - will make the room look brighter and bigger.

Another way to warm a room up is with mirrors. A pattern of mirrors will make it look personal and enlarge the space. Hand-made home decor is also a good addition to any home.

Having a well-stocked bar area will make it cosy and welcoming. Swapping chairs for benches is unusual - however it is thought to bring the feeling of friendliness in as people share their seat.

Moving with the times

WITH the continuing uncertainty surrounding the Brexit process there has been a lot of confusion and panic as to how people and businesses would fare both in the UK and Europe, especially its effect on us here in Spain.

However, for us at Roy Trevor Removals, the shock vote to exit the EU has created new opportunities. Whereas we are historically very busy throughout the summer months with local moves around Spain and the Costa del Sol area, this year we have had a large influx of customers leaving the UK to begin a new life in Spain and an almost equal number returning to the UK for various reasons.

This is a big move for people of all ages and from all walks of life and can be very stressful if not handled correctly. We at Roy Trevor Removals have been moving families at home and abroad since 1918 in the UK and since opening our permanent depot in Spain in 1992.

With our vast knowledge gleaned from years of experience we are experts in our field, offering a packing service to suit your requirements. We have a team of professional packers to ensure that all goods from a wine glass to a piano can be moved safely.

With a regular service to and from the UK and further afield we are usually able to tailor your move to suit your timescales. On the Costa del Sol we offer a free site survey. This enables us to ascertain what materials, manpower and timings are required so that the price you are quoted is the price you pay.

If your new property is not ready to move into straight away we have large, fully alarmed, clean, dry storage facilities both in Spain and the UK.

Prospective clients are welcome to visit our premises where they can also browse through our testimonials from the many customers who have used our services, sometimes for the first time and some who have moved many times over the last 24 years using Roy Trevor Removals.

movals and Storage/Moving Matters SL take a look at our website www.moving-matters-sl.com or call us on 951 311 118 in Spain, or from the UK 0843 207 4302 and have a chat with our customer service team.

The dangers of sunstroke

WARNING SIGNS: Dogs can overheat quickly.

TAKE special care of your dog in hot summer months - dogs have inefficient cooling systems compared to humans. The sweat glands are in the tongue and paw pads, the primary method of sweating being the obvious one of panting

If a muzzle or a respiratory blockage interferes with this ability to pant, a dog may overheat quickly. Obese dogs suffer most. Never exercise a dog in the heat of the day and keep its weight under control. Make sure there is plenty of shade and water Temperatures of more than 40°C can result in rapid panting, bright red gums, tongue and other mucus membranes, vomiting, watery and bloody diarrhoea and staggering. Thick saliva is also a sign of an impending heat stroke. If a dog is not treated immediately it is possible that coma, respiratory collapse and death can result.

If there are signs of heat stroke, cool the dog off by submerging it in tepid water before taking it to a vet. Flap a towel to fan the dog and allow gradual cooling.

Cooling a dog that is in shock too fast with cold water can cause further problems, even hypothermia. Certainly do not use ice water for this could result in a narrowing of the arteries to the skin, meaning the dog will retain the heat longer.

Do not leave dogs in cars even with the windows down, and do not allow them to travel with their heads out of the car windows. If you see a dog in an unattended car in hot weather for more than five minutes call the police. Keep water in the boot of the car and out of the sun, dogs do not like warm or hot water.

Hot pavements, tarmac and sand on a beach can burn paws. Jogging with your dog running behind is also unwise, as is making your dog run behind a car.

Remember young or small dogs take 10 steps to our one and young dogs need most of their energy for growing.

Don't clip long-haired dogs too short otherwise there is the danger of the skin being sun burnt, their coats are for protection against cold weather and the sun.

It is not natural for dogs that have been bred for cold climates, such as Huskies and Ankitas, to be taken to warm climates for then behavioural and health problems will occur.

Brexitistential crisis?

THE claim: If Brexit negotiations fail it will make it harder to travel with pets from the UK to the EU. Reality check verdict: If there is no deal then it will indeed be harder to take pets to the EU. The pet passport scheme includes countries that are not EU members, but a deal would need to be done.

EU negotiator Michel Barnier has warned French newspaper Le Journal du Dimanche of some of the consequences of the UK leaving the EU without a deal.

Among those, he spoke about 'the ability ... of dogs and cats to cross the Channel.'

At the moment you can take your pet dog, cat, or indeed ferret, from the UK to the EU and back again without quarantine provided that certain conditions are met, such as having a pet passport and your pet being microchipped.

Pet passports are issued by EU countries and a short list of other countries such as Greenland, Iceland and Switzerland.

The UK could be added to this list, but clearly agreements would be needed to make that happen - it would not be automatic. At 11pm on March 29, 2019, the United Kingdom will officially leave the European Union or at least it will begin a 21-month transition period aimed at smoothing the way toward post-Brexit relations. But for worried observers of the process that was set into motion on June 23, 2016, when the leave vote was narrowly victorious in a referendum, the process has been anything but smooth until now.

CHARITIES

ACE CHARITY "El Refugio" in La Cala de Mijas is a registered charity. We have on average 275 dogs in our care and we receive no help from the Town Hall or the Andalusian government. We desperately need foster homes and adoptants for our many dogs, especially the small ones and puppies who do not do well in a big shelter. We are grateful for any help offered, including donations of food and blankets. Visiting times are from 13.00 to 15.00 and you can always turn up or make an appointment by calling Denise on 669 018 736. Our website is www.ace-charity.org where you can view all the dogs in our care. (93320)

ADANA THE ANIMAL SHELTER IN ESTEPONA. We always need volunteers to walk and socialise with our dogs and help with cleaning. We also need good homes for our animals that you can see on www.adana.es. Kennels open every day 10-1.30, Camino de Casares, near Parque de los Pedregales, Estepona. (5 minutes from the Poligono) For more information call 952 113 467, available from 10.00am until 14.00pm. SEPE the horse and donkey charity is open to the public at weekends from 10.00 to 5.00. Volunteers are much needed in all departments and are welcome at anytime. For our riding for the disabled classes, we are also in need of extra helpers. We are nationally registered by the Spanish Ministry of the Interior (164640) but only with your support can we give the equine a voice. If you can just commit to 2 or 3 euros a month it will really help make a difference. You can find us at Lauro Golf Equestrian Centre, Alqueria, Alhaurin de la Torre. Tel. 608 258 950 info@sepeonline.net www.sepeonline.net (93321)

AT SOS ANIMAL REFUGE we have dogs, young and old looking for homes. Some of our dogs have been with us for some time and would love to find a cosy spot to curl up in and a knee on which to rest their heads. If you have room in your heart and home we would love to hear from you. We do not put our dogs to sleep - no matter how old, they are safe with us. For day to day needs and to pay for veterinary care, we much appreciate the support we receive. We desperately need items to sell on our market stall to help raise funds and are happy to come and collect. So if you are having a clear-out, please contact us on 605 227 155. If you would like to know more about re-homing, please call 653 257 875. Visit our website www.sos-animals.org or please phone Sandy on 952 385 923 or 666 814 056 if you would like to make a donation or help in any way. (93317)

ARCH - Andalusian Rescue Centre for Horses welcomes visitors and volunteers to our stables every day from 9-11am. Come along and help out, or sponsor or adopt one of our horses, donkeys or ponies. We always need help with fund raising to look after the abandoned and abused animals. Our aim is to rescue, rehabilitate and re-home. We are a small friendly team - why not join us. Find us in Alhaurin el Grande, behind the Venta Miralmonte on the road from Alhaurin to

MOTORING FACT

Ford offered the first ever intermittent wind shield wipers as an option on the company's Mercury line, beginning with the 1969 models.

Volkswagen Touareg has star power

WITH its starship looks and when fully kitted out with Volkswagen's InnoVision Cockpit, the new Touareg is unlike anything else currently on sale.

It was always going to need to make a statement to grab the attention of buyers, its predecessor has been under siege from rivals for 15 years.

This new model shares its underpinnings with the Audi Q7, Bentley Bentayga and Lam-orghini Urus, among others.

Longer and wider than before, albeit a fraction lower, this new Touareg looks like a beast on the road, with a grille that appears to stretch across its entire front.

Despite its size, the Touareg remains a five-seater, meaning it lacks the versatility of a Q7 or Volvo XC90.

However, the five seats you do get are generously proportioned, with easily enough room for three adults to sit across the back, and ample headroom even with the enormous panoramic sunroof installed.

As with the smaller Tiguan, these rear seats slide fore and aft, and have adjustable backrests, all allowing you to trade some rear legroom for additional boot space.

The quality of the interior surpasses any other VW to date - with soft, smooth leather and absurdly comfortable seats.

At night the ambient lighting emits a gentle glow, and that the Touareg does all of this without any of the bling so often associated with these enormous SUVs is to VW's credit.

The 12-inch digital dials can display a full satnav map as well as the usual trip computer and audio controls, leading to an almost endless range of possible configurations.

Despite all the usual range of driving modes, the Touareg is at its best if you just leave everything in the default, normal setting.

It may be a two-ton SUV but if you put your foot down the 282bhp Touareg really goes, and the engine is well matched to the gearbox.

Volkswagen thinks it's got a class leader in its hands and if you value comfort and technology over a sporty drive or a posh logo, you may well agree.

A licence to sell

THE '2 GTO' licence plate could potentially be the most expensive ever to be sold in the UK. The registration plate could end up on a Ferrari 250 GTO, the most expensive car ever sold.

Once licensed to an Austin Healey 'Frogeye' Sprite, the '2 GTO' plate has belonged to the same owner since 1970. The iconic number plate has now been put up for auction with an official estimate of €225,000 to €337,000, however it may fetch much more.

At the moment the most expensive plate ever sold in the UK is '25 O,' registered to a €11.25 million Ferrari 250 GT SWB in 2014, costing €656,000.

The world's most expensive classic car to date is a 1963 model sold for €58 million last month.

Currently on sale for an asking price of €16million is the 'F1' registration plate, licensed to a 2013 Bugatti Veyron.

Classic Car Club of Andalucía

A very well organised super cars event

As a general rule, the CCC of A tends to avoid static displays, preferring to get out on to the open road and enjoy the cars for the driving and the countryside. However, it's the exception that sometimes proves the rule, and the exception just recently was the Concours D'Elegance held at the Magna Cafe, near Marbella, and organised by Magna Supercars SL.

The venue proved to be quite beautiful, using some of the golf course there behind the Cafe and proving perfect for a real Concours.

The turnout on the day was extremely impressive with well over 100 cars of all types and sizes entering for the prestigious awards.

A panel of five judges presided over it all and these learned few included top motoring journalist Dr Ian Kueh and the CCCA's own former McLaren team manager, Jo Ramirez.

The event was really well organised and with more super-cars parked in one place than one could imagine. It was quite a feast for enthusiastic eyes! Ferraris by the score, Porsches, Maseratis, Mercedes and much more. Every marque provided something very rare, often exquisite and always hugely valuable. Sadly too many fabulous vehicles were present to list here, but we will try to show some photos on this page.

Participants were treated to some marvellous tapas, Champagnes, beers and wines and then, once judging was complete, a magnificent dinner was served 'al fresco' under the stars whilst the prizes were distributed. I am delighted to report that my lovely 1963 Jaguar Mk.2 was among the prize winners making the evening even sweeter than was expected!

Participants were treated to some marvellous tapas, Champagnes, beers and wines and then, once judging was complete, a magnificent dinner was served 'al fresco' under the stars whilst the prizes were distributed. I am delighted to report that my lovely 1963 Jaguar Mk.2 was among the prize winners making the evening even sweeter than was expected!

However, this week 'Drive Andalusia' the Tours side of the CCC of A has announced its next big event, a seven-day Tour of some of the best mediaeval cities in Spain. The route will take in Cordoba, Caceres, Salamanca, Avila, Plasencia, Aracena and Ronda. Magnificent castles, palaces and five-star hotels will make up the night stops and the roads and scenery will be quite magnificent. Perfect for drivers and passengers alike! There will be a two-night stop in Salamanca to allow everyone a full day to see the sites of this magnificent city of educational and historic interest. There will be black tie dinners, cocktail parties and a great crowd of people. This event is open to others outside the CCCA bringing either a Classic, Sports or Prestige car.

The next CCCA Classic car run will be on Saturday and will start from Venta Peligrino, just above La Cañada, near Marbella. Cars to depart at 11.00am. The finish will be in Mijas Costa.

That's it for this week,

Jan Giles

WANTED WILFRED: The winger could be the subject of a hefty bid from Chelsea.

Everton have reached an agreement to sign Colombia defender Yerry Mina, 23, for €32 million, on a five-year deal. (GOAL)

Manchester United midfielder Paul Pogba is in negotiations with the club in the wake of keen interest from Barcelona and Juventus. (Daily Mail)

Chelsea keeper Thibaut Courtois, 26, has been heavily linked with Real Madrid and has told manager Maurizio Sarri that he wants to leave the club. (ESPN)

Tottenham manager Mauricio Pochettino is interested in Celta Vigo midfielder Stanislav Lobotka, who has a €35 million release clause in his contract. (Mirror)

Manchester United are closing in on a €67 million deal to sign Tottenham's Belgium defender Toby Alderweireld, 29. (Metro)

Rayo Vallecano are in talks to sign former Newcastle midfielder Hatem Ben Arfa, 31, on a free transfer. (Sun)

Real Madrid have been told to pay the €120 million release clause if they want to sign Valencia and Spain forward Rodrigo, 27. (BBC)

Manchester United are preparing a bid for Leicester centre-back Harry Maguire, 25, and know they will have to pay a world record fee for the England international. (Sky Sports)

Ramos gets extra holiday

REAL MADRID'S galaxy of stars are annoyed at the special treatment club captain Sergio Ramos has received this summer, according to Spanish sources.

Fellow Spain teammates Isco, Marco Asensio, Lucas Vazquez and Nacho returned from their holidays on July 25 and 26, with Dani Carvajal back by July 29.

Ramos however, has been holidaying with fiancée Pilar Rubio and did not return until the day after the pre-season friendly against Manchester United.

It is believed this has irritated the other players who were on international duty, who feel the captain should be leading by example, not swanning in at a time of his own choosing.

There is a different look to Los Blancos this season with Cristiano Ronaldo sold to Juventus and Julen Lopetegui replacing Zinedine Zidane.

Real Madrid's first competitive match is against Atletico Madrid on August 15 in the UEFA Super Cup final.

Peaty makes waves again

GREAT BRITAIN'S Adam Peaty broke his own 100m breaststroke World record to retain his European title in Glasgow.

The 23-year-old Olympic and World Champion finished in 57 seconds - 0.13 seconds quicker than his previous best time - as teammate James Wilby grabbed silver following a late surge.

Peaty took a huge lead on the first 50m before pulling away further to win by 1.54secs from fellow Englishman Wilby.

"I can't believe I beat what I did at the Olympics," said Peaty.

"I was in perfect shape then, I'm not even in that good shape now. I didn't try to be in that good shape."

Britain also won gold in the mixed 4x100m medley relay, breaking the European record in the process.

IT'S no secret that La Cala is one of the finest golf resorts in Andalucia.

Three superb championship courses, each presenting its own unique challenges, slot seamlessly into a natural undulating backdrop. Designed by the renowned Cabell Robinson, each 18-hole course has been created to ensure a testing, yet truly exhilarating experience.

Campo America - 6,009 metres, par 72 with five par 5's. Formerly the North Course, is enhanced by spectacular views to the Sierra de Ojen and the Mediterranean Sea. Its wide, linked fairways and relatively few bunkers make this a slightly easier driving course.

Campo Asia - 5,925 metres, par 72. Formerly the South Course, has plenty of challenging holes. The oldest of the three courses and the one most respected by the professionals, it is narrow and short, with four par 5 holes demanding skill and strategy.

Campo Europa - 6,014 metres, par 71. A dramatic course but easier for the average golfer, with generous fairways, flatter terrain and slightly larger greens than Campo America and Asia. Water hazards guard the third and 14th greens and the 14th is at the maximum limit of what is allowed for a par 3 at 233 metres.

You will also find a Par 3 course - located beside the La Cala Golf Academy, this six-hole course is one of the finest short game practice facilities on the Costa del Sol.

Hall claims Women's Open

ENGLAND'S Georgia Hall hopes she can encourage more young girls to take up golf after winning the Women's British Open at Royal Lytham & St Annes.

The 22-year-old is only the third British winner since the event became a major championship in 2001.

Hall, who won by two shots at 17 under par, also hopes to help attract new sponsors to the Ladies European Tour.

"I want to be a good role model for young girls in Britain and hopefully I can encourage a lot of them to take up the game," she said.

Victory meant the 2013 British ladies' amateur champion emulated compatriot Karen Stupples and Scot Catriona Matthew, the other two British winners since this event became a major.

It also secured the Bournemouth-based golfer a €429,000 prize.

Aguero gives Chelsea the Blues

SERGIO AGUERO scored both Manchester City's goals as the Premier League champions beat Chelsea to win the Community Shield on a sweltering day at Wembley.

Aguero's first - his 200th goal for the club - came after 13 minutes, when he collected the ball on the edge of the area after Phil Foden surged forward, and fired into the bottom corner.

His second came after the break, when he latched on to Bernardo Silva's pass and beat Willy Caballero with another precise low finish.

Chelsea lacked a presence in attack and managed only one shot on target, a long range strike by 17-year-old Callum Hudson-Odoi.

could be put down to the heat, which made it difficult for both sides to sustain any sort of tempo.

Players were allowed water breaks during the game and some substitutes had wet towels over their heads.

The Blues missed the creativity of Eden Hazard, but City were also without Kevin de Bruyne, Raheem Sterling and David Silva.

City's controlled performance secured their third piece of silverware in the past six months, and manager Pep Guardiola has emphasised that they are hungry for more.

Chelsea will face Huddersfield on Saturday, while City begin the defence of their Premier League crown at Arsenal on Sunday.

England bowl India over

ENGLAND'S cricket team held their nerve to complete a tense 31 run victory over India on an enthralling fourth morning of the first Test at Edgbaston.

India - resuming on 110-5 in pursuit of 194 - were bowled out for 162 as tension mounted among an increasingly raucous crowd.

In only his second Test, Sam Curran's performance stood out, with his bowling on the second day and batting on the third dragging England back into the game and setting the stage for a thrilling finish.

James Anderson removed Dinesh Karthik with the sixth ball of the final day before Ben Stokes produced a superb over to dismiss captain Virat Kohli for 51 and Mohammed Shami for a duck.

The all-rounder sealed victory by having Hardik Panya caught at first slip to finish with 4-40.

Stokes bowled with aggression and shrewdness but will miss the second test at Lord's due to his court case for alleged affray.

While India came up short, their performance was a far cry from their dismal tour four years ago and bodes well for the remainder of what promises to be a hotly contested five-Test series.

England captain Joe Root said:

"It was a fantastic team performance with ups and downs, but credit has to go to the bowlers from both teams."

India captain Virat Kohli said his first century in England "does not matter" after his side's narrow defeat.

Women's Hockey World Cup

NETHERLANDS were crowned Women's Hockey World Cup winners for a record eighth as they overwhelmed Ireland 6-0 to end their fairytale tournament.

Four goals in a seven-minute spell around the half-time break earned the Dutch a commanding victory.

Minnows Ireland had won a raft of new fans on their unlikely road to the final, but had no answer to their opponents' intensity and class.

Their reward for reaching the final is an expected climb into the top of the world rankings for the first time.

The Dutch extended their unbeaten run in all competitions to 32 matches, and Kitty van Male finished as the tournament's top scorer.
